Reapportionment Is Outlined

By HANK WIESNER
Managing Editor

The Mississippi reapportionment plan for the State Legislature which was recently handed down by a three judge federal panel will split Prentiss County among two Representative districts but leave the county's Senate district almost unchanged, according to court suit records on file in the county Circuit Clerk's office.

Under the new plan, Prentiss and Alcorn counties will make up Dist. 3 while Prentiss and Lee County will form Dist. 18 in the House of Representatives. Dist. 3 will be composed of Beats 1, 2, and 5 from Prentiss, while Dist. 18 will have Beats 3 and 4.

Prentiss has become a part of Senate Dist. 5 under the new plan. That district also includes all of Tishomingo County and Beats 1 and 5 in Itawamba County.

Prentiss County had previously been part of Dist. 2 in the House of Representatives. Tishomingo County made up the other part of that district.

The county had also been part of Dist. 4 in the Senate. Tishomingo, Itawamba and Monroe counties composed the balance of that district, according to court records.

The decision is expected to be made final and put into use for the upcoming primary elections in August and November general elections.

Under the new plan, Dist. 3 will have a total of 9176 registered voters from the three Prentiss County beats, The Alcorn County precincts of Rienzi, Biggersville, Bethel, Jacinto and Union will contribute a total of 3,927 voters, according to registration figures.

Dist. 18 will have 6,168 registered voters from Prentiss County. The number of Lee County voters in the District wasn't available.

Dist. 3 will be composed of 17,534 people while Dist. 18 will have 17,421, according to courthouse records.

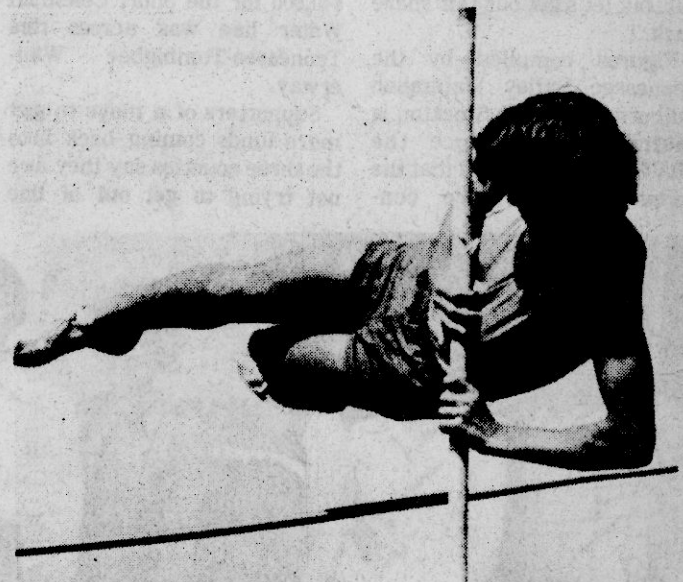

Senate Dist. 5 will be composed of 42,615 people, including the 15-plus thousand voters from Prentiss County. Voter registration figures from the other counties that make up the district were not available.

The plan creates single member districts based on population rather than traditional political boundaries. Under the new plan, there will be one Representative for about every 18,000 people, and a Senator for about every 43,000 people.

The plan also increases the possibility that there will be sizeable black caucuses in both the House and Senate since, for the most part, concentrations of blacks won't

Enthusiasm Urged For Townlifters

"The main ingredient in any uptown revitalization program is enthusiasm—you must overcome your doubts and work together."

So said Rayburn Chilcoat, President of Chilcoat Industries and its nine retail furniture stores, and the driving force behind the "townlift" program that reversed the fortunes of Haleyville, Ala.

Chilcoat was principal speaker Thursday night at a joint meeting of the Booneville Uptown Association and the Operation Townlift Committee.

"You must," Chilcoat said, "make up your mind what you are going to do and let nothing stop you. Get everyone involved. Sure, there were doubts in the beginning. But when a town the size of Haleyville (population 4,000) can grow from $6 million in retail sales for 1964, to $34 million in 1978, we know we have done a lot of things right."

Chilcoat is a native of Haleyville, where his business is headquartered, and has been a booster of the townlift program since its inception in 1964.

Chilcoat reports that Haleyville is now over 100 per cent employed. "This," he explained, "means there are more people working in Haleyville than live there."

He attributes this to the fact that townlift has involved everyone.

"It has helped the entire community become involved, not just the 32 merchants in the downtown area."

Chilcoat showed the group before and after pictures of the area involved.

Marshall Dickerson, Booneville Operation Townlift Chairman, gave a report on the committee's recent meeting with TVA's Townlift representatives. He explained that the principal requirement is that enough local interest be shown to justify TVA's involvement.

"It is not a 'blitz' operation," Dickerson said. "It is done over a period of time, and only those things the people want will be done."

Wreck Kills Two

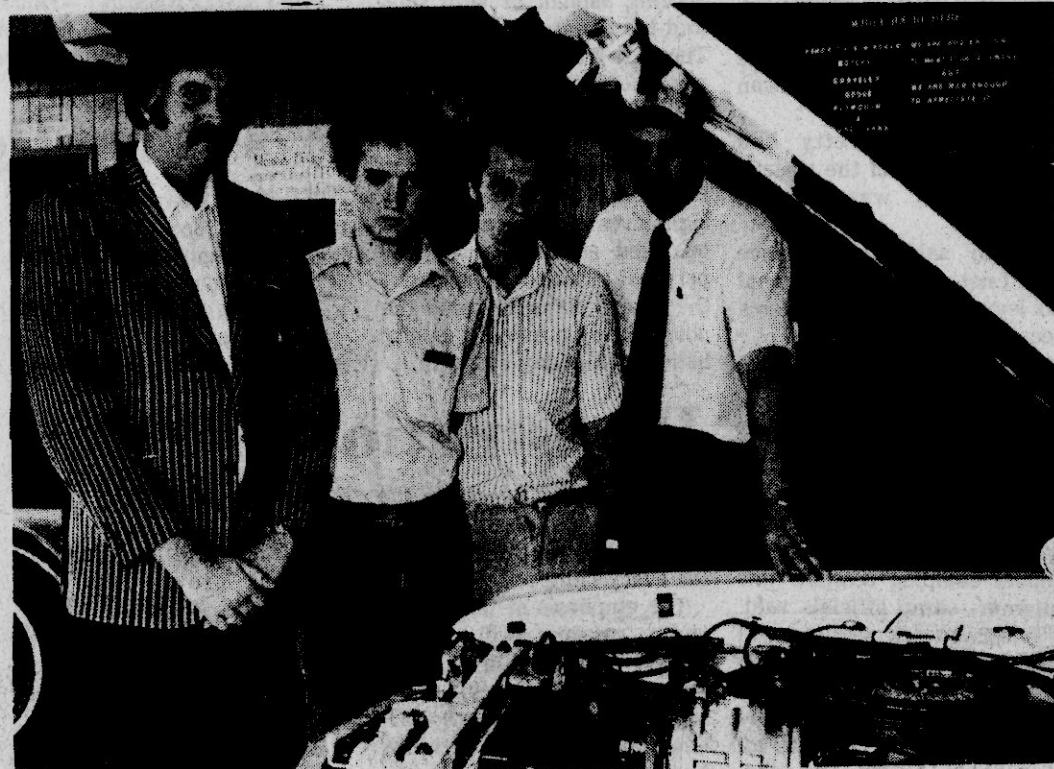

Two Baldwin youths were killed Saturday night in a head-on collision on Mississippi 45 North within the Baldwin city limits, a Mississippi Highway Patrol spokesman said.

