Keep Working For Quota In Mental Health

Dr. W. H. Anderson, Prentiss County Chairman of the Mental Health campaign, urges the public to make a concentrated effort to raise the $600 needed now to reach the county quota.

Dr. Anderson points out that one-half of the hospital beds are occupied by mental cases. Nineteen million people in the nation are suffering from some form of mental or emotional disease—one person out of ten.

He said, "Much attention is now being given to mental illness. The nation is waking up to its importance. Provision is being made to do an unlimited amount for the mentally ill. Every person needs to help—every person, every organization, every factory."

You may leave a contribution at the Peoples Bank, the Home Bank, the Baldwin Bank, or with Donald Franks, John Mahaffy, Mrs. Harold Spain or Mrs. Gene Walden.

Bobby Shackelford To Receive Degree In Vet. Medicine

Bobby Joe Shackelford, of Booneville, will receive a degree in Veterinary Medicine from Auburn University on June 3. Mr. Shackelford is graduating under provision of the Southern Regional Education Board's interstate contract program.

SREB interstate contracts permit a state which does not have a medical, dental, veterinary medicine, public health or social work school to send its students to a state which does have such educational facilities.

Under the contract provisions, a state contracts with the SREB to send a quota of students to an out-of-state school and agrees to pay a set amount per student. Although this is not a scholarship program, the college receives the student waives out-of-state tuition, giving the student the professional training he needs at no extra cost. In addition, the states are spared the expense of providing every kind of training within their own borders, and can use scarce educational funds for improving or expanding the programs they already have.

Since the beginning of the SREB contract programs, Mississippi has used them to train 99 students per year in colleges or universities of other states.

COUNTY AGENT NOTES

By W. TAYLOR SMITH, County Agent

STATISTICAL SURVEY

Each year, around June 1, the Mississippi Crop Livestock Reporting Service makes two surveys: The June acreage survey is made to determine the acreage of the different crops that have been or will be planted for harvest within the state; the other relates to livestock on Mississippi farms.

Mr. Smith

All farmers receiving the cards are urged to complete and return them in the franked, self-addressed envelope to the reporting service. All information is strictly confidential. Information contained in the surveys is very important to the agricultural interest of the state. They provide the Crop Reporting Service with the basic information for estimating the acreage that has been planted or will be planted and the information needed for estimating livestock numbers.

The accuracy of the service's estimates depends on your cooperation in filling out these reports we will assist you.

TIMBER MARKETING

Markets for pine pulpwood in northern and southern parts of the state look pretty good, but are slow in the central portions.

The market for saw timber that will meet "grade mark" specifications for better grades is strong. But for saw timber that will not meet specifications for "No. 2 or better," there is little market.

Here are some things to look for in determining quality of saw timber: Straightness — a crooked log will produce lumber that will crook when dried.

Growth rate — faster grown piece material as a rule is weaker.

Knots — these reduce strength and appearance of a board and make it harder to machine or work.

Soundness — This means freedom from defects of disease, insect damage, or mechanical or fire injuries.

Weeding woods can help produce the desirable kinds of timber. Check with this office or your area forester for details.

CLEAN MILK

It is important that antibiotics and pesticides be kept out of milk. It is a hard job, but NECESSARY.

These suggestions may help: Locate pastures, hay fields, and silage fields as far from cotton fields as possible. This will help reduce danger of insecticides drifting and contaminating the feed producing areas.

When spraying inside barns, cover troughs and thoroughly wash down after spraying.

Spray inside barns as soon after milking and as long before next milking as possible. Use only recommended materials.

New President Of Pilots

The Pilot Club of Booneville met Thursday evening, May 21, at the Town Motel Restaurant for the regular program meeting, which featured the installation of officers.

The meeting was presided over by Mrs. Mabel Nelson, retiring president, who expressed her appreciation and gratitude for the cooperation shown her this year.

Mrs. Nancy Kizer, club secretary, represented Mrs. Polly Harris, immediate Past Governor, District III of Pilot International, and presented Mrs. Bertha Yarber and Mrs. Mabel Nelson with small gifts in recognition of their perfect attendance records for 10½ and 12 years respectively.

The Pilot Information Committee with Mrs. Sarah Pounds as chairman had charge of the well planned program. The invocation was given by Mrs. Quay Michael.

The banquet tables were beautifully decorated in Pilot colors, green and gold, and depicted the 1964 theme, "Hands and Hearts United in Service," as well as the club's local projects. A large heart and hand formed the background for a beautiful arrangement of gold chrysanthemums and fugii mums which was placed in the center of the speaker's table. This was flanked by dolls representing the club's dental project and the scholarship girl who attends the Northeast Mississippi Junior College. Green and gold ivies were used on all the tables dispersed by other objects representing the club's local and international projects. These clever decorations were planned and executed by Miss Sue Kimbrell and Mrs. Minnie Mae Holley.

Miss Kimbrell gave the devotion which emphasized the use of one's hands creatively for God.

Mrs. Pounds introduced Miss Ivy Butler, Director and Past President of the Pilot Club of Corinth, who had charge of the installation. Mrs. Pounds acted as Special Marshall for this occasion.

The following officers were installed in a most impressive ceremony. Mrs. Leola Cleveland, president; Mrs. Nancy Kizer, first vice-president; Mrs. Quay Michael, second vice-president; Mrs. Agnes Carter, recording secretary; Mrs. Robbie McDaniel, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Louise Peeler, treasurer; Mrs. Mabel Nelson, director; Mrs. Elizabeth Buchberger, director; and Mrs. Evelyn Tigrett, director.

The Pilot colors and theme were used throughout the installation. The installation table, covered with a green cloth, featured a huge gold heart bearing a green satin ribbon upon which was written S-E-R-V-I-C-E in gold letters. As Miss Butler would charge each particular office, the officers would signify her acceptance by placing a small gold heart upon a green stand and unrolling a green ribbon, which she held throughout the remainder of the ceremony. This indicated the officer's willingness to give the club continuous service. At the conclusion of the ceremony the lights were turned out and the president lighted a green candle and each officer likewise lighted her candle. Mrs. Gladys Moore, the newest member, represented the club's membership and lighted a tall candle which was placed in the center of the table under the heart. In this manner the theme, "Hands and Hearts United in Service" was consummated. A special prayer was rendered by Mrs. Janet Feldman and Mrs. Pounds gave the Pilot Code of Ethics. The ceremony was ended by Miss Mary Grace Nabers singing, "One Hand and One Heart" by Leonard Bernstein. She was accompanied at the piano by her mother, Mrs. Mary Gault Nabers.

Mrs. Mabel Nelson presented the President's Pin to Mrs. Cleveland. In turn, Mrs. Cleveland presented Mrs. Nelson with a tiered silver tray from the club as a token of appreciation for her work during the past year.

Special guests for the evening included: Miss Mary Grace Nabers, Miss Annice Pounds, and three Pilots from Corinth; Mrs. Jean McCalla, president; Miss Nancy Siler, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. Sarah Harris, recording secretary.

POULTRY PRODUCTION

Broiler and egg production in Mississippi in 1963 gave Mississippi poultrymen something to crow about. High production of poultry products pushed poultry income to a new, all-time high. Egg production last year reached the impressive total of 1.8 billion, 23 per cent more than 1962. Poultrymen fed more hens and pullets which laid more eggs per bird to boost the total egg output significantly.

