Sheriff Green Warns Public Of Counterfeit Money In The Area

Sheriff Gerald Green was called to Baldwin Wednesday afternoon following the discovery of an influx of counterfeit $10 bills.

He said he inspected twenty-seven $10 bills and all had the same serial No. L11441505C.

All persons are urged to check the bills they have—especially the $10 bills. An FBI agent from Memphis was expected to arrive Wednesday.

Mr. Claude McCreary had received the money at a car sale held in Baldwin. He said the man who bought the car was from Alabama.

Counterfeit money was reported found in Tupelo.

In other news, Sheriff Green said the four salesmen who were arrested for selling lightening rods without privilege licenses had been fined $321.50 each—a total of $1,286.00.

Junior College Home Economics major from Kossuth; and Miss Mary Evelyn Edwards, Assistant Home Agent and director of 4-H activities in Prentiss County.

Most Workers Don't Agree

Most workers in the United States apparently don't believe the big claims of paid organizers that union representation is a fine thing, and apparently many who were once union people found out that a lot of the promises were just that and not a reality.

Although the country's population and work force continues to increase, union membership continues a downward trend. According to a recent report of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, membership of unions headquartered in the U. S. dropped to 17,630,000 in 1962. In 1960 unions had 18,117,000 members; thus, in two years a decline of nearly half a million members took place.

The survey also shows that only 22.2 per cent of the work force is organized. It doesn't take much reasoning to realize that if unions could do all they claim, a greater percentage of the work force would be organized and unions would be gaining membership instead of losing it. It seems that most of the country's workers don't swallow the line of the organizers, and others, although they once joined the union, learned better and got out.

Another reason for this rejection of unions might be the type leadership associated with them. Take the International Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners for instance. Maurice Hutcheson is president of the Carpenters Union, inheriting the job from his father, who controlled the union for many years.

Maurice Hutcheson gets a salary from the union treasury of $35,000 a year, plus a big expense account, all money which comes out of members' pockets.

In October 1959 Hutcheson was indicted twice by grand juries. He has been convicted and sentenced on two different charges. He was indicted by a Federal Grand Jury in Washington for Contempt of Congress, convicted, sentenced to a six-month jail term and fined $500. He refused to answer questions before the Senate Labor Rackets Committee, some of which had to do with the handling and use of union funds.

Hutcheson, Vice President William Blair, now dead, and Union Treasurer Frank Chapman, were indicted by another Grand Jury in Indianapolis, Ind., where the headquarters of the union is located, tried in a public court and convicted of bribery of a state highway official in a crime that netted them personal profits of $81,500.00 in a fraudulent land deal. Hutcheson and Blair were sentenced to terms of 2 to 14 years in prison, fined $250 each and deprived of their voting rights and qualifications for public office for five years. Chapman died before he could be sentenced.

These men were tried, found guilty and sentenced in public courts on crimes of a very serious nature, and even though some union members asked that they be removed from office they continued to serve as top union officials.

Small wonder that most of the workers in the United States don't want to belong to a union.

"Off The Track" To Be Staged By BHS Juniors Friday, Apr. 3

"Off the Track," a three-act comedy with an unusual twist to it, will be presented by the Junior Class of Booneville High School this Friday night, April 3, at 7:30 p.m. in the BHS auditorium. The play, directed by Mrs. Taylor Smith, class sponsor, and Becky Gullett and Betty Billingsley, student directors, has as its setting the waiting room of a small wayside railroad station. It is a dark, stormy night. The crowd is thrown together when Mrs. Vanderventer, played by Gaye Roden, discovers that her string of pearls, valued at $10,000, is missing. Someone in the waiting room has them, but who?

Gene Risley plays Mr. John Morgan, the station agent, and Silas Dobbins, played by Bill Murphy, is an illiterate handy man around the station.

Prentiss County Cancer Crusade To Save Lives Begins April 6

The annual American Cancer Society Crusade to save more lives through research, education and service will be launched in Prentiss County on April 6.

Mr. Wayne Hunter, Chairman of the Prentiss County Cancer Unit, urges all those wishing to volunteer "in this vital struggle against possible death from cancer" to contact him for information about the Crusade.

"We need volunteers and we must saturate the community with life-saving information if we are to do the job we are called upon to do. Because of the importance of the job to the community's welfare, I am sure the people will respond with enthusiasm out of a sense of duty and compassion for peoples' lives."

Mr. Hunter said men and women everywhere are becoming increasingly aware of the urgency of the cancer problem and what they can do about it personally. Last year, he pointed out, more than 44,000 men and women were saved from cancer who would have died had they developed the disease 10 years ago.

Cotton Acreage Release Date Extended To Apr. 15

The final date for cotton farmers to release cotton allotment acres that will not be planted has been extended from March 31 to April 15, 1964, it was announced this week by Orville E. Bostick, chairman of the Mississippi Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) State Committee.

Charles E. Calvert, manager of the ASCS county office, said that only 797 acres have so far been released in Prentiss County this year, as compared with 1830 turned in last year.

Mr. Calvert thought that one of the reasons less than half as much acreage had been released was the fact that last year was a bumper crop year for cotton and some of the farmers may have decided to plant their allotment instead of releasing it this year.

The Prentiss County office has had requests for 5,300 additional acres and Mr. Calvert said they will begin proportioning the 797 acres already turned in. He still urges all cotton farmers to plan to plant or release their allotment acreage.

One reason for the extension of the release date is due to pending legislation in Congress.

