County Agent Reminds Farmers To Prepare Records For Ag. Census

All farmers in the county will need this year's business records to help answer questions on a form scheduled for mailing in early November to start the nationwide Census of Agriculture, County Agent W. T. Smith said today.

The Census of Agriculture is taken every five years by the Bureau of the Census, an agency of the U. S. Department of Commerce, in years ending in "4" and "9." It provides information of vital importance about the nation's agricultural resources and production. Such information is needed in making decisions affecting many segments of the U. S. economy. Data gathered include the number and size of farms, number of persons living on farms, acreage and harvest of crops, a livestock and poultry inventory, and information on farm equipment and facilities, and on income and some production expenditures.

The job of taking the farm census will be in three stages, the county agent said. The first stage—organizing a team of local citizens in each county to take the census—is already underway. Crew leaders to supervise the census in each county are being selected and trained. They will have the responsibility of recruiting and training enough enumerators to count the farms in their counties. Each enumerator will visit about 150 farms during three weeks of temporary employment.

Shortly after November 1, the Census Bureau will open stage two by mailing out census questionnaires to all rural box holders in the county, the county agent continued. Farm operators will then have a period of time to consult their records (or best estimates for the year) and answer the questions on the forms.

In the final stage, enumerators will visit each farm in the county to collect the questionnaires, the county agent added. At the time of this visit, the enumerators will help farmers complete answers to any questions the farmers may not have been able to answer. Enumerator visits, which will take about 3 weeks to complete, will start according to the following schedule:

Nov. 9—New England, New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Nebraska, the Dakotas, Colorado, Utah, Wyoming, Montana, Idaho, Nevada, Oregon, Washington, and the citrus areas of Florida and Texas.

Nov. 10—Puerto Rico.
Nov. 16—Maryland, West Virginia, Virginia, Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Missouri and Kansas.
Nov. 23 — The remaining states.

Car Is Delivered Tuesday For Driver Education At Booneville

This year, for the first time, driver education courses are being offered at four schools in Prentiss County. The car for the Booneville class was delivered Tuesday morning. It was furnished by the Chrysler Corporation through the courtesy of Walden Motor Company of Booneville.

At Booneville the course is offered during three periods and 20 students are signed up for the instruction. Herman Seymore is instructor. One half credit is given for satisfactory completion of the course in which students must have at least 30 hours classroom instruction and six hours behind the wheel.

Other county schools to participate in the program are Thrasher, with James Chase as instructor and car to be furnished by Billingsley Chevrolet Company of Booneville; Wheeler, Jack Arnold and Richard Arnold instructors and car to be furnished by Henderson Chevrolet Company of Baldwin; and Marietta, Charles Bolton instructor and car to be furnished by Ruff Buick of Tupelo.

Classroom instruction was started at the opening of the school year and behind-the-wheel training will begin as soon as the cars are equipped with dual controls as required by law.

The cars will be under the supervision of the schools and restrictions set up by each company will be followed. New models will be furnished each year. Mrs. W. M. Murphy, county superintendent of education, said that all insurance would be carried according to state laws.

Mrs. Murphy said, "This is an excellent program and we are extremely happy to get it started."

Other schools in the county are expected to enter the program as qualified instructors are trained and the number of interested students warrants the course.

Of special interest to parents is the fact that boys who complete a driver education course will qualify for a 10 to 15 per cent reduction in automobile insurance rates.

Blue Devils Meet Fulton Friday Night In Last Home Game Of The Season

The rejuvenated Booneville Blue Devils will entertain the Fulton Indians at Northeast Mississippi Junior College field Friday night in the last home game of the season. Kickoff time will be 7:30. They have an open date October 30 and will close November 6 with South Tippah at Ripley.

Earlier in the season Fulton would have ruled as a prohibitive favorite in this one, but recent developments make it shape up as more of a toss up. On October 9 the Indians trailed Nettleton 7-6 at halftime before coming back to win 27-7 and last week Fulton and New Hope played a scoreless tie.

Playing up to their potential for the first time this season, the fired up Blue Devils invaded Nettleton Friday night and displaying adequate offense for the occasion and a vicious defense racked up the Tigers in a convincing 35-13 fashion.

Various combinations of Blue Devil defenders Bill Murphy, Danny McCord, Bill Stennett, Richard Walden, Tommy Floyd, John Pate, Eddie Lindsey, David Bishop and Billy Joe Young broke through often to hit Nettleton quarterback Dwight Sisk and the Tiger runners for losses that Nettleton's net gain for the game was only two yards. On one Nettleton series the Booneville defense hit for successive losses of 7, 6 and 12 yards.

Meanwhile, the Blue Devil offense was moving. Kenneth Shackelford returned the opening kickoff from the 17 to the 44 and after one play failed to gain Stan Pounds passed to Bill Murphy or a first at the Nettleton 10. Freddie Tolison got one at left end and Terry Cartwright was caught for a loss of six, then Pounds kept at right end to the 8. Tolison skirted left end to score then went off left tackle for the extra point and Booneville was ahead to stay with 8:20 left in the first quarter.

