State Legislature Mulls Taxes, Ethics, Redistricting

By HANK WIESNER
Managing Editor

Tax relief, ethics legislation, and legislative reapportionment are expected to be among the major issues the State Legislature will face this year after convening Tuesday, according to John Haynes, the state representative for Prentiss and Tishomingo counties.

"I think there will be more efforts for ethics legislation this year than in the past. Many people believe that some kind of restriction on the financial conduct of a legislator in regard to his conduct as a public servant is needed," Haynes said early this week.

"Right now it's a real gray area between what a legislator can handle as a lawmaker and what he should handle in the public trust," the legislator continued.

A law now on the books bars a legislator from voting on anything he has a financial interest in, but the wording is "vague," the first-term legislator said.

Referring to State Senator Bill Burgin, who was recently convicted on federal conspiracy charges along with former Tishomingo State Sen. Flavous Lambert, Haynes said the purpose of ethics legislation would be to "put some restraints on what conduct a legislator should take."

He said that such legislation would be designed to prevent a legislator's legislative influence getting him legal work—a charge others have leveled against Burgin.

"The legislation would also be designed to bar a situation where a legislator could represent people filing for a state bank charter or represent someone trying to buy a building from the state while serving on the state building commission that sold the building as Sen. Burgin did," he added.

"There's no easy answer to what good ethics legislation should be, but we're going to have to come up with a solution that will prevent a lot of the problems that we've had in the past," he said.

"Turning to tax relief, he said that 'many people in the state are hoping the legislature will grant some sort of tax relief.'

"Inflation pushes people into a higher tax bracket, and they end up taking home less money and paying a higher percentage of taxes."

He said the legislature would probably consider raising the tax brackets to more nearly match inflation levels, and added that some sort of plan to raise the basic exemption would probably be discussed.

He said he expected some action from the courts on the redistricting situation "sometime in the next several months," and added that the redistricting action could cut his district at least in half.

"The redistricting question is somewhat confusing to the voters. The problem is that redistricting aims at having each district in the state composed of 18,172 people. Since the population of Prentiss County is just over 20,000 people, it would probably be split.

Cold, Snow Hit County

A cold front complete with high winds and freezing temperatures swept into Prentiss County on New Year's Day sending local residents scurrying for coats, boots and ice scrapers.

Ice began forming on windshields and other exposed surfaces after temperatures dipped shortly after noon Monday following passage of the cold front.

Although ice was reported forming on bridges and overpasses in Union and Lafayette Counties, local sources said no ice was accumulated on bridges in Prentiss County. A traveler's advisory was issued for Northeast Mississippi by the National Weather Service as freezing rain and sleet moved into the area. No property damage, power outages or traffic fatalities were related to the weather.

The lowest recorded temperature for Prentiss County was 10 degrees and between one half inch and one inch of snow fell early Monday morning. The Booneville Street Department began clearing city streets at 7:00 a.m. Tuesday morning and Ambulance Service sources reported no accidents in Prentiss County as a result of the weather.

Fourteen people, including eight men now in county office, qualified for the Aug. 7 primary ballot in Prentiss County Tuesday.

District 1 Supervisor Jessie R. Burcham qualified to seek re-election. At least two men will oppose Burcham in his bid. Carroll W. Parks of the Thrasher community and Q.D. Pollard of the Tuscumbia community both qualified as candidates.

Incumbent Supervisors Jimmy Moore of District 2 and J.P. Davis of District 3 also qualified for re-election Tuesday.

Jimmy D. Ramey of Marietta qualified as a candidate for the District 4 board seat. Ramey is the son-in-law of the late Ross Pharr, who held the post from 1964 until his death in 1978. Pharr's wife, Edna Pharr, now is the district's supervisor.

Sheriff Ralph Martin qualified to seek re-election. Martin, a Booneville resident, will seek his second term as sheriff. Circuit Clerk Travis Cox also qualified to seek re-election to his post.

Murder Charges Are Filed

Two Baldwin brothers were charged with murder Monday in connection with the death of a third Baldwin resident who was found dead in his home Monday morning.

Frankie Lee Calbert, 20, and 32-year old Fenlia Calbert were being held in the Baldwin jail Tuesday afternoon in connection with the death of Eddie Booker T. Tate, according to Baldwin Police Chief John Conlee.

An autopsy performed by Dr. Teresita DyReyes Tuesday at the Northeast Mississippi Hospital indicated Tate's death was caused by a blow to the head.

The autopsy came after a preliminary inquest was held by Prentiss County Coroner Matthew Gann Monday morning.

Law enforcement officers have theorized that Tate may have been in a fight in Lee County Saturday night, but was still alive when he was brought back to his home in Prentiss County late Saturday night or early Sunday morning.

The brothers were expected to be transferred shortly to the Lee County Jail, according to Conlee. The warrants charging them with murder were issued by Lee County First District Justice Court Judge Petey Hopkins.

No Gas Shortage Is Predicted

By HANK WIESNER
Managing Editor

There should be no shortage of natural gas this winter for the approximately 2,000 customers of the Booneville Gas Department, according to department manager T.B. Harris.

"There's a pretty good outlook for natural gas this winter. I think we'll have all we need, and I don't see any curtailments coming," Harris said Monday.

He said that last year gas shortages combined with the cold weather brought some curtailment of gas, but the area "came out okay by spring."

The city gas company gets their natural gas from the Tennessee Pipeline Gas Co., and distributes the fuel to about 2,000 households in the city and county.

He said that the city had absorbed a small gas price increase this summer, but that the cost of gas might go up again if prices are deregulated next spring.

Harris's comments about the availability of gas—and its probable price rise—are in line with comments from other major gas suppliers across the South, according to reports.

They expressed the feeling that enough gas has been stockpiled to keep homes warm and businesses running through even a bitter winter this year.

Baldwyn Apartments Readied

BALDWIN—Sixteen apartments for the elderly in Baldwin—part of 52 new apartments for the elderly in Lee County—are expected to be ready for occupancy in January, according to a spokesman for the Lee County Council of Governments.

Paul Hodgins, housing coordinator for the Better Community Corporation which is an entity of the Lee County council, said the 16 apartments are completed and lack only local and federal inspection.

The Better Community Corp. is an agency of the Council of Governments which built and will manage the apartments. Twelve of the 16 apartments are located at School Lane in Baldwin while the other four are located at Jones Street.

The Baldwin apartments cost $214,000. Total cost of the 52-apartment project was $700,000. They were built with a Farmers Home Administration loan and a $75,000 grant from the Appalachian Regional Commission.

Hodgins said the federal department of Housing and Urban Development will partially subsidize the low income and very low income tenants' rent under the Section Eight housing program.

One inspection of the Baldwin apartments was completed in mid-December. More inspections by the architect's inspectors, as well as officials from FmHA and the federal Housing and Urban Development department, are necessary before the apartments can be occupied, Hodgins said.

HUD has already okay'd applications for nine of the 16 Baldwin apartments and several other applications are being processed, he added.

He said tenants for all the apartments should be approved by the time the rest of the inspections are carried out.

To be eligible, a person should be at least 62 years old. Handicapped or disabled tenants may be accepted at a younger age. A person who is the younger spouse of someone 62 years or older may also be considered, Hodgins said.

Tenant income may not exceed 80 per cent of the median income—$6850—in Lee County. The maximum income required may be raised if a tenant lists dependents, he said.

Thirty per cent of the 52 units must be tented to "very low" income tenants—those income is less than half of the county's median income ($4150).

Some of the apartments, which are of one and two bedroom style, will be designed for handicapped people.

The apartments aren't furnished, but refrigerator, stove, heating and central air conditioning are equipped. The apartments are designed as a combination kitchen-dining area, a living room and bathroom.

behalf of the district. They will mature in $5,000 installments annually beginning in 1980 and running through 1989, according to courthouse records.

The bank's bid on the bonds also specified a 6.25 per cent interest rate, well under the maximum seven per cent rate allowable under terms of the bid by the county.

Each bond will bear interest from its date to the stated maturity date at the 6.25 per cent interest rate, according to records.

"The money will be spent for general improvement of roads throughout District One, and also for improvements of a bridge in the beat located south of Booneville," Burcham said early this week.

"Our roads are still suffering from the damages done to them by the severe weather last winter and the winter before that," he said.

"That weather was devastating, and we never received any federal or state help for repairing the (Continued on Page 2)

Year, Power Both Out

Prentiss County was left in the dark for over 15 minutes on New Year's Eve when a broken crossarm on a TVA pole east of Baldwin allowed a conductor carrying 161,000 volts of electricity to fall to the ground.

This automatically deenergized TVA's Burnsville to Tupelo feeder line and interrupted electric service to the entire area served by the Prentiss County Electric Power Association.

The interruption occurred at 8:54 p.m. New Year's Eve and power was restored by company crews switching the Booneville and Baldwin substations to alternate feed lines.

Service was restored to the Booneville station at approximately 9:12 p.m. and to the Baldwin station at 9:13 p.m.

Toy Recall Held

WASHINGTON, D.C.—More than 125,000 toy construction sets manufactured by Parker Brothers are being voluntarily held in inventory in two company warehouses in Salem, Massachusetts and Des Moines, Iowa, after the company announced its voluntary recall of 900,000 Riviton sets. A Parker Brothers spokesman told the Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC) that 27,000 of the Riviton construction sets have now been returned.

Parker Brothers had made the decision to voluntarily withdraw this product from the market because of two accidental deaths associated with the product. The company reached this decision after the recent death of a 9-year-old child was attributed to the choking on a rubber fastening rivet from the Riviton Construction Toy.

Riviton Construction Toys have been distributed nationally during the past two years. Parker Brothers, a subsidiary of General Mills,

According to Paul Rankin of the Mississippi State Board of Health, the Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC) intends to propose a standard to improve unvented gas-fired space heaters by the use of an oxygen depletion sensor that would shut off the heaters before a hazardous atmosphere develops.

The Commission also will propose to withdraw its February 1978 proposal to ban the heaters which have been linked to carbon monoxide poisonings or asphyxiation deaths of at least 73 people since 1973. According to CPSC, the issuance of such a standard would make banning unnecessary.

These inexpensive space heaters are mainly found in the southern and southwestern United States where central heating systems are uneconomical because cold temperatures are not prevalent. Some 7-10 million heaters may presently be in use. These existing heaters would not be affected by any standard the Commission may issue.

Because the unvented heaters do not have a vent to remove combustion wastes, there is a possibility of carbon monoxide poisoning. Inadequate ventilation or maladjusted burners were associated with the deaths of victims who were using these heaters.

CPSC warns that anyone using an unvented gas space

Gas

But like T.B. Harris, other suppliers are also advising their customers to be on the lookout for a price hike.

Although gas prices in the Booneville area should stay at their present rate, other areas may not be so fortunate. Reports from other areas across the South indicate that natural gas prices could rise by $1 to $4 for customers, depending on the state and the laws governing the industry.

The reasons vary for the bright outlook on the amount of natural gas that will be available. A large delivery of Algerian gas into a storage facility in Savannah, Ga., coupled with increased gas production from fields in Texas, Louisiana, and the Gulf of Mexico means more gas is available.

In addition, the National Weather Service has issued a long range prediction that gives a 65 percent chance of temperatures will be above normal this year across the Southeast.

Temperatures have been unusually warm so far this year, a fact indicated from autumn's first cold snap, which did not arrive until early in December.

"The bridge was damaged by too many pulpwood trucks hauling 70,000 pound loads across it. It is still passable, but not safe for anyone carrying a load.

He added that he hopes to begin improvement work on the roads shortly, and that repairs will be carried out "for a year or so or as far as the money goes," he concluded.

Ethics Law Sought

Gubernatorial candidate, John Arthur Eaves, speaking to the Retired Officers' Association of Central Mississippi, today called on state leaders to enact ethics legislation.