Mr. Bostick explained, "Many farmers have hesitated to release acreage they will not plant thinking that possibly it would be to their disadvantage in the event legislation being considered by Congress is enacted. The legislation could possibly affect farmers with original cotton allotments of 22.4 acres or more who release a part of such allotments, but will have no adverse affect on farmers who release acreage from original allotments of less than 22.4 acres."

On March 25 the House Rules Committee agreed to bring the cotton-wheat bill, already passed by the Senate, to the floor of the House shortly after the Easter recess—possibly April 6—and the vote will be either to accept the Senate bill without amendment or to reject it.

The action of the state committee to extend the final release date had no effect on the March 31 final date for requesting additional acreage.

Counties where farmers release more acreage than can be reapportioned in the county will surrender the excess acreage to the state committee on April 17, and the state committee will reapportion the surrendered acreage to other counties on April 21. County committees receiving the additional acreage will reapportion it to eligible farmers by April 23 and farmers receiving additional acreage should receive notice on or before April 25.

County agricultural workers urge farmers who have allotments which they do not intend to plant, to please release it if they have not already done so. They urge further that if you have requested additional acreage be sure to plant your total allotment, including any additional acreage that may be assigned to your farm.

If a farmer did not release or plant in 1962 and 1963 he must plant some cotton in 1964 to be eligible for an allotment in 1965 and if he fails to plant or release this year he not only loses his 1965 allotment, but the loss will also reduce the county's history acreage.

And if a person released in 1962 and 1963 and does not intend to plant in 1964, he should still release on or before April 13, to save the acreage from loss by the county and state.

The Cancer Problem

Are we closing in on the cancer problem? There are hopeful indications. Great gains have been made. Greater gains can be made now.

Research has produced major advances in recent years. Scientists are coming up with new and encouraging findings. This accounts for the feeling—as one scientist has said—that cancer might be conquered in our lifetime.

The hopeful facts are that this year the lives of 48,000 people will be saved from cancer—people who would have died of the disease had they developed it a decade ago. Another hopeful fact is that half of those who develop cancer in any year can be saved if the disease is diagnosed early and treated promptly. This could mean 270,000 lives in 1964. A half century ago, few cancer patients had any hope of cure. Today there are more than 1,200,000 persons alive in the United States, cured of cancer.

Despite this steady progress against cancer the problem remains a major one. Some 48,000,000 Americans now alive will develop the disease if present rates continue. This is one-fourth of the population.

Stark as this figure is, something can be done now. We are saving only one out of two who develop cancer. We could save one out of two. As the American Cancer Society says, an annual health check-up for everyone would go a long way in saving the one out of two. This means getting to your doctor in time.

As for the other half, only future research can save them. A vast research effort, supported in the main by the ACS and the government's National Cancer Institute, is being made to find ways of saving the one out of two who cannot now be saved. But the research effort goes beyond this. It is seeking ways of preventing all cancer through a vaccine or other means. It is hunting for drugs that will cure cancer.

Despite progress made against cancer we cannot afford to stand still. The pace of research and education—our two most potent weapons against cancer—must be stepped up if we are to realize the hope the future promises, based on the facts we have today.

Voluntary public-supported health agencies have been a major factor in combatting disease. They have offered the public an avenue to express its deep concern for the people's health. The Salk vaccine against polio is a good example of what can be accomplished.

If a vaccine against cancer is found—and all of us hope that it will be found—it may be your dollars contributed to the American Cancer Society during its annual April Crusade that helped make it possible.

Public Relations Note

BY Neil Woodruff, Asst. Professor of Journalism, MSU

Speed is the essence of our times. More and more we are rushing to get somewhere. And then when we get there, we quite often wonder just what the big hurry was in the first place. Our entire society is revolving around the idea of speed — both through speed in doing our work and speed in transportation. The automobile has contributed more than anything else to the convenience and speed with which we conduct our business and personal lives.

Mr. Woodruff

Rare is the family unit that does not have an automobile. And more and more numerous are the family units which actively operate two or more automobiles. Because of this growing dependence upon the automobile for both business and pleasure, many new problems have arisen. Since World War II, cities, counties, states and the federal government have had to re-vamp entire street and highway systems and to plan for bigger and more roads and highways for the future.

While this growth and expansion is taking place, it is the responsibility of individuals who operate motor vehicles to take into consideration their fellow drivers and maintain an ethical relationship on all trafficways. Understandably, we have just about every type of driver on our highways that you can name. Practically all are safe, responsible drivers. However, a personal code of ethics is still highly desirable in everyday use of motor vehicles.

A good driver is not necessarily a safe driver. There is a big difference. Of course, a person can be both, either or neither. It's the many little incidents which occur on local streets and highways which not only are annoying to other drivers, but actually constitute violations of the law. There are many people who consider breaking the law just that. A person who will intentionally run a red light might also cheat on his income tax.

People spend a lot of time in their automobiles. They keep in contact with other people whom they do not see regularly by a wave of the hand from the car as they pass by. This is all right. That is, until two drivers decide to conduct some business or visit for 5 or 10 minutes while holding up traffic on both sides of the street. Some of the most common violations in good driving occurs when the person behind you sounds his horn just before the red light turns green. Or the fellow who is having a fit to pass you, only to signal for a left turn and hold you up when he does get by. But the real test of diplomacy comes when two drivers start for the same vacant parking place. This is the true test of a courteous driver. Other fairly flagrant violations of traffic laws concerns failure to yield the right of way and persons who turn right on red when this is not indicated as a traffic regulation.