On the series following the kickoff, the Tigers moved into Booneville territory and got a first down at the nine with the aid of a 15-yard penalty, but the Booneville defense held to take over at the one. However, three plays later Nettleton recovered a fumble on a fake punt at the Blue Devil three.

Even from here the Tigers had trouble with the stern Blue Devil defense. A try at left tackle lost one, the Murphy and Floyd combination broke through to drop Sisk for another yard loss. A pass went incomplete as Murphy and Mike Kemp pressured Sisk and finally on fourth down Sisk passed to David Evans to score. The Tigers were penalized 15 for holding on the point try, then a pass was incomplete as Murphy and Walden were in to rush.

Booneville took the kickoff with Mike Cunningham returning from the 10 to the 38. Pounds got two at center then passed to Mike Kemp for 22 and first at the Tiger 38. Pounds intended for Murphy went incomplete as the Tigers were called for pass interference giving Booneville a first at the 24. Tolison drove at left guard to the eight and at right guard for two and Shackelford sneaked to within a foot of the goal as the quarter ended. After changing ends of the field, Tolison went over left guard to score and Shackelford sneaked for the point. Booneville 14, Nettleton 6.

After an exchange of punts, D. T. Whitfield recovered a fumble to give Booneville possession at the Tiger 27. Pounds to Murphy was incomplete then Pounds threw to the goal line to Whitfield, who battled two Nettleton defenders for the ball to score, with 4:30 left in the half. Tolison got the point at right end and Booneville carried a 21-6 advantage to the dressing room at intermission.

In the middle of the third quarter the Blue Devil defense gave Booneville their next scoring opportunity. The Tigers had moved to a first at the Booneville 20 and picked up two on a line play. A pass was incomplete, Stennett crashed in for nine loss and with fourth and 17 at the 27, Murphy broke through to hit for 15 loss and Booneville took over on their own 42. With Tolison doing most of the carrying behind excellent blocking the Blue Devils moved on down and Shackelford sneaked in from one and a half yards. Tolison crashed left guard for the point. 28-6.

Nettleton returned the kickoff from the 38 to the 45 and picked up three first downs in succession to the Booneville 14 from where Sisk passed to David Reese for the touchdown and the same combination was good for the point. 28-13.

Shackelford returned the kickoff from the Booneville 25 to the Nettleton 49, but after picking up two first downs the blue Devils bogged down and the ball went over at the Tiger 16. They got three on a reverse and a pass netted a first at the 30, then Walden led the charge in for seven loss. A pass regained the seven before Bishop and Billy Joe Young broke through to hit for 11 loss. There was no gain on the next play and Booneville took over at the 19.

Pounds tripped going back to pass and lost 13. Pounds threw twice more incomplete and was back to pass again when he saw daylight at the left side and ran for a first down at the eight and out of bounds with 10 seconds left to play, then passed to the three to Murphy, who lunged with two tacklers hanging on to fall across the line and score. McCord butted a would-be tackler out of the way to get the point at left end. 35-13.

Booneville recovered a fumble on the kickoff at the Tiger 37 as the game ended.

KICKOFF RETURN—Kenneth Shackelford (19) returned the kickoff 26 yards to the Nettleton 49 following the Tigers' second touchdown in the game at Nettleton Friday night, as a number of his Blue Devil teammates go along to help clear the way. Booneville won the game 35-13.

FEEDER PIG SALE

701 pigs were sold in the 18th area feeder pig sale here Thursday. The average price was $24.98 per cwt, or $13.35 per head. The average weight was 53.46 pounds per pig.

Many more of our farmers could supplement farm income by adding a few brood sows to their present farm operation. Efficient producers are marketing over $200.00 worth of pigs per year through these sales.

GRAZING OUT FIELDS
What about grazing fields following frost? Many farmers everywhere worry and wonder about this problem. Many will leave the grazing of sorghum in the field to ruin rather than graze it for fear livestock will be injured from prussic acid.

By following some simple rules the areas can be grazed or put up for stored feed. Grain sorghum, any second growth sorghum or any of the sudan-sorghum crosses can be safely grazed after it dries out following frost.

The sorghum can also be used for silage. Cut as soon as possible after frost to get a higher quality feed. Areas that were left for hay and got caught by frost will still make good hay. Cut it. Let it cure just like any summer hay; bale it and store it.

Another good practice to follow on fields that you are afraid may contain prussic acid is to let the area dry out following frost; then save it for frost grazing and use the area until around Christmas.

AFTER HARVEST JOBS
Getting rid of stalks soon after harvest can help in several ways. It will help prevent seedling diseases present on old stalks and the carry-over of these diseases into next year. This can help reduce serious seedling disease in 1965.

It also gives time for stalks to rot so they are not in the way during land preparation, planting and weed control next spring. Decayed stalks also add organic matter to the soil.

Most of our land when cultivated constantly using mechanical equipment develops plow pans at fairly shallow depths. It is good business to break the soil deep with disk breakers or flat bottom plows every two or three years, depending on the nature of the soil. If deep pans exist they should be broken in the fall by subsoiling when the land is dry. This will permit the soil to store moisture and improve internal drainage.

Mixed clay loam to heavy clay soils should be bedded in the fall. This gives the farmer time to get the fertilizer in early next spring and permits minimum seedbed disturbance.

