First Baptist Announces Plans For New Building; Other Improvements

The First Baptist Church of Booneville has announced plans for a proposed new building, new furnishings, and improvements in the total amount of $264,000.00.

The proposed auditorium will seat approximately 400 on the main floor, 48 in the choir, 107 in the overflow and chairs, and 145 in the balcony for a total seating capacity of 700. The brick for the new auditorium will match the old educational building in color as closely as possible.

The proposed plan will include the complete furnishing of the new educational units, offices and the auditorium, a new organ and piano, and paving half of the parking lot on the west side. It also includes the pews and all furnishings in the auditorium. Plans call for the entire auditorium to be carpeted.

The chairman of the Building Committee, Mr. Otha Maxwell, said they hoped construction would begin next year.

Mr. Carmon Walden Receives Injuries

Mr. Carmon Walden, owner of Walden Motor Company, suffered a severe ankle injury in an accident Monday night about 8 o'clock and was taken to Campbell's Clinic in Memphis where he underwent surgery Tuesday morning.

Mr. Walden was enroute to take literature to Billy Joe Mayo—a shut in—who lives near the Kraft Cheese Company plant on Broad St. Railroad box cars blocked the road and Mr. Walden decided to cross through them on foot. After he had gotten across, he stepped into a hole, twisting and breaking his ankle.

Mr. Walden asked Billy Joe to call on the Citizen's Band Radio for his wife. Local members of the club heard the call and Clifford Winsett quickly got to the scene. Many of the members were at the local hospital when Mr. Walden got there.

He was examined and sent to Memphis where doctors said both bones in the ankle were broken and out of place, necessitating two pins. Mrs. C. R. Walden, his mother, said Wednesday that he was doing as well as could be expected.

His address is: Room 414, Fourth Floor, Campbell's Clinic, Memphis, Tenn.

Blue Devils Drop Season Finale To South Tiptah Friday Night

It was obvious early that the Blue Devils were in for a rough night at Ripley Friday as breaks and questionable calls against them started at the outset and they were buried under a deluge of Tiger touchdowns 49-14 in the last game of the season.

Booneville received the opening kickoff and D. T. Whitfield wasn't able to get the ball under complete control and Ripley recovered at the Blue Devil 21. Freddie Tollison apparently stopped the threat when he intercepted a pass in the end zone on the first play from scrimmage, but the officials held a brief conference and ruled that the ball bounced off another player's shoulder and was incomplete. Six plays later the Tigers scored from the one and added the extra point on a pitchout at right end.

Ripley scored twice more in the first period, once on a one-yard plunge and once on a halfback pass, and got both extra points for a 21-0 lead.

The Blue Devils' first score came on the last play of the first quarter as Stan Pounds took the kickoff at the Booneville eight, slanted to the right side and went 92 yards behind good blocking. Donald (Bony) Jones took a pitchout at right end for the point and the quarter ended with the score 21-7.

An eight-yard quarterback keeper and a sneak for the point climaxed a Ripley drive that began at their 33 to open the second period in which they scored twice more for a 42-7 halftime advantage.

The second half was all even at seven points each. Booneville tried

Mrs. Jack Dubard Speaks At U.D.C. Chapter Meeting

The D. T. Beall Chapter, Daughters of the Confederacy, met in the home of Mrs. Lewis Earl Perry on Washington Street, Wednesday afternoon with Dr. Mary Summers and Mrs. O. C. Robinson as associate hostesses.

The Perry home, admired for its beauty of the turn-of-the-century period, a spacious setting, known for its charm of hospitality, has an artful blending of the traditional of ancient lineage, with the contemporary in its furnishing. A varied and graceful grouping of chrysantheums in the rich tones of the autumn gave a glow to the entire receiving area.

After the salute to the American and Confederate flags, the ritual was observed.

Dr. Mary Summers, presiding, made a gracious introduction while presenting the guest speaker, Mrs. Jack M. Dubard. Mrs. Dubard was graduated from the University of Mississippi, B.A. and M.A. in English. She has taught in public schools and at Northeast Mississippi Junior College.

A charming and authoritative speaker, in her lucid style she reviewed the life of General Wade Hampton, which was informative and entertaining throughout.

A diligent researcher, she traced his background and achievements, making an encore appearance before the group. Reviewing the various phases of the life of the illustrious Confederate general and statesman, she cited his record as governor of South Carolina 1876 and how he ended the carpet-bagger rule in the state. He was U.S. Senator 1878-1891 and member of Congressional Hall of Fame.

Wade Hampton 1812-1902, was symbolic of the finest flowering of pre-war Southern chivalry and aristocracy. He was a Patriarch by birth, instinct and training. He was reared in Millwood, the baronial mansion of the family, a short distance from Columbia. His home was the seat of a hospitality almost medieval in its magnificence. The great number of slaves were warmly attached to an indulgent master.

Wade Hampton grew to manhood, devoted to all the sports, in which he excelled.

Educated at South Carolina College, he was fitted to meet the responsibilities of his class. After graduation from college in law, he was engaged in the management of large plantations, the largest holdings were in Mississippi, from which, before the struggle, he amassed a quarter of a million dollars.