Weed Control Chemicals Can Help Reduce Farming Weather Risk

STATE COLLEGE, Miss.—Weather is the big uncertainty in farming. But Mississippi cotton farmers can do much to reduce this risk during the growing season by the proper use of chemicals to control weeds.

A variety of weed-killing chemicals are available, each fitted to a specific need or situation, according to Charles E. Moore, cotton specialist of the Cooperative Extension Service.

The pre-emergence chemicals commonly applied at planting by many farmers begin to lose their effectiveness after four to six weeks. Weeds and grass may then begin to come through the pre-emergence band at a critical stage of plant growth. The cotton is then usually too large for killing and too small for flame cultivation.

At the above stage, the answer generally is to use diuron plus a surfactant at low rates to control grass and weeds. This works best on small grasses and weeds that are actively growing.

If weeds and grass are drought-stressed—no rain for 10 to 14 days—chances of good results with diuron and surfactant are greatly reduced. In this situation, and on larger grass, DMA plus surfactant is better.

Avoid applying DMA plus surfactant after the cotton begins to bloom.

The low rate of diuron plus surfactant does not give preemergence weed control but contact kill only. It should not be applied to cotton less than six inches tall. Most farmers will want to apply it on a hand to hold down cost. Weed control in the middles is more economical by mechanical cultivation.

The low rates of diuron and surfactant can be repeated as necessary throughout the growing season.

Be careful not to exceed the total amount of diuron suggested for a given soil type in any one season. This is especially important if plans are to use diuron as a lay-by treatment, and it was used as a preemergence treatment.

Some farmers may want to try alternating diuron plus surfactant with DMA plus surfactant in the early part of the season.

Many are mixing DMA, diuron and surfactant and applying them in the same operation. They feel that this mixture gives them a broader spectrum of weed control and cuts down on application cost. There are no recommendations.

MAYOR SMITH

We have the best mayor of any town, Compare him with others for miles around. He is not big, strong, handsome or tall, But in other ways, he is on the ball. He is a talkative loquacious chap, For something to say, he never runs out. Our mayor is usually seen, Wherever there will be a Beauty Queen. He says that if there is any kissing to be done, That he really ought to be the one. You will find him kind, trusting and true, He will always have a good word for you. The troubled waters he can always still, Offense to others, he never gives. He often takes the blame, For errors of others in this daily game. In life's journey, so bleak and grim, Stop just a moment and say a prayer for him. All you need say is something like this, "God be merciful to our good Mayor Marion Smith."

Keep Water Sports Healthy

Swimming and boating are among the healthiest of sports and should be kept that way, yet, unfortunately, last year drowning claimed 95 lives in Mississippi. According to Dr. N. C. Knight, Sr., accident prevention director of the State Board of Health, over 70 per cent of these tragic fatalities were teenagers and young adults, and eight of the victims were helpless little children under four years of age.

Of course, everyone should wear a life preserver when boating. However, a recent study in another state revealed that 80 per cent of the victims of boating accidents were nonswimmers, so it is especially vital that these persons wear life preservers when on the water.

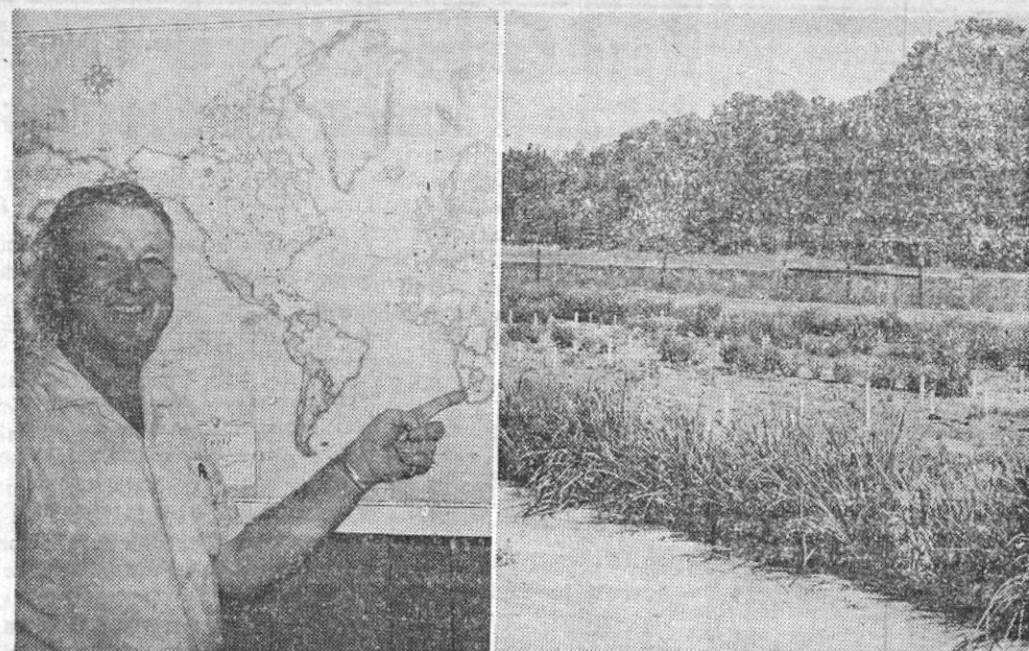

Studies also show that swimming pool accidents—resulting in cuts, scrapes, concussions, fractures, electric shock or drowning—have become a greater health problem than pool sanitation and infection.

Among the causes of swimming pool accidents, overcrowding is a serious hazard. So is running on a wet hard surface around the edge of the pool, where a slip and fall can have nasty results. Jumping or diving into shallow water or crowded spots can cause broken bones and cracked skulls, and extreme caution should be exercised with lighting equipment and electric appliances used in and around the pool.

But, perhaps the most important safety precautions are never swim alone, and never underestimate your distance from safety.

And, parents should never permit children to go swimming or boating unless they are well supervised.

PLANTS from all over the world are assembled for testing at the Soil Conservation Service's Plant Materials Center near Coffeeville. V. E. Ahlrich, (left) plant manager, says pins indicate seed sources. Hundreds of plants in rod rows (right between stakes) are tested for value to erosion control, wildlife, range forage and other conservation needs in the five states the Center serves.

Public Relations Notebook

BY Neil Woodruff, Asst. Professor of Journalism, MSCW

One of the most exciting times of the year is that time when school is about over and seniors in high school and college are floating on air as graduation time approaches.

There is something almost magical about graduation. Everything concerned is bound by an invisible tie.

Mothers and fathers beam with pride at their son's or daughter's pending graduation. Little sisters and brothers look on with awe and sometimes fascination and sometimes with uncertainty at just what is taking place. And the students themselves play their roles well. Some are happy and joyful, some are sad, some stand erect and proud and still others look lost and out of place.

Mr. Woodruff

Particularly in a home community during high school commencement weeks there is a social atmosphere which all citizens appreciate. There are parties and more parties. Graduating seniors receive gifts and exchange mementoes and many are busy making plans to go on to college. A milestone has been reached. And celebrating is truly proper and in place. For high school seniors have just completed their first 12 years of school. Some will go no further. Others will go on through junior college and still others will go on to college and graduate school.