Eaves, a former state legislator, said, "We must quit sweeping corruption under the rug and start sweeping it out of our state. No longer will it be sufficient for political candidates seeking to enhance their own political ambitions to shout corruption without offering positive solutions. Eaves continued, by calling on "the governor, the lieutenant governor, and the legislature to take positive steps to enact a strong and meaningful ethics law."

Eaves, the author of Mississippi's "sunshine law" and several other pieces of ethics legislation, said, "Most people in politics are honest, sincere, hard working, dedicated public servants who should be protected from the few bad apples who threaten to ruin the whole barrel. "It is suddenly a popular thing," continued Eaves, "to shout about ethics legislation but I have supported and sponsored such legislation since 1972."

Eaves, a practicing attorney in both Jackson and Louisville, said, "Economic development of our state must remain the top priority and will be a major theme of my campaign." Democrat Eaves also stated, "There are no quick and easy solutions to our state's problems but we must approach our problems with a positive attitude."

While Eaves has not formally announced his intentions, he did state, "I will be a candidate for governor in 1979 and will make a formal announcement at a late date." When questioned about his campaign organization, the former lawmaker said, "We have a strong organization in every county. I have visited every county in the state in the last nine months and am very pleased with the reception I have received."

should turn off the appliance and open a window or door if these symptoms should occur.

Interest in the unvented heaters was aroused by a petition which asked for a mandatory safety standard and labeling rules for all space heaters.

However, the Commission concluded that only unvented gas-fired space heaters present an unreasonable risk of injury and therefore proposed that they be banned.

7 Fires Fought

Booneville Fire Chief Frank Fleming issued the following fire report for the period of Dec. 13 through Jan 3:

On Dec. 13, at 4:45 a.m., a fire which started around the chimney of Ray Owen's living room did minor damage.

On Dec. 21, at the home of Dolores Adams, a kitchen fire which started on a stove did minor damage. The fire was out on arrival.

On Dec. 27, firemen responded to a report of a grease fire at the home of James Taylor of Route 6. Minor damage occurred. Local firemen were assisted by the

At 5:00 p.m. firemen answered a report of a fire at the home of J.D. Moore. Origin of the blaze was broken attic pipes and smoke damage occurred.

A fire at the home of Harold Storey on 1003 West Church St. resulting from an electrical shortage did minor damage.

On Dec. 28 at 9:15 p.m. a fire at the home of Henry Hurd on Hwy. 45 N. was out on arrival. No damage occurred.

"I have acquainted myself with the many varied duties of this important office and I fully realize the need for the citizens of our district to be represented in the best possible manner.

"The next four years are crucial in determining the future of our district and our county. Prentiss County and Northeast Mississippi are at the very door of opportunity. We must be ready with our roads, our educational institutions, and our medical facilities in order that we may take full advantage of our agricultural, industrial, and business potential.

"I consider it most important that Prentiss County develop and construct a good feeder road program. Many of our citizens must travel over inadequate roads from their homes to their job or business.

"Prentiss County is at an educational crossroads. Again the next four years are crucial. As supervisor I would do everything within the power of the office to aid our educational leaders in their quest for the very best of educational opportunities. Our children deserve no less.

"No community can reach its full potential unless full and complete medical care is offered to all its citizens. I will work continually to support the medical needs of our county through our hospital or any other means that are available.

"I realize the supervisor's role in the areas of taxation and in other fiscal matters such as adopting the budget for the county. All necessary functions of county government must be financed adequately. Much of the money for our budget comes from local levels. I will work daily to see that each citizen is taxed equally and fairly and that each of your tax dollars is used to the best possible advantage.

"I will work in harmony with your other elected officials to see that your needs and desires concerning law enforcement, medical care, education, and transportation are met. "I will try to see each of you within the next weeks and months to discuss my desire to be your next first district supervisor. I am deeply concerned about the future of Prentiss County and feel I can offer honorable service to the people of the first district."

With the aid of the National Bureau of Standards, the Commission staff has also studied certain temperature limiting devices that would turn off these heaters when the temperature of the living space registers 100 degrees. The CPSC staff found that these devices did not perform adequately to address the hazard of carbon monoxide buildup.

"It has been estimated that the oxygen depletion sensors would cost the heater manufacturer around two dollars. While it is predicted that this would add to the cost of these heaters to the consumer, a medium-sized unvented gas space heater generally is cheaper to operate than a vented heater.

A new pamphlet entitled "Caution-Choosing and Using Your Gas Space Heater" is now available in both English and Spanish versions from CPSC. The pamphlet contains tips on what consumers should look for when buying and using a gas space heater. To get a free copy, write Gas Space Heater Pamphlet, Consumer Product Safety Commission, Washington, D.C. 20207.

Chief Puts Teeth In Dog Laws

Booneville Police Chief W.W. Stacy announced today that dogs running loose and disturbing neighbors need to be on a leash or in a pen. Dogs running loose without proof of vaccination are subject to being picked up. A dog catcher is now on duty, Stacy added, and the dog law will be strictly enforced. Dangerous dogs running loose will definitely require leashing or confinement.

Legislature

"The problem in Prentiss County is that it is the only county in the state that does not have a clearly definable boundaries for each voting precinct.

"That makes it impossible to divide anything smaller than a supervisor's beat in the county, because there's no precinct records to show a voter lives and votes in the same precinct.

"Right now, a voter could live in Baldwin but vote in Wheeler, which is all in the same beat," the legislator said. "We don't know on anything smaller than a supervisors beat where the voters are registered," he said.

Rep. Haynes now represents along with Rep. Richard Parks of Iuka—both Prentiss and Tishomingo counties. The combined population is about 35,000 people.

One proposed redistricting plan under consideration would take the top three fifths of Prentiss County and add to it part of Alcorn County to make one new district. The rest of Prentiss would be combined with Lee for another district, according to Haynes.

The redistricting question also leaves qualifying for reelection up in the air for many people, including Haynes.

This is election year for the whole Legislature, but until the redistricting is settled many people, including Haynes, don't know what their new districts will be.

He said he will "wait and see" before deciding on whether or not to qualify to seek another four-year term.

He termed both reappraisal and gubernatorial succession as dead issues for the coming year.

On reappraisal, he said that "I don't think it will be pushed very hard. It has failed for three years in a row, and I don't see much chance of its passing this year."

"I also don't see any way gubernatorial succession will pass this year. It failed to get out of a House committee last year, and the same people are on the committee this year," he said.

During the month of January there will be, in addition to the regular 4-H activities, some special activities in the livestock project area. All 4-H members who own livestock eligible to exhibit are encouraged to exhibit them in the upcoming shows.

There are also judging contests—all are invited to participate.

There will be dairy cattle, beef cattle, swine and sheep judging. Training sessions will be conducted for all interested. The county contest will be conducted on January 26.

In the district contests, we can enter a junior team in dairy, a team in beef, a team in swine and a team in sheep. The seniors can enter a team in dairy and a team in livestock.

Let us know if you would like to try your skill in judging. On January 13, there will be a judging training at Mississippi State University. We will travel by bus to this training.

For those planning to exhibit animals, we must have the information (registration papers for breeding animals) by January 9. If your registrations are not in order, let us know at once.

The county show is January 26. The animals are to be brought to the barn on Thursday morning, January 25.

The District show is January 29-31, and Roundup is February 4-6.

Should there is a question, please contact the 4-H office at 728-5631.

Bank Of Miss. Branch Expands

Final preparations are underway at Bank of Mississippi's administrative headquarters One Mississippi Plaza in Tupelo to begin banking operations there the first work day off the new year.

Bank officials reported this week that on January 2 all tellers and loan officers and other consumer services will have moved into the seven story structure at the intersection of Spring and Troy Streets in downtown Tupelo.

This week more than a dozen departments vacated four other buildings in the central business district as the orderly move from old to new began to be noticed by Christmas shoppers.

The last departments to be moved will be the tellers and loan officers, who must leave work in the old facilities Dec. 29 and be ready for business in One Mississippi Plaza the next work day, Jan. 2.

Tours of the new building will begin immediately after the dedication ceremony scheduled for Jan. 10.

Many sightseers have passed by the unusual glass and steel structure, awaiting an opportunity to see inside.

When you enter the main door, which faces Spring Street, the main banking lobby is to the right. There you enter an expanse 98 feet tall, overlooked by six balconies and are impressed by the size of the supports holding the slanting glass wall in place.

Fourteen foot trees planted in the lobby provide colorful greenery to accent the warm rust hue used on panels which compliment the Indiana limestone and quartzite floor tiles from Norway.

Office and work areas are attractive and functional, with much of the furniture especially designed for use in One Mississippi Plaza. Both wood and steel furnishings are used extensively on all four floors occupied by the bank.

The building represents an investment of more than seven million dollars, including the block of property on which it and the 164 car parking lot sit. In the building are 1,778 panes of specially made glass with two quarter inch panes with one half inch of air space between.

There are 500 miles of wire of various types, enough carpet squares to cover more than two football fields, 800 tons of steel, six thousand yards of concrete and a 340-ton capacity air conditioning unit.

The building has two vaults, three elevators, two sets of stairs, a unique raised floor

Extension Service Offers Good Advice

WASHINGTON—A woman in Illinois sells custom made draperies with two hired helpers. A Nebraska woman operates a wallpapering business with a friend. An Ohio woman gives sewing lessons—for pay.

What do these women have in common? They all learned their skills from the Cooperative Extension Service.

"Professional home economists throughout the country are training people to make slip covers, reupholster and refinish furniture, wallpaper, design custom-made window treatments, make new clothing, make over old clothes, prepare homemade cakes, breads, jellies and preserves and do simple household repairs," said Glenda Pifer, U.S. Department of Agriculture housing specialist.

"We're helping more and more people learn marketable skills. Many are developing small businesses out of their homes," said Pifer. "Many homemakers have taken full-time jobs outside the home these days," said Pifer. "They have less time to do things for themselves so they appreciate help from people who do household jobs. In some cases, homemakers and some retired people offer to do babysitting, for instance, in return for having a piece of furniture refinished.

How does the average person learn the do's and don'ts of setting up a business at home? In some parts of the country, Extension sponsors workshops to train them. These workshops are sometimes held cooperatively with the local Small Business Administration office.

The training activity isn't new. Home economists of the Cooperative Extension Service have taught these skills for decades. But now, as Pifer says, "Running a small business out of your home is one way to deal with inflation. The extra income helps families."

Classes are usually free. Generally, they're instructed by a professional home economist or someone she's trained.

Pifer said "There's an extension office in nearly every county providing out-of-school educational programs. Local Extension offices are usually listed under county

Grant Approved

The Board of Trustees of the Department of Archives and History has approved a historic preservation grant-in-aid of $20,000 in federal funds for the restoration of the Old Tishomingo County Courthouse in Iuka.

The Yellow Creek Watershed Authority's Executive Director, Edwin Hunley, said that the grant must be matched equally by local contributions and in-kind services. The Watershed, in partnership with the Tishomingo County Development Foundation and the Tishomingo County Museum and Cultural Center, Inc., is raising $10,000 in cash contributions to apply toward the matching requirements.

"For the first time in seven years of trying, we have a firm commitment of federal assistance. A lot of people have given of their time and talents to get this far. In order for us to be able to renovate the building and return it to community uses—including a county museum, we need a lot of people to give money.

"The hard fact is that we are in a now or never situation. Without the local matching funds, the federal money cannot be used. If we don't take advantage of this assistance, I doubt if we will ever be considered for another preservation grant," he said.

Tax deductible contributions may be sent to the Old Tishomingo County Courthouse, c/o Tishomingo County Development Foundation, P.O. Box 275, Iuka, Mississippi 38852.

Beavers Cause Problems To Landowners

By ED BLAKE
Mississippi Farm Bureau

Mississippi landowners and trappers have joined hands to reduce environmental damage from an over-population of beavers—with the Beaver Cooperative Association's new pelt processing plant at Sturgis getting off to a bristling start in its current three month season.