Interesting accounts were told of his prowess in bear hunting. Idolized by his friends, beloved by his slaves, he spent a happy life before the war. He was wealthy, cultured and physically powerful.

When war came he went with his own people. Nature had moulded him for leadership. As a horseman, he was superb, and he had the appearance of a Saxon king. As call to arms, found him in the saddle, at the head of the cavalry, where his genius for command endeared him to Robert E. Lee. He had seen one sun fall in an engagement.

The difficulties and anguish of war left him no bitterness. There was magic in the name of "Hampton" and the pictures it evoked about reminiscent campfires of the men in gray.

In Mississippi, the Hampton estate of "Wild Woods" was deserted and over a million dollars worth of cotton had been destroyed. He declared himself bankrupt in 1868. Because of his military rank, the radicals were clamoring for his head as a war criminal.

Now that the war was over the proud Hamptons were for several generations the political warlocks among the planters and were reluctant to abdicate.

In conclusion the speaker related his capable leadership, his attitude toward slavery, his political successes, and the evils of the Reconstruction period.

Mrs. Dubard told the story of his leadership during the horrors of bad government, and the days

Q—I was retired from service because of disability. Must I file a claim for compensation with the Veterans Administration in order to qualify for vocational rehabilitation?

A—No. A determination of your entitlement will be made if you apply for training.

Q—Is it too late to file a claim for illness incurred in service?

A—No. A claim can be submitted to the VA at any time.

Q—My $5,000 U. S. Government Life Insurance is now paid up. However, my wife has just died. I have over a thousand dollars in bills, and twice as much insurance as I need. Can I change my insurance to meet this situation?

A—Yes. You may borrow against your insurance, or you may cash in part of it, retaining the amount of protection you consider necessary. Your beneficiary designation should probably be revised, too.

The Minimum Wage Problem

The head of the AFL-CIO union declares that an increase in the minimum wage to $2 an hour is needed. Congress will be asked to approve that figure, or one approaching it, when it convenes next year.

Many people who are sincerely concerned with the problems of the low-income groups will probably look favorably on this proposal. But there is much more involved than meets the superficial eye. There is every danger that an excessive minimum wage may seriously harm the interests of those it is supposed to help.

Various businesses have room for people whose skills are extremely limited. Retailing is a prime example. It offers employment to youngsters just starting out in the business world, to part-time housewives, and to others whose value to the store is slight. If the minimum wage is boosted to the point where the productivity of these workers cannot justify it, one result is certain—store operators will be forced to seek ways and means of getting along with fewer marginal workers. Then the unskilled will find it harder and harder to get jobs and to obtain the experience that would qualify them for higher pay.

It may be argued that the stores and the other businesses affected could solve the problem by the simple expedient of raising prices. But that is much more easily said than done in this era of intense competition. And if it could be done, the burden of higher prices and inflation would fall heaviest on the low wage groups.

It may also be argued that the stores could use a part of their profits to take care of higher costs. But these profits are a great deal less than is generally believed. There's just no margin for absorbing wage increases.

What it all comes down to is that worker productivity and wage levels are inseparably related. A law which ignores that fact must do more harm than good.

Public Relations Notebook

BY Neil Woodruff, Asst. Professor of Journalism, MSCW

The head of a business firm or any other type organization must maintain the position of the organization's number one public relations representative if the organization is to realize the greatest benefit and promote and build good will. This concept applies whether the firm is a one-man operation or a vast industrial complex employing thousands of persons. The president of an organization should readily accept this proven formula and allow it to be carried out through the organization's public relations program.

Mr. Woodruff

It is not necessary that a formally organized program be adopted to create the image that a president of an organization reflects all that is good and gracious. Nor does it require a special staff to bring about such a reality. Much more often it is an unwritten practice. It is inherent in any successful organization. An organization will suffer if it does not in some way realize the president's value in the organization's public relations program. Persons who deal with organizations expect and receive varying degrees of service and treatment from employees. But in the relationship of customer or client, the president or head of the organization plays a very important role. His name may be used or reference made to his office by either employee or customer. The impression that an employee has of the president or the impression that a customer has of the president may be out of line. This is where the employee of any organization must carry the ball to promote the company and reflect a good impression of the "boss."

In small organizations the head of the company plays a much more active role than in the larger organizations and institutions. Not only is he consulted more directly and more often, but in many cases, he carries the main portion of a public relations program by continuous and active participation in the functions of the organization. In very small organizations, the president or owner is the whole show and his control over activities of the company is clear cut.

The head of an organization must make all decisions which would have an effect upon his organization. This does not mean that he should personally make each decision, but that he be aware of any and all activity relating to the organization's public relations activity. He must be aware of what is going on in all areas. His approval is absolutely necessary.

It is just as important and per-

Sensing The News

By THURMAN SENSING
 Executive Vice President
 Southern States Industrial Council
 PROSPERITY — REAL OR FALSE?

About 200 years ago, when our original states were still colonies of Great Britain, Professor Alexander Fraser Tytler gave a lecture at the University of Edinburgh in which he made the following statement:

"A democracy cannot exist as a permanent form of government. It can only exist until the voters discover they can vote themselves largess (we call it relief, subsidies and doles) out of the public treasury. From that moment on the majority always votes for the candidate promising the most benefits from the public treasury with the result that Democracy always collapses over a loose fiscal policy, always to be followed by a Dictatorship." (Dictatorship nowadays can mean one-man rule, Socialism or Communism).