All graduation exercises follow about the same pattern. People will begin to gather long before the appointed time. Some will sit and wait. Others will stand around and gawk. And others will stand outside the auditorium and chat idly with others. Some mothers and fathers will sit together talking. A mother will suddenly recall the time she waited for her diploma many years ago. An usher who is just a little sleepy-eyed from a party the night before will show an elderly lady who hasn't missed a graduation in more than 30 years to her seat.

People with cameras will edge closer to the sidewalk. Then the procession will begin. There will be a long line of boys and girls in black robes and tassled hats. They will move along, two by two, and out of step. They will file into the auditorium. There will be coughing and scraping of feet. A man will begin to speak and all will sit down and listen.

Back in the fifth row a boy will look out a window at a green tree. A girl farther back will think of the sun in her hair as she lounged beside a swimming pool. She will remember sitting on the grass in the Spring and drinking a Coke. Another will stare and remember a lecture in history. And still another will remember a campfire surrounded by song and argument and friendship.

One will remember a favorite hillside or a favorite teacher. One will look very sad because it is all coming to an end. Another will remember a cold winter night in a crowded car and a loud off-key song. And still another will remember running across campus a long wet, slick cement walks with Spring rain falling in her face.

And then suddenly, the man will stop speaking. The people will file out of the auditorium. And it will all be over—for this time. Next year the script will practically be the same—only the names and individuals will be different.

Local Business

By S. S. TALBOT
Chairman, Dept. of Journalism
University of Mississippi

Advertising columns in newspapers and magazines indicate that business is finding uses of advertising far removed from the selling of bacon and bread.

Various firms are using printed advertising to better employee relations, to increase confidence in the company among stockholders, to present their viewpoint on public affairs, and to advise or aid their customers.

For example, a machinery manufacturer in Pennsylvania has been using full page ads in the local newspaper to better relations between the plant and the community. They have found that such newspaper advertising is cheaper than printing a company publication for the same purpose. Their advertising representative said:

"Newspaper ads offer an effective means of communicating the many things happening at Penn Tool and make clear that the Penn Tool would not only continue to be a good neighbor, but would reach for higher goals."

Even retail stores have used editorial type advertising to improve relationships with the community and to establish a certain type of personality. Paradoxically, this kind of advertising has often resulted in an immediate increase in sales because consumers for the first time recognize a store as being warm and friendly. Or, in some cases the store through personality building advertising established a reputation of quality which had not been recognized in the community before.

Although straight item advertising is and will remain, the backbone of retail selling, the other forms make a useful tool and many obtain marginal business or new business which a retailer would otherwise miss.

Only New "Right" In Civil Rights Bill Is Freedom Of Trespassing

By SENATOR JOHN STENNIS

WASHINGTON.—The only new right contained in the so-called civil rights bill now before the Senate is the right to trespass on private property against the wishes of the owner.

I have continued to drive home that point again this week, aided by my Southern colleagues in the Senate. As you know, Senator Talmadge of Georgia and I are co-sponsoring an amendment to the civil rights bill that would assure a trial by jury for all persons charged with criminal contempt of court in matters arising from this vicious bill.

Under the present regime, the right to trespass on other people's property is a "right" that is being more firmly established all the time. Under the name of "civil rights," one has a right to trespass on other people's property, lock up the doors of little businesses, and trespass in the entrances of places of business.

Something has to be done to stop it, and that is just what those of us who are opposing this bill are trying our best to do in this prolonged debate which has occupied the full time of the Senate for more than two months.

The greatest civil right that any of us has is the right of trial by jury. I make this statement as a lawyer, as a former prosecuting attorney, and as a former judge. My belief is based upon my courtroom experience. The right of trial by jury is applied to all people, regardless of color, race, religion, national origin, station in life, or any other consideration.

Yet, whoever drafted this so-called civil rights bill deliberately, consciously, and purposely set out to avoid the provisions of the Constitution of the United States that guarantee the right of a trial by jury in criminal proceedings.

METHODIST CONFERENCE COMPROMISES WITH EVIL

As a people who wish to be guided by moral as well as practical considerations, Americans are vitally interested in what the churches have to say about the issues of their time. They do not ask that church organizations be silent concerning contemporary problems, but they believe that these organizations must abide by the same rules of historical truths, factual analysis and genuine patriotism that guide other respectable groups in the nation.

This is by way of introduction to the extraordinary and deeply dismaying report issued at Pittsburgh May 8 in the name of the General Conference of the Methodist Church. It is a report that in all likelihood will shock vast numbers of good Methodists who believe that acceptance of coexistence with Marxist evil is betrayal of religious truth and the interest of free men everywhere.

According to the news media, the conference without debate accepted a report from its Committee on Social Concerns that stated:

"It is our judgment that policies of isolation toward mainland China and Cuba should be carefully re-examined to determine whether their continuance will not intensify bitterness, and imprisonment rather than free the people in those lands from hardships, repression and authoritarian control."

The report went on to say: "the arms race is immoral, futile and suicidal ... Scripture reminds us (where?) that in the eyes of God the welfare of the human race is more precious than the continued existence of any nation." It also attacked armament that "steadily undermines the foundations of civilization and progressively corrupts the souls of men."

Embodied in this report is a profound defeatism concerning the cause of freedom and subtle argument for surrender.

One wonders where the authors of this report have been the last 20 years. The isolation of Red China and Red Cuba is not the result of hardness of heart on the part of Americans. Communist China is excluded from the company of free nations because it boasts of its dedication to the destruction of Western civilization, including religion. Many ministers of the Gospel are still rotting in Chinese Communist prisons. But one can be sure that they would not ask for their release if the price to be paid were acceptance of Peking's monstrous tyranny as a respectable government.

As for Red Cuba, that country cut itself off from decent nations by killing and imprisoning thousands of freedom-loving Cubans and by becoming a satellite of the Soviet Union.

Anyone who doubts that evil is inherent in Red Cuba should read John Martin's book, "I Was Castro's Prisoner." It is tragic that the authors of the church report did not read this factual book by one who spent 40 months in Castro's dungeons.

The statements against national defense are equally appalling. The U. S. has armed itself not for the sake of being armed—for any extreme militarism. It is a matter of preserving freedom through strength and peace through power. If the American people throw away their arms, they will become slaves of Communism. Only our nuclear might has saved this Republic from Soviet attack.

The church report, moreover, is insulting to those Americans, overwhelmingly church-connected, who are risking their lives each day in Viet Nam and other trouble zones. No one in America wants to spend billions on defense, but Americans had rather spend billions on arms for freedom than spend a cent in tribute to Communist overlords.

Basically, the report appears immoral, for it suggests that Americans should be content with mere coexistence with the enemies of freedom, rather than living for free-

Fiddling Contest At Tupelo Saturday

The 5th Annual State of Mississippi Oldtime Fiddling Contest, sponsored by the Tupelo Lions Club, will be held on Saturday, May 30, at 7:30 p.m. in the Fairgrounds Community Center at Tupelo.

Dr. B. R. Westberg, Weiser, Idaho, Chairman of the National Fiddler's and Folk Music Certification and Advisory Council, announced today that the Mississippi Oldtime Fiddler's Contest, sponsored by the Tupelo Lions Club, has been certified and approved by the National Certification and Advisory Council as the State Contest, and as official Mississippi representative of the National Fiddler's Contest.

The National Fiddler's and Folk Music Certification and Advisory Council has 23 members representing 18 states and the District of Columbia. Sgt. J. E. "Bill" Mitchell of the Tupelo Police Department, is the member from Mississippi. The Mississippi event will be accredited for the first time this year in coordination with the National Festival.