Do not prepare sandy or sandy loam soils in the fall as erosion will take its toll.

COTTON LOVES LIME
Lack of lime on Mississippi cotton land annually costs farmers around $30 million. Lack of lime can cost farmers as much as one-half bale to the acre.

Some major symptoms of lime deficiency are above average seedling losses, stunted plants, "crinkle-leaf" cotton, inadequate root development, poor boll set, small bolls, reduced drought resistance and low yields.

Rites For James Franklin Runion Held October 13
James Franklin Runion, a farmer of McKenzie, Tenn., died at 6 p.m., Sunday, October 11, at his home after a long illness. He was 76.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Maybell Birmingham Runion; three sons, Andrew Runion of Gleason, Tenn., Raymond Runion of St. Louis, Mo., and James Runion of Dyersburg, Tenn.; three daughters, Mrs. Lawrence Harrell of Dallas, Texas, Mrs. Albert Mayo of McKenzie, Tenn., and Mrs. L. T. Mayo of Union City, Mich.; a step-son, Manuel Robinson of McKenzie, Tenn.; and a brother, Will Runion of Meridian, Miss.

HOME AGENT NOTES

By CLAIRE T. ROSS

HOMEMAKER'S STAMP

Homemakers of America will be honored with the issue of the Homemakers commemorative postage stamp on October 26.

The stamp which salutes the role of American womanhood in making a home, will have a first day ceremony in Honolulu, Hawaii during the annual meeting of the National Extension Homemakers Council.

The colorful 5-cent stamp with its yellow background and red, green and purple design, simulates the needlework of a sampler, on which women cross-stitch mottos and designs in bright colors.

STORING SUMMER CLOTHES

Care in cleaning and storing your hot weather clothes will pay off next spring when you are ready to wear them again.

To provide winter-long life insurance for your summer clothes, clean and store them to avoid moths, mildew, abrasion from soil and unnecessary wear caused by deep creasing.

The simple formula for "packing dry" is to wash thoroughly, to dry thoroughly, and to store efficiently and conveniently.

Skip the ironing. Anything folded will need ironing in the spring anyway. Skip starch as it attracts silverfish. To prevent crushing and creasing, avoid overcrowding containers. Place heavy boxes or packages under light or fragile ones.

To get things really clean, turn cuffs down and pull pockets right side out. Rip hems and seams on clothes that will need to be altered next spring. Replace missing buttons, mend tears.

Use thick suds to pretreat soil lines along the edges of hems, collars, cuffs and pockets. Also remove special stains or they may become permanently "set" during storage.

Let cottons dry thoroughly to prevent mildew, then fold them lightly for packing. Wrap white cottons and linens in blue tissue to prevent yellowing. Put transparent storage bags or boxes where strong light won't cause colored fabrics to fade. Label the container, unless it is easy to see the contents.

Fold and store knits flat. Their weight can cause sagging and stretching if left on hanger. Hang permanently pleated dresses and skirts to drip dry into shape before folding them.

Home Demonstration Club meetings:

Booneville: Thursday, October 22, 2 p.m.—Mrs. Carmon Walden. Miss Ethel Sims will be co-hostess.

Marietta: Wednesday, October 28, at School Building.

Rule Of Reason

An editorial which recently appeared in the Scripps-Howard newspapers casts some needed clarifying light on the controversy surrounding the safety of drugs and the regulatory policies which have been adopted or proposed. It says: "No drug is absolutely safe. Aspirin has been known to kill people. Penicillin, which has saved more lives than any medicine in existence, also has been responsible for more deaths than any other. Thus, the good a drug can do must be weighed against the harm it might produce. Political hindsight always enjoys the advantage over medical foresight."

One need not be an authority on pharmaceutical matters to visualize what would happen if absolute safety became the criteria for drugs. Some of the most valuable agents now available to the doctor would be banned, because in a microscopically small proportion of cases they had proved lethal. Great numbers of sufferers would be denied their use and benefits, and needless death, illness and suffering would be the result. Beyond that, a virtually insuperable barrier would be erected in the path of drug research. No concern could take the heavy financial risks that this research demands if it knew that a new product, no matter how valuable it might be to multitudes of people, would be unmarketable because of its deleterious effects on the few.

The drug industry is unremitting in its emphasis on maximum safety as well as maximum efficacy. We have long had laws which protect the public in this regard, and we have, too, the infinitely important protection provided by the physicians who write the prescriptions.

Here is a case where the greatest good for the greatest number is the real issue—and where the rule of reason is the only sound one.

BE SAFE ON YOUR BIKE!

100 Years Ago—

Sheridan Routs Early, Ends Valley Campaign

By LON K. SAVAGE

It was still dark, and most of the troops in the VIII Corps of Phil Sheridan's Federal army were asleep in their tents. Outside, fog rose from Cedar Creek and the North Fork of the Shenandoah River in the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia.

Suddenly, rifle and artillery fire erupted in the night, and out of the gorge along the river thousands of yelling Confederates rose and swooped into the Federal encampment. Never had an army been so surprised as on that early morning of October 19, 100 years ago this week.