Professor Tytler was talking about the fall of the Athenian Republic — but the principle is just as true now as it was then. Will this happen in our case?

A very significant sentence appeared as a subheading to a headline of an article in one of our national magazines recently: "Prosperity is living on borrowed money and borrowed time."

Such a statement is contrary to most of the current opinion popular in the country today. One of the main planks of the Johnson administration as it ran for reelection was the Prosperity Plan. Most all economists, most all financial advisers, most all bankers, most all businessmen will tell you that we are now having the greatest prosperity in our history. Upper income voters switched over to the Democrats in droves on this very point, wanting to do nothing to disturb this prosperity.

This question far transcends partisan politics. If we are having false prosperity, if we are having only an illusion of prosperity, it is a question that seriously affects every man, woman and child in the country, regardless of political affiliation or station in life. Prosperity "living on borrowed money," that is, inflation built on continued deficit financing and continually increasing debt, can only result in steady erosion of the value of the dollar or even runaway inflation — and inflation, it might be pointed out, has resulted in more human misery and suffering in this world than anything short of war, famine and pestilence.

So let's consider for a moment the situation as it is with us. During 28 of the past 34 years, our Government has had a deficit in the federal budget, has spent more than it has received. The current fiscal year, beginning last July 1st, will make it 29 of the past 35 years that we have had a deficit in our national budget, shall live beyond our means. No one is willing to predict when we shall ever have a balanced budget.

Our budget deficit for the last fiscal year, ending June 30th, was $8.3 billion. Spending last year was $51 billion more than for the previous year. The budget deficits for each of the last four years, which the administration brags about as the most prosperous in our history, total $24.8 billion—the highest 4-year peace-time deficit in our history.

We operated under a federal budget last year of $97.7 billion—second only to the peak fiscal year budget of World War II. Bills already passed by the 88th Congress will increase spending this year about $5 billion.

During the last 34 years, our national debt has increased from $16 billion to $313 billion. The increase in the national debt since the end of World War II has amounted to $44.2 billion.

If our so-called prosperity is "living on borrowed money"—and happens even more so that the public relations director or any other person of power within an organization will be charged with public relations responsibility must be fully aware of what is going on within the organization. In this respect, a public relations director, whether he is called by such a title or not, must have unrestricted access to the president and he must be informed and kept abreast of all activities and decisions which might have an influence on the or-

MISSISSIPPI STATE UNIVERSITY Reports

Truth may be really stranger than fiction. There's a story about this fellow at Mississippi State University who packed a pistol and walked through the corn fields shooting the corn ears. It seems he wasn't firing bullets, but fungus-coated BB's.

"It's a method we've proven to be the best in finding out whether certain strains of corn are susceptible or resistant to Fusarium Ear Rot," said Dr. C. O. Grogan. The disease is a dreaded financial and production cripple to corn growers.

Dr. Grogan, agronomist in the Agricultural Experiment Station and the U.S. Department of Agriculture, explains that researchers seeking to develop resistant corn strains and wipe out this deadly fungus disease — commonly called Pink Ear Rot — can expedite their work manifold with this BB pistol method of injecting the disease on "loaded" BB's.

CROSS-BREEDING

"Agronomists can now screen hundreds of corn varieties quickly," said Dr. Grogan, "and later test the results of their cross-breeding for a highly productive and resistant strain. BB pistols have already been adapted to inject stalk rot since we've proven the effectiveness, and the method seems promising to expedite research in other diseases."

How to do it? You carefully wash the oil from BB's and treat them with the fungus spores within a syrupy substance. These hundreds of spores adhere to the BB's surface (which has many indentations) and are deeply embedded in the young corn shoots when fired from a pistol at close range.

A "shoot bag," named for the corn shoots, not the method, is placed over the ear to prevent other organisms from entering the wound. It's also a good identification method.

The USDA sponsored the BB method research and it has proven quite a boon to maize researchers ever since announcement of the successful results. Old inoculation methods — needle and squeeze bottle applications, for example — have been slow, unreliable, and too variable.

1,000 IN A DAY

Researchers have inoculated more than a thousand corn ears in one day with BB pistols, and about 8,000 in one particular test over a 10-day period. It also gives a good uniformity of infection.

The successful research at State means that corn growers can look forward to ridding themselves of the deadly fungus disease through cross-breeding much sooner.

hostility."

Before leaving, the Federals turned to the destruction of Atlanta. The first fires were set November 11, and for four days they continued, consuming bridges, depots, warehouses, cotton bales, stables, factories, foundries, stores, public buildings — "everything habitable," one Federal officer wrote. Homes were not supposed to be burned, but scores of them went up in smoke, and on the night of November 14, Sherman, himself, reported the "heart of the city was in flames all night."

Next morning, November 15, Sherman's army set out in two columns for Milledgeville, Savannah, and the Sea. Sherman left on the 16th and he paused outside Atlanta to look back. His description, written years later, follows:

Sherman's Words
 "Behind us lay Atlanta, smoldering and in ruins, the black smoke rising high in air and hanging like a pall over the ruined city. Away off in the distance on the McDonough road, was the rear of (Gen. O. O.) Howard's column, the gun barrels glistening in the sun, the white-topped wagons stretching away to the south; and right before us, the Fourteenth Corps, marching steadily and rapidly, with a cheery look and swinging pace, that made light of the thousand miles that lay between us and Richmond."