Dr. Westberg said the Mississippi Fiddler's Champion will receive free registration to the National Oldtime Fiddler's Contest and Folk Music Festival to be held at Weiser, Idaho, June 17-20 and will be recognized at various events. The Champion's picture will hang in the National Fiddler's Hall of Fame in a place of honor for one year and the Mississippi Certified Contest will be placed on the Roll of Honor. The National Fiddler's Hall of Fame records the history of fiddling and folk music, displays relics and mementos of past folk music art, and acknowledges the present day fiddlers and folk artists who are perpetuating authentic oldtime fiddling and folk music.

dom. Jesus Christ gave His life on the cross rather than seek improved relations with forces antagonistic to divine will. Jesus could have accepted an accommodation with his persecutors, but he refused to do so. The Christian way is to fight manfully against evil, not to condemn resistance to evil.

The course of morality and conscience in our own time is to oppose any subtle argument for surrender to nations and global forces that aim to destroy all freedom, including the freedom to worship.

Just as the National Council of Churches does not represent a and speak for 40,000,000 Protestants, as it claims to do, neither is it to be believed that the Methodist General Conference speaks for the 10,000,000 members of that denomination.

100 Years Ago—

Grant, Sherman Near Richmond And Atlanta

By LON K. SAVAGE

The Civil War somewhat resembled a chess match 100 years ago this week—a very bloody one, to be sure.

In Virginia and Georgia, the Federal armies of Ulysses S. Grant and William Tecumseh Sherman moved toward their respective targets—Richmond and Atlanta. But each time they moved, the Confederate armies of Robert E. Lee and Joseph E. Johnston moved too and kept them between the Federals and the cities they wished to capture.

Especially in Virginia was this true. There, for three weeks, Grant's huge army of 120,000 had hammered and hammered at the 60,000-man army under Lee, trying to break through it and head for Richmond. The Federal casualties had piled high—15,000 at the Wilderness May 5-7; 10,000 at Spotsylvania May 8-12; another 7,000 at Spotsylvania from May 12 through May 19, and still Lee's army held its line, firmly across the road to Richmond.

Flank Move

Finally, Grant had decided he must try something new. On May 20, his army began slipping to the southeast in an effort to outflank Lee and get between him and Richmond. The Federals marched 20 miles to the North Anna River and thought they had outfoxed Lee, but when they got there, they found Lee's army there, too, still astraddle the road to Richmond. Lee was not easily outfoxed.

The two armies fought again there—it was getting to be a habit. Grant's men were crossing the North Anna on pontoon bridges on May 25 when A. P. Hill of Lee's army attacked one bridgehead. All along the river, the fighting spread; Hill was repulsed, and Grant got his men across, but when he got to the other side, Lee was entrenched on another one of his angular defenses—the kind that had cost so many Federal lives at Spotsylvania.

After two days of rather mild fighting, Grant pulled up and headed southeast again in another attempt to outflank Lee. This time, moving by night in the rain, he got all the way to Hanover and crossed the Pamunkey River, ready to move on Richmond only 20 miles away. But there he found his old nemesis—Lee's army, again firmly straddling the road to Richmond. The month of May ran out on him, with Lee still undefeated.

In Georgia

In Georgia, Sherman was having better luck. Swiftly, his 100,000 men had swept down through northwest Georgia behind the retreating Confederates under Johnston, and town after town—Kingston, Cassville, Eubank—fell into Federal hands.

At Dallas, 30 miles northwest of Atlanta, Sherman's corps under Joe Hooker came up against entrenched Confederates; Hooker attacked; other Federals joined in, and as night fell and a thunderstorm crossed the dark sky, the two armies tangled in earnest. Next morning, with many dead and much confusion, Sherman edged northeastward toward Allatoona in a flank movement of his own; Johnston threw an attack into one of Sherman's corps and was repulsed so emphatically that he fell back again toward Atlanta.

Sherman solidified his gains, but like Grant, his boss, he still had an important army between him and his target.

Next Week: Cold Harbor.

Prentiss ASCS County News

By CHARLES E. CALVERT, Office Manager

Upland Cotton 'Export Market Acreage' Clarified

Cotton produced under the "export market acreage" provision of the new upland cotton program is for export only and at world cotton prices. The cotton credited to this export market acreage, which is in addition to the farm's effective allotment, will not be eligible for price support or for any export payment.

In applying for the export market acreage, the farmer also furnishes a bond or other guaranty that the cotton from the 5% additional acreage will be exported without benefit of government subsidy. Such a guaranty may be furnished by individuals, banks, gins, cooperatives, or any business which the ASC County Committee considers a proper surety. A cash deposit in the amount of the estimated liquidated damages or irrevocable letter of credit from a bank may be accepted instead of a bond. The bond or letter of credit will be released or the cash deposit refunded when the producer furnishes satisfactory proof of exportation of the cotton.

The amount for export, under the program's export market provision, will be a number of pounds equal to the appraised 1964 production of the farm's export market acreage. In some instances, due to bale weights, this will require exportation of small quantities in excess of the estimated production of the export acreage. In case of natural disasters causing actual production to be substantially less than the estimated production, the quantity for export may be adjusted downward. Proof of actual production would be required before such an adjustment could be made.

Applications to grow an export market acreage in 1964 will be accepted at ASCS County Offices up until June 1. The producer has 15 days after such filing in which to furnish bonds or other guaranties of export.

PIK Cotton Certificates Intended To Remove Price Inequity

The purposes of the cotton equalization payment-in-kind certificates, authorized under the broad new cotton program enacted in April, are twofold. Those purposes are to maintain and expand domestic consumption of U. S. upland cotton and to eliminate inequities due to differences in the cost of raw cotton between the domestic and foreign user of U. S. cotton.

An interim program will operate until the beginning of the new crop year on August 1, 1964.

By making the equalization payment on bales opened for domestic consumption prior to August 1, 1964 raw cotton in inventory will be available for domestic consumption at a price consistent with the price objectives of the new legislation. Under the new cotton program, payments will be made to domestic users of eligible raw upland cotton grown in the United States through the issuance of payment-in-kind (PIK) certificates (at a rate of 6.5 cents per pound, gross weight, on the bales of eligible raw cotton). The payment-in-kind certificates may be exchanged for upland cotton at domestic prices.

Domestic users of upland cotton (textile mills and others) which expect to apply for the equalization payment should maintain sufficient records to establish the source of the cotton and the bale numbers and gross weight of bales opened for consumption during the period this program is in effect as well as evidence of bale openings.

Governor Wallace's Great Showing Has Washington "All Shook Up"

By Thomas G. Abernethy

Member of Congress

Washington — homesite of liberalism — is all shook up. Alabama Governor Wallace left it that way. Against overwhelming odds, the Governor made one of the great political races of all times in nearby Maryland's Presidential Preference Primary. He probably knew less than 50 Marylanders and had no political organization in the State. The entire news media of Maryland, Washington and other contiguous areas hammered away at Wallace's candidacy and character, depicting the Governor as a backwoods interloper and referring to him as "Nigger-hating Race-baiting Corpore Wallace."

Maryland's Democratic political machine, under the urgency of National Democratic leaders, tapped their best vote-getter, tenor voiced, peppy Senator Dan Brewster, to carry the banner of President Johnson in the primary. With handsome Dan they planned and fully expected to slaughter Mr. Wallace.