It's true, we are all moving fast today. We are going somewhere. But while we are on the way we should keep in mind that the pathway is getting pretty crowded and that we should have some consideration for the other fellow, too. However, with all our modern transportation vehicles, it's still intriguing to hear grandfathers tell about riding a mule 10-odd miles on a Sunday afternoon courting his best gal. What teenager over 16 does not feel out of place today if he doesn't have a shiny car at his command to do his courting by modern standards?

Under certain conditions, may remove court files; H 63, designate agriculture dept. official inspection agency for grain crops.

Bills having cleared both houses and ready for governor's action unless otherwise indicated: S 1577, domestic insurance companies invest 10 per cent of capital in common shares of corporations and limiting life insurance companies to 2 per cent in any one corporation; S 1517 municipal courts may assess fines up to $300, and/or 90 days (now $100 and/or 30 days); S 1742, uniform receipts by JP's; HCR 49, requesting farmers to release cotton acreage by April 1 for reassignment if they plan not to use; H 170, define corporate executive officers for purpose of coverage under workmen's compensation (held on motion); S 1615, for reproduction of business records by microfilm; H 73, increase salary of secretary of state pharmacy board to $7500.

Major election law changes — 18 bills in all, passed through Senate Thursday. They are Senate bills 1764 through 1784 (two measures not passed) and among more important were these: S 1764, require political parties to hold precinct and county conventions to be legal party (amended to require in state convention delegates from 30 counties, instead of from majority of counties); S 1767, require all political parties conduct primary elections; S 1766, candidates in primary must submit his name 60 days before first primary, and S 1768, registrar provide primary election poll books for each party — most of measures held on motion to reconsider.

Other measures passing Senate included: S 1728, clarify statutes governing veterans affairs board & commission; S 1798, create Miss. Advisory Council on Water Pollution Control. Note: The Uniform Commercial Code Act, S 1501, announced for special order last Tuesday, reset for special order on April 7, MEC favors measure.

Bills passed by House included: H 151, place words "Free Enterprise State" on license tags; H 213, administration's research and development center act; H 412, building commission inspector or architect make semi-annual inspections of state buildings; H 424, permit capital commission lease lands for 5 years but no longer unless approved by legislature; HCR 16, the liberty amendment; H 195, for leasing 16th Section lands for clay mining; H 209, extend life of Milk Commission; H 227, prison reform bill, vesting full responsibility in governor; H 172, for disability payments to firemen and policemen for permanent disability with service less than 5 years; H 352, require all state agencies file quarterly reports of out-of-state purchases and professional service in excess of $500; H 431, establish pre-trial procedure for state courts.

100 Years Ago— Huge Profits Made By Blockade Runners

By LON K. SAVAGE

The view was lovely at St. George Harbor on Bermuda 100 years ago this week.

There, a motley fleet of steamers and sailing ships, flying an assortment of flags, rocked gently on the beautiful blue-green water — participants in one of the most profitable businesses connected with the Civil War—blockade running.

An indication of the profit that could be gained in the blockade running business was published in Charleston, S. C., that week in the prospectus of one of the British companies engaged in the trade. The company, the prospectus said, planned to begin sending its fleet of five specially built steamers into the Confederacy immediately, bringing in supplies and hauling out cotton. Totalling figures on its ledger, the company estimated that each steamer could make two successful runs before it was captured or destroyed, and that would be enough to turn a profit of more than 100,000 pounds.

Come By Moonlight

Such was the flourishing state of the blockade running business as the Civil War entered its fourth year. From Nassau, Havana, the British Honduras, Mexico and Brazil, as well as from Bermuda, the ships sailed by moonlight to the Confederate coast bearing gunpowder, armaments, food, clothing, drugs and even liquor for Southerners, then departed with thousands of bales of cotton for the rest of the world.

Although President Lincoln had proclaimed a blockade of the Southern coast in the first week of the war, the blockade had failed to stop the trade.

Estimates were that at least three-fourths of the runs through the blockade were successful during that spring, and earlier in the war the percentage had been higher.

Profits

The profits were fantastic. Cotton could be bought at three and four cents a pound in the South and sold at 50 cents a pound in England, and one ship in one run could haul out nearly 1,000 bales. The Richmond Enquirer of April 2, 1864, reported one blockade runner, in several trips, had carried out 12,000 bales — worth 600,000 pounds sterling, a return of about 3 million gold dollars.

The result was that blockade runners materialized from all over the world. Spaniards, Canadians, Mexicans, Greeks and former British navy officers, pursuing adventure and wealth, joined in the trade while the Confederate government declined to take an active part. Although the Federal blockade took a regular toll of the runners, one or two trips usually paid for a ship with profit and after that nearly everything was gravy.

Ironically, while Britishers and Frenchmen joined in blockade running, their governments recognized the legality of the blockade. England, in fact, was in the position of observing the blockade legally while winking at the blockade runners who helped keep England's cotton mills producing.

Next Week: End of the Red River Campaign.

Local Business

By S. S. TALBOT
Chairman, Dept. of Journalism
University of Mississippi

Russian newspapers are conducting a campaign to stimulate the purchase of better and more attractive dress in the USSR.

Theoretically, the Communists consider advertising a waste. But the present campaign indicates that common sense tells them otherwise.

The Russian woman, or man, grew accustomed to sloppy clothing when the production of consumer goods was sacrificed for industrial and military build-up. Now that better goods are available they are not desired.