The victims were identified as Danny Ray Coker, 17, of Route 2, Baldwin, and Floyd Wayne Cockrell, 16, of Route 3, Baldwin.

Full details of the accident were unavailable Sunday, the Highway Patrol spokesman said.

Carl Lindsey, a Baldwin Police Department patrolman, said the youths were traveling in separate automobiles when the wreck occurred. It is believed the cars had no passengers, Lindsey said. The accident is under investigation, but no charges had been filed Monday.

The two senior Vo-Tech students will take part in the Plymouth Troubleshooting contest to be held May 8 in Jackson. Wheeler and Thomas finished among the top 10 auto mechanics students in the state in a written test to qualify for the contest, which is sponsored here by Kendrick. At the contest, both students in Vuncannon's class, the two young men will diagnose a troubled Plymouth engine and try to get the car running within 90 minutes. (Photo by Hank Wiesner.)

PCCD Set Through September

By HANK WIESNER
Managing Editor

The Prentiss County Child Development Program will remain open at least through the end of September.

That was the result of a public meeting Monday in Oxford where state welfare department officials said that several preschool handicapped programs in northeast Mississippi—the Prentiss program among them—would continue to receive Title XX funds until their contracts with the welfare department expire.

Last week the welfare department had planned to terminate the Title XX funding at the end of May. The change of position of state welfare officials means that funds will continue to flow in for the Prentiss County program until the contract with the state expires at the end of September.

Welfare official Jane Emiling read part of a letter saying the department would honor the contracts with the schools. She added that a letter confirming the decision would be mailed to county welfare departments shortly.

Prentiss County Child Development officials had been told recently that their federal funds would be cut off May 31 because federal officials had questioned the use of Title XX money for the preschool program. Other preschool program administrators in nearby counties had been told the same thing.

The apparent turnaround by welfare officials on the preschool program was good news for Prentiss County, but still leaves the county with one unanswered problem—where to obtain matching funds for the PCCD program after the Sept. 31 deadline.

State welfare officials have said that minimum program funds from the welfare department used as matching funds to draw Title XX funds can't be used after the program ends in September.

Presently, Prentiss County uses about $62,000 in minimum program funds to draw about $187,000 in Title XX funds for operation of the PCCD program.

There aren't enough local funds in the county school system to use as match money, and Supt. of Education Lex Cain said Monday that he has been unable to obtain the funds from any other sources so far.

How much match money can

Power Cut Scheduled

Weather permitting, there will be an interruption to electric service at 1 a.m. Thursday, May 10, for all members of the Prentiss County Electric Power Association served from the Baldwin substation.

This power outage will be about two hours long and will cover the area of Highway 30 West of Frankstown, Frankstown, Wheeler and the entire Prentiss County system south of those points.

The interruption is being made by TVA in Connection with the construction of the new Guntown substation.

City Aldermen OK Gas Price Increase

By HANK WIESNER
Managing Editor

The Booneville Board of Aldermen Tuesday night approved a hike in the city's gas company rates after learning that the system had operated in the red last month.

The rate hike will take effect immediately, and will boost the price of gas from the city to customers from $2.03 per million cubic feet to $2.42 for the same amount.

The rate increase will be the first in several years for the city's near 2,500 customers. It came only after the city had absorbed three price hikes from its supplier, according to Aldermen J.W. Timbes, who is head of the department.

"We really had no choice but to raise the rates. We lost about $400 last month, and we had to raise the price or continue to operate in the red," he said.

A letter from city consulting engineers Allen and Hoshall in Memphis recommended an increase, and noted that the city had the lowest rates in this area.

According to the letter the city used about 328,894 MCF of gas from January through December of last year.

In other action Tuesday night, the board voted to charge mobile home owners a

Fund Drive Underway

Tuesday's kickoff breakfast at Northeast Mississippi Junior College marked the official beginning of the 1979 Prentiss County Community Fund drive.

Mrs. Opal Anderson, Fund Drive Chairman, reported that the drive is almost to the halfway mark with more than $14,000 of the $34,070 goal already collected. She also said that the Education Division is within $50 of reaching its goal.

Prentiss County Community Fund was organized fourteen years ago to consolidate the fund-raising efforts of some twelve Prentiss County service organizations. Those agencies include:

American Red Cross, Boy Scouts, Prentiss County Cancer Fund, Cerebral Palsy, Cystic Fibrosis, 4-H Club, Girl Scouts, Goodfellow Fund,

Mental Health, R.C.D.C. Fund, Rescue Squad, and the USO.

In the past fourteen years, the Community Fund has distributed more than $332,000 to these organizations for use in service and charitable programs in the county.

All division chairmen are asked to meet at the Peoples Bank each Friday to report their collections.

Hospital Joins Inn VE Program

A nationwide campaign to contain health care costs will be the focus of activities at Northeast Mississippi Hospital May 6th-12th as it observes National Hospital Week this year.

The campaign is called the Voluntary Effort to contain Health Care Costs and Northeast Mississippi Hospital joins 6,400 hospitals around the country during National Hospital Week to call attention to the Voluntary Effort (VE).

The VE, established in late 1977, is a coalition of hospitals, physicians, health insurers, health industry suppliers and representatives from government, business and consumer groups.

The coalition recognizes that everyone must share in the responsibility for rising costs.

The VE is guided by a National Steering Committee which sets broad national goals for cost containment. It is implemented through cost-containment committees and programs established in all 50 states. Technical assistance to hospitals and physicians is provided by the National Steering Committee member organizations and by the state organizations.

"The idea behind the Voluntary Effort is simple enough," Ralph R. Smith, Administrator, said. "We believe that since we all do our share to raise the cost of health care, we can all do our part to hold down costs."

The national goal of the Voluntary Effort is to reduce the rate of increase in health care expenditures by a total of four percentage points in 1978 and 1979. And the VE is working. Savings to the American people during 1978 reached more than $1.3 billion.

Activities have been planned for N.E.M.H. employees for National Hospital Week. On Thursday, May 10th the public is invited to view a film dealing with high blood pressure.

"Silent Countdown" will be shown on the hour from 7 a.m. until 6 p.m. in the hospital conference room. Free blood pressure screening will be available to the public.

District Fund Revamping Sought

A move is underway in three Northeast Mississippi counties to persuade the 12-county Tombigbee River Valley Water Management District (TRV-WMD) to redistribute its revenue "so the counties can get their fair share."

Supervisors in Alcorn, Prentiss and Tishomingo are considering passing resolutions that would ask the water management district to return more money to the counties.