Being most unaware of Wallace's knowledge and skill, the flashy young Senator made his first of many mistakes when early in the campaign he attempted a debate with Wallace on television. Wallace left him as limp as a wet paper doll. They met no more. Thereafter, Brewster was always otherwise engaged and avoided the Governor as one would a patch of poison ivy.

The attractive, inoffensive Brewster soon found himself quite out of character. Smarting from his poor showing on the TV debate, he headed for the hustings and opened a violent verbal assault on the Governor. He called Wallace some rather "unnice" things, such as a liar, bigot, racist, interloper, agitator, trespasser and stumblebum, to mention only a few. He said the Governor was a man of hate, that he hated Negroes, Jews, Catholics, Italians, Poles and Greeks. Laborers were told that Wallace was moving their factories off to Alabama and that he was against Labor because Alabama had a right-to-work law. And the Senator came up with one real good piece of fiction when he compared Wallace to some deep Southerners who said he came to Maryland a hundred years ago and persuaded Marylanders against their better judgment to get in the Civil War on the side of the Confederacy. Can you picture Mr. Brewster's ancestors being so stupid?

Sensing that his rock-throwing campaign was not getting through, a Brewster call went out to the liberal camps for HELP—men and money. They got both. Mind you now, except for one TV debate, Wallace had not even entered the State to campaign. The Brewsterites were suffering terribly from just one TV application of Dr. Wallace's Terrifying Salve.

The money poured in and scores of liberal Senators, Congressmen and political leaders swooped down on Maryland. The claron call also persuaded LBJ to make a Maryland stop on his "non-political" Appalachia tour. Handsome young Teddy Kennedy paraded down Baltimore streets at the head of a brass band, pleading with Marylanders to please, please vote for the Johnson-Brewster ticket. Priests, Preachers and Rabbis shouted from their pulpits that Wallace was associated with sin and the devil. They prayed for "Brotherhood" and the rejection of "malice and hate," meaning Wallace, of course.

Then, only ten days before primary day, Wallace entered the State to be met by silly demonstrators and hecklers. Of course, you must understand that these were highly cultured people, the "non-violent brotherhood loving" type, you know. Wallace was fully their match. He smiled back and played it cool. In ten short days he had Maryland and much of the country rocking.

With everything working for them—money, speakers, geography, political leaders, labor leaders, church leaders, minority leaders, and the entire press, radio and TV—the bedraggled liberals finally came through with a squeaky margin for Brewster, the stand-in for LBJ. But the victory actually went to Wallace; 215,000 Marylanders supported this deep Southerner who their boy Brewster said was a liar, a bigot, an interloper and a stumblebum.

Indeed, Wallace did shake their eyeteeth, just as he said he would. He returned to Alabama no longer regarded as just a "Dixiecrat Nuisance," or a stumblebum. The liberal news media up this way is still smarting from Wallace upsetting their predicted 22 per cent for the Governor. Their editorials are filled with "ifs" and "buts" and they are still trying to play down his great victory. The truth is that the liberals who control the Democratic Party and the liberal press had the living heck scared out of them. And any who attempt other WCS and Guild officers were installed by outgoing WCS president, Mrs. Thomason. Wallace has emerged as a strong, courageous and able conservative leader. The last is yet to be heard from Senator Brewster's "stumblebum" from Alabama.

Scouts Are Tops In Cookie Sale

Sixteen Junior Scouts of Troop 141 of Booneville are the top cookie sales girls in the Tennessee Valley Girl Scout Council in the Junior age level. The proud leader of this energetic group, Mrs. Milton Anderson, states the girls sold 744 boxes of cookies during their cookie sale January 31 through February 8. This is an average of 45.8 boxes per capita.

For their efforts the Scouts have won an all expense-paid all-day trip to some nearby point of interest of their choice. The troop will be helped by the Council Program Service Committee and cookie committee in planning and carrying out their trip.

Money from cookie sales, except $c per box profit for the troop, goes for the development of Camp Anderson, the council's 157-acre established camp on Elk River near Rogersville, Ala. Cookie money bought the camp and constructed the first building there, and now a new dining hall is under construction, to be completed this summer.

The Mississippi District of the Tennessee Valley Girl Scout Council has a second winner of this special troop award. Cadette Scout Troop 351 of Corinth, whose leader is Mrs. Troy Norvell, won the award in the cadette Senior level.

Winners of this group who sold the most cookies were Kathy Anderson, third place; Carolyn Miller, second place, and Jessica LeCroy, first place.

"Jubilee Gathering" At Calvary Church

On Saturday evening, May 23, Calvary Baptist Church celebrated 150 years of Baptist work and honored their pastor, Rev. Trent F. Grubbs, with a surprise "Honor Night."

All organizations of the church had brief parts on the program. The surprise came when some of the members told what their pastor meant to them and related some personal experiences in their lives since Calvary Baptist Church was organized.

Everyone's thoughts were expressed in this poem written by Mrs. R. C. Crabb, especially for the occasion:

There's a person around we take for granted
I think he deserves much more
Even though he gives us a pretty rough time
When he gets upon the floor.
I guess we'll all forgive him, though
Cause in our sight above
He's about the nicest person
That we have ever known.

He serves his Master day by day
In weather foul or fair,
He cares for those who are astray
When you call — he's there.

He does not do this for praise or fame,
It's not an easy cup;
It's not self-glory that he craves,
But that Thy name be lifted up.

Rev. Grubbs was presented a gift, after which he gave a short talk on "The Expectation of Great Things."

A picnic and fellowship were enjoyed outside after the program.

MRS. ED JOHNSON

A week or so ago, Mrs. Kenneth Smith told me about what happened to her husband and his car while he was in Tupelo attending a Scout meeting. When the program was over, he started to his car, but it was gone. He got little, if any, cooperation from their Police Department, so he called home—naturally—and OUR Police Department and Sheriff got on the short-wave radio and went to work.

The car wasn't in good running condition; the would-be thieves abandoned it; and Mr. Smith himself located the car. Nevertheless, the point of this little tale is that the Booneville Police Department and Prentiss County Sheriff have once again shown their cooperation and willingness to help when needed.

Tuesday, Mayor M. W. Smith visited a guest on legal business at Aletha Lodge Nursing Home and while there took time to talk to each person, giving them a gift from the Peoples Bank. I made the rounds with him, introducing him as the Mayor and President of the bank. They were thrilled with the attention and after he left, one of our guests said, "That was the PRESIDENT!"

I want to acknowledge the appreciation of all those at the Lodge for the Sunday devotional services conducted by Bro. Huey Wood and his young people from Jumpertown, Blackland, Carolina, Liberty, and Crossroads. The service is an inspiration to our senior citizens and we are pleased that Bro. Wood and the youngsters take time from their busy schedules to bring a ray of sunshine into their lives.

Also eagerly awaited each Sunday is the delicious cake brought to the home and to the other nursing homes by the ladies of the Church of Christ. It's a thoughtful act and one that is much appreciated.

Joining our staff at the newspaper this week for part-time work is Martha Presley, daughter of our linotype operator, Herschel. If you have any locals or other news, give her a ring here at the office. She doesn't mind working.

I called Circuit Clerk Roy Lowrey about Tuesday's election and then asked him if he had any other news. His answer, "The courthouse is the quietest place in the country now since the weather has gotten pretty and the farmers are in the fields." He paused, then added, "And I'm glad they finally got there."