Occupying a remodeled cattle sales barn on Highway 12, the sprawling facility daily is receiving deliveries of fresh and frozen fur bearing, non-game, carcasses for skinning, fleshing, stretching and drying, and cooperative sale to fur markets in New York City and Frankfurt, Germany.

Since December 1 when the plant opened its winter-only season, over 900 animals have been received and processed. About 98 percent were beaver with the rest consisting of raccoon, muskrat and foxes.

Last year the co-op handled some 2300 furs from a temporary facility, a railway warehouse in Starkville, however most of the furs a year ago were skinned by the trappers themselves.

The new facility at Sturgis is supplied by trucks operating from pick-up stations in Rolling Fork, Greenwood, Eupora, Oxford, West Point, Louisville, Columbus, and Brandon presently with other stations due to open as stockholders meet minimum patronage requirements in the various areas of the state.

Carl Mason, executive director of the cooperative, reports that out of some 700 stockholder-members about 80 percent are landowners and about 20 percent are trappers—and all are local people. While the price of a share of stock in the co-op is $10, Mason said, most landowners subscribe to about ten shares because of their keen interest in lessening damage to their croplands and timberlands. The largest timber-owning corporations are excluded as shareholders since their charters are not in Mississippi, Mason said, however they support the work by making contributions to the group.

Mason last week expressed some disappointment in beaver pelt prices which currently are running from $8 to $10 for average sizes. The largest and best pelts from fully mature beavers usually about two years old may bring $20 while smaller ones of lesser quality may drop in value to a point where they are not worth skinning.

The cooperative however is already offering trappers almost double their money as compared to sales to itinerant buyers. And they are building up a dependable sales organization that is expected to attract the best world prices in the future.

Although the co-op spares the trappers from the animal skinning burden, still the job is a painstaking one always done by hand. The animal fur is slit down the belly side and a sharp skinning knife is used to separate the skin from flesh. Skilled skinners at the plant can actually remove the fur from a beaver in about four minutes, top time, but average speed is more like ten minutes per animal with a total of about three quarters of an hour per pelt required at the plant for skinning, fleshing, stretching, sorting, and handling. Yet this compares with about two hours time spent by an average trapper to skin and dry a pelt alone.

After the skins are removed from the beaver carcasses, the next step is to "flesh" them, or remove flesh from the inside of the hide by scraping with a knife with double handles similar to a draw knife. Then they are sewed to a circular hoop, stretched to a taut conformity with a lever and hung to dry in a cool, dry room for about ten days. Then the furs, with the rich, lush and lustrous outer surfaces are ready for grading and sale to the furriers who process them into some of the world's most prestigious outer garments.

So far this season the cooperative has taken in ten fox pelts which command the best prices—with the reds bringing from $50 to $60 and greys going for $40 to $50. And strangely enough coon skins, with the colorful barred tail, are bringing $22 and up.

So goes Mississippi's new fur trade this season!

OPEC Nations Have U.S. Over Oil Barrel

The OPEC nations, in view of their recent price increases, have the United States over a barrel again—an oil barrel.

The agreed upon increases over the next several months will drive the price of energy upward for all Mississippians and the nation as a whole, increasing inflation and cutting profits from all energy-dependent businesses.

Now that the price of oil has risen to such levels we need to step up the search for energy sources within our borders and to explore various alternate energy sources such as solar energy, wind, tides, and thermal wells.

Mississippians should practice conservation as a daily way of life, and users of oil and gas should look to reduce their requirements through more efficient use. And, substitution of replenishable materials for nonrenewable raw materials is encouraged.

Economic incentives should also be maintained to encourage exploration for oil and gas and for their development. Additional federal and state lands, including offshore areas under the jurisdiction of the Mississippi Mineral Lease Commission, should be made available for exploration.

Now that the price of energy has risen to such levels, the exploration necessary to obtain oil and gas from deep within the earth should be encouraged through various economic incentives.

Energy plays a paramount role in the high standard of living enjoyed by all Mississippians, and we should now employ all our talents to the conservation of energy and increasing our reserves.

Talking Politics

Eastland Steps Down

By BILL CRAWFORD
Columnist

Doddsville gained a fulltime resident sooner than it expected. Sunflower County's most prestigious son, Sen. James O. Eastland, stepped down from his post as one of the United States' most powerful officials to give his successor, Thad Cochran, a small boost up the important seniority ladder in the Senate.

Eastland earlier had said he would not resign early. But the early resignations of other retiring senators and the prodding of some of his friends apparently caused him to change his mind and allow Cochran to become Mississippi's junior senator three weeks early.

Everyone knows seniority is a key element to a senator's power. And even a minuscule factor of three weeks will give Cochran an edge over new senators who won't be sworn in until Congress convenes this month.

Mississippi's first Republican senator will gain an added advantage because he has served six years in the House. This advantage comes into play when his position is comparable to another senator's as far as years in the Senate are concerned. When there is a tie in Senate service, previous service in the Congress counts.

At this stage of the ballgame the added seniority will mean Cochran may get a little better office space and will have a slight edge at getting the committee assignments he wants.

Cochran has requested he be appointed to the Agriculture Committee in the Senate. There is one opening on that committee. Chances are Cochran will get it. His victory in Mississippi was a bright spot for the Republican Party and the GOP likes to help its new stars up the ladder quickly. Plus Cochran is a potential vice presidential candidate for 1980 and he needs as much stature as the party can give him immediately.

Cochran's boost does not help his Fourth District successor, John Hinson, in the House, however. House rules vary from Senate rules. A new House member is not sworn in early if a retiring House member retires early and there is no intervening session of the House. So Hinson will just be another freshman when the new House members take their seats.

The House action which will draw most Mississippians interest will come after new members are seated and committee slots are handed out.

Rep. Jamie Whitten of the First District is in line to become chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, one of the most powerful positions in Congress. Recent news reports in Washington indicate some liberal House members don't want Whitten to become chairman.

But he has the backing of House Speaker Tip O'Neil and should receive his chairmanship without much controversy. Still it's the House and it has done strange things in the past.

Meanwhile this first week in January will be a strange one for Eastland. For over 30 years he has spent this week preparing for another year of jostling and elbowing with the other Senate power over major legislation and appointments to the federal judiciary.

Gone is his power as President Pro Tempore of the Senate and the prestige of being in line to become President in a major catastrophe. (Eastland did act as Vice President when Spiro Agnew resigned and when Gerald Ford was promoted to the presidency.)

Gone is his power to influence appointments to the Supreme Court, to influence activities in the Department of Justice, and to influence the FBI.

Eastland exercised his last vestige of power by choosing to resign last week. It was a magnanimous gesture for such a man to divest himself of the raiment of power, even for so brief a time.

But 1978 was the year of the Eastland retirement and it is fitting it did not overlap into 1979.

SALT Controversy More Than Treaty Dispute

By ANGELO M. CODEVILLA
Columnist

The controversy over SALT concerns far more than a treaty. It is really about a choice between two very different ways of looking at war and nuclear weapons.

President Carter and the people he has placed throughout the federal bureaucracy—including the military—support SALT above all because they believe that nuclear war is impossible as long as both the United States and the Soviet Union are able to do serious damage to one another, but neither is able to protect itself. As long as that is so, they argue, it does not matter that the Soviets have built weapons to do more damage to us than we can do to them. Superiority, they say, is useless because the Soviets can never be sure that, if they attacked us, we would not unleash our weapons on them and kill some 20 million of them. This way of looking at things goes by the name of Mutual Assured Destruction (MAD). Because they accept MAD, the President, along with political leaders who have supported SALT for a decade, have been content to see the Soviets engage in the biggest military buildup in history without trying to keep up. These leaders want SALT primarily as a means of reassuring the American people, of keeping them from taking part in a contest for superiority which they consider fruitless.

Those who want us to approve the SALT treaty sometimes concede that in a few years the Soviets

Those who want us to approve the SALT treaty sometimes concede that in a few years the Soviet Union will be able to destroy most of our ICBM's and bombers, as well as 16 of our 41 submarines. But they argue this doesn't matter as long as our remaining weapons can destroy Soviet cities.

Those who oppose SALT do so because they believe that, destructive as nuclear systems allowed it under the SALT I treaty of 1972, while since 1972 the Soviet Union has multiplied its strategic power.

It must be realized that the treaty does not irreparably harm the defense of the United States by any one of its provisions, or even by the sum of those provisions. Of course those provisions don't do us any good at all, and do some harm. But the truly noxious part of SALT is its spirit. The treaty is a political warrant for the continuation of the defense policies of the last several years. This is the reason why both the Administration and the Soviet Union are seeking it. While their ultimate purposes of course differ, their immediate end is the same: to keep the United States from abandoning the policy of Mutual Assured Destruction.

Note well that the terms of the SALT II treaty would probably not prevent us from acquiring the capability to beat the Soviet Union in nuclear war, and to actually protect the weapons are, nations engaged in nuclear war will suffer greater or lesser devastation depending on how they actually use their weapons. They believe that nuclear wars have winners and losers. Moreover they know beyond the shadow of a doubt that the Soviet Union has always realized this, and has built a set of weapons designed specifically to fight and win wars. Those who oppose SALT don't want to fight a nuclear war with the Soviets, but realize that the only way to keep the Soviet Union from starting or threatening war is to show the Soviets they could not win one. To do this they argue, the United States has to have weapons designed not just to kill Russians, but to keep the Soviets from winning the war. They object to SALT because it would keep us from getting those weapons. The Soviets have used SALT to lull the American people into complacency. The United States has not even built the weapons United States in such a war. Specifically the Soviet Union will be permitted 820 MIRV'd ICBM's—17's, 18's and 19's. We would build 820 ICBM's mobile MX's—if we wished. They would be superior.

Nor would the treaty prevent us from putting warheads on our Poseidon SLBM's capable of striking Soviet missiles. Nor would the treaty prevent us from building an air defense system, nor from exceeding the Soviets' effort in civil defense. Finally, the treaty would not prevent us from building more missiles than launchers. That is, the treaty's terms would not prevent us. But the treaty's proponents certainly would, because every one of the above mentioned measures is "against the spirit" of SALT. The nation might well be able to live with the proposed SALT treaty if the President were moved by other than the spirit of MAD. But he is not.

Gandy Shares Thoughts On Coming Year

By EVELYN GANDY
State Lt. Governor

"During the closing days of 1978 as we approach the New Year and the convening of the 1979 Session of the Legislature on Jan. 2nd, I wish to share some thoughts with you and with the people of Mississippi on what I believe to be an important and timely subject—fiscal accountability in government.

"It is a fundamental and undisputed truth that the people are entitled to honest government in all respects at all levels at all times.

"It is also a fundamental and undisputed truth that fiscal accountability is an essential requirement—an integral and vital part of the very foundation of honest government.

"Furthermore, it is a fundamental and undisputed truth that the people are entitled to factual, comprehensive, and current fiscal reports, investigations, and audits of all public funds and all public property.

"These reports are absolutely necessary to protect the integrity of government, for the information of the public, for the information and use of the people's elected officials, for the protection of the innocent, for the recovery of public funds and public property, and for the prosecution of the guilty.

"During recent months, in the midst of charges relating to the alleged misuse of public funds and public property in several state agencies, state government has not been able to complete the necessary investigations, reports and audits to either substantiate or refute these charges in a timely manner. Our public duty and the public interest demand that action be taken to insure that this situation does not occur again.