Truitt Stockton, a Corinth building contractor, who has spearheaded the organizational effort, told area supervisors here that "let's pay our share of the district's bill...but let's get our fair share back."

Figures compiled by the Tennessee Valley Watershed Authority, of which Stockton is chairman, said since the TRVWMD was formed that the three counties have contributed $1,756,091 but had received only $198,440 in return.

The figures, however, do not include $397,055 which have gone from the water management district to the Yellow Creek Port Authority for operation and maintenance.

Watershed officials also said another $40,000 was allocated to the Short Coleman Water System near the port and another $20,000 was used on Highway 350.

The TRVWMD agreed over 13 years ago that it would be responsible for development along the Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway. The $40,000 for the Short Coleman Water line was across the Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway.

Supporters of a move to get more funds coming back into the three counties say they are not trying to get out of the district, "we know we have obligations to pay."

Alcorn County attempted to pull out of the water management district four years ago, but the Mississippi Supreme Court ruled that the county could not withdraw because of a 40-year bond obligation of the district.

Stockton told supervisors that the district has taken the revenue from the three counties and used it to match millions of dollars in federal funds.

The problem has come about because the water management district is prohibited from spending matching federal funds through the U.S. Corps of Engineers in Alcorn County. The matching funds are on a 9 to 1 ratio.

Very few Corps funds can go into Tishomingo and Prentiss.

The problem centers around the flow of water from the counties. No water from Alcorn County flows into the Tombigbee and only a little from Tishomingo and Prentiss.

Stockton said he hopes an agreement can be worked out so the three counties can obligate themselves to pay their cost of the District's $1.5 million bond issue and take over the financial obligation of the Yellow Creek Port.

Local funds from Alcorn, Tishomingo, Prentiss and Itawamba counties are used from the water management district to supplement income from the port to pay for its operation.

Stockton said a Certified Public Accountant had prepared a payback schedule that would allow the three counties to pay their share of the district's indebtedness by 1991 and have over $4.5 million left over.

The $4.5 million surplus would be based on the water management's approval of a request to return two and one-half miles to the counties that have been appropriated to the district.

The three counties share was based on paying off some $1.1 million in industrial property bonds at Yellow Creek Port and 17 percent of a $1.5 million bonded indebtedness of the water management district.

However, some members of the TRVWMD said privately that they doubted the district would ever agree to return all the money the counties are sending to the district, even with a promise the indebtedness would be paid off.

Stockton emphasized to the supervisors meeting at Northeast Mississippi Junior College this week that "We are not talking about pulling out, we are talking about getting our fair share."

"I don't want to see the district destroyed, it has a valuable place," Stockton said.

Backers of the move to get a bigger proportion of local funds returned, also fear that reappraisal of property will mean more money will go to the district, with little or no increase in the return.

A three-county committee is scheduled to be named to meet with the executive board of the water management district.

GENEROUS DONORS—Students at New Site Attendance Center donated enough food, clothes and clean-up materials to fill two South Central Bell panel trucks late last week. The materials will go to flood victims in Jackson, according to school principal James Sparks. The trucks were obtained after a request to the company by Sparks' daughter, who works for the company. The trucks were to be driven to Tupelo by Earnest Clinin and J.B. Green. The material will then be shipped to Jackson. (Staff Photo by Hank Wiesner.)

TVA is not a funding organization, but it does offer the full facilities of its Townlift section to help with the planning phase. This help includes sending an architect to the area to work with merchants, groups, and local government representatives to show what can be done with the least amount of money.

Registration is under way for the Girl Scouts' Camp Tik-A-Witha, which will hold its 10th annual camping sessions this summer, camp officials said.

A $25 charge was set if part of a road is damaged to provide utilities for a mobile home, and a $50 fee was set if the entire road is damaged.

The action came after the board learned that many mobile home owners pull their units away shortly after utilities are hooked up, leaving the city to repair the road and "stub out" the utility hookup.

The board also authorized vice-mayor Charles Steen to negotiate for repairs to the George Ed Allen Library. Water has been leaking into the library's memorial room, and repairs are expected to cost from $400-$600 for sealant and metal trim.

BIBLE QUESTION BOX

QUESTION: Mr. Hogland, why do you believe in eating the Lord's supper on Sunday but not on other days of the week? G.L.

WARD HOGLAND

ANSWER: Your question is a good one and worthy of Bible consideration. You will find the Lord instituted the Lord's Supper, at the feast of the passover (see Matt. 26). In this text he told his disciples they would not observe the supper again until they did it in the Kingdom of God (See verse 29). This means the Lord's supper was definitely placed in the Kingdom or church. When Jesus promised to build his church he used the words "Kingdom" and "Church" interchangeably (See Matt. 16: 18-20). He said, "Upon this rock I will build my church" and "I will give unto you the keys of the kingdom." Thus in the same breath he used the two words. Thus far, we have learned from the Bible that Christians are to observe the supper and they are in the church. So far no "Time" has been given for its observance. However, in Acts 20:7, we have an apostolic example telling us when to observe the supper. The text says, "And upon the first day of the week, when the disciples came together to break bread." This shows they came together for the purpose of breaking bread. Paul preached, but his preaching was incidental to the purpose for which they had come together. Remember too, God has to say a thing only one time for it to be so.

The cow-calf man is going to be in the most enviable position of any segment of the cattle industry for the next several years. Brood cow numbers have gotten so low, it is just going to take a good long while to build back.

A year ago would have been an excellent time to have gotten into the cow-calf business. We can't get into the cattle business a year ago. That time is already passed. However, it is not too late to get into the cattle business now and still make it a profitable, paying business.

I am not sure what good cow-calf pairs can be bought for at this time. Livestock market operators tell me that pretty good pairs can be bought for around $700-$800. To buy a good set of cows from an individual cattleman would be at the upper end of this money or perhaps a little higher.

But, at the same time, a calf should be sold off that cow this fall for considerably more than half the cost of the pair. And certainly the second calf would pay for the cow with a good bit of money left over to help defray production expenses.

We certainly don't need to take a negative attitude about the cattle business at this point. If you will remember, so many people said last fall, calves are too high to get into the winter grazing business and look what's happened to prices.

Even though winter grazing was terrible, the increased price of the calves is going to make people a lot of money. The fundamentals are there in the cattle industry for prices to continue to move up for the next two- or three years; certainly not as rapidly as they have the past year and a half. Nevertheless, the trend is going to continue up.

All cattlemen need to do everything possible to increase their profits from their cattle operation while prices are good. They need to provide excellent grazing, creep feed calves, sell the heaviest calves possible, and use all the tools at their disposal to increase net income.

Implanting calves on grass is another tool that we can use to increase gains and profits. In one test of about 42 herds, Ralgro implants boosted summer yearling gains by 15 percent, DES by 18 percent. Synovex has produced about the same response as DES. It is important that forage quality be real good to get top response from implants with cattle on grazing.

Nursing calves can be implanted with either Ralgro or DES. DES has not been cleared for weights less than 200 pounds. There has been some research that indicates a second implant, particularly with Ralgro, in nursing calves has shown a real response in growth rates. Some people are implanting these calves every 100 days.