Mr. B. P. Sims of Mt. Pleasant, Texas, visited the office Monday. He is retired from the Railroad Division and now helps his daughter and son-in-law who publish two papers, "The Mount Pleasant Times" and the "Times Review."

He was here three years ago during our Centennial and gave me some Blue Bonnet seed and wondered what happened to the flowers. Well, he told me not to plant them... just to strow them around... and I did and I haven't seen them since.

Favorable comments continue to come our way concerning zoning for the City of Booneville as well as extending the city limits. Of course there's lots of work to be done on the part of the City Fathers, and we're hopeful they'll find the time to do it.

Once again the City Park is open and facilities there are good—even better than can be found in cities of comparable size. Plan a family outing at the park and you'll not only enjoy yourselves but also be proud that such recreational facilities are available.

Graduation exercises get underway at Northeast Mississippi Junior College on Friday and once again area students, many of whom would not have the opportunity except through this college, will receive their degrees and thus be better qualified to meet the challenge of making a living and contributing to a better society.

Haven't heard any gossip, don't know any jokes this week, so I'll close by hoping all of you are well and happy.

Till next week,
Helen

Tupelo Kiwanians Present Program In Booneville

An inter-club meeting with the Tupelo Club was held Tuesday at the Town Motel Restaurant, when the Booneville Kiwanis Club was host to a group from the Tupelo Club. The program, arranged by Tupelo Club President David Langston, and Tupelo Inter-Club Chairman Cecil Conner, featured four of the Tupelo 25-year members.

The four 25-year members were Murphy Thomas, who acted as moderator for the program, Glenn Sturdivant, Ralph Glasgow and A. K. "Kip" Reed. Their program related events of their club from the organization in 1928 up to the present time. Booneville club members were enlightened in the many works of Kiwanis and how this fine club had presented their programs and beneficial endeavors to their fellow man over the years.

The Tupelo men were high in their praise for the good-neighborliness of Boonevillians. They mentioned the time when Boonevillians had aided Tupelo, one of which was after the destructive tornado when Booneville citizens turned out en masse to aid the Tupelo people; also mentioned was the nurses training program at Northeast Mississippi Junior College which has furnished Tupelo with competent and efficient nurses, as well as many other good deeds between the sister cities.

Of interest to the Booneville club was the method of promoting and carrying out the various projects that are sponsored by Kiwanis all over the world.

The meeting was interesting and informative. Booneville club president Dewey Martin introduced the Tupelo president, and presided at the business session. Dist. Governor Willie Norman of New Albany was a guest of the Booneville Club for the meeting.

Mississippi's farm prospects have some bright spots and rosy tints. The state crop and livestock reporting service reports a new record high production of eggs during March, livestock slaughter and sales are running ahead of last year's output, and this year's wheat crop will more than double last year's harvest. Milk production in March was 13 per cent above February, pastures are flourishing, and cattle are gaining rapidly in weight.

IN LOVING MEMORY OF OUR SON, RICKEY BRENT HARP

It's been six years since our baby was taken from us. Tho we never forget, we learn with God's help to live with our sorrow. We have our memories of happier days—we miss his loving smile — his happy little ways of saying, "I love you," all through the days. These things happen. We cannot understand why, but we pray that God in all His wisdom and love will help us understand, make our faith in Him and His will more real to us and others around us who have had the same heartache.

Oh Rickey, it's so lonely without you
How we miss your happy smiling face.

We go about our lives here now, And no one could ever take your place.

I hope there is someone there besides you,

To hold your precious little hand, And always stay close beside you, As you wander around in that land.

Sometimes I find myself listening, For a voice I can not hear, Oh, my baby, how I've prayed, That I could always have you near.

Sometimes I think that I hear you say, "Momee, I want to love you," just as you used to do.

You seem so near to us, Yet you are so far away. You were always so happy, Oh, why was it you had to go.

If only I could have taken your place, For I loved you so.

Oh, how I long for Heaven, I know you'll be waiting there. With Him who loves above all Who promises to always care.

So until my days here are over, I store my memories in my heart. And pray that I'll be counted worthy, To join you to never part.

Nelson Animal Hospital Is Opened

NEW ANIMAL HOSPITAL—The new Nelson Animal Hospital in Booneville, located on Hatchie Street next to the Booneville Commission Company sale barn, was opened recently. The building is of concrete masonry and glazed tile construction and contains office and reception room, examination and surgery room, and kennel room with cages for 25 small animals.

Providing more complete and more convenient veterinary service for Booneville and surrounding area, the new Nelson Animal Hospital has opened in Booneville on Hatchie Street next to the Booneville Commission Company sale barn.

The new building is of concrete masonry and glazed tile construction and consists of office and reception room, examination, treatment and surgery room, and kennel room with cages for 25 small animals.

Owner of the animal hospital is Dr. James H. Nelson. A native of Baldwyn, Dr. Nelson attended Mississippi State University and received his degree of Doctor of Veterinary Medicine from Auburn University at Auburn, Alabama in 1953, since which time he has been practicing from offices in Baldwyn.

Now connected with the Nelson Animal Hospitals in Baldwyn and Booneville and assisting in the practice is Dr. John McPeak. Dr. McPeak is a native of Decaturville, Tenn. He attended the University of Tennessee and is a 1964 graduate of the School of Veterinary Medicine at Auburn University.

One of the veterinarians will be on duty at the Booneville hospital each week day afternoon from 2:30 until 6:30 to handle treatment, vaccinations, etc. Martin Armstrong will be on duty all day each day Monday through Saturday to take calls, dispense drugs and admit animals, and Ray Gentry is also employed here part time.

A truck with veterinary body and equipped with two-way radio keeps the doctors in constant touch with the offices to be in position to make calls to treat larger animals on the farm. This truck is actually a veterinary clinic on wheels. In addition to storage space for instruments, it is equipped with refrigeration for medicines which require it, and has hot and cold running water.

Habit is like a soft bed — easy to get into but hard to get out of.

PASTURE MANAGEMENT

Putting off good pasture management may end up not getting pastures back because of dry, hot weather. The first and most important job for now, if not already done, is to fertilize. The next job is to change livestock from one pasture to another often. Weed control is also important and should begin before weeds take over a pasture. Spraying, clipping, or a combination of these can be used to control weeds.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN DAVID PRICE

Elaborate Wedding On Saturday, May 23 At Church Of Christ Solemnizes Marriage Of Miss Amanda Gardner And John David Price

In one of the area's most fashionable weddings, Miss Amanda Gardner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Gardner, Jr., became the bride of John David Price, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Henry Price, on Saturday, the twenty-third of May at the seven-thirty o'clock hour at the Church of Christ.

Traditional nuptial music was effectively presented by a choral group from the Union Avenue Church of Christ, Memphis, Tennessee, with Robert Riggs, director, and as the guests were ushered into the church, lovely arias were rendered.

Places for the family were marked by white wrought iron standards with sprays of pink carnations, tied with loops of pink satin ribbon with a single lighted candle in the center.

Triple strands of white silken cord caught to low white columns adorned with loops of pink satin ribbon enclosed the sanctuary. The altar rails were banked with jade greenery outlined with white tapers.

Troths were pledged before a magnificent background of greenery, flowers and candles. Claiming center interest was an elaborate thirty-three branched candle tree with emerald and jade fern, lavishly from her head to the end of the train. She wore a single strand of pearls, a gift of the groom.

