At Deputy Jeff Jackson

A Sudden Shot In The Dark

Have you ever wondered what it feels like to have someone take a shot at you?

Well, Prentiss County Sheriff's Deputy Jeff Jackson found out early Friday morning and he says that he does not particularly like the feeling.

It happened about 3:30 Friday morning while Deputy Jackson was on routine patrol in the western section of the county.

As he was driving along the Jumpertown-Blackland Road, he spotted a light green Ford 4-wheel drive pickup. Jackson said the pickup did not have a tag and was driving slow.

"It looked like it might have been stopped (in the road)," he said.

Deciding that he should find out what the occupants of the truck were doing out that late at night, the deputy turned on his blue lights to pull the vehicle over.

The pickup started to take off, as if the occupants were going to make a run for it, Jackson said. Then they suddenly stopped.

Deputy Jackson said that he brought his patrol car to a stop and started to get out.

Suddenly, a sliding panel in the rear window of the pickup opened. Someone stuck a gun barrel out the back window and fired one shot at the patrol car.

The bullet passed through the patrol car's front windshield, just above where Deputy Jackson's right shoulder would have been if he was still sitting in the driver's seat.

Jackson said that he immediately "hit the deck."

The truck took off down the road just as soon as the shot was fired, he said. The deputy, who was uninjured, added that he immediately began pursuit of the vehicle, but due to mechanical problems with his patrol car, he was unable to catch the pickup.

Jackson then notified the sheriff's office of the incident and a call was put out to surrounding law enforcement agencies to be on the lookout for a pickup fitting the description of the one Jackson had attempted to stop.

Unfortunately, nothing has turned up on the pickup or its occupants, the deputy said.

Jackson said that this was the first time that anyone had ever shot at him. He has been serving as a law enforcement officer with the Prentiss County Sheriff's Office for about one year.

The deputy asked that if anyone should see a pickup fitting the description of the one he stopped, a light green Ford pickup with 4-wheel drive and no tag to please notify the sheriff's office.

The deputy said that the department has not received any reports of any break-ins or of any vandalizing in the area where the incident occurred.

City's Federal Grants Approved

The second of two Federal grants, totaling $231,000, has been approved for use by the city of Booneville in making improvements in its sewer and water systems in the Sunflower Community, according to U.S. Representative Jamie Whitten.

The first grant, $123,500, was approved earlier this year and is marked for use in improving the water system in the community. It includes the laying of 10,000 linear feet of 6-inch PVC water lines and the installation of 18 fire hydrants.

The second grant, which has just recently been approved, amounts to $107,500 and will be used for sewer system improvements in the same area.

The sewer system project includes the laying of 4,000 linear feet of 8-inch sewer collector lines, plus the laying of an additional 1,200 linear feet of 4-inch sewer collector lines and the installation of 12 manholes.

According to the application filed by the city with HUD's Small Cities Program for the grants, the water system improvements, will benefit 498 persons of which 468 are of low and moderate incomes.

The application also says that the sewer system improvements will benefit approximately 80 persons, 68 of which are of low or moderate incomes.

Standards for enrollment in the meal program require that the participants be 60 years or older, regardless of income bracket. Meeting sites are schools, churches, club houses, public facilities where participants meet daily for recreational activities and hobby enjoyment.