It is important to use proper implanting techniques and follow instructions that come with the product that you are using.

Library Happenings

By LEE DAVIS
Librarian

Plans for the summer fun program are now well formulated but still in a stage to include suggestions from you, our patrons of the George E. Allen Library.

The dates set are June 11-29 and July 9-27, which allows for the July 4th week off.

Activities planned include games, stories, and sports from around the world.

"Summer of champions," a theme with both sports interest and world citizenship appeal because of the approaching world olympic games, should have something for everyone's taste.

Groups will meet on Tuesdays from 11-12. More details and registration instructions will be announced later.

Fortunately, the library has been given a number of new books that will fit right into this program. Among them are A Very Young Gymnast, by Jill Krentz, and Laura Bough, by Mary Jo O'Shea.

For preschoolers, new books include Donkey, Donkey by Roger Duvoisin; Albert the Albatross, by Syd Hoff and also his Barkley, the Horse in Harry's Room and Danny and the Dinosaur; Walt Disney's Mickey and the Bean Stalk; Twice upon a Time, by Irwin Shapiro; The Day the Count Stopped Counting, by David Karr; Never Tease a Weasel, by Jean Conder Soule; and The Four Magic Boxes, by Jane Belk Moncure.

New non-fiction books for adult readers include: "All Gods Children. The Cult Experience-Salvation or Slavery?", by Carroll Stoner; Simon and Schuster's Guide to Trees; Approaches to Meditation, by Virginia Hanson; Secretary's Desk Guide to Business English, by Rachel Gunther Kerschner; and Kitty Slater's The Hunt Country of America.

Cochran Named Fund Chairman

Senator Thad Cochran has been named Dinner Chairman of the May 30 United Republican Fund event featuring former Governor John B. Connally, according to Julius Ridgway, State GOP Finance Chairman.

The dinner, sponsored by the Mississippi Republican Party, is an annual fundraising event, Ridgway said.

"We are pleased that Thad has accepted the appointment as chairman of the URF dinner," Ridgway said. "His leadership as chairman will make this event one of the highlights of the 1979 election year in Mississippi."

Cochran, the first Republican elected to the U.S. Senate from Mississippi, won a three-way race for the Senate last November with 45 per cent of the vote.

Cutting Through The Curves...

By HANK WIESNER
Managing Editor

IT was a typical Prentiss County spring day—in a word, beautiful. Outside the Scirocco, the temperature was balmy, sky clear and road dry.

Inside, the car tucked me into one of the formfitting Recaro seats as we slice through one of the many curves on the stretch of Highway 4 between Booneville and New Site.

It was somewhere between the attractive New Site Post Office and Livingston Grocery—the second time I'd been between those two points that morning—that I realized I was having my own revival.

It's the season for revivals, but most of them take place in churches. But as I kicked the clutch and jabbed the shift lever into third and laid the tachometer needle on four grand I realized a more basic truth. Revivals take place in the heart, be the heart inside a church or belted into a sports car that is hurtling out of a curve into a straightaway.

And if you accept the dictionary definition of a "bringing or coming back to life" as the meaning of revival, I think my experience on Highway 4 that afternoon certainly qualifies.

For me, there is something invigorating in putting a piece of motor-powered machinery through its paces on a winding, deserted country road on a spring morning.

There is a joy in having done something well, whether the accomplishment be piloting a ton of metal neatly through a tightening curve or putting together an article to tell of it.

Reckless? Of course not. I stay within my limitations, those of the car and those of road, traffic, weather, and when necessary other drivers.

Exciting? I think so. And a certain amount of excitement from time to time is what keeps the cocoon apathy from forming around us and allowing us to sleep endlessly in a form of emotional hibernation. There are too many such sleepwalkers in this world today. I pity them, and do what I can to avoid joining their slumbering ranks.

The countryside between here and New Site is lovely. It's one of the most beautiful sections in the county, as far as I'm concerned. My only regret is that it took me so long to find it out.

The road winds through open farmland dotted with attractive houses, and the largest concentration of homes and stores is at Hobo Station, where highways 4 and 371 join.

I find a joy in dissecting a country road curve, and the old joy was there during surgery last week. Sight the curve—it was somewhere near Little Brown Missionary Baptist Church—mentally plot the angle. Drag the brake gently to even up the suspension.

Coming in closer on the curve, flick the shift out of high, touch the throttle in neutral to bring the engine speed up to the anticipated ground speed of third, let the clutch out smoothly into third. Watch the tach, ease it smoothly back up to a grand or so below the red line and shift back into high.

That's the way it went all the way to New Site and all the way back that beautiful Friday morning, listening to the rowdy snarl of the little four banger engine as the gears changed.

But somewhere between Larry's Upholstery and Jackson's Egg Farm, or maybe it was somewhere around Whitley's grocery, I began to wonder, and wonder still: How did Hobo Station get its name?

I'd be delighted to talk with anyone who could answer that question.

Talking Politics...

GOP Politics Rampant Here

By BILL CRAWFORD
Columnist

Presidential politics is already running rampant in Mississippi, among Republicans anyway.

They say that politics makes strange bedfellows. This year the trend seems to be to change bedfellows and even to oppose a fellow bedfellow, or something like that.

Ronald Reagan is the obvious frontrunner in Mississippi. But he's facing a strong challenge from John Connally, the former Democratic Governor of Texas now turned Republican.

Connally has made his presence known, pulling a number of formidable Reaganites into his camp, including the loquacious Haley Barbour.

Barbour, vice chairman of the Mississippi GOP and regional coordinator for the Ford presidential campaign in 1976 after the convention, is working halftime for the Connally campaign.

Connally has also corralled the support of GOP superstar Thad Cochran. The newly elected senator was quietly for Ford during the GOP skirmishing in 1976, but has come out soundly for Connally.

This places Cochran directly opposed to the GOP's other veteran star, Rep. Trent Lott. Lott has taken the chairmanship of the Reagan campaign in Mississippi.

Still in Reagan's camp, of course, is fiery Jackson oilman Billy Mounser. Mounser, you may remember, headed up Reagan's 1976 effort and has still not forgiven many Ford campaigners who "stole" the Mississippi delegation from the Californian.

Topping the list of the unforgiven, of course, is gubernatorial candidate Gil Carmichael. Mounser's split from Carmichael has been widely publicized.

The gubernatorial candidate has not taken sides as yet in the pre-presidential primary politicking and as a result is being courted by the various factions, including a strong effort by Reagan.

It appears that all of the Republican candidates want a Republican victory in Mississippi in 1979 to help set the stage for the unseating of Jimmy Carter in 1980. And thus the enemies of yesteryear become the friends of today.

Don't get the idea, however, that Reagan and Connally have Mississippi's Republicans wrapped up. There are lesser known GOP leaders supporting Phillip Crane, Howard Baker and George Bush.

Baker, the Tennessee Senator who lost some friends when he joined Gerald Ford in supporting the Panama Canal treaties, has a number of friends in North Mississippi. Noticeable among them is Tunica planter William Houston. Houston was a member of Thad Cochran's state finance team and is a former state finance chairman for former Tennessee Senator Bill Brock.