The bridal bouquet of four white orchids was softened with love knots of white tulle and stephanotis.

At the conclusion of the ceremony, the couple proceeded to a pedestal overlaid with a white satin circular cloth on which a three-branched silver candelabra was placed holding three candles. The two outside candles had been lighted prior to the service and the couple lit the center candle, then dimmed the other two, observing a ritual symbolic of their union as one. The bride and bridegroom then knelt at the white satin prayer bench while the choral group sang, "The Lord Bless Thee and Keep Thee."

The maid of honor was Miss Mary Jane Turner. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Don Eubank, Jackson, Miss, Miss Roberta Rowland, Baldwin, Miss Lona Williams, Ackerman, Miss Glenda Luke, Louisville, Miss Sarah Eva Furr, Pontotoc and Miss Mickie Gardner, Senatobia. They wore mint green silk chiffon over taffeta, floor length, designed with a scoop neckline, a plain bodice and brief sleeves. The soft, clinging, sheath skirts were joined to the bodice with a paisley cummerbund and accented a floating pannier in the back with a paisley bow at the waistline. They wore matching slippers and their matching pill box hats with circular bouffant veils of illusion were edged with seed pearls. Their cascading bouquets of pink carnations, entwined with English ivy, complemented the ensembles.

Fern balls on each side were interspersed with seven branched candelabra in various groupings, entwined with garlands of greenery, holding white card's lighted to cast a soft gleam over the wedding scene.

Mr. James B. Potts Jr., of Oxford officiated in the impressive double ring service before a large assemblage of relatives and friends.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, T. C. Gardner, Jr. He was assisted to the altar by his faithful attendant, Andrew Jones.

A vision of regal loveliness, the bride wore a magnolia peau taffeta and rosepoint gown, an original by Bianchi, with rosepoint lace embroidered in tiny seed pearls. The bodice had a scooped neckline and long fitted lace sleeves. The skirt featured a flat panel front with unpressed pleats at the waist and a taffeta midriff joined the skirt to the bodice. The skirt swept into a circular wattleau train. Her full length veil of imported rosepoint lace from Belgium, draped Madonna fashion, enhanced her patrician beauty, and extended

Bobby King of New Albany.

RECEPTION

The reception was held in the lower level of the church. After guests were greeted as they passed through the receiving line, they were registered at a beautifully appointed table by Miss Louella Alford of Henderson, Texas. The table impressed a lovely touch of sentiment with a beautiful memory candle encircled with stephanotis, which is to be lighted on the various anniversaries of the couple.

Two tables were used for serving, both covered with exquisite cutwork cloths underlined with satin. Centering one was the gorgeous three-tiered all white, rose embossed cake, with a cluster of wedding bells in the center. Outlining the base were traditional bouquets of pink carnations, tuberoses and plumosa fern with sprays drifting to the ends of the table. The sides of the cloth were festooned with ropes of smilax caught at the corners with the prevailing flowers. The bridal bouquet added a distinctive note to the cake table. Miss Eleanor Nunnery cut and served the cake.

On the other table a handsome silver punch bowl was centered with similar decorations. Mrs. Murray Gentry, Mrs. Percy White and Mrs. Frank May presided at this table. Rice bags on a silver tray to observe an ancient custom of tossing rice to the couple as they left the church, were given the guests by little Miss Kay Henson, cousin of the bride, who wore a white organza frock over blue taffeta with a matching headpiece. The tea girls were Misses Eleanor Nunnery of Aroola, Miss, Nancy Thomas, Sandra Winders, Joy Morgan, Mrs. Ray Earles, Mrs. Forrest Michael, Mrs. Charles Williams of Clarksdale and Mrs. Charles Yancey of Corinth.

The couple left for a southern bridal trip following the reception. For traveling the bride wore a beige silk shantung suit with coffee accessories to match her blouse and an orchid from her bouquet.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Gardner, Sandra, Dave and Lee Gardner, Shannon, Miss, Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Nixon, Red Bay, Ala., Mrs. Charles Treas, Susan, Lynn and Frances of Aberdeen, Miss., Mr. and Mrs. Bobby King, New Albany, Mr. and Mrs. Gale Houghton III, Birmingham, Ala., Dr. and Mrs. T. C. ### REHEARSAL DINNER planned rehearsal dinner Friday evening honoring their son and his fiancée, Miss Amanda Gardner. Their wedding was on the social calendar for Saturday evening, May the twenty-third.

Mr. and Mrs. John Henry Price entertained with a beautifully

The Town Motel was the setting for the party at 7:30. Contributing elegance to the U-shaped table was a classically shaped arrangement of harmonious colors created with majestic daisies, chrysanthemums, stock and baby breath, with striking additions to the accent hues. Wide green ribbon extending the full length of the table was graced with dainty groups of nosegays fashioned of the same flowers arling in frills of white net placed at intervals down the table to complete the green and white color theme. The centerpiece was surrounded with silver candelabra with white tapers lighting the perfect picture table, appointed in gleaming silver and crystal.

The place cards were double wedding rings in gold, tied with sprays of orange blossoms.

The honoree was beautifully costumed in a pink silk crepe two-piece ensemble. The skirt was designed with floating panels and the sleeveless over-blouse had a low cut neckline. She wore a cymbidium orchid tinted in green.

Miss Gardner was presented a strand of cultured pearls as a wedding gift from her fiancé, John David Price. Mr. Price was presented a solid gold signet ring as a gift from the bride-elect.

The menu, consisting of melon ball cocktail in pastel colors, reception salad, corn souffle, green peas and mushrooms in pastry shells, chicken breasts supreme, hot rolls, coffee, vanilla ice cream with creme de menthe, was served the following guests: Dr. and Mrs. John E. Price, Dr. and Mrs. Walter Simpson, Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Gardner, Jr., Mrs. David Floyd, Mrs. Jettie Nunley, Teddy Feldman, all of Booneville, Dr. and Mrs. T. C. Gardner, Sr., of Dallas, Texas, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Dowdy of Atlanta, Ga., Mr. and Mrs. Bob King of New Albany, Eleanor Nunnery of Aroola, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Roy Furtick of Ripley, Miss.

BRIDESMAIDS LUNCHEON

One of the most charming of the many events honoring a popular and much feted bride elect was the luncheon given by Mrs. Emmons Turner, Jr., and her daughter, Miss Mary Jane Turner, for the bridesmaids and bride-elect, Miss Amanda Gardner on Saturday, May 16th at the Rex Plaza in Tupelo, Miss. The centerpiece was designed in a silver two-tiered epergne, with shasta daisies, roses and sweet peas. Attached to the centerpiece were satin streamers and rose buds containing fortunes for the bride and her bridesmaids.

The bride elect was smartly attired in a yellow linen sheath. She wore a white orchid corsage.

She was presented a gravy ladle and sugar spoon in her sterling silver pattern, King Richard by Towle, as a gift from the hostesses. Miss Gardner gave her bridesmaids sterling silver monogrammed letter openers.

Mrs. T. C. Gardner, Jr., and Mrs. John Henry Price were additional guests who enjoyed the lovely salad plate, hot casserole, rolls, iced tea and parfait.

COFFEE

Mrs. John Mahaffy and Mr. s. James Ray entertained at 10:30 Saturday morning with a coffee at the lovely Mahaffy home on McCarley Street, to honor Miss Amanda Gardner and her fiancé, John David Price, their bridal attendants and out-of-town guests.