"The investigating and auditing procedures of state government should certainly function in full cooperation with the federal government; however, state government must have the authority and established procedures to function independently as well as cooperatively in fully discharging the State's responsibility to our people. Therefore, I strongly recommend:

"1. That a professionally staffed and adequately funded Investigative Division be established in the Office of the Attorney General; and

"2. That the State Auditor and the State Department of Audit be adequately staffed and funded to audit the handling and expenditure of all public funds on as current a basis as good accounting and auditing practices dictate; and

"3. That the Attorney General and the State Auditor establish procedures whereby they will have professional staff, trained and available, to give priority attention to any situation involving public funds and or public property where there is reason to believe an immediate investigation and or audit is in the public interest.

"On a number of occasions, I have discussed fiscal accountability with our State's Chief Auditor, State Auditor Hamp King, and with our State's Chief Attorney, Attorney General A.F. Summer.

"Attorney General Summer has already recommended the establishment of the Investigative Division in the Attorney General's Office. He has advised that he plans to submit more detailed recommendations concerning Eyes On Mississippi....

By BILL MINOR
Columnist

JACKSON—Get ready Mississippi, here comes the thundering herd: politicians seeking everything from the governor's office down to constable in beat five.

It's the year of the Mississippi's Big Joust, the quadrennial fun and games when so many office seekers will be out beating the bushes that the grass won't grow and the birds won't sing until it's all over.

One could hardly say that the just-ending year was any sort of a lull before the big wind of 1979 starts to blow. What was supposed to be, according to the Mississippi political almanac, an "off year" politically in 1978 turned out to be anything but that.

In fact, in the three Senatorial contests, plus the House races, more campaign money was raised and spent than in any single election year in Mississippi history. An unprecedented $5 million in political money poured into campaign coffers, almost half of that being spent by the two finalists in the Senate race.

Nobody ever thought before there was that much campaign money available in Mississippi. Not all, far from it, came out of pockets of Mississippians, however. Senate and House races attract money from political action and interest groups nationally, and at least 25 percent of the money spent in the 1978 races came from outside the state.

But that still leaves an awful lot of political funds being shelled out by home folks, and the big question now is: can and will they put up their dough two years in a row for some politician who may not win?

Ability to raise money may well be the key to success in 1979 for those who aspire to be governor, lieutenant governor, attorney general, secretary of state, legislator, chancery clerk or what have you.

Candidates for governor must be the most concerned, because anybody to win these days is looking at a cool $1 this Division to the 1979 Session of the Legislature.

"State Auditor King has advised that he plans to submit recommendations to the 1979 Session to strengthen the auditing functions and procedures of the State Auditor and the State Department of Audit.

"These two constitutional, elected State officials have also said that they are working together to develop effective, coordinated recommendations which will avoid unnecessary duplication within their offices or with other state agencies.

"It is my firm conviction that these recommendations deserve the consideration of the 1979 Legislature during the early days of the Session.

"It is also my firm conviction that these recommendations relate to matters which are of grave concern to the people of Mississippi and for which workable solutions must be promptly developed and implemented.

"I look forward to working with you during the 1979 Session on these and other matters of mutual interest and concern as we strive to fully discharge our responsibilities to the people of our State."

Happy New Year!

1979: Year Of The Thundering Herd

million or more, if he has to go through two primaries and a general election which is now the obstacle course Mississippi has laid out for its office-seekers running under a party label.

The experience of 1978 which saw three separate elections, spaced out over a period of six months, is bringing renewed demands from several powerful political sources to install the open primary system in Mississippi, as Louisiana now has, so that all candidates, party and independents, will be thrown into same arena, and the will be final decision rendered within a reasonable time.

The year 1979 shapes up as the turning point in the history of the Democratic Party in Mississippi. Based on what happened in 1978, it is now a question of survival of the Democratic Party as a vehicle through which most public officers are elected in this state.

Certainly the prognosis is not good. It is already obvious that the Democrats will be the underdog in holding on to the governor's chair, regardless of whom they nominate.

The sound triumph of Senator Thad Cochran proved conclusively that the Mississippi Republican Party is fully geared up now to win statewide elections, and the Mississippi Democratic Party is not.

Although this may be subject to change, the Republicans are already sitting ready with an attractive candidate in Gil Carmichael, who lost in 1975 only because he failed to dent the black vote, a situation he has remedied in the meantime.

The big advantage the Republicans have to offer their candidates is a ready-made source of funds and organization, something Democratic candidates, who have to largely fly by the seat of their pants, don't have.

A year ago at this time, the main political speculation centered about Gov. Cliff Finch, his bid for gubernatorial succession, and a possible bid for the Senate seat held then by Jim Eastland. In that year's time, Finch tried both and failed, even though things seemed to be going his way until he stumbled in both cases.

Finch, lame duck though he is, is still the object of a lot of speculation as we enter the year 1979. Some believe that the arm of federal prosecution for political corruption will yet reach high into the Finch administration.

That possibility doesn't seem to bother Finch who is still carrying on like a politician who is running for something. His people say he is only eyeing the next crack at a Senate seat, namely that of aging Sen. John C. Stennis. But Finch watchers believe the man from Batesville can't resist jumping into some race in 1979, and the strongest speculation is it's Atty. Gen. A.F. Summer's job. Certainly Summer doesn't plan to give up his seat, so a bitter struggle could be coming.

They say the two sports Mississippians like best are football and politics. It sure looks like a long season ahead.

By LADY BLUE SURF
Correspondent

Here we are starting a new year. "Blue Surf," "Lady Blue Surf," "Butterbean Lady," and "Little Blue Wave," attended a New Year's party at "King" and "Queen's," first half of night and then attended one given by "Buffalo" and "Lady Buffalo." We had a great time at both parties and appreciate them inviting us. We left before they rang out the New Year, but we hope everyone started the year out right and made some good resolutions.

The 52 trophies won by the Northeast Mississippi C.B. Club are now on display at the Peoples Bank and Trust Company. We would like everyone to go by the bank and look at our display. We all worked very hard and are real proud of our accomplishments. You the people helped us in our work so you are a part of us. "Tweety Bird," and "Hawler" have been practicing their dance steps. I believe they are gonna show us the new disco dances they know.

"White Dove," is home from the hospital. We hope she is feeling better. I haven't talked to too many of folks this week we hope everyone is starting out the new year well and stay that way.

Happy Birthday to "Backwoods Annie." We hope she has a nice day and many, many more. I hope I have my lists complete on all birthdays and anniversaries. If I missed anyone let me know.

We do have a social this Saturday night January 6 at 6:30. It will be pot luck. Hope everyone can attend.

"Blue Surf," ended the year right. He backed off in the ditch out at 40th. And plum where they don't have street lights. And had to put that jeep in 4-wheel drive in pouring down rain.

January 20 there will be a gospel singing at the Community Center at 7:00. Featured singers will be "The Freedom Quartet," "The Singing Hills," and "The Pilgrims," from Amory. There maybe some more we aren't sure of yet. The purpose of this singing is to help buy "Pinetree," a lift for his van. "Angel," has to lift him in and out by herself at home and other places if no one is around.

We hope 1979 will be a happy, peaceful, prosperous year for our entire nation. Until next week attend the Church of your choice, stay well, and be happy.

Your Home Economist's Notes

By CLAIRE T. ROSS
Extension Home Economist

The first POCKET-WATCH program for 1979 will be the new WEIGHT-OFF-WISELY program.

W.O.W., Weight-Off-Wisely, will be on all my radio programs, newsletters, special posters, etc., for the next several weeks. So here's what it's all about...

WEIGHT-OFF-WISELY is a sixteen week program to help people lose weight through sensible eating, nutrition information, and exercising. Too many people are turning to fad diets, pills and gadgets in effort to lose weight. These often lead to poor nutrition, economic loss, and bad health.

The first objective of WEIGHT-OFF-WISELY participants will be to obtain their desirable weight through dieting and exercising. They will learn the principles of good nutrition and will change eating habits. If participants will follow eating habits once desirable weight has been achieved, it will be maintained.

The weekly classes are pretty well divided between nutrition and personal improvement, with nutrition getting the emphasis. Each session will include a weigh-in, exercise, and a brief lecture, and will last approximately 1-½ to 2 hours.

There is only one hitch. Persons attending classes must be 10 pounds or more overweight.

There will be a small registration fee.

For further information, contact me at our Extension Office, 728-5631.

SAVING TIPS

Decide how much money you want to save and when you want to reach your goal. Commit yourself in writing to a definite objective. A good target is 5-15 percent of your takehome pay.

Reach your goal more quickly. Save dimes, quarters or pennies daily. When you make the last installment payment on an item, deposit this amount regularly in your savings. Save money gifts. Pour your raise in savings. Cut out one luxury a day and add to your savings.

Since December 1, 1973, all E bonds mature in five years at six percent compounded every six months. If you have a payroll savings plan, you might want to increase your allotment.

You can't go broke when you are saving money. Invest in yourself.

The News From Oak Ridge

By BERYL COATS
Correspondent

By the time this is printed we will be in the New Year which will afford us many opportunities. Some one said,

"Everyday is a new beginning;

everyday is the 'world made new.' I like that as that will give us a new start each day. May 1979 be a brighter year for all! Our sympathy goes to the relatives of Mr. Horace Jones. He was a good, kind, humble man-so honest and easy-going. He will be missed greatly by his relatives, members of Oak Ridge congregation and by the community.

Visitors at services on Christmas eve (last Sunday) included Wayne Coats and daughter Nita Gail from Mt. Juliet, Tenn.; Mrs. Elvia Phifer from Belmont; Mrs. Carolyn Phifer and child, two little nieces of Mrs. Zana Floyd and Jerry Coats from Celina, Tenn.

Uncle Fletcher Henry remains in the Belle Vista Unit of North Mississippi Medical Center. His condition is not good; he seems better one day and worse the next.

Those who were absent last Sunday due to illness were Jerry Dees, Kenny Estis, and Virgie who was with her mother, Mrs. Bell Coats.

The V.L. Coats had a nice holiday except for the fact that the Polk family were not with the clan; also they were so concerned about little Sean Polk who remains in LeBonheur Hospital. Many doctors have seen him and they say some little things show improvements but their prognosis is the same. Let's all keep praying for the precious baby and ask God to help those doctors to use their knowledge to help little Sean and other little ones.

Mrs. Vester Coats kept her appointment with Dr. Chase on Thursday. He said she has traumatic arthritis in the right knee which had been sprained a few months ago. A 14 day treatment was prescribed-a new medicine for arthritis which will hopefully correct the condition.

Mam-ma Coats is doing well for one in her condition. Mr. Earl Kennedy and Mr. Sherman Estis have good days along.

Mabrys Tour Coast

Mr. and Mrs. Gene Mabry have just returned from Monterey, Calif., after spending the holidays with Lt. and Mrs. Burt Hodgins, Jeff and Leslie. They were joined by Mike Mabry of Phoenix, Ariz. He was enroute to San Bernardino for a Christmas Conference with Campus Crusade for Christ International.

While in Monterey, they toured Steinbeck's Cannery Row, Fisherman's Wharf, Carmel-By-the-Sea and Pebble Beach. On the 28th they celebrated Mrs. Mabry's birthday at Casa Maria's Mexican restaurant.

Lt. Hodgins is stationed in Monterey at the Naval Post-graduate school.

Conversion To Metric Cooking Is Easy

Are you worried that the conversion to metrics will take all the joy out of cooking? Actually, it is as simple as acquiring a set of metric measures and some metric recipes.

If you don't believe it, start with Classy Conversion Crepes and you'll probably end up trying to convert the other skeptics.

Because you can make them ahead and hold them refrigerated or frozen until needed, crepes are a great way to become familiar with your new metric tools without that last minute rush to get them on the table.

The filling for Classy Conversion Crepes is easily put together from ingredients you can keep on hand. Cheese and frozen asparagus, both packaged in gram weights, dress up a simple scrambled egg mixture. (Eggs, of course, are already premeasured!) A simple Hollandaise Sauce, whisked together in the blender, definitely adds a touch of class. You can even make the sauce ahead of time, refrigerate it, and stir in a little hot water just before serving. Brunch is ready!