So began the Battle of Cedar Creek, which turned, within twelve hours, from a Federal victory, which ended the Valley campaign of 1864 and which made a legend of the Federal commander, Sheridan.

Early's Attack

Gen. Jubal Early's surprise attack had been planned as a last sort to hold the valley for the South. In the past month, Early had been whipped twice by Sheridan's larger army, and he had stood by helplessly as Sheridan's men burned and destroyed the valley's crops, harvest, livestock and mills. Now, his army was starving, and he had to either attack or get out.

He found Sheridan's army encamped along Cedar Creek, 20 miles south of Winchester. During the night before the attack, his men silently worked themselves into position along the river, and just before daylight, the battle was on.

The VIII Corps was devastated. The troops hadn't even time to dress or grab their guns; most fled, barefooted, and more than 1,000 were captured, still half asleep. Early's Confederates captured Federal artillery, spun it around and fired at the fleeing Yanks.

Sheridan's XIX Corps was hit next. Within minutes it, too, had joined the horde now streaming in panic toward Winchester.

The VI Corps and Sheridan's famous cavalry, all that remained of his army, held fast, and finally Early's steamroller slowed to a stop. The Southerners, hungry as always, set about looting the Federal encampment, gorging themselves on food.

Sheridan Arrives

Phil Sheridan, just back from Washington, had spent the night at Winchester. Returning to camp that morning, he heard the noise and spurred his horse forward. Soon, he ran into wagons, soldiers and artillery all retreating in confusion from the disaster.

Sheridan got off the road to make better time. Galloping forward, leaping his horse over rail fences, he waved his hat and yelled to his men as he passed. "Turn back! Turn back!" And, miraculously, the men looked at him, cheered and responded.

As Sheridan galloped on, his devastated army somehow regrouped itself; men turned around and headed back for the fight. At the front, Sheridan found his cavalry and VI Corps still fighting, and he galloped up and down the lines, waving his hat and calling on his men to fight.

For an hour, Sheridan formed his army, then ordered his line forward. The Federals swept back into their camp, driving back the Confederates, many of whom still were busy looting. On the Federals came, recapturing all the equipment they had lost in the morning plus nearly all that Early had brought with him. Early's army limped up the valley, never again to pose a serious threat to the Shenandoah Valley.

Public Relations Notebook

By Neil Woodruff, Asst. Professor of Journalism, MSCW

Communications among people take many and various forms. Plain and direct conversation is most common. Communications also may be in printed form. Or it may be through indirect means which results in second-hand information. For example, how many times have we all made references to hearing something "through the grapevine."

Mr. Woodruff

Grapevine information can be nothing more than mere gossip. When people hear things and then pass the information along, they are prone to exaggerate the information or withhold certain facts which they prefer not to pass along. So, grapevine chatter can and often does result in nothing more than a gossip vehicle.

Many large companies and organizations in the United States have come to rely upon the grapevine to help carry out a big portion of their internal or personnel relations program. In many, many instances, it has worked beautifully. But in some instances, it has back-fired miserably.

One large company in the northeastern part of the country used the grapevine quite successfully for several years to inform employees of policy changes and other bits of information which it did not desire to put into writing. However, when the same company attempted to use the grapevine for a series of personnel promotions, the grapevine sputtered and backfired. The company then decided not to use the grapevine technique for future major company announcements.

The true grapevine system of communication falters when people distort the facts in a situation and turn them into false statements. The information then becomes gossip. Gossip can be identified as information about other people, usually untrue. Grapevine information in its true sense and effectiveness does not fall into the gossip category.

The grapevine is used quite effectively today in organizations of all types and in society in general. As a matter of fact it has undoubtedly been around as long as one might care to think about. It can be used with real effectiveness by an organization if it is carefully planned and executed. But the one real danger always present is that someone along the vine may come across a bunch of grapes which have turned sour. Then the once-fruitful grapevine turns into a withered gossip bush.

Local Business

By S. S. TALBOT
Chairman, Dept. of Journalism

Prosperity and automotive sales are so closely linked in America that it is difficult to tell which comes first.

This year, it seems that automobile manufacturers are working on the theory that sales of new models can be controlled by advertising. Never before has such faith been shown in the promotional efforts of the major companies.

The advertising which is introducing the 1965 autos has never been equalled in volume. However, the methods have been proven. More than ever the printed page is being used to illustrate new models. Again national companies are putting increased emphasis on advertising in local media.

Ten years ago, when some automotive firms experimented with the concentration of advertising in metropolitan media a drastic decline in sales followed. Near-disaster taught the industry that advertising could not be divorced from the local dealer. A trend back to local newspaper advertising followed.

One company which introduced new models in more than three thousand newspapers, covering the communities of all its local dealers, was once a chief exponent of centralized advertising.

A company official explained that no other medium could show the "exciting new styling of 1965" to so many people so effectively as the local newspaper. In this respect, the selling of automobiles is no different from other retail selling. And in either case prosperity in the local community may be created through newspaper advertising.

Former Governor Lauds Goldwater

Former Governor Hugh White told a group of Goldwater supporters in Jackson last week that "there has never been a Presidential candidate accused of the things Lyndon Johnson has been accused of."