Apparently, the present Russian leaders feel that a well-dressed person is a more contented and more productive citizen. But the techniques of capitalistic promotion are needed to break sloppy habits of yore.

This belated appeal to the consumer in a Communist society again demonstrates the part advertising plays in creating wealth. For no economy benefits from products which are not wanted.

The desire for new products is the first factor in mass production. That desire usually follows effective advertising.

Advertising stimulates the consumer to obtain the wherewithal to make a purchase. It puts into movement the machinery which makes low cost products available to the whole public.

Legislative Report

Mississippi Economic Council's Weekly Legislative Bulletin

By end of the 12th week of session it is apparent that question of raising new revenue, and how much may well keep this "honeymoon session" of 1964-68 legislature in Jackson until mid-May at least even though first hint of a "home-stretch" approach appeared in the Senate this week when a resolution was presented setting final adjournment on April 18. However, in House Thursday afternoon there was a clear split—some called it a "revolt" against administration leadership — over sales tax increase proposal to 3½ per cent, for immediate consideration. Vote was 58 to 56 (needed 76 votes for immediate consideration). Then, after bill read third time, making it ready for action next day, House refused to come back Friday to take up measure, as leaders urged. Opposing ½ cent increase reportedly are those wanting increase to 4 per cent so as to give teacher-pay and other increases, and those opposed to any raise in sales tax. Meanwhile, Senate, for second time this session, held Friday morning session.

Bills signed by Governor during week: H 70, to expand animal diagnostic clinic; H 81, selected industrial feasibility act; H 9, authorize reimbursement to trustees of municipal school district for necessary travel; S 1667, authorize corporations construct low cost, multi-family housing; H 42, duly licensed and practicing attorney, under cer-

He had taken all kinds of vitamin pills And everything else that would cure an ill.

He tried to save money, was frugal too, He always bought a bargain shoe.

He was getting worse week by week His trouble just had to be in his feet.

His wife told him what to do, Just go to GRAY'S and get a CITY CLUB shoe.

He exclaimed, "My gosh! How good they feel, With a cushioned sole from the toe to the heel!"

Now she can't even slow him down. He spends all his time just walking around.

She goes to bed, turns off the light, But the old boy keeps walking far in the night.

He says, "Honey, I'll come to bed in an hour or two, I want to enjoy these CITY CLUB shoes.

COUNTY AGENT NOTES

By W. TAYLOR SMITH, County Agent

POULTRY NOTES

A state law requires that no dead poultry, carcasses or any part of a dead bird be disposed of by throwing or leaving along public roads, in fields, or woods. It requires that they must be burned, buried or put in an approved type disposal pit.

Some poultry producers are having trouble with disposal pits especially during wet weather due to poor drainage.

Some good commercial made incinerators are on the market designed especially for the use of poultrymen. These units are reasonably priced and do good jobs.

Most of them burn fuel oil and will cost 12 to 15 cents an hour to operate. Some of these units will hold 150 pounds and will completely burn up the contents in five hours.

If you are having trouble with your disposal pit, it might pay to check on an incinerator.

Make Money From Pastures

Some steps toward making money from pastures include: Fertilizing now. On permanent pastures with grass and clover combination use phosphate and potash. On grasses alone use nitrogen.

Control weeds on all permanent pastures. Use chemicals early and the clipper during the summer.

Prepare to alternate grazing on all permanent pastures regardless of the type grasses you have on the pastures. To properly manage pastures cross fences must be used.

Fertilize broomedge areas and graze heavily during the spring. Cross fence broomedge areas.

Set Coastal Bermuda during April and May, as long as the moisture lasts. Spray the area with 2,4-D or simazine.

Fertilize established Coastal Bermuda with complete fertilizer.

On thin stands of Coastal, spray for weed control. Do not plow up last year's stand. Fertilize it and control weeds.

SOIL TESTING

Acid soils are costing Mississippi cotton farmers around $30 million a year in reduced yields. Lack of lime on your soils may rob you of as much as one-half bale or more to the acre.

Liming acid soils increases cotton yields by supplying calcium and magnesium, preventing manganese toxicity (crinkle-leaf), improving availability of phosphorus, reducing leaching of potash, increasing use of subsoil moisture, helping maintain stands and increasing efficiency of applied fertilizer.

How do you know if your land needs lime? Soil testing will give you the answer!

PLANT CORN EARLY

In recent years the Southwestern corn borer has become a serious pest throughout the state. During the past two years the Holly Springs Branch Experiment Station has conducted tests to study the influence of date of planting and the use of insecticides in controlling the borer. The results, so far, show that early planting is worth more than insecticides in controlling borer infestations. Too, early planted corn in normal years receives plenty of moisture and higher yields are made.

will be the executive committee of the Mississippi Valley Association, a 33-state organization which has long spearheaded America's water resource development. On the committee are 13 officials from as far away as Nebraska, Minnesota and Illinois.

Representatives of the river and waterway groups and the AEC will gather in Columbus, April 11-12, the final weekend of the annual pilgrimage to ante bellum homes here. Business sessions will be held Monday morning, April 13.

Also scheduled is an air tour of the Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway route, a proposed navigable channel connecting the Tennessee River at Pickwick Landing, Tennessee, with the Warrior-Tombigbee system at Demopolis, Ala.

Representing the Atomic Energy Commission at the forthcoming meeting will be John S. Kelly of Washington, D. C., director of the AEC's division of peaceful nuclear explosives, and Dr. Gerald W. Johnson of Livermore, Calif., associate director of Lawrence Radiation Laboratories.