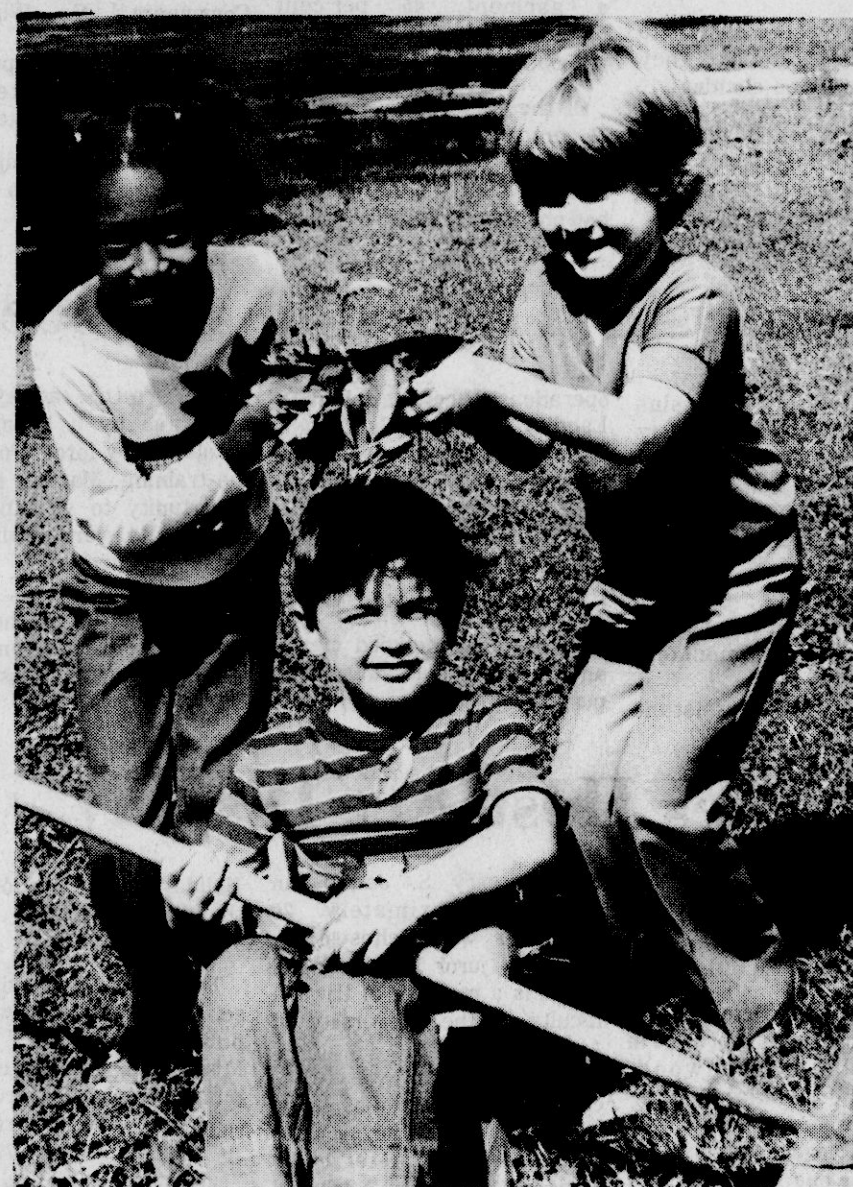

According to Mills the program is funded by Title II of the Older Americans Comprehensive Service Amendments of 1978 and Public Law 95-478. This is the largest government funded elderly feeding program operated by Morrison's.

The southern company also feeds 1,600 senior citizens in other government title funded programs at five separate congregation sites.

According to Hanley, social service activities are also available at the local serving sites. These activities include health and welfare counseling, information and referral, arts

MONDAY NIGHT ACCIDENT—Three persons were treated at the Northeast Mississippi Hospital in Booneville for minor injuries and then released following this accident near the Northeast Junior College on Highway 45 early Monday evening. All three, John Warren, of Route 1, Booneville, his wife Ema and their young son Brad, were passengers in a pickup truck which collided with this Ford LTD driven by Pamela Jean Turner of Sterling, Okla. Ms. Sterling, who was south-bound in her automobile when it collided with the north-bound Warren vehicle, was ticketed for failure to yield right of way, according to the Booneville Police Department.

Senior Citizens Benefit From Program

Some 76 senior citizens in Prentiss County are among the more than 9,000 throughout the state who will benefit from the monthly meals program when Morrison Food Services takes over the program October 1.

John H. Hanley, Area Agency on Aging Director, said the program has 46 meals allocated daily for the East Circle Housing Project and 30 for the Marietta Senior Citizens Center.

The meals will be prepared at the Northeast Mississippi Junior College Cafeteria under the direction of Claude Wright, Unit Production Manager for Morrison's, Inc.