Classy Conversion Crepes 6 servings

12 eggs
175 mL (¾ c) milk
5 mL (1 tsp) salt
1 mL (¼ tsp) pepper
60 mL (¼ c) butter
1 package (283 g or 10 oz) frozen cut asparagus spears, cooked and drained
175 mL (¾ c) shredded Cheddar, American or Swiss cheese (85 g or 3 oz)
12 Crepes
Blender Hollandaise Sauce
Paprika, optional
Beat eggs, milk, salt and pepper together with fork, mixing thoroughly for uniform yellow, or mixing slightly for white and yellow streaks. Heat butter in large skillet (about 25-cm or 10-in) over medium heat until just hot enough to sizzle a drop of water. Pour in egg mixture. As mixture begins to set, gently draw pancake turner completely across the bottom and sides of pan, forming large soft curds. Continue until eggs are thickened, but do not stir constantly. Cook until eggs are thickened throughout but still moist. Spoon 30 mL (2 heaping Tbsp) asparagus and about 75 mL (One-thirds c) egg mixture down center of each crepe. Sprinkle with 15 mL (1 Tbsp) cheese. Roll up and arrange 2 crepes on each serving plate. Top each serving with about 30 mL (2 Tbsp) Hollandaise Sauce. Sprinkle with paprika, if desired.

It is better to remove scrambled eggs from pan when they are slightly underdone; heat retained in eggs completes cooking.

CREPES Makes 500 mL (about 2 c) batter

3 eggs
125 mL (½ c) milk
125 mL (½ c) water
45 mL (3 Tbsp) butter, melted
175 mL (¾ c) all-purpose flour

2 mL (½ tsp) salt
Blender Method: Combine all ingredients in blender container. Blend about 1 minute. Scrape down sides of blender container with rubber spatula, if necessary. Blend until smooth, about 30 additional seconds.

Mixer, Rotary Beater or Whisk Method: Combine eggs, milk, water and butter in mixing bowl. Beat until combined. Add flour and salt. Beat until smooth.

Bake immediately or refrigerate batter 1 hour. If you have a special crepe pan, follow manufacturer's directions. Otherwise, on medium-high heat, heat buttered 25-cm (10-in) omelet pan or 20-cm (8-in) crepe pan until just hot enough to sizzle a drop of water. For each crepe, pour scant 60 mL or ¼ cup (30 mL or 2 Tbsp in 20-cm or 8-in pan) batter in pan, rotating pan as batter is poured. Pour off any excess batter. If crepe has holes add just a drop or two of batter to patch. Cook until lightly browned on bottom. Remove from pan, or if desired, turn and brown other side. Stack between sheets of paper toweling or waxed paper until ready to use. (Crepes may be frozen.) If your pan doesn't have a non-stick finish you may need to brush it with melted butter after each 2 or 3 crepes.

Crepes to be filled need only be browned on one side.

Local Boy's Christmas Wish Comes True

I am a subscriber to the Banner Independent.

I read all the letters to Santa Claus and I thought about what I wanted for Christmas. It was one simple wish. "To be able to go home for a week during Christmas." I prayed to God and Santa to let me spend that one week with my mother and daddy and see my relatives and neighbors and friends.

I did get my wish and stayed a week-we had a Christmas party with my relatives-it was so nice to see them all.

Yes, I come home every Christmas and also the week of June fifteenth for my birthday. Those two weeks at home are the highlight of my life.

I am the son of Mr. and Mrs. C.H. Lindsey. They come to see me once a month, and we always have a picnic and a very good time that day.

I have been a patient in the Mississippi State Hospital at Whitfield, Miss., for 22 years. I have been an epileptic all my life.

Fleetwood Is Open For Winter Season

Florewood River Plantation is now open under its winter schedule until March 1, 1979, according to Bob McGinnis, park manager.

The regular hours, Tuesday through Saturday from 10 a.m.-4:30 p.m., and Sunday from 1-4:30 p.m. are still in effect.

According to McGinnis, the winter schedule means that the craftsmen usually seen on our plantation will not be doing crafts demonstrations due to the inclement weather.

We have found that most attractions such as Florewood operate on a similar winter schedule. Visitors are welcome to take a self guided tour of the plantation. All buildings will be open. Guided tours will be available for those individuals or groups who request them.

Tenn-Tom Waterway About One-Third Done

Construction of the Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway continues to move rapidly toward completion, with approximately one-third of the total estimated cost of the project now under contract. The past year has also seen the 232-mile waterway gain distinction as a national model project according to Kentucky Governor Julian Carroll, outgoing chairman of the Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway Authority. The Tennessee-Tombigbee is a national showcase of how public works investments can achieve social and economic goals, Carroll said.

As America's newest navigable river, the Tennessee-Tombigbee will connect the Tennessee River with the Tombigbee-Black Warrior system, which is already navigable to the Gulf of Mexico via the Port of Mobile. The new waterway, paralleling the borders of Mississippi and Alabama, will provide the connecting link to over 16,000 miles of inland waterways in middle America.

"By about this time next year, the lower 100 miles of the Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway will be open to limited navigation," according to Carroll. "This means the Tennessee-Tombigbee will then be navigable from just south of Columbus, Mississippi to Demopolis, Alabama.

The Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway Authority, headquartered in Columbus, Mississippi, is a five-state compact composed of the states of Alabama, Florida, Kentucky, Mississippi and Tennessee, formed to promote development of the Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway.

As 1978 draws to a close, the amount of work under contract or completed on the waterway totals over $488 million, of which approximately $84 million is completed. By next summer, work on the waterway is expected to approach the $1 billion mark, with eight of the ten locks and dams under construction or completed.

The past year saw the opening of one completed lock and dam at Gainesville, Alabama. Two others, (at Aliceville, Ala. and Columbus, Miss.) will be completed in the coming year and a fourth at Aberdeen, Miss. is about half completed. Additionally, three other locks are under construction. Of the remaining three still to be placed under contract, the largest, the Bay Springs Lock and Dam, will be let to contract in early 1979. Bay Springs Lock and Dam, located near the north end of the project, is the largest on the waterway with a lift of 84 feet.

A major portion of the project is located in the Divide Cut segment in northeast Mississippi. It is here that much of the work remains to be done, as an estimated 150 million cubic yards of materials must be excavated from the high divide separating the Tennessee and Tombigbee River basins.

In the 30-mile stretch of the Divide, located in Tishomingo County, Miss., $166 million is already under contract or completed. During the coming year, over $332 million in contracts will be awarded in this Divide Cut section, with one single contract expected to exceed $200 million. By spring, 94 per cent of the work in the Divide will be under contract.

In conjunction with construction of the Tennessee-Tombigbee, the states of Alabama and Mississippi are relocating a number of roads, utilities lines and major bridges. In Alabama, one of its three new bridges across the waterway is open to traffic, with a second under construction. The third bridge will be constructed during 1979. In Mississippi, two of its ten bridges are complete; two more are under construction and the remaining six bridges are scheduled to go to contract during 1979. The total cost of bridges in Mississippi and Alabama is expected to exceed $40 million.

Over 3,000 workers are employed in jobs related to construction of this massive water resource project. Average wages paid construction workers on the project are between $12,000 to $15,000 annually.

A strong, workable affirmative action program instituted on the Tennessee-Tombigbee has resulted in meaningful employment for many minorities and other disadvantaged persons. Unprecedented policies and procedures have been implemented to promote local employment, minority hiring and utilization of small businesses, including minorities, in construction of the waterway. Additionally, some construction work is being set aside for small businesses, with all major contracts including provisions that certain percentages of the work be subcontracted to minority firms.

Because of this tremendously successful program, the Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway has been selected as a model program in the federal government. At the request of President Carter, an affirmative action guideline

Mattel Issues Warning

According to Paul Rankin of the Mississippi State Board of Health, Mattel, Inc. is cooperating with the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission by initiating a voluntary program of attaching labels on warehouse inventories of certain Battlerstar Gallactica space toys. The labels warn that the missiles should not be pointed toward a child's face or put to his mouth.

The action is being taken in response to reports of three accidents involving the products. In each case, a child swallowed or aspirated a red missile and had to receive medical treatment.

The small red missiles are sold with Mattel's "Colonial Viper" (No. 2531), "Colonial Scarab" (No. 2534), "Colonial Stellar Probe" (No. 2533), and "Cylon Raider" (No. 2532) space vehicles. Each of these toys is equipped to launch the missiles.

According to Mattel, other than the need for a label, the products meet or exceed all existing and proposed CPSC standards.

Mattel and the Consumer Product Safety Commission remind parents that small pieces are found in many manufacturers' toys and games intended for older children. Parents should caution children against putting small objects of any type into their mouths even in fun and should insure that small pieces from older children's toys be kept away from younger brothers and sisters.

For further information, call Paul Rankin at 354-6616.

Soybean Farmers Adding To Research

CRUGER—Mississippi soybean farmers through their one cent per bushel soybean checkoff, have contributed $18,250 to the American Soybean Association Research Foundation (ASARF) for research projects, according to J. Tol Thomas, III, a soybean farmer from Cruger and chairman of the Mississippi Soybean Promotion Board.

"This represents one-half cent per acre of the state's soybean production. This represents one-half cent per acre of the state's soybean acreage harvested last year," he said. "The Foundation will use these monies to fund research projects with national or broad regional significance on the soybean producer."

Through the Mississippi soybean checkoff program, producers are supporting research to hold down the cost of production. At the same time, they are working to increase efficiency in using soybeans and the wide range of soybean products—meal, oil, vegetable proteins and a growing number of industrial uses.

Mississippi soybean producers approved a one-half cent soybean checkoff program in 1970. Last year, they voted to increase the checkoff amount to one cent per bushel. Thomas and other soybean farmers oversee the checkoff program and decide how to invest the money in research and market development. Besides initiating a number of state research projects at the Mississippi Agricultural Experiment Station and Mississippi State University, the state's producers are strong supporters of soybean research on a national or wide regional basis through ASARF.

"In the past six years, ASARF has invested almost $1 million (m) in 26 different research projects," Thomas said. "The three-year grants are financed by producers in Mississippi and 14 other states and by agribusiness companies." Findings from these studies have made major inroads in improving soybean production efficiency, he added. "A Mississippi State University study is one of the national projects being funded by ASARF," he said. "That research project is developing low-energy tillage tools and better weed control practices for soybeans on clay soils. The project is being conducted at the Delta Experiment Station."

Other projects funded by ASARF have addressed harvest damage and losses, improved pesticide applicators, and studies of root and nodule infesting insect pests on soybeans. Thomas said a number of the research projects involve soybean project utilization. These studies are directed toward improving the usefulness of soy oil, identifying components of soy protein flavor and expanding the uses of soy protein

Farm Residents Study Is Published

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Farm residents are less likely to be out of work than their nonfarm counterparts, but they are more likely to be older and to earn less.

These are among the highlights of a description of U.S. farm population published today by the Bureau of Economic Analysis, U.S. Department of Agriculture's Economics, Statistics, and Service (ESCS).

The 1977 farm population, at over 7.8 million, continued to decline while small town and open country nonfarm population showed renewed growth.

The Census-ESCS report also found the 1977 farm population:

- The average age of farm residents was 35.2 years, about 6 years older than the nonfarm population.
- Farm families were more likely than nonfarm families to be of the married-couple type and less likely to be headed by women.
- Farm males outnumbered farm females by 338,000. In contrast, females outnumbered males in the non-farm population.

- Farm people were just as likely to be working in nonagricultural industries as in agriculture.
- The unemployment rate for farm residents was 3 percent, versus 7.5 percent for the nonfarm population.
- The median income for farm families continued to lag behind that of nonfarm families.
- The 112,000 Spanish-origin farm residents represented 1 percent of the total U.S. Spanish-origin population and 1.4 percent of the farm population. This is the first year the report separately accounts for Spanish-origin farm people.