White attacked Johnson's record before an organizational meeting of key workers promoting "Goldwater Victory" dinners in Jackson and on the Gulf Coast October 20. He referred to President Johnson's alleged fortune of more than $14 million, reportedly amassed during the time he has been an office holder.

"The President should be a man people can look up to," said White "and I don't believe anybody can conscientiously encourage their children to respect Lyndon Johnson."

White lauded Senator Barry Goldwater as "a man whose morals and record are such that he cannot be attacked."

He pointed out that J. Evetts Haley, a Texan, has written a scathing denunciation of President Johnson entitled "A Texan Looks at Lyndon."

"If this had been done in Mississippi somebody would have been fighting," said White, "but you haven't heard any words of denial."

White urged defeat "of the man who now occupies the White House" and said "I urge every Mississippian to contribute to Goldwater's campaign to save this nation."

PERFUME FROM RABBIT TOBACCO?

Fifty pounds of Mississippi "Rabbit Tobacco" have been collected by student researchers for study in the University of Mississippi School of Pharmacy. They suspect the plant, which grows wild in abundance in Mississippi, might contain substances which could be useful to man in the pharmaceutical industry or in the manufacture of cosmetics. The study is being conducted through the Research Institute of Pharmaceutical Sciences' Natural Products Division, a program at Ole Miss which is designed to develop natural products in the State for use in the pharmaceutical industry, and thus create more industry in Mississippi. Student researchers are (from left): Dave Newton, University; Richard Russell, Pontotoc; and Wayne Geiselman, Greenwood.

ON A FARM LONG AGO

Did you ever live on a farm long ago,
Before the inventions that we now know?
Did you wonder just how you ever made out,
After all the things that you now know about.
The water, the wood, the cooking, too,
Any of these would seem today a hard job to do.
Monday was the day you washed your clothes,
Then to dry on a wire between two poles.
Or if this convenience was not provided you,
A barbed wire fence would easily do.
The clothes were boiled in a big black pot,
A real warm job if the day was hot.
Now the muscles in your arms and back
Made up for the gadgets that you then lacked.
You used lye soap and rubbed and scrubbed,
Bent over for hours a big zinc wash tub.
Now sandwiches hadn't made their way
To the country homes of that day.
We would get the wood out of the shed
To fire the big stove to bake our bread.
It was a custom then, whoever you would meet,
To invite them home with you to eat.
It was an amusing thing around the place,
To watch the boys in winter wash their face.
Washing on a cold back porch wasn't much fun,
To take a bath all over was seldom done.
When just a few drops in the bucket could be found,
'Twas plenty for several boys to wash all around.
The one that used the last water, our Pop would tell,
Would be the one that went to the well.
Drawing water wasn't too bad,
But it took every muscle that you had.
The well also as a general rule,
Was where the milk and butter was kept cool.
In the summer when the weather was good,
Was a very good time to cut the winter wood.
You had your grasshoppers back then, too,
That seemed to have a lot of hunting and fishing to do.
When the winter comes and days were cold,
You would see then out dragging up poles.
We always had milk to waste,
Due to what the cow ate—causing a terrible taste.
The old brindle muley cow, the usual thing,
Would "find" a bull calf early in the Spring.
Now wild onions would be her steady diet,
You wouldn't drink the milk or butter eat a bite.
After the wild onions had run their race,
There was bitter weed to take their place.
Now after the season for these two weeds had gone by,
Ole' muley began to eat acorns and would completely go dry.
Along about the middle of July, or there about,
Some farmer would kill a bull yearling and peddle it out.
The steaks were all lean, plenty of red meat,
You hammered on it until tender enough to eat.
Most every one before the summer's end,
Would begin to lose weight and get very thin.
Come early Fall when the persimmons and 'possums were ripe,
Your weight picked up practically overnight.
The banner time of all the year.
Came when hog killing time was near.
You waited until the cold wind would blow,
And all signs portended snow.
'Cause that first night on fresh meat,
Depended a lot on whether it would spoil or keep.
You remember the hams, bacon, backbone, even the feet,
Every cut was simply delicious to eat.
Did you ever eat breakfast when the morning was cold,
In the kitchen by the big warm cook stove?
A big platter of golden brown ham,
With red gravy, hot biscuits, butter and jam.
Two big eggs would cover your plate,
It was all so good, every bite you ate.
You remember some of the feelings you had when a child,
They come to you now every once in a while.
These feelings are just like a sunlight beam,
They drift into your thoughts just like a dream.
You try to grasp and hold them there,
But they fade away into thin air.
On the farm there is a stillness at twilight time,
As the ghost like trees are shown in outline.
Against the dying rays of the setting sun,
In other areas the darkness has begun.
This veil settles over all so very light.
As all the creatures are getting ready for the night.
You remember the first night you stayed from home,
It's just at this time you felt all alone.
And from the direction of the wooded hills,
Comes the plaintive call of the whippoorwill.
The memories like these are treasures you know,
To all who lived on a farm long ago.

—Dick Brown

"A Stranger — And They Took Me In", Writes Guest At Frankstown Mission

Some people get discouraged, discontented and even disgusted with life and want to go far away. Some have no "get up and go" but not so with Earl Brewer, 23, of Los Angeles, California, who got up and went over six months ago, taking with him his best friend, a three and a half year old German Shepherd dog by the name of Randy.