Glover Wilkins, administrator of the Tennessee-Tombigbee agency, said they were interested in the feasibility of nuclear excavation of the divide cut section of the waterway. He will accompany them to the spot where the waterway is to cut through the dividing ridge just south of the Tennessee River in Tishomingo County, Miss.

The cut here is at least 75 feet deep for about five miles and will require some 100 million cubic yards of excavation.

"The Tennessee-Tombigbee project may well establish the feasibility of nuclear construction," Mr. Wilkins said. "U. S. agencies are interested because of the growing need for a new Atlantic-Pacific canal and their desire to save time and money in its construction through the employment of nuclear devices."

They agree the first use of nuclear cratering in public works projects must be within the continental U. S.

Mississippi Gov. Johnson, who has promised full cooperation in the nuclear study, will attend the Columbus meeting as host governor. Others planning to attend include Kentucky Gov. Breathitt, vice chairman of the authority.

Tests Show Value Of Fertilization Of Johnsongrass

STATE COLLEGE, Miss. — Fertilizer on Johnsongrass meadows will pay for itself many times over in high yields of better quality hay. Dr. C. Y. Ward, Mississippi Experiment Station agronomist, became convinced of this in a two-year study.

Without fertilizer his plots made about 2 tons of hay per acre. Thirty pounds of nitrogen, applied at a cost of $3.60, increased yields by two tons or $60 worth of hay. Each increment of nitrogen, applied along with a steady rate of 120 lbs. of phosphate and potash per acre, continued to boost yields. At 240 pounds per acre, the yield was 8 1/2 tons.

Nitrogen does not necessarily have to be applied in the early spring. These studies showed equally good response from applications after the first or second hay cuttings if summer rainfall is ample. Regardless of the amount of fertilizer used, Johnsongrass must be cut at an early growth stage in order to obtain high quality hay.

"Thousands of acres of Johnsongrass meadows in Mississippi are starved for plant food," Dr. Ward said. "Many of these underfed meadows produce less than two tons of hay annually. To realize the full potential of this grass, it must be properly fertilized."

"Liberal use of nitrogen fertilizer along with recommended levels of potash and phosphorus will do four important things for a Johnsongrass meadow. It will thicken the stand of grass, help eliminate weeds, boost hay yields, and give a more leafy hay that is higher in crude protein."

The Experiment Station test was established near Prairie, Miss., on an old worn-out hay field in 1962. Initially the heavy black soil was low in plant food and the stand of Johnsongrass was sparse.

Use Right Size Spray Nozzle Tips

Recent research shows that wear of the orifice in spray nozzle tips can cause about 10 per cent increase in application rate of pre-emergence chemicals per acre. Over-dose of some chemicals per acre was due to failure of the operator to calibrate his sprayer at regular intervals. Over-dose can also be corrected by use of spray tips made from harder materials. Read the label, use correct rate per acre and check calibration of sprayer every 3 or 4 days.

1,200,000 VISITED STATE PARKS IN 1963

Figures show that state parks afford one of the most rapidly growing enterprises in Mississippi. As population shifts to towns and cities, outdoor recreation becomes more important to everyone. Eight parks were first opened in 1936 and attendance that year was less than 50,000 people. From that modest beginning, use of state parks has increased rapidly with an estimated 1,200,000 visitors using them in 1963. This reflects a 24-fold increase in 27 years, and another noteworthy factor is that much of the state park lands are forested. Revenue from timber-growing has been substantial and promises to be much greater in future years.

Prentiss ASCS County News

By CHARLES E. CALVERT, Office Manager

COTTON RELEASE DATE EXTENDED

Orville E. Bostick, Chairman of the Mississippi Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) State Committee, announced this week that the final date for cotton farmers to release cotton allotment acres that will not be planted has been extended from March 31 to April 15, 1964. "Many farmers have hesitated to release acreage they will not plant," Mr. Bostick said, "thinking that possibly it would be to their disadvantage in the event legislation being considered by Congress is enacted into law. The legislation being considered could possibly affect farmers with original cotton allotments of 22.4 acres or more who release a part of such allotments but will have no adverse effect on farmers who release acreage from original allotments of less than 22.4 acres," he continued.

On March 25, the House Rules Committee agreed to bring the cotton-wheat bill, already passed by the Senate, to the floor of the House shortly after the Easter recess—possibly April 6. Debate will be limited to one hour and the vote will be to either accept the Senate bill without amendment or reject it. Action of the State Committee to extend the final date for farmers to release cotton allotment acreage that will not be planted had no effect on the March 31 final date for requesting additional acreage.

Farmers with original allotments of 22.4 acres or less who have already released a part of such allotments and who wish to may contact the ASCS County Office and change their acreage for release before the committee reapportionment to other counties on April 21, 1964. County committees receiving the additional acreage will reapportion it to eligible farmers by April 23 and farmers receiving additional acreage should receive notice on or before April 25, 1964.

Counties where farmers release more acreage than can be reapportioned the excess acreage to the state committee on April 17, 1964. The state committee will reapportion the surrendered acreage to other counties on April 21, 1964. County committees receiving the additional acreage will reapportion it to eligible farmers by April 23 and farmers receiving additional acreage should receive notice on or before April 25, 1964.

APRIL 30 LAST DAY FOR LOANS ON '63-CROP COTTON

April 30 is the last day producers can obtain a price support loan on their 1963-crop cotton.