- The number of blacks living on farms declined at a faster rate than the white farm population—a minus 53 percent compared with a minus 16 percent since 1970.
- A related report published in September by ESCS provides additional information on farm population. Decline has

Herring Praises Industrial Council

Canton attorney, Jim Herring, in a letter to John Lovorn, President of the Mississippi Industrial Development Council, dated Dec. 22, 1978, praised the efforts of that professional group which seeks the reorganization of the Mississippi Agricultural and Industrial Board. The A&I Board is the state agency with the responsibility of the promotion of Mississippi's economic growth.

Herring, an unannounced candidate for governor, sighted his continued commitment toward increasing Mississippi's economic development potential and well being in his support of the reorganization concept.

"There is no way the A&I Board can achieve maximum effectiveness in attracting industry and promoting travel and tourism when the average tenure of its employees is only 3½ years. The A&I Board must be staffed by dedicated professional individuals and they (A&I staffers), must be afforded job security. Furthermore, the executive director of the A&I Board should not automatically be the campaign manager of the incoming governor every term," Herring said.

Figures obtained from the Mississippi Classification reveal that within the last seven years 98 people have been hired to fill positions with the A&I Board. Numerically this means a 96.6 percent turnover of the A&I Board Staff since 1972. "These statistics obviously indicate to me: that by the time persons are hired by the A&I Board and has a chance to learn and become proficient in their job, it is time for them to seek other employment," said Herring. "This situation is not fair to the employees and is certainly not in the best interest of the state of Mississippi."

The 40 year old Cantonian went on to say that Mississippi is destined to stay on the bottom of every economic indicator unless the state's elected officials increase their credibility and state government is operated in the best interest of the people of the State of Mississippi and not just a selected few.

The MIDC efforts are centered around Senate Bill 2192 which provides for A&I Board to re-organize to consist of seven members, one from each congressional district, and two from the state at large serving staggered terms; plus the Governor, Lt. Governor, Speaker of the House of Representatives, Director of the Mississippi Research and Development Center and the Commissioner of Agriculture and Commerce. The Board now has 35 ex-officio and appointed members whose terms run concurrent with the governor.

Also spelled out in the proposed bill are the requirements that the A&I Board executive director be a qualified, experienced industrial developer hired by the board (not by the governor as in the past). Experience criteria have also been set for the directors of the Industrial Development Department, Travel and Tourism Department, Economic Development Council, Film Commission, and Office of Minority Business Enterprise, all existing divisions of the A&I Board.

Herring concluded by saying, "this piece of legislation will take politics out of the A&I Board, an occurrence which is past due, and will allow that vital agency to go about its duties of seeing to Mississippi's economic future."

Trace Ties Region To East

By ROBERT J. HOLDEN
Former Natchez
Subdistrict Ranger

When the United States gained possession of the Natchez region in 1798, one of the most important considerations was the need for better communication with the rest of the nation. No one realized this need more strongly than Winthrop Sargent, the Governor of the newly created Mississippi Territory. The best means of doing this was to improve the existing overland route to Nashville known as the Natchez Trace.

This route had long been in existence and had earlier been used by Indians, French, English and Spanish. The improvement of the Trace would tie the new region more firmly to the eastern part of the nation, make travel easier for the hundreds of boatmen traveling homeward annually, and facilitate the carrying of the mail.

In November 1799, before any improvement could be made to the Trace, Abijah Hunt was given the responsibility for operating the mail route between Nashville and Natchez. He was also appointed postmaster at the latter city. Prior to this time it had taken longer for mail to travel between Natchez and Philadelphia than it did for a letter to reach Philadelphia from Europe.

On April 28, 1800, the Natchez Trace was officially declared a Post Road by Congress. One of the first mail carriers or post riders on this route was John L. Swaney of Nashville. Swaney would leave Nashville on a Saturday night at 8 o'clock on horseback. He carried the mail (which consisted of a small number of letters, government dispatches, and newspapers), provisions for himself, half a bushel of corn for his horse, and an overcoat or blanket. In winter he carried a flint and steel with a tinder box for making fires.

By Sunday morning Swaney would reach Duck River, fifty miles from Nashville. This was the boundary between Tennessee and the Chickasaw country. Here he would feed his horse and eat breakfast. From here he would ride eighty miles before dark to Colbert's Ferry on the Tennessee River. After resting he then would set out for the Chickasaw Agency more than one hundred miles further south. Here he would change horses and ride another hundred miles to the Choctaw Agency. After resting there it was then a final hundred miles into Natchez.

At first the schedule for the mails over the Trace was once a month, but this was increased to twice a month in 1801. The actual traveling time required was twelve and a half days with a one day stop-over at McIntoshville.

Express riders were used for news of particular importance. One such occasion occurred on April 19, 1803, when an express was sent with a dispatch announcing that the King of Spain was opening the port of New Orleans to American traffic. Express mail was given precedence over every other mail delivery.

The riders were furnished with a letter such as the following one written on March 11, 1803: "The bearer travels as an express on public service. He is bound to overtake the Natchez mail which left this city of the morning of the eight instant. All postmasters and other agents of this department are required,

Agriculture Census Is Underway

The 1978 Census of Agriculture gets underway this week with the mailing of report forms to all farms and ranches in the 50 States, the Bureau of the Census, U.S. Department of Commerce, announced today.

Farmers and ranchers are being asked to report on their agricultural operations during 1978. This 1978 census, the Nation's 21st farm census in a series that started in 1840, will update data most recently obtained in 1975 for 1974 operations. Information will be sought on all agricultural operations.

With report forms for the 1978 census drastically reduced from the 22 pages of the last census, most agricultural operators will receive a four-page form in the mail, and about 20 percent will receive a five-page version. The overall time required by farmers to complete the form has been reduced by more than one-third.

The census will continue to monitor trends in domestic ownership and control of land. The last census showed a five-year gain in the number of U.S. corporate farms from 22,000 to 29,000; the amount of acreage they farmed rose from 80 to 97 million acres, and the value of their farm products rose from $6 billion to $14 billion.

The census asks whether the farm is operated by a family or individual, a partnership, a family-held corporation, an investor-owned corporation with more than 10 stockholders, or some other legal entity such as cooperative, estate or trust, grazing association, etc.

The apparent increase in foreign ownership of land has raised questions in the Congress and with business and agricultural groups. In 1974 a Department of Commerce survey showed about 5 million acres of the Nation's one billion acres of farm land were owned by foreign interests, or less than one-half of one percent of the total. The new farm census will measure the increase.

As in earlier censuses, information obtained about farming operations will be published for each of more than 3,000 counties with agricultural operations, for each State and for the entire Nation.

Each report form will have a control number printed on the address label. Because response is required by law (Title 13, U.S. Code), each control number must be accounted for by the Bureau of the Census. Follow-up letters will be sent to non-respondents. Everyone who receives the agriculture census report form should answer the first four items and as much more of the report as applies, and return it, so that it will not be necessary to spend more tax money on obtaining a response.

Despite careful screening of the mailing lists used, some persons not engaged in agricultural activities will receive report forms. Those persons should return the form with that fact noted in order to stop additional mailings.

The 1978 Census of Agriculture will be conducted as follows:

—All respondents will be asked to report either from their records or by estimate, the following information: amount of farm acreage by type of ownership; land use; acreage, production, and sales of crops; inventory, number sold, and sales value of livestock and poultry; and selected characteristics of farm operators and farm management.

—About 20 per cent will receive an additional page seeking answers to: value of land and buildings; selected production expenses; selected farm equipment; hired farm labor; fertilizer and pesticide use; and petroleum fuel usage and storage capacity.

Congress and Federal agencies, as well as agricultural and business organizations, universities and other groups rely on this information to develop and revise farm programs. Individual farmers may benefit from a railroad allocating storage cars during grain harvest, or from farm machinery or bulk fertilizer dealerships being located in near areas of farm development.

Stressing that publication of its data will be accomplished more speedily in this census, Bureau officials are setting October 1979 as the beginning data issuance deadline for more than 3,000 individual counties. They expect to publish the additional volumes of statistical information for the State and Nation within the following two years.

Census officials also point to these features of the 1978 census:

—A second copy of the report form which the respondent can complete and keep for his own records.

—The option of receiving major county data merely by checking a box on the form.

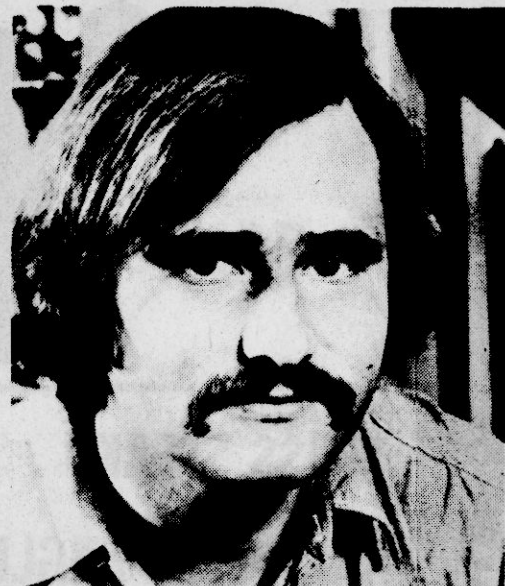

—A time extension which will be granted farmers who request it.

—An improved mailing list, and a "Were You Counted," campaign for any farmer inadvertently omitted.

The law which requires farmers to answer the census items also protects the privacy of answers. Since 1900, census report forms have been confidential by law. They may be seen only by sworn Census employees and may be used only for statistical totals. Even other government agencies cannot obtain or use the reports made by any farm operator. Neither can anyone use legal means to obtain a copy of the report retained by the operator in his files.

Farm operators who do not receive a form during the first week of January should request one from the Bureau of the Census, 1201 East 10th Street, Jeffersonville, Indiana 47132.

FOOTSTEPS—Two celebrity couples who are also parents serve as hosts of "Footsteps," a new ETV series designed to help parents do the most effective job in rearing their children. "Footsteps" can be seen at 4 p.m., Sundays, beginning January 7, on the Mississippi ETV Network. Pictured, top, are Mike Farrell and Judy Farrell, and bottom, Rob Reiner and Penny Marshall.

Rose Appointed

Edward F. Rose, former deputy executive director of the President's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped, became director of the Veterans Administration's Voluntary Service (VAVS) in Washington, D.C., on Nov. 19.

The appointment was announced by Dr. James C. Crutcher, chief medical director of VA, under whom the service functions in VA's 172 medical centers across the country.

Rose succeeds Wilson J. Schuersch who recently became director of the VA medical center at Miles City, Mont.

Rose is in charge of one of the largest volunteer programs in the nation. Volunteers representing all of the major veterans organizations and many service and fraternal groups give more than 10 million hours annually to hospitalized veterans through the VA.

The volunteers range in age from teenagers to the very elderly. The tasks they perform include personal services—reading to patients, shopping for them, writing letters—running recreational and rehabilitation programs, providing entertainment outside the hospital, dietary assistance, hospital clerical work and assisting medical personnel.

"Volunteers are not only invaluable for the assistance they give individuals, they help determine the spirit and the atmosphere of a hospital," according to Crutcher.

"Their activities can make hospitalization more tolerable by reducing its tedium and its anxiety. Volunteers provide their own kind of therapy, in addition to sharing the load of staff members and thus making them more effective."

Rose had been in his position with the president's committee since 1973. In 1976-77, he was also acting director of the committee's state relations division.

He was with the Civil Service Commission for eight years starting in 1965. His last assignment there was as director of public policy employment programs, 1970-73.

Tests Prove Cotton Makes Better Spacesuits

HOUSTON, Tex.—America's astronauts are now wearing all-cotton flight suits as the result of three years of work by Cotton Incorporated to prove that cotton apparel can perform better in space than synthetic fiber apparel.