"Some band, by accident, struck up the anthem of 'John Brown's soul goes marching on,' the men caught up the strain, and never before or since have I heard the chorus of 'Glory, glory, hallelujah!' done with more spirit or in better harmony of time and place."

Local Business

By S. S. TALBOT
 Chairman, Dept. of Journalism
 University of Mississippi

Last year when strikes closed newspapers in New York and Cleveland the business community was aware that retail sales had been seriously affected.

Sales figures have been released which indicate specifically how serious the losses to retail stores were. In Cleveland, according to Federal Reserve figures, department store sales ran 21 per cent below the previous year.

In New York the losses to department stores because of the newspaper strike was 11 per cent. This loss came about in spite of the fact that the New York stores used many substitute outlets for advertising including quickly organized newspapers, increased radio and television advertising, and increased use of circulars.

During the period of this strike other cities were experiencing great sales increases, some running as high as 60 per cent. This means that sales in stores where tests were made — that is, Gimbels and Macys — might have been 75 per cent higher if the stores had had the use of their local newspapers.

The effects on hundreds of smaller businesses which depend upon the movement of consumer traffic in the shopping center was probably even more pronounced. Consumers do not use small specialty shops, service establishments, and entertainment facilities unless they have come to town to make purchases which they have seen advertised in the newspaper.

Plans Are Announced For State's Observance Of Farm-City Week

STATE COLLEGE, Miss.—Plans for Mississippi's active observance of Farm-City Week, November 20-26 were announced today by W. M. Bost, director of the Cooperative Extension Service and state chairman of the annual event.

Better understanding between urban and rural neighbors is the aim of this national movement, now in its tenth year. Kiwanis International is the coordinating agency. Many other organizations have made it a part of their programs.

The observance ends on Thanksgiving Day. This is to help the people of the United States to recognize and be thankful for their abundant agricultural production that makes possible the highest standard of living in the world.

"Mississippi's agriculture is growing steadily in annual income and capital worth. This is the foundation for our state's industrial growth. Nearly three-fourths of our manufacturing firms are related to agriculture, and these firms employ about three-fourths of our workers in manufacturing," Mr. Bost said.

Using modern technology, Mississippi farmers depend on other businesses for such things as farm machinery and equipment, fertilizer, feed, insecticides and weed killing chemicals. Competition to give consumer higher quality with greater efficiency has resulted in tremendous modernization — and often expansion — of livestock, poultry and milk processing plants; grain elevators, cotton gins, wood-using industries, food stores and other agricultural related businesses.

Local county or city observances are again featured in Mississippi's plans for Farm-City Week. Activities will include Farm-City speakers at civic clubs and some other meetings, special newspaper articles and radio programs, and exhibits and other displays.

A panel discussion of the subject will be telecast by Station WLBT (Channel 3) in Jackson on November 21 at 11:30 a.m. Participants will be Owen Cooper, president, Mississippi Chemical Corporation, Yazoo City; Ray Means, livestock manager, Delta & Pine Land Company, Scott, and Dr. W. L. Giles, vice president for agriculture and forestry, Mississippi State University. The moderator will be T. L. Wilkerson, radio and television specialist of the Cooperative Extension Service.

Interesting Farm-City facts are scheduled before and during the week on the Extension Service "Farm and Home Program" regularly broadcast Monday through

Farm Census Coming

Census takers will visit every farm and ranch in the United States during November or December as part of the 1964 Census of Agriculture, conducted by the U. S. Bureau of the Census. Census questionnaires will be delivered by mail; the farmer will answer the questions and keep the questionnaire until the census taker calls for it. Answers are confidential and are used only for statistics. From the last Census of Agriculture in 1959 the nation learned that the number of farms had dropped by about 1 million in five years, but farm production had increased.

Mastitis is one of the major causes of lost production in many dairy herds.

A key question before attempting to treat a case of mastitis and what it is to determine which drug or drugs will destroy the organism or organisms involved. Once this has been determined, proper treatment can be started. But until the most effective drugs have been determined, there is danger of using an incorrect treatment. That is why diagnosis by a veterinarian is important at the outset. And while treatment of mastitis usually requires some drugs, it is a good plan to have the veterinarian supervise the whole course and determine when the infection is completely eliminated.

The attack on mastitis should also include isolation from the milking string of all known or suspected mastitis cows, and a persistent follow-up to make sure the infection is eliminated.

In the case of some treatments for mastitis, it is necessary to withhold milk from the market for a specified period. Farmers should check with the veterinarian on this point.

A vigorous preventive program can also pay handsome dividends when dealing with this disease.