Connally and Baker will compete for headlines in Mississippi at the end of May when both make appearances in Mississippi.

Baker will be the guest speaker at the annual Delta Council gathering on the grounds of Delta State University.

Connally will be the guest speaker at the annual GOP fundraising dinner Jackson.

At this stage of the competition members of the opposing teams are treating each other with kid gloves and shoving any competitive jealousy under the rug. Thus Billy Mounser will probably sell as many $100 tickets to the GOP fundraiser as usual, despite Connally's appearance, and Reaganites in the Delta will receive Baker warmly.

The first sign of real competition may come when the GOP state executive committee considers the idea of selecting presidential delegates via a preference primary. Allowing Mississippi Republicans to vote on their choices will remove the decision from control of GOP leadership who have tapped delegates of their choice at the quadrennial convention.

The hullabaloo at the 1976 convention surrounding the unit rule has resulted in consideration of the presidential primary which would occur next June. Reagan's supporters felt many of the delegates went to Ford in opposition to the Mississippi constituency they were supposed to represent.

It will be interesting to see if any of the candidates canvass the executive committee for negative votes on the primary.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor:

As Prentiss County Law Day Chairman, I want to call attention to Law Day 1979, which was May 1. Law Day was first established in 1958 by proclamation of President Dwight D. Eisenhower. Each year a different theme is adopted for the Law Day observances throughout the nation. The theme for Law Day 1979 was: "Our Changing Rights."

Our country was founded on the belief that rights were made to be changed. This belief was the reason for the American Revolution. Our forefathers believed that all men were created equal and were endowed with certain unalienable rights. This belief was the birth of the Declaration of Independence. Further, to insure to all citizens of this newly established nation, that their unalienable rights were protected, our ancestors established the Constitution and the Bill of Rights.

The Bill of Rights sets forth the basic rights upon which this country has survived. Those rights included the right to freedom of religion, freedom of speech, freedom of the press and the right to a trial by a jury, among others.

These rights served our young nation well. However, as this country grew, individual rights changed and expanded. As society expanded and new frontiers were encountered, new problems were created.

The law, as guardian of individual rights, provided protection from these problems in the form of new rights. Examples of these rights include rights of a free trial; rights of the handicapped and other minorities; and abortion the right of a woman to privacy of her body versus the rights of an unborn child.

No clear answers exist in many of these cases. No one side is all right and the other all wrong. The law must often provide an answer to these conflicts. The courts are the forum in which these conflicts are resolved.

Continuously new areas of rights develop. Perhaps one of the most important areas is that of consumer rights. We, the American public, are the consumer. The law protects us from manufacturers by requiring them to make safe products and requiring them to pay monetary damages if their defective products injure someone. Whether the product is a defective automobile, a defective tire, a defective nuclear plant, or a defective drug, the law is the protector of our rights.

With each new product, the law and our rights change. New rights are being born for all citizens as new problems are faced on a day to day basis. As our society grows larger and more complex, the individual citizens' rights become increasingly dear and important to him. Without individual rights, the individual citizen is lost in the modern world.

It is ironic that today when individual rights are so precious, that no one individual can protect those rights. Today's world requires group action. There are consumer groups, environmental groups, women's groups, and minority groups. Each of these groups is devoted to their particular area. However, the rights these groups advocate are meaningless without a system of enforcement.

The primary method of enforcement of these and all other rights is through the "adversary system." In this system, an individual is represented in the Courts by one who asserts his rights.

The adversary system itself is in a constant state of change. The traditional adversary system allowed a jury of one's peers to determine what rights are important and how to enforce them. Regrettably, today much of this adversary system has been taken away from the common citizen, who serves on juries, and given to administrative bodies.

These administrative bodies are a part of the maze of governmental bureaucracy which functions, at best, inadequately to protect the individual citizens' rights. These administrative bodies are a prime example of the old saying, "Justice delayed is justice denied."

Eyes On Mississippi...

A Look At Political Gimmicks

By BILL MINOR
Columnist

JACKSON—Are Mississippians going to again fall for political gimmickry in deciding this year who their next governor will be?

The word coming in from the hinterlands is that Mississippians, after Cliff Finch, aren't going to buy the lunchbox, or the bulldozer routine ever again. No more gimmicks for them, they say. Give them the genuine article.

Based on Mississippi's voting habits for years, it could be said that there has always been a high degree of gullibility among the voters for gadgets or slogans which divert attention away from the main issues and relative qualifications of candidates.

Mississippians, some have observed, go for the sizzle rather than the steak, in selecting their governors. Then six months after their choice has been in office, they are disappointed with him.

This probably goes back to the 1920's when Theodore G. Bilbo ran for governor carrying around a "vitreous" brick which he said could solve the crying need for hard-surfaced roads, which Mississippi didn't have at the time. Bilbo told the folks that this wonderful brick, when it wore out on one side, could be turned over on the other side, and you would have a perfectly new riding surface.

It was sheer political hokum, but the people bought it. None of those brick roads, of course, ever materialized.

Or a Ross Barnett, who campaigned in 1951 on program of having state-owned bulldozers and earthmoving equipment which would go out to clear land for private individuals and fill up sloughs and gulleys on private land so as to put them into agricultural use.

Barnett was an ardent anti-Communist, and anti-Socialist, but he didn't seem to mind the fact that his plan sounded very much like the Russians' Five-Year-Plan which ended in disaster a few years before.

The people didn't elect Barnett that time on account of the free bulldozer idea, but when he was finally elected in 1959, there were still some folks around wanting to know when the dozers were coming to fix up their land.

It wasn't exactly a stunt arranged by his handlers that helped get Barnett elected, but when Barnett while campaigning in 1959 walked into a moving airplane propeller and survived, many strangely reacted in sympathy rather than questioning his judgment.

Paul Johnson, Jr. went around the state with an enlarged photograph of the new 15 story Woolfolk State Office Building in his 1955 gubernatorial campaign, telling about the hundreds of unneeded workers which it housed. To show what he would do as governor, Johnson would turn the building upside down and pretend to shake out the deadheads.

That got Johnson a lot of votes, but it also caused such an adverse reaction from state employees that they got out en masse to help elect darkhorse candidate J.P. Coleman.

But a photograph is faintly what got Johnson elected in 1963—a picture of Johnson standing firm and grimly determined outside Ole Miss, confronting Chief United States Marshall James P. McShane and James Meredith, and turning the black man away from the campus. That was enough to satisfy Mississippians to "stand tall with Paul."

In comparison with previous gimmick-users, Cliff Finch arrived on the scene with more gadgets and sideshow devices than anybody. The idea seemed rather corny when he first came to Jackson to qualify for governor and took his qualifying fee out of a black tin lunchbox which he lugged with him. But it became a symbol of his affinity with the working man, and provided a perfect prop for his video campaign spots operating a bulldozer as though this was his regular job, instead of drawing fat fees as a damage suit lawyer.