Randy is a whiz. He graduated from obedience school and watches over his master like a guardian angel. Like Randy, his master also went to school, graduating from high school and attended a school of journalism for two years but Earl never did find time to take typing.

This bright young man, well-mannered and quite handsome, like many other young people of today found life dull and meaningless. He, like many others, also is from a broken home by divorce. Nothing seemed to go right, so Earl decided to chuck it all and hit the road as a vagabond and see some of the United States.

Like "The Rebel" on TV, he keeps a journal and writes in it each day. He and the dog have already traveled through 31 states this summer.

Folks sometime hesitate to give a hitchhiker a lift but many dog lovers along the way have stopped because of the majestic looking Randy.

By the time Earl and Randy reached the Frankstown Mission on Highway 45 Sunday evening, both the boy and the dog were foot-weary, cold and hungry. The following story was taken from Earl's Journal later Monday morning:

By Earl Brewer
Guest at Frankstown Mission

"I Was A Stranger And They Took Me In"

October 5—"Some would call it fate, others might say it's only luck but it's my belief that it was something truly greater than either of the two that brought me to the door of the Frankstown Mission last evening.

Cold, tired and hungry, I knocked at the door and was welcomed along with my dog by a chorus of voices that bade me into the warmth of the huge combination living room and fellowship hall.

I was greeted by the Rev. E. B. Woodall, assistant promoter of the Mission, and his wife and family, who live there. One thing in particular caught my eye as I stood talking with these people who had already made me feel quite at home. It was a painting of our Lord on a dark night knocking at someone's door, just as I had done only minutes before.

Mrs. Woodall served a fine supper as she always does for her family and for those who stop at the Mission. After the meal I went next door to meet Mr. J. M. Franks, founder and director of the Mission, who talked very ardently about his plans, hopes and dreams for a 120 acre farm near here that is being turned into a place of refuge and rehabilitation for those who would regain their self respect and once again become useful citizens.

Much work has been done at the Mission that feeds, clothes and lodges over 1,000 people yearly. But as in the case of nearly all charitable endeavors the out-go seems to be continually ahead of the income.

In this generation of young people seeking ideas to better themselves and their fellowman, it is inspirational indeed to see this man who is 78 years of age, crippled by arthritis, and whose wife is confined to a wheelchair as the result of a stroke, think not of themselves but of those outside who might be cold, hungry and alone with no one to turn to.

It has been said that the enthusiasm around these people is contagious and I for one have caught the bug. Suddenly I feel that I have nothing better to do than to share in the work being done at the Mission and the dreams for

Mr. Franks' farm, those which are supported solely by contributions and gifts. But make no mistake about it, this is not a wild dream for with the faith these people have in God and their fellowman, there will some day be a home that will surely equal Father Flanagan's Boys' Town, Nebraska, which was started with almost no funds in 1917 and today has a self-supporting city of hundreds.

Oh, I almost forgot, as I slipped into bed at the Mission last night, I thought of the warm and comfortable fireplace and painting setting on the mantle piece. The painting of our Lord knocking on the door that was still closed."

Cecil Holley reports an enjoyable trip to Medford, Oregon, where he joined friends for game hunting and fishing, October 8th through the 19th. Mr. Holley said he didn't get much game, but the scenery was beautiful and the people as friendly as anywhere outside of Mississippi. Mr. Holley enjoyed the hospitality of the County Club while there and said he wished he could have stayed another week or two.

A tropical vine, related to the morning-glory, having variously shaped leaves and purplish flowers, also large, thick, sweet and mealy tuberos roots which is cooked and eaten as a vegetable is the definition of a sweet potato. And the large, thick, sweet and mealy tuberos root brought by the office by Mr. Wade Trantham of Route 2, Booneville, weighed an amazing 5 pounds and 4 ounces!

On our vacation last summer while we were in New York City to see the World's Fair, we stayed in a tiny room in the Waldorf Astoria Hotel. The room normally held one double bed, but somehow they got two more cots in it. Honestly, we had to get out in the hall to breathe.

But that's not what I started out to say. Former President Herbert Hoover lived at the top of the hotel in the Waldorf Towers. Our sons, giving the hotel the once-over including the magnificent ball room where we joined them to gaze at the huge chandeliers, ventured to the top where a maid inquired whom they wished to see. They made a hasty retreat, but evidently it was Mr. Hoover's apartment. Then after we left the hotel on Tuesday, we read where Mr. Hoover had held a press conference the day before on his 90th birthday. We wondered if we could have possibly attended and would have tried to if we had known. So all of us missed a chance to see the former president.

His death Tuesday was mourned by the whole world. He will live in history as one of the greatest humanitarians of all times.

Mothers used to just have to sew on buttons on youngsters' shirts...now its buttons and loops! Most "stylish" shirts now have a loop or tab in the back of the yoke and a current fad is pulling the loops out. With a little practice, the children have learned just how to pull the loop out without tearing the shirt. I understand some of the girls have collections totaling 20 or more.