Following extensive tests conducted by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, cotton was selected over the synthetic aramid fiber for use by astronauts and ground crews in the upcoming space shuttle flights.

"We are extremely pleased with this decision by NASA," says Hal E. Brockmann, Cotton Incorporated vice president for textile research and development.

"We went after the astronaut flight uniform business because we wanted to prove with NASA that in cotton we have a fiber that can meet the most stringent standards for protective garments, while providing the comfort that no other fiber can provide," Brockmann explains.

"Having proved cotton can meet NASA's rigid standards, we are confident we can make cotton meet the demands of other situations requiring safety apparel," Brockmann adds.

Cotton and synthetic fibers were tested by NASA for flame resistance, odor and offgassing products when heated, flash and fire point temperatures, skin sensitivity, comfort, resistance to electrical charge build-up, colorfastness, and general protective features exhibited under certain conditions of flame and heat exposure, explains Glenn Morton, manager of Cotton Incorporated's textile services laboratory.

Cotton excelled particularly in comfort and electrical resistivity, says Morton.

The development of new methods for treating the cotton for flame resistance made it possible for the cotton to pass the NASA standards, he says.

NASA is now evaluating some all-cotton, flame resistant knitted fabrics that may be used for shirts and underwear for the astronauts, adds Dawn.

Morton says that despite two chemical finishing treatments, the cotton fabric maintained its comfort characteristics as shown by softness of hand, drapability, moisture regain, and water absorbency.

Electrical resistivity is vital, especially with ground crews, because of the danger of sparks igniting rocket propellant, adds Morton.

For the aramid synthetic fiber, this is the second major loss in head-to-head competition with cotton, Morton comments.

In 1975, New York City firefighters selected cotton for their uniforms following a series of tests of both cotton and aramid fabric. Since that time, several other major metropolitan fire departments have switched to all-cotton flame resistant fabric.

The astronauts had been wearing aramid garments before they switched to cotton.

Cotton Incorporated first started submitting samples of cotton fabric for possible use in the space program in 1975, explains Morton.

The fabric selected by NASA is one that uses a second chemical finish in addition to the fire retardant finish used in the firefighters uniforms, sleepwear, and other protective apparel.

Cotton Incorporated worked with Western Piece Dyers and Hooker Chemical Company in applications of the second chemical finish.

Qual-Craft Manufacturing is making the training uniforms that are currently being worn by the astronauts, and ILC Dover Industries is making the flight uniforms.

Cotton Incorporated is the fiber company of American cotton producers. Supported by producers' per bale assessments, it works for each producer through programs of research and marketing.

SPACE SHUTTLE—American astronauts flying in NASA's space shuttle flight will wear an all-cotton, flame resistant uniform fabric developed through the efforts of Cotton Incorporated, the fiber company of American cotton producers. The astronauts are now wearing all-cotton training uniforms similar to the one shown on Cotton Incorporated employee Jane Thompson (inset). The space shuttle orbiter Enterprise is shown here separating from its carrier aircraft for a recent practice glide landing. NASA is the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Minimum Wage Now $2.90

Approximately one million workers in the Southeast will be eligible for a pay raise on January 1, 1979, when the federal minimum wage rises to $2.90 per hour, according to Richard Robinette, assistant regional administrator for the Wage and Hour Division, U.S. Department of Labor, Atlanta.

On November 1, 1977, President Carter signed amendments to the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA) establishing uniform minimum wage rates for all covered workers—$2.65 an hour effective this past Jan. 1, increasing annually to $2.90, $3.10 and $3.35 an hour by January 1, 1981.

The Wage and Hour Division, a part of the Labor Department's Employment Standards Administration, is responsible for administering and enforcing the FLSA (which sets minimum wage, overtime pay, child labor and equal pay standards). The Atlanta region includes Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Tennessee.

Under the 1977 FLSA amendments, the percentage of tip credit which can be applied toward the minimum wage for tipped employees will be reduced to 45 percent effective January 1, 1979 and 40 percent effective January 1, 1980.

Another change resulting from these amendments is the repeal of the partial overtime exemption for employees of hotels, motels and restaurants. Beginning January 1, 1979, these employees will be due overtime premium pay after 40 hours in the work week.

Maids and custodial employees of hotels and motels have been on the 40-hour week since May 1, 1977.

In the eight-state region during fiscal 1978, the Labor Department found that more than 160,243 workers protected by federal wage and hour laws were illegally underpaid by almost $25,068,313. Violations of the minimum wage and overtime provisions of the FLSA accounted for the bulk of underpayments.

Wage and Hour Division offices are located throughout the region and are listed in most telephone directories under U.S. Government, Department of Labor, Employment Standards Administration.

Telephone Bills Will Be Lower In 1979

There will be one cheerful item in your post-Christmas flood of bills and tax returns. Your telephone bill will probably be lower, according to Bob Bartley, South Central Bell Manager.

On Jan. 1, the federal excise tax on telephone service dropped from a four per cent rate to three per cent. This is a further step in the gradual phase-out of the tax. The tax rate has been reduced by one percentage point each year since 1972, and will cease to apply after 1981.

Congress first imposed the excise tax on telephone service on a limited basis during World War I. Although repealed after the war, the tax was reinstated during the depression and has continued since that time.

During the 1940's and 1950's, the excise tax rate was as high as 15 percent on local service and 25 percent on long distance charges. In the mid-50's the rate was set at ten per cent for most local and long distance charges. The tax began its one per cent per year reduction in 1973.

Bartley estimated that the one percent excise tax reduction will save Mississippi telephone customers as much as $3 million during 1979.

Start the New Year off right.

PAY YOURSELF FIRST.

Saving money isn't selfish. It's good business. You're smart if you have money saved when you want it or need it.

Some folks save for what they want to happen: college, vacation, a new home. Others save for things they hope will not happen: illness, taxes, car repairs.

In any event, if you're smart, you'll save something. Just how much depends on what you save for—or against.

WHAT A HABIT.

Promising yourself you'll save a little every payday is a great idea, but most of us just can't keep it up. It's your money, and backsliding on your savings doesn't hurt anyone—or does it?

Bank of Mississippi Sav-O-Matic automatically withdraws funds from your checking account and deposits them into your savings account. Once you set it up, you don't have to remember anymore. Sav-O-Matic remembers to save for you.

QUITE A CHOICE.

Only you can decide what savings account is best for you. But as a rule of thumb, the more you save and the longer you save it, the more interest you will make. Take a look at these plans.

For Instant Access To Your Savings, And Daily Interest Too.

A Silver Savings Account pays you five percent interest from day of deposit to day of withdrawal, while allowing you to withdraw any amount you need, anytime you need it. You must keep a $500 minimum deposit to earn interest in a Silver Savings Account.

A Smart Way To Protect Yourself.

Your savings can earn daily interest in a Silver Savings Account, while protecting your checking account from accidental overdrafts. We call this Silver Sentry.

For Higher Interest Rates And Passbook Access To Your Savings.

Golden Savings Accounts pay you 5 1/2 percent interest, compounded quarterly. Your money is available for withdrawal at the end of each calendar quarter without penalty.

Here Are Even Higher Interest Rates—Certificates Of Deposit.

- 7 3/4% Certificate, $1,000 minimum deposit 8 years maturity
- 7 1/2% Certificate, $1,000 minimum deposit 6 years maturity
- 7 1/4% Certificate, $1,000 minimum deposit 4 years maturity
- 6% Certificate, $500 minimum deposit 13-29 months maturity
- 6 1/2% Certificate, $500 minimum deposit 30-47 months maturity

You should note that while Certificates of Deposit and Golden Savings plans pay higher interest, they are time deposits, and Federal regulations require us to charge a penalty for early withdrawal.

Regular Savings—A Great Place To Tuck It Away.

A Regular Savings Account pays 4 1/2% interest, compounded semi-annually. This is a good way to begin saving, because there's no minimum deposit and no time limit. Then, as your savings increase, or you leave it on deposit for a period of time, you might find that one of our other plans would pay you more interest.

DON'T BE CONFUSED!!

There are so many ways to save that it's easy to become confused. Talk with any Down to Earth Banker at the Bank of Mississippi. We'll help you with your savings decision, and show you why it's smart to pay yourself first.

Devils Hold Off Late Rally To Drop Foreigners

By LEE GENTRY
Sports Editor

Senior All-State center Jackie Leach thrilled the crowd here last Friday night and led Booneville's Blue

Devils to a 59-55 victory over previously unbeaten West Tallahatchie in a twin-bill held at Northeast Mississippi Junior College's Bonner Arnold Coliseum. Leach rimmed the basket from out front, underneath and from the side as he led the Blue Devils to their 12th victory of the season against just two losses. Booneville's Devilettes got back into the win column with a very impressive 43-32 decision. Debbie Brooks paced the Devilette attack with 13 points followed by Dianne Harris with 10. The two girl's teams were tied 18 all at the half.

The Devils opened up an early first quarter lead and never looked back. Leach found his range in the opening frame connecting on several jumpers from the eight to 15 foot range. The crowd, composed of mostly Booneville followers, roared with excitement as the Devils appeared to head for a victory over the West Tallahatchie rivals from days gone by such as last year's North Half Tourney at Water Valley.

Remembers them well. "Yes indeed I remember them," said one Booneville player. "They gave us one more fight last year at Water Valley, but we were ready for them this year."

Leach, who is tabbed as one of the top performers in North Mississippi, thrilled the 1000 plus fans in the second with a little bit of razzle dazzle. At 2:42 in the second period, after taking a feed pass from sophomore guard Gary Caveness, Leach promptly delivered a reverse layup with his left hand to send the crowd to their feet. The layup came at a point where the Devils had just started to build their lead and the result was one of the highlights of the night.

The Booneville corps ran into some difficulties late in third and fourth frames but overcame them at the end to post the win. Dale Groves, who's always solid as a rock chipped in with key baskets and rebounds as did old reliables such as Giles McDaniel and Bill Groves. Leach's 23 points topped the Devil scoring brigade followed by Bill Groves with 13. Larry Hudson and Bob Smith netted 14 each for West Tallahatchie.

Six Have Applied

New Albany Coaching Post Remains Open

NEW ALBANY—Six applicants have applied for the head football coaching job at New Albany High School. The coaching post was left vacant after the New Albany board voted not to renew former head coach Johnny Buskirk's contract for the 1979 season.

Coaches who have applied for the post include, Johnny Bruce, assistant coach at Greenwood; Bill Scott, head coach at Lafayette; Tommy Patterson, formally of Corinth and now assistant at Winona Academy; Walter Denton, head coach at Caledonia; Bill Smith, former head coach at Mantachie and now basketball coach at Dorsey; and Tommy Morton, former head coach at Pontotoc and now assistant at Delta State.

More applicants are expected within the next few days according to W.P. Daniel principal Eddie Grisham. The New Albany school board have said that an announcement is expected soon so the new coach can start working with the players on the spring program.