Finch's extensive use of gimmicks and devices, in the wake of his plummeting public esteem, may have a significant effect upon candidates this year and in the future using such trappings.

But it is often said that the two games Mississippians enjoy most are politics and football. And this is the season for politics.

Your Home Economist's Notes

By CLAIRE T. ROSS
Extension Home Economist

Living in Mississippi, you can have something in the garden almost year round if you practice successive planting. As soon as you have harvested one crop, clear the row and prepare to plant another crop. An example of this is following an early spring crop of greens with a summer crop of butter beans and following this crop with fall onions. Empty row space produces nothing, while a small garden intensively planted can be very productive.

Try to group full season vegetables (tomato, pepper, eggplant, and okra) together. You won't disturb roots because you won't be making successive plantings. Remember to try and group tall vegetables (corn, pole beans, okra) together so that short growing vegetables won't be interplanted and shaded. Where garden size permits, successive vegetables planted in the same row should not be related. This practice of crop rotation is also good to follow when using the same garden site year after year. Crop rotation helps prevent the buildup of diseases that attack vegetable plants.

When growing for fresh use only, make successive small plantings of vegetables such as snap beans, sweet corn, lettuce, radishes, leafy greens, and Southern peas. Plantings at two-week intervals will provide continual fresh vegetables for table use.

Plant only as much as the family can eat before the next planting begins to produce. If you intend to produce sufficient vegetables for canning and freezing as well as fresh use, plant more vegetables at one time to provide enough at harvest for preserving. Vegetables with long harvest periods such as tomatoes, okra, pepper, eggplant, and pole lima beans require only one planting during the season. However, with tomatoes and okra, make a second planting about six weeks after the first. This provides plenty of these vegetables on into fall.

Plant according to a plan. A finished garden plan will show what crops are to be grown, the number of different plantings of each crop, the time and location of each planting, and the distance each row is to be planted from one end of the garden.

For more help with your garden, call 728-5631 and ask for Publication 1091, Vegetable Gardening or come by our office.

Correspondent

This has been a fairly quiet week because "Upholstery Man," and "Twitty Bird," went on their second honeymoon. That mountain air must have done something to "Upholstery Man," because he's been sick almost every since they left. Maybe they got some rest.

"Angel's" mother still on sick list, "Round Lady," and "Lady Pouncewheel" both at home, "Little Red," had made a trip to Tupelo, and "Mississippi Shorty," has really had a rough go of it and not up to par yet. She asked everyone to remember her in your prayers. "Round Lady's" sister, Mrs. Johnnie Glover is real serious condition in our hospital. May each of you have a better week and we hope to hear all of you well soon.

Happy birthday this week to "Jesse James." Hope you have a real nice day and have many more to look forward too. Three units of our club are traveling to Pocomantas, Ark., this weekend hoping to bring back a trophy. Be careful and good luck.

We appreciate everyone answering roll call on Sunday night, but please unless you need a break wait until you r unit is called and then answer. Also please wait until the president or vice-president clears the channel for the club to start a conversation.

Saturday night, May 5 at 6:30 is our regular social night. It is pot luck. "Blue Surf," will be in charge. Everyone come out and enjoy the fellowship.

5th Annual Coffee Break May 6, 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Fulton C.B. Club, Inc. Fulton, IJC Student Center on Itawamba Junior College Campus.

Grand prizes 1st-$500.; 2nd-$300.-3rd-$200. You do not have to be present to win.

Children's prize-choice of Boys or Girls Bicycle. Four mobile radios to be given away at 11-12-12 o'clock. Must be present to win radios. Trophies will be given for club selling most tickets and largest club in state plus six more.

"Blue Surf," will have tickets at social Saturday night. Also "Blue Surf," and "I" will be in charge Sunday and we would appreciate everyone that could to travel with us and attend this break.

"Pinetree," it sure is good to hear you racketjanying again. We sure do miss you when you aren't able to talk. I bet you give that "Angel," and "Little Angel" fits when you don't feel like the radio being tuned in.

Remember when you are using the channel, the courtesy rules involved. So many people abuse their radios by using profanity and holding the channel too long. Our C.B.'s are made to enjoy and remember thousands of people listen to their radios and never key the mike. There is one that hears and see all. Think about this next time you go to modulate!

Until next week, stay well, be happy, and attend the church of your choice.

Pear Tree Survives Construction

Grisham's Pear Tree

LUKA—"Clyde Grisham's Pear Tree" doesn't fall under the Endangered Species Act of 1973, but is simply a lone memorial amidst heavy construction at the Tennessee Valley Authority's Yellow Creek Nuclear Plant.

The pear tree, a statuesque symbol planted in this rural area of Tishomingo County 47 years ago, is a lone remnant of the Grisham family's homelands started here in 1917. Planted in 1932 by Clyde Grisham, one of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Henry Grisham's nine children, the tree has survived among the constant construction activity at the future two-unit nuclear power plant begun over one year ago. TVA officials, after meeting with Ernest and Clyde Grisham, decided to leave the tree at its present location after discussing the need for its removal.

According to Clyde Grisham, 76, a retiree TVA employee, "we discussed the situation with Mr. Price (Yellow Creek project manager) and found that the plant's main access road was to run through the center of the tree. Mr. Price went and looked at the tree with us and said he would see that the road was rerouted around the pear tree."

The Grisham's family home was located about 100 feet northeast of the pear tree's current location on what was formerly the main road between Mississippi and Tennessee. "The road," said Ernest Grisham, "also had a hotel where people used to come and drink sulphur water. It was originally called the Iuka-Red Sulphur Springs Road.

Ernest Grisham, 71, is still a resident of Iuka and formerly worked for TVA on the Pickwick and Wilson Dam reservoirs as malaria control supervisor. Clyde worked at Wheeler Dam in 1934, his first TVA job. He later moved on to Pickwick Dam, Wilson Dam, and Kingston Steam Plant until retirement. Clyde still works as a Kingston real estate agent for Pickel Real Estate. Another surviving brother, Hubert, 75 lives about one quarter of a mile from the tree on the main access road.

Hwy. 45 Paving Scheduled

A contract for a $1.12 million overlay project on U.S. 45 from Corinth to Booneville is being scheduled for letting after it was approved by the Mississippi Highway Commission Tuesday.

Ken Hurt, a spokesman for Northern District Highway Commissioner Bobby Richardson, said the overlay contract could be let as early as next month with construction to begin early this summer.

He said the highway department would attempt to get most of the project completed before winter.

He said it probably would be difficult to complete all the overlay during the summer and early fall.

The highway was last overlaid in 1973.

The overlay project will extend from U.S. 45 bypass in Corinth to Booneville.

Make Tree Harvest Profitable

By JOHN STUART
County Forester

As Prentiss County Forester, I would like to pass along a few tips local timber growers might find profitable when making their next timber sale.

For the most part, timber harvests are few and far between, and it is important that the timber grower gets the greatest possible returns when he sells his crop.

I would quickly point out, that the greatest possible return doesn't altogether mean the most dollars. The "long run" must be considered if the best over all return is realized from the crop.