The living room, den and adjoining rooms, beautifully coordinated with an interesting color repeat of summer flowers of unusual beauty, adding gay jewel colors, inspired a gracious setting.

The elegantly appointed dining table, overlaid with a cutwork cloth was centered with a distinctive arrangement of majestic daisies, Fuji mums and stock. Mrs. Ben Smith presided at the silver coffee service. At the opposite end, Mrs. Walter Simpson served frosted fruit juices. Christi and Deanna Ray were adorable, attired in dainty summer frocks, serving hot appetizers to the guests. Morning pastries, sausage pin wheels, peanut butter sticks, fudge squares and hot cheese dreams were attractively served.

The honoree wore a lovely trousseau model of white silk jersey styled with a pleated skirt with an emerald green silk linen sleeveless jacket with a cowl neckline. She was presented a crystal salt and pepper set by the hostesses.

STAG BREAKFAST

Dr. Walter Simpson was host at a stag breakfast to compliment his nephew, John David Price and his groomsmen, other attendants and members of the family at 9 o'clock at the Town Motel Saturday morning.

The centerpiece was an artistic contemporary arrangement of yellow and brown chrysanthemums. After the typical southern-style menu of fruit juice, ham, eggs, grits, blueberry muffins and coffee, the attendants were presented gold initialed key chains by Mr. Price. To his father, the best man, he gave a gold pen and pencil set.

Those attending were T. C. Gardner, Jr., John Henry Price, Dr. John E. Price, Bobby Spain, George B. Houston, Ronnie Stephens, Neal Walden, Larry Horn of Booneville, Dr. T. C. Gardner, Sr., of Dallas, Texas, and Bob Dowdy of Columbus, Ga.

PATIO PARTY

Miss Amanda Gardner shared hours with her fiancé, John David Price, their bridal attendants and out-of-town guests at a patio party given by Mr. and Mrs. Joe Duckworth on Friday evening preceding the rehearsal dinner.

At the entrance to the driveway, Japanese Script, representing the Four Seasons, truly depicts the Oriental influence on the grounds, patio and the architecture of their home on Cherokee Drive.

In naturalistic effect, wild flowers bloom in profusion along the driveway.

Mr. and Mrs. Duckworth greeted their guests on the lower level of the terraced patio. The refreshment table was overlaid with a criss-cross runner in leaf green. The striking modernistic centerpiece with a mound of yellow chrysanthemums at the base and clusters of carotense grapes, topped with a single pineapple was an appealing and novel note of the hospitality. The temptingly seasoned food consisted of hors d'oeuvres and relishes. Mrs. L. W. Peeler and Nancy Duckworth served the guests. The second level refreshment table covered with a gaily colored cloth had an impressive centerpiece, an oriental arrangement of daisies, snapdragons and chrysanthemums in yellow with an ebony oriental figurine as a background.

Frosted fruit juices were served by Mrs. Stewart Vail, and Mrs. Harold Pritchard.

Lending a distinct charm to the occasion and adding to the mood were the swaying Japanese lanterns in the trees, the soft sound of wind chimes among the leaves and stereo music in accord with the decor.

The patio was lined with hurricane lamps and mountain laurel bloomed on the borders.

Vari-colored cushions were placed to seat the guests Japanese fashion for an hour of relaxation and pleasant association in the cool shadows of the delightful rustic setting.

MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER

The Phi-Mu Sorority house in the English style of architecture and furnishing was the setting for a miscellaneous shower honoring Miss Amanda Gardner on March 11th at the University of Mississippi. Hostesses were Misses Glenda Luke, Lona Williams, Nancy Thomas, Michie Gardner, Roberta Rowland and Sara Eva Furr.

Spring flowers added charm and freshness to the reception rooms. The honoree received many beautiful gifts from her college mates; after gifts were opened and viewed, trays of hors d'oeuvres, mints and nuts were served with demitasse coffee. Miss Gardner was presented a sterling silver serving spoon in her chosen pattern.

AFTERNOON TEA

Pastel shades of green and yellow combined aesthetically to create the color scheme used in the gracious home of Mrs. Murray Gentry on Jefferson Street at an afternoon tea from three to five, Saturday, April 25 for the ladies of the Church of Christ, honoring Miss Amanda Gardner, bride-elect of Mr. John David Price. Co-hostesses for the delightful occasion were Mrs. Percy White, Mrs. Frank May, and Mrs. Charles W. Deaton.

Receiving the guests with the honoree and hostesses were Mrs. T. C. Gardner, Jr., mother of the bride and Mrs. John Henry Price, mother of the groom.

The honoree was unusually lovely in an exquisite sheath of aqua silk with which she wore bone accessories. Her corsage of white carnations was a gift from the hostesses. Mrs. Gardner wore a pale yellow silk shift, and Mrs. Price was gowned in a sheath of embroidered toast-colored silk. Both mothers wore corsages of white carnations.

Spring flowers accented the beauty of the reception rooms. An arrangement of tulips graced the coffee table in the living room and equally beautiful arrangements of iris, pansies, and other spring flowers were placed at vantage points throughout the house to carry out the decorative theme.

From a tea table covered with a handsome scoloped cloth of natural linen, Misses Barbara May and Becky Gullett served punch, bell and crescent-shaped canopes, star and heart-shaped cookies, dainty divinity candies, and assorted nuts. The focal point of the tea table was a crystal bowl holding pale green punch and surrounded by delicate green vines interspersed with yellow ranunculus blossoms.

Mrs. Percy White directed the guests to view the display of the many attractive and useful gifts. The hostesses presented the honoree an open vegetable dish in her chosen pattern of china.

HOME AGENT NOTES

By CLAIRE T. ROSS

There is more truth than fiction in this little verse:

"To love and honor are okay
And one might promise to obey,
But what makes wives turn slowly gray
Is what to cook each blessed day!"

Smart is the homemaker, you will have to admit, who can manage her family's tastes and nutritional needs and yet remain consistently undaunted and unruffled. And there are many who have mastered that very art. Truly good management is an art — but one that can be learned by even the most inexperienced homemaker.

One of the tricks of this trade of management is good use of a home freezer. Probably the chief reason for owning a freezer is to cut down trips to the store and planning these trips when convenient and when specials are most plentiful. CONVENIENCE.

To make good use of a home freezer, a wise homemaker will buy in quantity, and when foods are in season, ECONOMY.

With its large supply and variety of food, a freezer definitely makes meal planning easier. And, at this point the cool, calm, homemaker uses her inventory of all the foods in her freezer as an aid to easy meal planning.

The "Freezing Season" is coming up — just around the corner, in fact. To help you with new and up-to-date methods of home freezing, Mrs. Edwina Morris Wise, Extension Foods and Nutrition Specialist, of Miss. State University, will present a freezing workshop on Friday, May 25, at 2:00 p.m. in the Prentiss County Electric Power Association building.

CARD OF THANKS

We take this method in thanking our many friends and loved ones, for the many deeds and kind words of comfort that were spoken in the sickness and death of Arthur Calton. Thanks to all the nurses of Northeast Mississippi Hospital and Dr. Galloway. Also the doctors and nurses of Tupelo Hospital, for all that donated blood, the food that was brought to the home, and the many beautiful flowers. May God bless each and everyone is our prayer.