We commend the County School System for providing a Driver Education Course. Learning the correct way to drive, correct signals, etc., should cut down on the number of accidents and help save lives.

A plain-clothes detective sergeant on the New York City police force who was returned to uniform following the recent riots in that unhappy city told a friend following a 12 hour tour one night, "You know, when I saw those shop-keeper's stores being looted, and the Molotov-cocktail firebombs exploding against squad cars, no matter how hard I tried, I just couldn't remember in Whose Image it was that man was created."

No one will ever forget Myrt, the telephone operator. You just told her who you wanted to talk to, never mind the number, and she rang the right phone. Or, if they weren't home, she could usually tell you where they were. She always knew where the fire was and who was sick and if you needed a doctor right away, she'd find him for you. ### Cotton Domestic Allotment Program A Success

Orville E. Bostick, Golden, Mississippi, Chairman of the Mississippi ASC State Committee, announced this week that over 42,000 Mississippi cotton farmers voluntarily participated in the 1964 cotton domestic allotment program and earned a total of $4.1 million.

According to Bostick, the Agricultural Act of 1964 provided cotton producers with a choice program of reduced acreage and higher price support. It was one of the major pieces of legislation pushed by President Johnson and was finally enacted by the Congress and signed into law by him on April 11, 1964.

"Despite predictions of critics of farm programs," Mr. Bostick said, "cotton farmers have demonstrated their eagerness to join with other farmers in making needed production adjustments. The status of Mississippi cotton farmers and the economy of the State have been greatly benefited by cotton programs of recent years," he continued.

Under the 1964 program, farmers who complied with their effective allotments (there were 63, ally enacted by the Congress and signed into law by him on April 11, 1964.

"Despite predictions of critics of farm programs," Mr. Bostick said, "cotton farmers have demonstrated their eagerness to join with other farmers in making needed production adjustments. The status of Mississippi cotton farmers and the economy of the State have been greatly benefited by cotton programs of recent years," he continued.

Under the 1964 program, farmers who complied with their effective allotments (there were 63, 935 Mississippi farmers with effective allotments in 1964) were eligible for a price support loan of 30 cents a pound (basis Middling 1-inch cotton at average location). Each of these farmers was also given a domestic allotment which was 67 per cent of the farm regular allotment. For small farms, the domestic allotment was the smaller of 15 acres or the 1964 effective allotment. If the farmer planted within the domestic allotment (reduced allotment) in addition to the 30c price support loan rate, he was eligible for an additional price support payment equal to 3.5 cents per pound on the normal yield per acre times the number of acres of cotton planted for harvest.

"With about 64,000 Mississippi farmers with effective cotton allotments and about 42,000 planting within the farm domestic allotments, this means that two-thirds of the Mississippi cotton growers have materially contributed to the reduction of the abundant supplies of cotton and have at the same time maintained farm income," Mr. Bostick said.

Payments made in Mississippi average $13.57 per acre and about $98 per farm.

COTTON CROP PROSPECTS ARE REPORTED

Latest U. S. Department of Agriculture estimates indicate a 1964 U. S. cotton crop of 15,274,000 bales. This compared with a crop of 15,327,000 bales for 1963 and a 1958-62 average of 13,905,000 bales.

Acreage for harvest for 1964 is estimated at 14,034,000 acres compared with 1964 allotments totaling 16.3 million acres for both upland and extra long staple cotton.

For the United States as a whole, the estimated yield per acre is a new high of 522 pounds; the previous high of 516 pounds was set last year. The 5-year average is 454 pounds per acre.

Acreage lint yield per acre for Mississippi based on October 1st prospects is forecast at 712 pounds. If realized, this will be a new record high for this state. The previous record was 706 pounds per acre from the 1963 crop. Average lint yield per acre is now forecast at 798 pounds in the Delta counties and 612 pounds for non-Delta counties. Average yield in 1963 was 813 pounds in the Delta counties and 587 pounds in non-Delta counties.

The forecast of 15,274,000 bales of 500 pounds gross weight indicates earnings for the 1964 season of 15,253,000 running bales based on average bale weights. Cottonseed production is indicated at 6,301,000 tons compared with 6,197,000 tons in 1963, based on average seed-lint ratios.

"Able To Stand" Is Theme At Methodist Laymen's Day Program

The First Methodist Church marked its annual Laymen's Day program Sunday, October 11. "Able To Stand," was the theme for this year's observance. It has been said of the laymen, who are "the cornerstones of the church" that they stand in the pulpit on this day of unusual significance, not because they can do a better job than their pastor, but to give living proof that his preaching is fruitful.

C. E. Young, presided over the general program, after the responsive reading, Herschel Thomason led the pastoral prayer. The choir was composed of the laymen of the church.

Three outstanding lay leaders, objective minded, with a strong sense of purpose and conviction brought excellent messages on "Able To Stand." With clear understanding they gave guidance to the congregation while outlining the duties and obligations of the laymen.

With eloquent voice they expressed in their major patterns of thought the inspirational ideals of our system of values from which we receive our spiritual growth, in the manifold phases of life, all of which was vital to the programs as there were serious admonitions in each lesson.