It's only natural that the tree farmer wants to get the highest immediate prices and the most dollars for his crop at harvest time. For, like any farmer, this is his pay-off for lots of hard work.

But the timber grower must not let the present sale blind consideration of the future. To realize the greatest over-all from his sale, the grower must weave into its profits, utilization, future forest growth and environmental protection.

In some cases, timber stand should be selectively marked for cutting; not indiscriminately "slaughtered." By selective thinning, the lower quality tree is cut first. This provides more space and reduces the competition for the better trees to continue growing and increasing in value.

Timber growers should offer their timber for sale on a bid basis. Logging standards should first be set. Then the seller should seek as many offers as possible for his stumpage by notifying all local buyers and companies that his timber is for sale.

The seller should select the offer according to prices and agreed compliance with logging standards.

A contract should be written to spell out conditions of the sale. It should provide for protection against logging damages to fences, roads, soil, streams and remaining timber. The contract also should specify which trees are to be cut.

As County Forester, I would remind local timber growers that professional assistance in selling timber is made available to them through the local office located in the back left-hand side of the Bank of Commerce Building or by calling 728-6835.

Professional assistance in selecting the trees that should be sold and in drawing up a sale contract can make timber growing a more profitable business.

Insurance Extension Granted

TUPELO—Life and Casualty Insurance Company of Tennessee policyowners in flood-ravaged Mississippi have been granted an extension of time for payment of insurance premiums due, according to James Maloney, CLU, Senior Vice President-Sales and Marketing.

Due to the continuing flood conditions in areas of the state, all policyowners will have their premium payment deadline extended until July 1, 1979.

Life and Casualty agents are making every effort to locate or contact their policyowners but flood damaged roads and bridges have prevented agents from reaching or locating many policyowners.

Other conservation measures, including loans on policies and replacement of lost policies, are available by contacting the District Sales Office at 807 Varsity Drive in Tupelo.

Mr. Maloney said, "If policyowners are not contacted by an agent in the near future, they are asked to call District Sales Manager Bill Morgan at 842-4201 or 842-4205 so district personnel can provide service."

Beware Of Home Siding Rip-off

BALDWIN—Area residents should be wary of recent telephone calls from persons who want to sell vinyl house siding, said Ray Keys, director of the consumer protection division of the state attorney general's office.

Wednesday night, Jonnie Rodgers, a resident of the Ozark community, got a call from a woman who only named the vinyl siding business she represents, asked if Rodgers were interested in improving her home with the material and informed her the business would be coming to the area in two or three weeks, Rodgers said.

Skeptical from the start, Rodgers said she wanted to "pick" the woman for more information, but made a mistake when she told the woman her home is brick. Shortly thereafter the solicitor ended the conversation, Rodgers said.

But she called relatives living nearby, warned them to be ready for a similar call and encouraged them to seek more information about the company.

About 90 minutes later, a woman representing the same business called Leroy Shields, a cousin of Rodgers who lives a mile from her. Shields was prepared to ask questions.

But the answers to his questions never came. "She didn't have much to say to me after I started questioning her," he said. The woman asked Shields if he lived in the Ozark community (his residence is indicated in the telephone directory), and if he was interested in new siding.

"I said I didn't know, that I would have to study on it," Shields said. Then she said the company would get in touch with him in a few weeks. "I said there's no use in that, just give me your telephone number. But she wouldn't give me a number."

Both Rodgers and Shields said the call sounded as if it were made locally.

"If they are not perfectly willing to freely answer questions, then that's enough to make you skeptical," Keys said Thursday.

The state consumer protection division has received many complaints regarding the sale of vinyl siding. Although the division has generally found the siding material to be sound, shoddy installation and a complete lack of followup repairs has been the problem, he said.

"There's nothing technically wrong with the materials if they are applied correctly," Keys said. "The itinerants generally do a very sloppy job of installation, however, and you can't find the people when it starts coming off."

The cost of the materials ranges from several hundred dollars to $5,000 or $6,000, he said. The expense for improving average-sized homes with vinyl siding has been $2,800 to $4,000, according to cases investigated by the consumer protection division.

Keys said another problem is many "victims" are not aware they are actually signing a mortgage, or second mortgage, to their homes when they ostensibly sign a credit application.

The contractor sells the package to a finance company at a discount. The finance company then has a lien against the home. "If the siding falls off and the poor guy doesn't pay his bill then they can take his house," Keys said.

In many cases the resident continues to pay for the siding, but has to hire a local contractor to install it again at a cost of several hundred dollars.

The number of such sales has declined in Mississippi during the past two years, mainly because consumers are more knowledgeable, he said.

"My advice is to deal with a local contractor," Keys said. "They are fully capable, give just as good a deal and you know who to go back to."

Jobless Rate Down

At mid-March the rate of unemployment for Prentiss County was estimated to be 6.7 percent of the civilian labor force, or 720 individuals. This compares to 7.5 percent in February and 6.3 percent in Mar., 1978. The rate for the state was estimated to be 6.8 percent. According to Charles Smith, Corinth Area Manager of the Mississippi State Employment Service, the number of Prentiss County residents employed edged up offsetting this loss in the number unemployed causing the overall civilian labor force to rise to 10,810.

Manufacturing employment in Prentiss County, estimated to be 3,070, dipped slightly from last month's estimate and the figure for one year ago. Employment in non-manufacturing industries stood at 3,700, representing increases from the February estimate and the March 1978 estimate.

Smith continued that the civilian labor force for the four-county area of Alcorn, Prentiss, Tippah, and Tishomingo increased 420 from February to March with an even higher increase of 1,430 from the same period one year ago. A significant rise of an estimated 620 persons from the last estimate and 1,130 from the March 1978 estimate in the employment portion of the labor force was the reason for the increases. However, compared to the estimate for one year ago, the number unemployed rose some 300.

was the result of slight losses in several industries, while the loss from March 1978 was due to one industry having a major loss along with a few slight losses. Nonmanufacturing industries had a total employment of 15,700 during the current month. Several industries contributed to these gains with the largest being in the construction group.

Farm Production Is The Keystone Of Economy

By ED BLAKE
Mississippi Farm Bureau

This week across the land farm and city people are updating their economic and cultural inter-relationships as Farm-City Festivals are held in thousands of counties across America.

And the message that modern agriculture would like to flash to their town friends and often relatives is that agriculture remains the keystone of their nation's economy. Yet it remains susceptible to a wide range of modern day problems and depends on nonfarm people to sustain it on a day-by-day basis.

Today modern agriculture feeds the world, for the most part a bountiful food supply through a system of competitive marketing. Americans can claim the greatest share of agriculture's efficiency as food is provided for the smallest share of daily wages of any people at any time in history. For the average U.S. family one day's labor pays for one week's supply of food.

While starvation and poor diets continue in many of the less-developed, overpopulated and disadvantaged spots of the world, the general situation over the world is that food is provided daily in ample quantities. And here in the U.S. food is available without permits or long lines. Add to that the tantalizing quality of American food, generally free of rotting or hazardous portions as found in parts of the world—and it is a pretty good case for the mutual admiration being shown this week by Americans for their dinner table abundance.