CHOOSING A CAREER IS IMPORTANT MATTER FOR THE YOUTH OF TODAY

County and home agents of the Extension Service are reminding young Mississippians that choosing a career is a most important decision in these complex times. Modern society offers about 40,000 different careers for young people to choose from and the choice involves at least 40 productive years. Young people should not be afraid to investigate careers thoroughly because job possibilities may be greater than realized at first. By looking and studying about them now, more satisfaction can be gained from whatever vocation is entered. Today's youth is especially fortunate to be able to plan a future with opportunities for promising careers in a wide variety of fields, with new jobs and new industries developing. In quoting state extension's message to 4-H youth: There are three basic steps to take when deciding your career. The first is to look at yourself—your interests, abilities and aspirations. Step two is to look at careers and measure each according to contentment, opportunity and income. The third step is matching the other two as well as possible

Mrs. Mary Ellis Dies In Indianapolis, Ind.

Booneville friends were saddened over the recent news received by Misses Alice and Susie Ellis announcing the passing of Mrs. Mary Ellis at her home in Indianapolis, Indiana, on October 22. Mrs. Ellis had been in ill health for a year or more.

Her husband, Irving Ellis, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. P. Ellis of Booneville, preceded her in death in 1939, a year after this beloved couple came to Booneville to make their home. They resided in the apartments with the late Mrs. Roy Barnett on Main St.

Mrs. Ellis was a lady of rare charm and she endeared herself to an admiring circle of friends, who sincerely regret her death. She was buried in the family plot in Indianapolis.

She leaves a sister, Mrs. Rose Bauer of Indianapolis, who made her home with Mrs. Ellis; a niece and nephew, and two sisters-in-law, Misses Alice and Susie Ellis of Booneville.

and making the proper decision as to the future.

Nation's PTA's Ask: Join, Help Children

Membership Offers New Challenge

PTA's throughout the nation are offering a challenging new invitation this fall to membership in an organization that works for all children and youth.

With membership in the PTA comes an opportunity to take part in activities designed to attack the problems that most critically affect children's welfare today.

Says Mrs. Jennelle Moorhead, president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers: "The scientific, technological, and social revolution of our time make it more imperative than ever that every child receive the highest advantages in physical, mental, social, and spiritual education."

Still, she notes, "nowhere, not even in the most favored community, are all children served well or equally well."

That's why the National PTA Action Program for the coming three years is to be planned and written by PTA leaders and members throughout the nation—with counsel from leaders of other organizations that share, in some measure, the PTA's concern for children and their welfare.

The suggestions for PTA activity will be flexible enough, Mrs. Moorhead believes, so that "every community can benefit by the broad experience represented in the parent-teacher movement."

She sees PTA's as "uniquely qualified" to pinpoint each community's need for services to the children—and to help meet these needs effectively.

—Do children face inadequate school facilities? The PTA may work to secure funds for new buildings, secure like the parent-teacher association in Gaylord, Michigan, which won community support of a $950,000 bond issue.

—Do children from deprived families fall behind in school for lack of encouragement or opportunity to study? PTA's can establish a study center like that formed by Chicago's South-east Council of PTA's, which provides books and desks and even student tutors from the nearby University of Chicago.

—Do parents lack resources or vision programs threaten children's moral and spiritual values? PTA's can plan a survey of TV-viewing and movie-going like the one conducted by the Valley Area Council of PTA's in Ohio—a two-year effort involving nearly 5,000 parents and students in the Cincinnati area—and make their views known to producers and distributors.

—Do children growing up in the U. S. today have too little respect for law and individual liberty? The PTA Magazine helps parents provide the basis for developing self-discipline in children and understanding better what is involved in safeguarding individual rights and liberties. And PTA's in communities large and small provide a forum for bringing together parents, educators, religious leaders and civic officials, directing attention to the needs of children and offering the seasoned leadership needed to equalize and improve services to these children.

That's the challenge implied in every invitation, "Join the PTA."

It's an invitation being offered this fall by more than 47,000 local PTA's in the National Congress of Parents and Teachers. By accepting the invitation millions of Americans will find many avenues of service to children. Through such services children benefit immeasurably—in physical and emotional health, spiritual strength, and good citizenship.

"With more children than ever before growing to maturity," Mrs. Moorhead points out, "more dedicated parents and teachers than ever before are needed in the PTA."

Pearl Caldwell Circle Meets

The Pearl Caldwell Circle met at the First Baptist Church Monday. They went directly into the business meeting and discussed the gifts for the little girl at the Baptist Children's Home. An offering was taken, minutes were read, treasurer's and stewardship reports were given by Mrs. Mason.

Mrs. Nelson Baldwin gave the devotion from the Royal Service. Mrs. Milton Pardue had charge of the program.

Mrs. Wheeler Holley gave "Withdrawal for Prayer." Mrs. Joe Fugitt gave "Jesus Prayed Above For Us." Mrs. Otha Maxwell gave highlights of special petition of prayer. The leader asked for special prayer for the Missionaries. Mrs. Fugitt closed the meeting with prayer.

A Mississippian, John Ross, in 1801 made the first suggestion that valuable oil could be pressed from cotton seed.

HOME AGENT NOTES

By CLAIRE T. ROSS

The holiday seasons are practically knocking on our front door. So, wouldn't it be worthwhile and timely, too, to mull over a few odds and ends of information to avoid confused rush later:

TO SIFT OR NOT TO SIFT
As you make your holiday cakes and cookies and special breads, you may be trying one of the new recipes that call for unsifted flour. But if you are using a favorite recipe you have used for many years, the measurements are for sifted flour.