Cotton loan rates vary according to location and quality. The rate for middling 1 1/16 inch stored in Prentiss County is 34.09 cents per pound. To be eligible for a loan a producer must be in compliance with the 1963 cotton acreage allotment established for the farm.

Loans are available at ASCS county offices or from approved lending agencies. Through March 25, 1964, Mississippi farmers obtained loans on 1,382,169 bales of 1963 cotton. Cotton producers have obtained eight (8) loans on 127 bales of cotton for $21,404.21 through the Prentiss ASCS County Office.

1964 FEED GRAIN PROGRAM SIGN-UP REPORTED

As of March 27, 1964, farmers in Prentiss County had signed up 580 farms to participate in the 1964 feed grain program. The sign-up ended March 27. The forms listing intended diversion show 7,229 acres to be diverted from the production of corn and grain sorghum. The diversion is from base acreages (59-60) average plantings of 10,872 acres on the sign-up farms. Estimated total payments amount to $165,421.00, not including price support payments to be made this fall.

National program totals through March 13 show 812,146 farms signed up to divert 20,867,400 acres from base acreages of 44,413,500 acres. Estimated - diversion payments on farms signed up amount to $587,225,600. This total does not include price support payments to be made this fall to program participants.

The 812,146-farm sign-up for the 1964 feed grain diversion program compares with 642,835 farms enrolled at the end of the first five weeks in the 1963 sign-up. The 20.9 million acres signed up for diversion in 1964 compare with 13.1 million acres signed up during the similar period for 1963. Total participation sign-up in the 1963 program was 1.2 million farms, with signed diversion of 25.7 million acres of feed grain cropland. Actual diversion was 24.5 million acres.

The goal of the feed grain program is to bring production into line with demand, to reduce excessive stocks, and to cut government costs. Farmers help achieve this goal by voluntarily diverting feed grain acreage to conserving uses. They thus qualify for acreage diversion payments, price support payments, and regular price support loans.

THIS YEAR, PLANT COKER PEDIGREED CAROLINA QUEEN - Certified

- EARLY MATURITY
- BIG YIELDS
- EXCELLENT MACHINE PICKING
- HIGH GIN TURNOUT

If you value farmers' and ginners' opinions about a variety . . . If you compare performance, yield and profit per acre—you'll plant at least a trial acreage of Coker Carolina Queen this spring.

"I planted Coker Carolina Queen on my plantation in 1963 and was highly pleased with the results. On my first picking I picked over three bales per acre. Besides being a high yielder, this cotton is an early maturing variety with excellent adaptability for machine or hand picking. I have found it to be an outstanding cotton for planting under Delta conditions, and do not hesitate to recommend it to other planters in the Mississippi Valley."

'Hazard Hunt' Can Make Home Safer

For families that have not had a hazard hunt in the house and on the premises within the last year, the State Board of Health recommends that one accompany spring clean-up and fix-up time.

"Spotting even the smallest hazard and fixing it, might save someone from a tragic and painful accident," said Dr. A. L. Gray, State Health Officer.

Ironically enough, almost half of the accidental deaths in Mississippi occur in the home and on the home premises.

"Yet most of these tragedies," said Dr. Gray, "could have been prevented if families had conducted hazard hunts and followed through on eliminating all accident-producing conditions."

To make the home and premises a safer place, here is a list of clean-up, fix-up suggestions:

*Remove all unneeded and unnecessary items. This will reduce fire and tripping hazards and give you a bonus of extra storage space for usable things.

*Reorganize storage space so things can be put away when not in use.

*Arrange furniture for easy passage from room to room.

*Keep stairways and steps clear. Check handrails and lighting.

*Put household aids, cleaning products, other non-edibles in places inaccessible to children. Keep poisons absolutely beyond the reach of children, preferably locked up. Medicines and drugs, too. If potentially harmful household and drug products are accessible to children, reorganize storage or provide safe storage facilities.

*Never put non-edibles in food or drink containers. Keep labels and instructions intact.

*Store garden and farm chemicals in suitable areas inaccessible to children, pets or farm animals. Keep chemicals in original containers with labels intact. (Labels tell how to use, store and dispose of chemicals, also what to do in case of accident.)

*Check electrical wiring in the house, barn, other buildings. Repair if needed to safeguard against fire and shocks. If wiring is overloaded, consider improvements in system.

*Repair or replace worn electric power cords and plugs on lamps, appliances, TV, power tools, etc. Also, check for faulty switches.

*Check grounding and operating safety of appliances, power tools, electric motors, pumps, etc. Ailing electrical equipment can cause fire and nasty shocks.

*Check the heating system, heaters, stoves, chimneys. Clean them if necessary and make needed repairs.

*Repair broken or rotted flooring in porch, house, sheds or barn.

*Fix broken or raised places on concrete or stone walkways.

*Clean up the yard, barnlot. Remove rubbish, junk, tools, toys, and dry weeds to help protect against fire, falls and other injuries.

*Inspect all ladders for broken or weak parts. Repair or replace ladders which are unsafe. Don't paint ladders. Rather, cover them with clear varnish, shellac, or linseed oil so cracks or bad spots can be seen.

*Make certain firearms and ammunition are safely stored. Check to see that guns are not loaded, that ammunition is kept separate from guns.

*Fill in or cover any large holes, shafts or abandoned wells. Also, remove rocks or stumps that might cause a stumble.

*Check fire extinguishers in the house and barn for condition and readiness for action. If fire protection is inadequate, provide it.