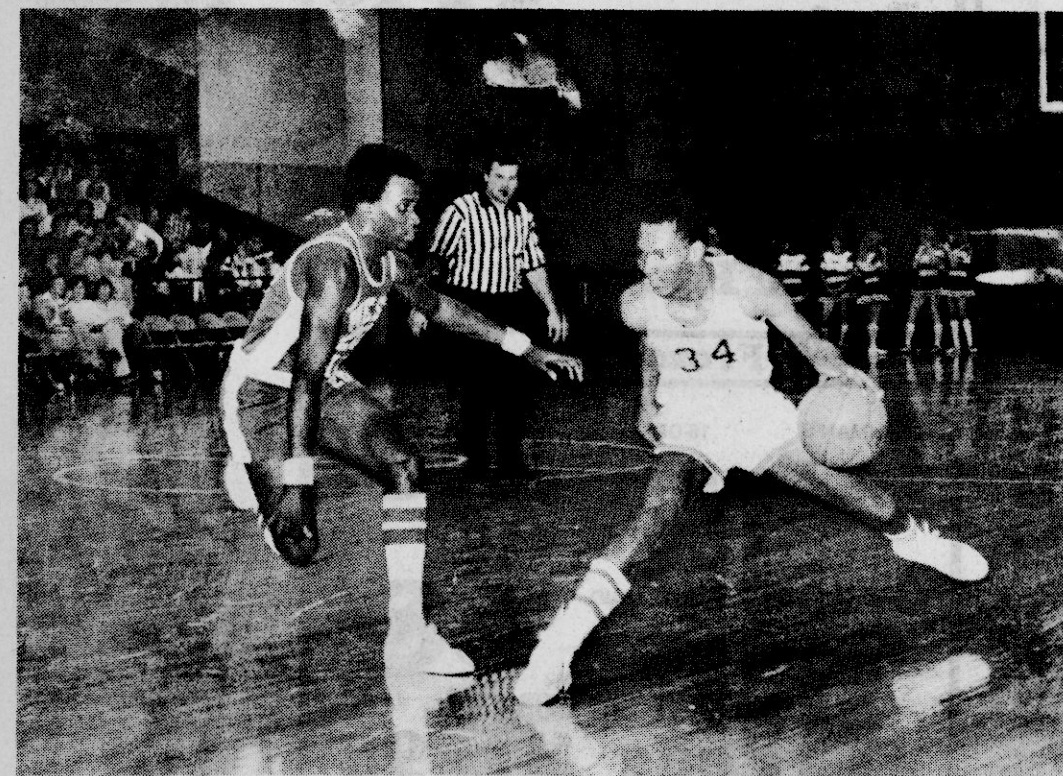

The board still plans to contact a few prospects who haven't as yet filed an application. Former Itawamba head coach Ben Jones has been mentioned by name droppers but hasn't as yet filed his interests.

Interviews with prospects are expected to begin sometime this week with the applicants at hand as well as the new ones who come in.

Former NE Player Survives

Memphis Drowning Claims One Life

By LEE GENTRY
Sports Editor

Former Northeast Mississippi Junior College football player Barry Todd of Memphis was involved in a boating accident that occurred Thursday night Dec. 21 resulting in the drowning of Jack Skinner of Memphis.

The two boys were duck hunting in a pothole off the Mississippi River when the accident occurred. The motor powered boat capsized in the river backwaters and the two boys tried to swim to the shore, according to Todd.

Todd made it back to the shore but his partner Jack couldn't and said, according to Todd, "I can't make it. You go for help, I can't go any further." Todd said he swam some 200 yards in bitter cold temperatures and was totally exhausted.

Barry said he passed out for some 20 minutes after he reached shore. After he came to, Todd said he was terribly weak and passed out again. After waking up for the second time he tried to find his partner with the boat but couldn't find him anywhere and realized that he had gone under.

After all attempts had failed he tried to make his way to the shore but passed out for the third time and this time remained unconscious for the remainder of the night until rescuers found him early Friday morning.

Barry said Jack was his best friend and to go through this was almost too much to bear.

"I did my best to save him," Todd said. "I tried every way I could. There just wasn't anything else I could do."

Barry says he still feels weak and hasn't any feeling in his legs but according to doctors his condition should improve.

Todd is a former Northeast Mississippi Junior College performer where he played under head coach Bill Ward. He was named to Junior College All-Star Squad and received all-state and All-Junior College honors along with several school awards.

Mike Johnson

Local Youngster Kills Three Deer

Mike Johnson, 14 year old son of Mrs. Bonnie Johnson of Route 2, Booneville celebrated the holidays in a very unique fashion. Mike killed three deer over a three day period on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of last week.

The three bucks weighed just over 300 pounds and were listed as a spike, three pointer and four pointer.

Mike was hunting with the Calabrella Deer Club and killed the three deer in Webster County 10 miles west of Eupora with a 30-30 rifle.

How did he feel after nabbing the three prize bucks? "It was the most exciting thing I've ever done," he said.

After showing the deer to all his friends, Mike had the three mounted, two in horn mounts and the other in a head mount.

One can understand how a boy would be excited about killing just one deer, but to kill three was quite a feat.

Cunningham, Nelson Sign Grants With Delta State

Two Baldwin High School football performers have signed grid scholarships with Delta State University for the 1979 season.

Baldwin's John Cunningham, a 6' 2" 175 pound quarterback and Terry Nelson, a 6-1, 195 pound defenseman have signed grant-in-aids with Delta State at Cleveland. The signings were announced last week.

Cunningham and Nelson were both named on the All-Tombigbee Conference team and both are three year Bearcat lettermen.

John earned the Bearcat Award in the High School Awards Voting which is given to the athlete that excels well in all sports while Terry was named best defensive lineman and is tabbed as one of the top performers on the Bearcat team.

The duo will assume their duties under Delta State coaches, Don Denning, former Memphis State assistant coach, and Johnny Plummer, former Corinth High School head coach.

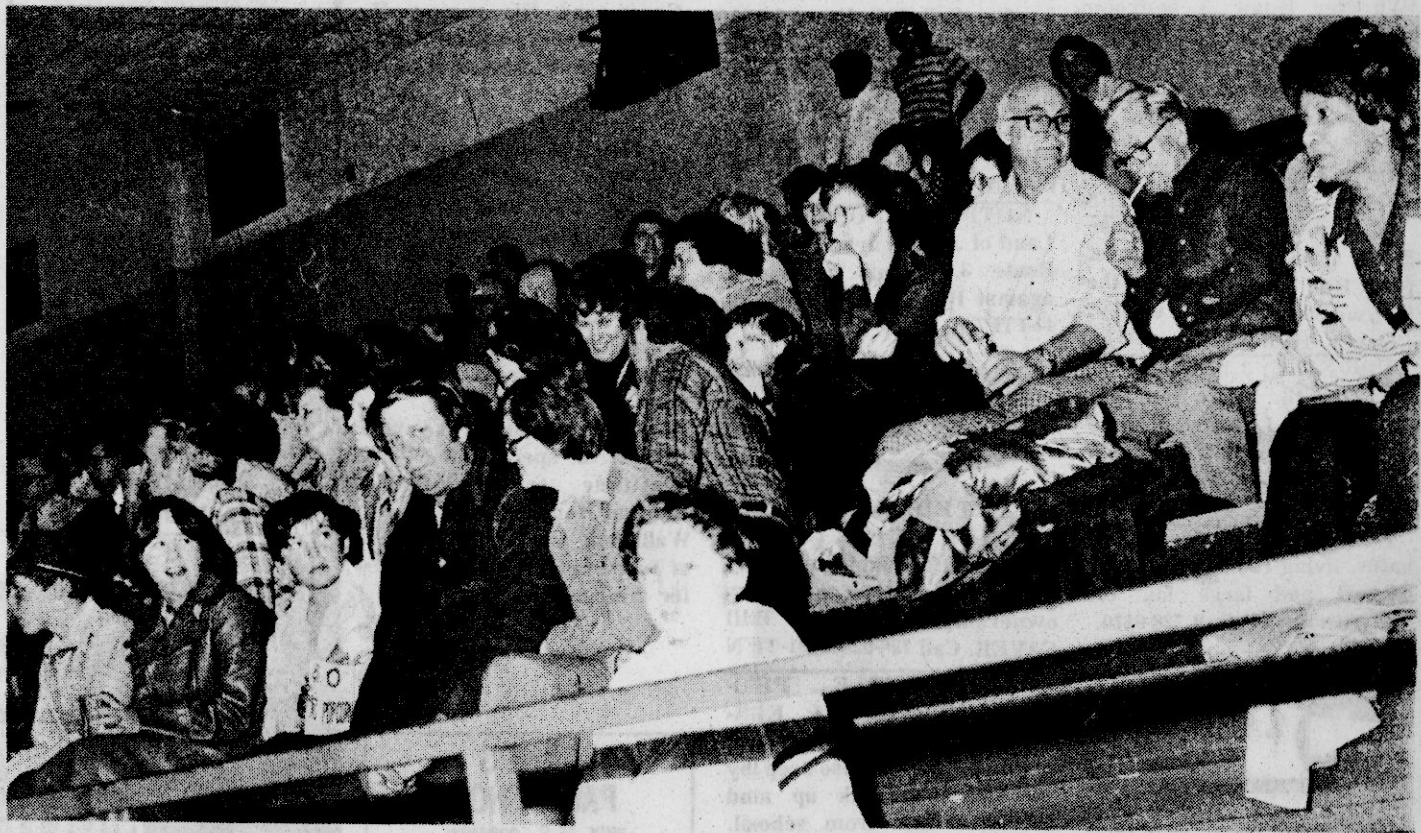

Baldwin head mentor Hubert Tucker said the two Bearcat stars had outstanding high school careers and should fare well in senior college play.

Tucker added that it was a pleasure coaching them and said it would be difficult to replace them.

The Baldwin tandem will join other North Mississippi performers including George Duff, Pontotoc; Bill Garner, Houston and junior college transfer Elmer Robertson of West Point.

Coach Plummer, who signed the Baldwin pair, said "We feel like these two players will help our program and we're looking forward to having them with us."

Beagle Trials Set

The Natchez Trace Beagle Club owners have begun preparing for competition of the Beagle Dog Trails scheduled to start in early January and continue through the winter and summer months.

Local dog owners from Prentiss County will participate in the hunts.

Jan. 9-11 will kickoff the new season for beaglers when the Annual AKC licensed trails gets underway at Pontotoc.

Four classes will run including 13 inch females, and males, 15 inch females and males. Drawing time will be held at 8 a.m. daily.

Club spokesman Ralph Mitchell said from 150 to 200 entries were expected from all over the country including 50 or 60 local hopefuls.

This is the club's feature event of its 11-event program.

Bobby Ritchey of Tupelo and Terry Colvin of Canton, Ill., are judges this year.

This event enables dogs to score points which lead to field championships. Blue ribbons go to first place finishers.

Mitchell said a number of field champions have come out of this competition, including some locally.

Professional handlers will bring in many of the entries.

Club members have taken steps to get the clubhouse and stables ready for the competition.

Six dozen rabbits were released about a week ago.

Tigers Start

'79 Season

The Northeast Mississippi Junior College Tigers will kickoff their 1979 campaign this week with a pair of games on the road.

The Northeast troop currently post a 6-8 overall record and have scheduled a full slate of games for the months of January and February.

"I'm hoping all the boys will be back to full swing after the Holidays," Lindsey said. "We have some things to work on but we plan to do just that."

FISHIN' TIPS

from...Tom Mann

HEY TOM: "I know you fish all over and this is really pinning you down, but if you could have only one cast, one lure, competing in a $25,000 winner-take-all bass tournament, which lure would you choose?" HARDHEAD JOE

HELLO HARDHEAD: Boy, they sure named you right? Well, I'd choose a 6-inch Strawberry Flavored plastic worm, use a 3/4-pounce slip sinker, fire it a country mile along a deep, weedy shore, and grow old bringing it back.

DEAR TOM: "I've heard lure manufacturers make lures to catch shermen, not fish. True?" INQUISITIVE

HELLO INQUIZ: I'm sure this has happened in the past but it cost too much today to make this gamble. Every lure is thoroughly field tested, and if the fish don't buy it there's no use trying to sell it to fishermen.

DEAR TOM: "When I can't catch a fish all day, I get so frustrated I could spit fire. Is it true you experts always catch fish?" GOTTA KNOW

HELLO GOTTA: Don't you believe it, all fishermen get wiped out at times. The only guy I ever knew who always caught fish was a tricky friend of mine who, when he got skunked, would go to the fish market on his way home. He'd buy some fish, then ask the man to wrap them and toss them to him. That way he could always say he caught some fish.