Since there is more flour in a cup of unsifted flour than in a cup of sifted flour, you must either sift before measuring or adjust the measurements to get the right amount of flour for these older recipes.

To adjust the measurement from sifted to unsifted flour, simply spoon flour into your dry measuring cup, level it off and remove two level tablespoons.

KEEP YOUR GLASSWARE SHINING
No matter how outstanding its color and design may be, glassware depends on the sparkle of cleanliness to bring out its true beauty. Add a little ammonia to the rinse water to make the glass shine. After drying very special glassware, polish it with a soft lintless cloth.

If the joints of handles and other grooves are too narrow to wash effectively with a soft brush, use a well-lathered pipecleaner.

To coax dirt from the designs of deeply etched or cut pieces, "scrub" with cotton-tipped swabs from the medicine cabinet or toothpicks dipped into thick suds.

Never subject fine glassware to extremes in temperature, to rapid changes from hot to cold, or vice versa. The expansion and contraction that result may cause cracking. The heavier the glass, the more important this precaution is.

OVERLOADED ELECTRICAL SYSTEMS
There will be heavy demands during the holiday season on electric circuits in the kitchen and for lighting in other parts of the house.

So, if your electric iron isn't heating as fast as you think it should—or as hot as you'd like—don't fuss at the appliance. It may be you're overloading.

That's why it's dangerous to use a fuse too large for the circuit. You lose the protection it is designed to give.

With too large a fuse, the demand may become too great for the circuit to deliver. The voltage will drop; light bulbs grow dim; and appliances won't operate at full capacity.

Should the voltage drop low enough, motors that turn on automatically (those on your furnace and refrigerator) may attempt to start but never develop running current speeds. Instead, they will churn away on high starting current and burn themselves out. Motors on vacuum cleaners, electric mixers or fans also will overheat and may need to be replaced.

So, if you're having what looks like a power shortage, check your circuits and calculate the load on each. A 15 ampere circuit will carry a load of 1650 to 1800 watts; a 20 ampere circuit can handle 2200 to 2400 watts.

Add up the wattage of all of the light bulbs and appliances on each circuit. Do they exceed these totals?

If they do, you'll have to take something off the circuit. Maybe you can shift an appliance from one side of the room to another to get it on a less used loop.

In Memory Of Aunt Hattie Wilson

Angels in shining order stand Around the Savior's throne To welcome home a friend of mine Who left us all alone.

The eighth of that October month In nineteen sixty-four She passed from earth to heaven above;

Her Savior to adore. This friend of mine was eighty-two, When Jesus called her soul. Again we'll meet beyond the blue When Jesus calls the roll.

Years I've spent with her while here; I have had a chance to know That not a word or deed unkind— That's why I loved her so.

She seemed so happy here below; Met conflicts with a smile. She lived a Christian life to show She lived humble as a child.

I put my hand upon her brow So calm and icy cold. I said good-bye for just a while For death had claimed her soul.

Friends and loved ones gathered round, And mourned their loss below. Many flowers were placed around; Their tender love to show.

Dear friend, don't grieve for her any more, But live your life for God. You'll meet with saints on heaven's shore, While your body's 'neath the sod.

A stroke now calmed her painful death. She did not realize She went to sleep and is now at rest

In her home beyond the sky.

Mrs. Lillie Cleo Carter

Franktown Mission Thought For Week

In Christ there is forgiveness and strength. Jesus said, "Ye have not chosen me, but I have chosen you." You are one of the chosen, if you respond. My God! My God! Don't dangle between decisions, when it means so much here in His service, and life everlasting.

Sportsmens Club To Meet Nov. 16

The next Prentiss County Sportsmens Club meeting will be held Monday night, Nov. 16, at Walden's Lake. This will be Ladies' Night and we always expect a large crowd on Ladies' Night.

We have a real good speaker for this meeting and we can expect a very down-to-earth constructive talk.

The hunting seasons are in full swing now, with the deer and duck seasons just around the corner. This is the time of year for sportsmen to dream and reflect on former hunts and experiences of days gone by and to plan for more exciting trips in the future.

When the Great Architect of the Universe molded the earth with His Divine Hand, He worked with a prejudiced eye when he came to shaping the land here in Prentiss County.

He gave everything the eye could appreciate in the form of landscape, such as hills, valleys, rolling plains and flatlands. In addition He streaked the area with numerous streams, so that we could have an abundance of water.

So, the next time you sportsmen get to dreaming and taking stock and to count your blessings, remember to say a prayer of thanksgiving for the land of plenty where the only thing lacking for the sportsman is the time to devote to his favorite sport of hunting and fishing.

Thank Him also for an area where there are squirrels fairly abundant, rabbits and quail plentiful, for game such as coon, mink, muskrats, beaver, fox, opossums over abundant and our deer herd on the increase from year to year.

And don't forget to thank Him for a far-sighted Game and Fish Commission which made all this possible with an assist from a sports-minded public and an All-Wise Creator.

MRS. FENTRESS RHODES

Mrs. Fentress Rhodes Is Guest Speaker At D. A. R. Meeting Friday Night

The Natchez Trace Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution Friday night's meeting was a memorable event in that the organization had as an honored guest the state regent, Mrs. Fentress Rhodes. Sharing the pleasure of the occasion were the Honorable and Mrs. Marion Smith and other friend of the members.