"Keep an eye open for other conditions and hazards that could hurt someone and don't delay eliminating them," urged Dr. Gray.

The Thursday Study Club held their March meeting in the beautiful new home of Mrs. J. W. Holandsworth. Dr. Mary Sumners, who is head of the Social Science Department at Northeast Miss. Junior College, shared her vacation experience in the Holy Land at this meeting with the members and a charming visitor, Mrs. Denby Garrison, of Mobile, Ala.

Dr. Sumners covered some of the most extraordinary events in history, reviewing with colored scenic slides from finely detailed photographs beginning with Egypt's wonders of the past, the earliest records of its civilization. A charming and forceful speaker, with her wide knowledge of world history, she was able to pinpoint the events of special importance, including her narration an ethnological study (description of the people and their characteristics) which arrested the attention of the group throughout the program as she chronicled in pictures the epoch-making events and briefly sketched the dominating personalities throughout the thousands of years of recorded history.

Starting her travelogue in Cairo, the capital of Egypt, after viewing ruins there, she continued to old Memphis, the former capital where the Step Pyramids were seen. Dr. Sumners visited these places on the "Ship of the Desert," a camel. To ride one was a difficult experience because of the camel's temperament. A very attractive picture of the speaker was shown as she journeyed to the pyramids by camel back. The Great Pyramid was revealed built by Cheops in 2720 B.C. It contains the sarcophagus of this king who reigned in the 29th century B.C. Some of the blocks weigh many tons. They were brought by boat across the Nile and transported over greased roads and placed with such precision that their weight welds them together. The Pyramids, immense tombs of the Pharaohs—the successive kings—are huge monsters of stone, shaped like mountain peaks and battered by the tyranny of time; inside are their tombs.

The Sphinx was next in view; the word "Sphinx" is a Greek word, meaning "throttler"; it was used to designate a terrible being, the head of a woman, or a Pharaoh, with the body of a lioness, and with wings, accepted as a symbol of grandeur and power. The most noted characteristic was its superhuman dignity. At Luxor, down the Nile, was seen the desolate "Valley of the Kings" where the youthful King Tut-Ankh-Amen is entombed with all his treasures. The tombs of Seti and Rameses are here pictured and Hatshepsut Temple named for a woman ruler, often referred to as the "Queen Elizabeth of Egypt." The magnificent ruins of the temples of Luxor and Karnak though time-worn are still visited by thousands of tourists. In the ruins of the temple are sculptured lotus and papyrus. The lotus petal signifies upper Egypt, and papyrus, the lower Egypt. When one looks at the pillars and enormous blocks of stone and its gigantic statues one wonders how it was built before the advent of machinery. Especially we marvel at their skill in architecture and art. Their desire to transmit their exploits to posterity caused them to employ sculpture primarily to commemorate every action of life, especially as conquerors. Their accomplishments in the matter of speed in excavating is even more impressive than the history, it reveals. The long documentary series of bas-relief are illustrations of a history of which the inscription is the text. They triumphantly represent particularly the power of their energy.

Many were the manifestations of human thought and aspiration slowly unfolding their cultural processes. They had a comparatively scientific knowledge of the strategy of warfare and the vitality for active campaigns. Yet they were patrons of art.

The Coptic Church was designated as the place where Mary hid the infant Jesus.

The modern capital of Damascus, Beirut, was visited and a trip to the mountain was made to see the famed "Cedars of Lebanon." More than 400 trees (8 of them venerable) stand quite alone in a depression of the mountain. They were thought to be used extensively in the pillars of Solomon's temple. These ancient trees are guarded with reverence by the natives as living memorials of Solomon's power.

Now into Damascus, the Omayyad Mosque was seen and the "Street called Straight." From here the party went to Jordan, twenty-two miles from Jerusalem, built 9,000 years ago. At Jericho the Bedouin camp of the Nomads gave realism to the scene. These true wanderers, Spartan people who live for months on camel milk, dot the desert with their goat-skin tents. Jericho was incredibly great in the 19th century B.C. when the Canaanite walls crumbled at the sound of Joshua's trumpets. Its ruins have revealed eighteen distinct cities at different levels.

Bethany, known as the "City of Dates" was the scene of date palm groves, in which Herod the Great took much interest. Here was found the tomb of Lazarus and the home of Mary and Martha over which a church is built.

Jerusalem has had twenty sieges; it is known most for Christendom's most momentous event—the crucifixion. The travelers visited the way of the cross, to Mount Calvary where they looked upon the Church of the Holy Sepulchre and Jerusalem's temple. The walling wall was where the Jews formerly came to bemoan the fate of their race and the destruction of their temples.

The Garden of Gethsemane is still a garden. It has been a blooming garden with a courtyard and fruit trees since before the coming of Christ. It is at the foot of Mt. Olivet. Its inexhaustible associations are the offspring of a single event, the agony of the Son of God, preceding His passion. Gethsemane means "Olive Press." Rachel's tomb is situated on the road to Bethlehem.

The Holy City of Jerusalem is an extraordinarily living museum of the past and present, uniquely combined. For 2000 years or more it has been revered as the birthplace of Christ. It is today divided between the Arabs and Jews. Bethlehem is a city of shining stone houses set on a high Judean hill. Myriad candles gleam to mark the birthplace of Christ, a silver star marks the humble place in a cave in a stone barn. Over it is the Church of the Nativity.

The group were glimpsed crossing through Mendelbaum Gate to the Israeli side. They were warned that they went at their own risk, even with gunfire in hearing distance and a look of suspicion on the faces of the guardsmen on the line. Dr. Sumners said, "There was incentive for the risk," and they continued unharmed.