Myrl Walden, discussing "Able To Stand in the Congregation," said that to join a church is to become a disciple of Christ. Paul the Apostle said to the laymen in Corinth, "This is how we think of ourselves; as servants of Christ and steward of the mysteries of God." Mr. Walden continued, "You and I are a nucleus of believers, a Christian community sharing common values, common privileges and common duties—wherever you are or whatever you do, you are the church. Your word and your example should be giving witness to your Christian commitment as such times you are known as the church scattered. But there are those times when such as the worship service you are the church gathered and these times are equally important. A church scattered all the time, never gathering to renew its strength quickly loses its marching power. This is the great rhythm of the Christian life; the church scattered and the church gathered. The layman should be a worshiper, a student, a teacher, a worker and a contributor. Christianity is an experience, a profound mysterious, religious experience that liberates a man or woman from the net of time and circumstances and gives him a new compelling vision of life's possibilities in the expression of higher eternal values."

Herman Wood talked on "Able To Stand in the Home." He placed emphasis on "We must first care—we must care what happens to our loved ones. Our concern must extend beyond our children's acquisition of reading and writing skills and their grasp of other subjects. Each of us must care about the other's feelings, his aspirations, his concerns, his development of a philosophy of life. A great philosopher has said, 'Caring is everything; nothing matters but caring.' There is finally the genuine level of care that springs from the heart of one who truly loves his neighbor as himself. Jesus cares for people on this level. First we care and then we must share. We have a Christian mission to share our time and renewed abilities with others and first among others, comes our families. We must care and share our time; then we must dare. It takes courage and self-restraint for a parent to share his time and listen to a child's problems, to allow the children to make their own decisions. Christ calls you to develop a genuine care for those about you to share your time and abilities unselfishly and dare while allowing them the freedom of their own choice to stand firm for your Christian convictions."

James Bethay, while discussing, "Able To Stand in the Market Place," said, "One is converted to Christ when he becomes a disciple of Christ. How much easier it is to stand in the market place when one is changed after coming into that personal relationship with Christ. A Christian has a sense of mission in life. He is impelled to witness for Christ in his daily routine. The Christian requires the fellowship of Christ in his daily life. He needs to converse with the Savior. He has to pray. In this way, he experiences communion with God to gain strength so that he can more than conquer the activities of the day. It has been properly said that a man's best prayer is what he does when he is not praying. To have a mature personal religion is to recognize that our relationship with God is reflected in and influenced by our living. One thing stands out in this description—take time to study, pray, meditate and think. God will surely be with you. It means in part that our actions are a result of our prayers. To stand implies preparation. Our criteria for preparation is prayer. The prayer life of Jesus should be used as a guide line for the Christian, and finally, we must transform common place affairs into the business of the King."

Dinner was served in the Social Hall by the ladies of the Missionary Society. The beautiful table arrangements of roses were from the garden of Mrs. W. V. Kemp.

"Just take a look at your wife's purse sometime, if you want the proof that money isn't everything." —John Maverick, Cherryvale (Kansas) Republican.

Rites Held Thurs. For Adrian L. Sartin

Funeral services for Adrian L. Sartin of Booneville, who was found slain near Hayti, Mo., on Tuesday, October 13, were conducted Thursday afternoon in the chapel of McMillan Funeral Home with Bro. Huey Wood officiating. Burial was in the Booneville Cemetery with McMillan Funeral Directors in charge.

Pemiscot County Coroner Jimmy Osburn estimated the time of death at about midnight.

The coroner said the victim had been beaten about the head and shoulders. A foot-long wrench found near the body obviously was the murder weapon, Osburn said.

Mr. Sartin's wallet had been taken and his pockets emptied, indicating a motive of robbery, sheriff's officers said.

An abandoned automobile which belonged to the victim was found about a quarter of a mile from where the body was found. Sartin's name, found in the car, led to his identification.

Mr. Sartin was a carpenter and World War II veteran. He was 57. He leaves his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tom G. Sartin of Booneville; three brothers, Herman and Junior Sartin of Booneville, and Walter B. Sartin of Itta Bena, Miss.; six sisters, Mrs. Zelma Scruggs and Mrs. Roy Horton of Booneville, Mrs. Mable Bellamy of Baldwin, Mrs. Doris Offord of Dallas, Tex., Mrs. Mary Horton of Tunica, Miss., and Mrs. Catherine Rodriguez of Houston, Texas.

Many Disabled Can Qualify For S. S. Benefits

On October 13, 1964, President Johnson signed Public Law 88-450. "This amendment to the Social Security Act will mean many disabled workers and members of their family in Prentiss County can now qualify for social security disability benefits," Hugh Tigrett, District Manager of the Social Security Administration, said today.

Before this change in the social security law became effective, a disabled worker had to file a claim for disability benefits within 18 months of the date his disability started or he couldn't receive payments. Now the Social Security Administration can go as far back as October 1, 1951 in establishing a period of disability.

Tigrett emphasized that back payments can be made only for 12 months before the month a claim is filed so a delay in filing can cause a loss of some payments. Tigrett suggests that anyone who has applied for disability benefits and has been turned down because the claim was not filed soon enough, get in touch with the Social Security Representative in the Court House, Booneville on any Monday morning. Anyone who is unable to work because of a phys-