The Town Motel's dining room was never more beautiful and festive like. The lovely arrangements of large chrysanthemums in milk-white china containers added much to the banquet setting.

The meeting, with Mrs. L. E. Perry, chapter regent presiding, opened with an invocation by the chaplain, Mrs. W. W. Cunningham, which was followed by a pledge of allegiance to the American Flag led by Mrs. Eunice Price. Mrs. James Ward accompanied three of her talented students, Misses Margaret Ann Sartin, Joyce Thornton and Lana Shackelford, who sang, "God Bless America" and "This Is My Country" in a beautiful way. The enthusiasm as well as the sweetness of the renditions were a deep inspiration to those listening.

The guest of honor, Mrs. Rhodes was welcomed in a genuine way by Mayor Smith on behalf of the City of Booneville. She accepted the key to the city in a charming manner and in response to Mr. Smith's remarks said she would long remember her stay in Booneville, so fittingly named the City of Hospitality, nor would she soon forget the warmth of its welcome or the graciousness of its people.

Mrs. Lewis Perry, chapter regent, on behalf of the members welcomed Mrs. Rhodes and in introducing her gave highlights of her life with a picture of her devotion and long service not only to Daughters of the American Revolution, but to her community. Mrs. Perry spoke of the diligence and unselfishness she had shown in establishing the principles that the organization is so desirous in keeping in our nation.

Mrs. Rhodes, for the benefit of the guests, made clear the fact that DAR was not a social but a service organization dedicated to a great mission, that of preserving the freedom of the individual, which our noble American patriots fought to gain from the Mother Country.

Mrs. Rhodes stressed that the purposes of the DAR are historical, educational and patriotic. The organization, through its members, is dedicated to keep alive an awareness of the noble heritage which has been ours as Americans. She pointed out that the members are to be ever aware to watch the content of the education that is offered our citizens and to see that it includes the history of our people and the struggle that has been made to preserve the American way of life. Mrs. Rhodes stressed the urgent need for the revival of a patriotic way of thinking. She urged that there was a great need for us to feel pride in our country and that we should teach our children to respect its builders. This, according to the speaker, was the only way to preserve the American way of life and save for future generations a people who considered individual integrity the greatest asset any nation could have.

Mrs. Rhodes' message was of special significance to the members. It was a challenge for them as loyal daughters to take up the torch that their patriot ancestors had handed down to them. She urged that they be active in the fight to maintain the freedom of the individual diligence in their watch to detect the acts of enemies who would undermine their liberties by subversion and subtle methods.

In stirring words, Mrs. Rhodes appealed to the DAR members to assume the responsibilities as citizens and to rise with pride to their duty as members of the organization. By example she urged the members to utilize their abilities to the betterment of others and to the good of our country. She said it was only by service to others that we earned the rights to enjoy the many, many privileges accorded us as true Daughters of the American Revolution.

Mrs. Rhodes' message was inspirational and after a delicious course dinner enjoyed with the warm association with friends, the Natchez Trace Chapter members feel more appreciative of their heritage and more deeply dedicated to preserving the American way of life. In the "esprit de corps" the group feels more enthusiasm, truer devotion. They feel deeply the responsibility of the group to jealously guard the honor of their

An enthusiastic group enjoyed the vista from the full length glass windows of the receiving rooms with their contemporary styling, alive with the decor of the outdoors which changes from season to season, providing at this time a lovely atmosphere with the autumn tone of browning leaves on the hillsides.

On a large round table in the dining room a fan shaped arrangement of yellow chrysanthemums reflecting the glow of the harvest season, warmed and enriched the coordinated table service. A traditional design of pink chrysanthemums with spritely accents focused attention on the buffet.

Adding zest to the gathering the details of hospitality were charming and distinctive with the delicious menu to crown the festive mood.

COUNTY AGENT NOTES

By W. TAYLOR SMITH, County Agent

SOD SEEDING

It is not too late for sod seeding this fall to expect good late winter and early spring grazing. You can sod seed in sods such as common bermuda, coastal bermuda, bahia grass, carpet grass and even thin stands of fescue. Thin worn out pastures can be rebuilt by sod seeding and fertilizing at time of seeding.

Apply 60-60-60 or 500 pounds of 12-12-12 and you will get good results.

AGRI-BUSINESS

Mississippi is still an agricultural state. Agricultural related industry creates an average of 1,641 new jobs each year, in new industry and expansion of older industries.

The manufacturing payroll for agricultural related industries is more than $175 million annually. Total sales of crops and livestock last year by Mississippi farmers totaled nearly $800 million. Last year, gross income per farm set an all time record of $7,406.

DAIRY NOTES

Here is a check list for dairymen: Ask yourself these questions—Am I planning ahead for my feed needs? Am I balancing the ration to meet the needs of the cows in my herd? Do I provide adequate amounts of high quality grazing and stored feed for my herd every day of the year? Do I feed forages free choice; that is, let the cows have all they will eat? Do I feed grain mixtures to each cow individually according to her production? Do I have my herd on some kind of a production testing program like DHIA or WADAM? Do I cull out my unprofitable producers?