On the Israeli side of Jerusalem they visited Mt. Zion and King David's tomb. They went to the Hebrew University where the Dead Sea Scrolls are kept. It is high on the cliffs overlooking the Dead Sea that a cave yielded the Scrolls, one of which is a complete text of the Hebrew Book of Isaiah, which was discovered by a shepherd. They drove through the Judean hills and on to Haifa.

They stopped at Mt. Carmel and then continued to the beautiful Sea of Galilee where Christ walked on the waters. Capernaum, where Christ performed the miracle of the loaves and fishes, was particularly interesting. They observed Nazareth, the place where Jesus spent his boyhood. Then crossing the plains of Sharon to Tel Aviv, the speaker took a plane to Athens, Greece. Dr. Sumners' travel to the different countries by jet plane gave the opportunity of covering more territory.

Before the delightful and informative travelogue, a salad plate with spiced tea was enjoyed, after which the guests viewed the new home and admired its lovely features, which included a number of prized collectors' items in the furnishings. Luxurious foliage plants and Victorian arrangements of specimen daffodils accented with sprays of blooming shrubs brought springtime freshness to the living room, the family living room, and dining room.

HOME AGENT NOTES

By CLAIRE T. ROSS

March is always an "in-between" month, but during the month of April, Spring has a way of "hitting." Activities begin to change—baseball talk is heard! Food tastes change. Complaints are made by homemakers that they are tired of the old ten-two-four.

So the April plentiful foods list gives you a choice of a variety of foods—beef, canned corn, eggs, rice, dried beans, cottage cheese, and canned ripe olives.

If you include cottage cheese on your shopping list, remember you can buy it in a variety of styles. You will find it with large curds or small curds, either dry or creamed, and plain or with vegetables and fruits added. For the weigh-watcher: One-half cup of creamed cottage cheese contains only 120 calories, but has the same amount of protein as three ounces of meat, fish, poultry, or three eggs.

Some of you will be buying beef for your freezer while it is at lower prices. If you buy a whole beef carcass, you can expect about one-fourth of it to yield steaks, one-fourth roasts, one-fourth ground beef and stew, and the other one-fourth to be waste (bone, fat and such).

If your grocery store has good prices on quick-cooking, tender cuts of beef, you may want to buy ahead and put some steaks in your freezer for summer cookouts.

The rice produced in our country that you will be buying has never been touched by human hands from field to table, and is packaged with the greatest of care. So there is no need to wash it.

The old belief that rice is fattening has been disproved because the carbohydrates are so readily assimilated in the body. Rice is used in many reducing diets today because of its protein value. It is easily digested, too.

FLOWER HINTS

A cutting bed of annual flowers is a good addition to the vegetable garden area. You can then grow the flowers in the front yard mainly for show or display.

Start planting the first rows of glads late in April, and plant another row each two weeks. By staggering the plantings, you will have a good supply of cut flowers.

Spring flowering shrubs, as flowering quince, oriental magnolia, spires and forsythia, should be pruned and shaped just after they produce their flowers in the spring.

ITINERARY: Burton H. D. Club will meet on

Miss Martha Jones Is Honoree Of Kitchen Shower

Miss Martha Jones was the honoree of a kitchen shower on Saturday, March 28, from 2:00 until 4:00 p.m. Mrs. Wade Lindsey and Miss Diane Martin were hostesses for the shower, which was given in Miss Martin's home.

The guests enjoyed a delightful afternoon of talk and laughter. Refreshments of cakes, potato chips, date nut squares, chocolate drops, date rolls, and assorted nuts were served.

Wednesday, April 8, with Mrs. E. L. Pippin.

Miss Jones was presented a corsage of miniature kitchen utensils and measuring spoons and white ribbon. After opening her gifts, they were passed around for all the guests to see.

THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

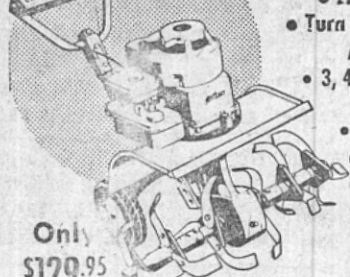

The Bible says: "If you say, de-part in peace, be ye warmed and filled; notwithstanding ye give them not those things which are needful to the body: what doth it profit? Faith, if it hath not works is dead."

FARM GAINS IN PAST YEAR
STRESS THE PRACTICAL VALUE OF RESEARCH

The director of the Cooperative Extension Service at Mississippi State University reports that state farmers used research-proven information from their county agents more effectively in 1963 than ever before. This, along with good weather, is a major reason why Mississippi made agricultural gains worth many millions last year.

State farmers received an estimated 1963 income of $755 million from sale of crops and livestock—eight per cent more than the previous all-time high of $697 million in '62. While setting new records, farmers were only advancing an era begun several years ago of revolutionary progress through the application of research. We are seeing higher crop yields produced more efficiently, greater diversity in farm enterprises, improved agricultural marketing growth in large businesses directly related to agriculture, a favorable living standard for more rural families, and the development of better leadership in rural areas.

If you are a self-employed farmer and had net income of less than $600 in 1963, don't be confused because you don't have to pay income tax. You still must pay self-employment tax for social security purposes if your net income is $400 or more. Even if your net income is less than $400 but your gross income is $600 or more you may still receive social security protection by using the optional method of tax filing. Check with your social security representative for details.