Agriculture's claim to a keystone position in the economy is appropriate. A keystone is building is the stone on the top or in the middle of an arch or vaulted structure which, being wider at the top than at the bottom, serves as a wedge to bind the structure together. The known value of a keystone has been with us since the stone age, and as time went on artisans, recognizing its indispensable value, often chiseled the keystone ornamentally, or allowed it to protrude to call attention to it.

Philosophically, the keystone principle is that which holds several parts together, as a supporting fact or principle. Pennsylvania early adopted the name "Keystone State" because of its central location in the chain of original states as well as site of the Declaration of Independence and the drafting of the Constitution.

American industry and agriculture go together like cheese and the hoop, or crackers and the barrel. Each depends on the other and would be extremely hard put to function without this daily inter-dependence.

This year U.S. farmers will sell an estimated $10 billion of farm products. And while doing so, as employers and consumers, they will spend about $104 billion to produce the crop and livestock.

Last year it took between eight and ten million people to store, transport, process and merchandise farm output—and that's roughly equal to the total able population of five states the size of Mississippi. The nation's dairymen alone last year spend $1.8 billion for 170,000 persons' wages.

In other proliferations of the keystone principle generated by agriculture, the bakery industry had a $2.6 billion payroll going to 237,000 workers, while the food canning, freezing and curing industries paid out $1.9 billion to 223,000 wage earners.

After the '78 cotton crop left farms in the South and West it generated a $1 billion payroll to 152,000 thousand employees of cotton mills and finishing plants. Add to this the transportation, handling, and merchandising of cotton and other farm generated fabrics in the clothing and home furnishings field and the ag keystone protrudes even more.

Mississippians can be justifiably, extra grateful for this fact when they realize their chief industry is a renewable one with even brighter prospects for future development—rather than facing a shutdown as un-renewable resources become depleted.

FBLA CONFERENCE AT UM—Among members of 130 Mississippi high school chapters of Future Business Leaders of America attending the organization's 25th annual state-wide leadership conference at The University of Mississippi were state winners (from left) Ruth Hurt, public speaking, Tammie Wimberly, office procedures, Prentiss County Vocational Complex; Tammie Magee, Betsie Oakes, and Larry Butts. Museum Suffers Flood Damage

JACKSON—Are you one of thousands of Mississippians who remember our state's new wildlife museum for its freshly scented carpet, sparkling array of aquariums, and rows of wood paneled exhibits and dioramas?

Hang on to that memory. It may never exist exactly like that anymore.

The Game and Fish Commission's Museum of Natural Science is one of thousands of Jackson's public and private structures to suffer flood damage recently from the rampaging waters of the Pearl River. What is being described by officials as the worst flooding by the river in memory dumped some four feet of water and silt into the five year old structure.

Virtually everything on the ground floor of the building is devastated. What once was the home of Mississippi's "Web of Life"—a story of our state's natural heritage from source to sea—is now a tangled mat of mud laden floors, water stained walls, broken glass and destroyed specimens. Agency personnel estimate damages at over $1 million.

Johnny Johnson's, Sell-Rite Win St. Judes Softball Tourney

Johnny Johnson's Furniture earned the men's honors and Sell-Rite took the ladies championship trophies here last Sunday in the finals of the Saint Judes Softball Tournament held at Booneville's West Side City Park.

Johnny Johnson took the men's title with a 9-3 victory over Swinney's Air Conditioning while Sell-Rite's ladies took the women's championship with a 17-4 win over Brown's Hamburgers.

In men's action, Johnny Johnson rallied for four runs in the fifth inning and never looked back from there. The local squad were a pre-season pick as the league's top seeded team and are holding up to the number one ranking.

In ladies action of the Sunday finals, Sell-Rite exploded for seven runs in the first inning and breezed throughout the remainder of the game.

Trophies were presented at the conclusion of the tournament by Melissa Presley, who was named honorary tournament chairman, and who will turn in some $500. proceeds received during the tournament to the Saint Judes Hospital in Memphis.

Local park director Joe Taylor said he felt the tournament went almost perfect. "It was one of the best ones we've ever had and we feel like everyone had an enjoyable time," Taylor said.

"The winners for this tournament were not the teams but the cancer victims who will benefit from the proceeds of this tournament."

Tournament play was cancelled during part of last week's activities due to element weather but fair weather prevailed during the finals and play was completed.

Under New State Law—

Surface Mining Regulated

The State of Mississippi has recently enacted into law the Mississippi Surface Coal Mining and Reclamation Act. This Act empowers the Mississippi Geological Survey to regulate surface coal and lignite mines in the state. This strong environmental protection law was patterned after the federal Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977.

Although there are no coal or lignite mines in the state at the present time, there is a high probability of some in the future. These mines would be massive operations, each involving thousands of acres over a period of ten to thirty years. It is anticipated that Mississippi will have no more than two or three of these mines, but if the energy crisis continues to worsen, there could be considerably more lignite mining in the state.

The task now before the Mississippi Geological Survey is to write a comprehensive set of regulations with which to enforce the law and establish the environmental protection and reclamation standards that will govern the coal mining industry. Throughout the process of writing the regulations and developing a regulatory program, the Survey will be actively soliciting comments and suggestions by the public. It is hoped that input will be received from landowners, the mining industry, environmental groups, and all other citizens of the state.

SECOND PLACE—Steven Davis, a student in the Vocational-Technical Program at Northeast Junior College, was a second place winner in the Machine Shop Competition held recently in Jackson, Mississippi, in connection with the State V.I.C.A. Skill Olympics. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Davis of Prentiss County, Steven competed against other junior college students throughout the state.

The Survey will soon conduct a series of public meetings in several cities throughout that part of the state known to contain lignite deposits near the surface. Notice of the date, time, and place of these meetings will be given at a later date.

At other times, comments and questions should be directed to: Mississippi Geological Survey, Division of Mining and Reclamation, 2525 North West Street, Jackson, Miss.

May Is High Blood Pressure Month

May has been named National High Blood Pressure Month. Approximately one in every six Americans is affected by high blood pressure. High blood pressure (hypertension) usually has no symptoms until it is out of control and complications develop. For this reason, detection and immediate treatment are essential.

Northeast Mississippi Hospital is offering free blood pressure screening Thursday, May 10 from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. You are invited to come to the lobby of the hospital and have your blood pressure checked.

At the same time you have your blood pressure checked, you can see the film "Silent Countdown." This film is narrated by Ben Gazzara and follows five persons that have high blood pressure on their separate ways home from work. Each knows his blood pressure is elevated and each has discontinued his treatment for one reason or another. The film will be shown on the hour from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. in the Conference Room at the hospital. Running time is 27 minutes.

To stop treatment for hypertension places the person in danger of complications, such as stroke. High blood pressure must be treated by the physician and treatment must be one day at a time, and every day. There is usually no cure for the disease, but it can be effectively controlled.

Please help Northeast Mississippi Hospital celebrate National Hospital week by participating in blood pressure screening and community education about high blood pressure.