If you do not answer yes to as many of these questions as possible, then instead of you culling your cows, they may cull you!

SOYBEAN MEETING

Soybean Day and the annual meeting of the Mississippi Soybean Association will be held December 9 at the Downtowner Motel in Greenville. Activity will get underway at 9:45 a.m. All producers, elevator operators, processors and

Rites For Mrs. Georgia Breedlove Held Saturday

Mrs. Georgia Breedlove of Corinth, Route 5, passed away Thursday at 9 p.m. at the Aletha Lodge Nursing Home following an illness of four months. She was a member of the Church of Christ and retired from private nursing duty. She was 70.

Funeral services were conducted Saturday at 11 a.m. in the chapel of McMillan Funeral Home. Burial was in the Blythes Chapel Cemetery with McMillan Funeral Directors in charge.

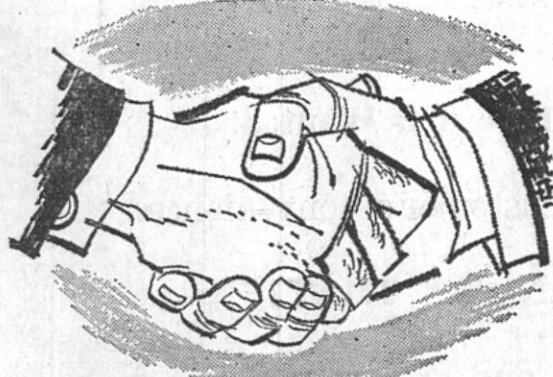

She leaves a brother, Evans Gaines of Booneville, and a sister, Mrs. W. E. Woods of Booneville.

FIRE LANES

It is important to plow fire lanes around pasture areas that have been fertilized, because more growth will be there to burn off. If these areas burn, you suffer two losses. First, clovers and other legumes will be killed as the area burns over. Second, you lose the value of the frosted grass grazing.

It is also a good idea to plow fire lanes around vacant houses, barns and stacked hay. Fire lanes are also important between pastures and woods and between pastures and public roads.

Rites Held Monday For Mrs. P. B. Hale

Mrs. P. B. Hale, a beloved figure, 87, died at 5 a.m. Sunday at her home after an extended illness.

Mrs. Hale was born and reared in Blountsville, Ala. She was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Doyle, who were natives of Huntsville and Blountsville, Ala. They were descended from a pioneer Alabama family.

Mrs. Hale received her education at Blount College in Blountsville, Ala. She was a woman with a serene and radiant spirit. She knew well, the art of being kind and her high courage, enriching personality and her inner strength attracted love and friendship.

A Gold Star mother, Mrs. Hale's son, Louie Short, a son by her former marriage, was wounded in the battle of Chateau Pierre, during World War I.

She was a member of the First Methodist Church and the WSCS, Corinth Chapter OES and the Corinth Chapter United Daughters of the Confederacy. Through her active participation in these organizations, her cultural tastes, mental attainment and her effectual leadership was recognized and valued. The hospitality of her home revealed a grace note and her special charm as a hostess.

Services were held at 9 o'clock Monday morning at the Hale residence conducted by the Reverend William L. Wallace, pastor of the First Methodist Church, and at 2 p.m. at Johns-Ridout Mortuary in Birmingham, Ala. Interment took place in Elmwood Memorial Cemetery in Birmingham, Ala., with Jones Funeral Directors in charge.

She leaves her husband, P. B. Hale; a grandson, Dr. Louis Short of Jackson, Miss.; a granddaughter, Mrs. Lloyd Burton of Jackson, Miss.; and a niece, Mrs. L. P. Newson of Macon, Miss.

CARD OF THANKS
It is with the most sincere gratitude in our hearts, that we take this method of thanking the many people who were so kind to us during the illness and at the death of our beloved wife, mother, daughter and sister, Bettie Sue Burns.

There were so many of you who did so many things early in her illness that we lost count of, and at the time of her death you certainly proved to be real friends. We would like to thank you personally for each item, but would be most impossible to even list the things. Of course, there were the flowers, words of comfort, funeral directors, food, Bros. Sharp, Cunningham, Holiday, Bro. and Sister Wood, who sang so beautifully, Drs. Ellzey, Hurst and Cleveland, the nurses at the Northeast Hospital, who were so attentive.

May the richest blessings of the Heavenly Father, whom our beloved served with the sincere devotion of her heart, rest and abide with each of you is our sincere prayer.

Newspaper Advertising DOESN'T INTRUDE

... It Goes Where It Is Invited!

People Buy Newspapers Because They Want All The News

They are as much interested in the advertising columns as the news columns because advertising is the news of what is valuable in goods and other items.

Every survey ever made shows that people prefer to have the newspaper they buy contain advertising because

ADVERTISING IS NEWS!

The newspaper is there all day and far into the night. It is there for the whole family to read.

AND THEY DO!

It is there to be read at the time and under the circumstances when the reader asks to be informed. It is there for the housewife to tear out the ads and take them with her when she shops.

There is never a question about whether the advertiser's message gets to the reader.

Newspaper Advertising Goes Where It Is Wanted.

It sells because it is read at your customer's convenience.