The meal program was recently awarded to Morrison's on contract by the Mississippi Council on Aging, and will begin October 1. According to Everett C. Mills, Senior Vice President of Morrison Food Services, the contract includes all Title III funded elderly meals programs in the state, and will be in operation 252 days a year.

Morrison's will prepare the meals daily in bulk in 13 of its state wide food service accounts, primarily state, county and private junior colleges. Delivery will then be made to a total of 195 senior citizens congregate feeding sites in 81 counties in which the participants meet daily. The meal program will follow the nutritional guidelines of Type A meals.

Standards for enrollment in the meal program require that the participants be 60 years or older, regardless of income bracket. Meeting sites are schools, churches, club houses, public facilities where participants meet daily for recreational activities and hobby enjoyment.

According to Mills the program is funded by Title II of the Older Americans Comprehensive Service Amendments of 1978 and Public Law 95-478. This is the largest government funded elderly feeding program operated by Morrison's.

The southern company also feeds 1,600 senior citizens in other government title funded programs at five separate congregation sites.

According to Hanley, social service activities are also available at the local serving sites. These activities include health and welfare counseling, information and referral, arts

Pair Arrested In Break-In Attempt

Two Booneville juveniles were taken into custody Friday night by the Booneville Police Department in connection with the attempted burglary of a local grocery store.

A spokesman for the department said Monday that the two juveniles were apprehended shortly before midnight Friday near Leon's Grocery, located on East Church Street.

Booneville patrolmen Tony Childers and Eddie Miller made the arrests shortly after discovering a broken window in one of the doors to the business. The patrolmen made the discovery while on routine patrol.

According to the department spokesman, nothing was reported missing from the store.

When apprehended near the building, one of the youth's hands was reported to be bleeding from a cut.

The two suspects have been released to the custody of their parents, pending a hearing before a juvenile court judge.

Unemployment

the year. The number of Prentiss County residents employed declined to 9,910, a loss from July and August 1978.

Smith also commented that the number of jobs in Prentiss County dropped to an overall 6,510, some 40 less than one month ago and 90 less than one year ago. The monthly increase was experienced in nonmanufacturing employment while the yearly decrease was noted in manufacturing.

The estimated civilian labor force for the four-county area of Alcorn, Prentiss, Tiptah, and Tishomingo experienced a decrease of 590 from the month of August but indicated a major increase of 2,890 from one year ago. August's unemployment rate reflected both monthly and yearly decreases. The number of individuals employed in the area declined 430 for the month but rose some 3,710 from the previous year. The current rate of unemployment for the four-county area, estimated to be 4.3 percent of the civilian labor force, was three-tenths of a percent below the July figure and 2.3 percent below that of August 1978. The rates of unemployment for the other counties in the area were estimated as follows: Alcorn-

5.7 percent, Tiptah-4.6 percent and Tishomingo-3.2 percent.

The number of area establishment based jobs was estimated to be 33,060 in August, down 140 from last month but above the figure of one year ago by 2,130. This monthly decline was in manufacturing employment where small job losses were experienced in several industry groups. The large increase over one year ago was found primarily in non-manufacturing employment with Construction and Government contributing the major part of this gain.

Booneville Mayor Charles Crabb (center) is shown signing a proclamation declaring Constitution Week in the city of Booneville. The proclamation urges all Booneville citizens to pay special attention to the Federal Constitution and the advantages of American Citizenship. Shown with the Mayor are Mrs. Webster Cleveland, Jr., (left), regent of the Natchez Trace Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR), and Mrs. O.C. Robinson, Constitution Week Chairman.

Buying Habits Researched

A study was recently conducted at a Prentiss County High School to determine the buying habits of local teenage consumers, relating to clothing purchases.

Forty-eight male and 54 female students from Jumpertown High School, ranging in age from 13-19, participated in the study. The results showed that 70 percent of the students make their own clothing purchases. Those who make their own purchases obtain the money from various sources: 10 percent use their allowances, 50 percent use money obtained by working and 40 percent use money obtained from parents specifically for clothing.

Students were asked to estimate the amount they spend monthly on clothing:

10 percent spent under $10.00
51 percent spend $10.00-25.00
29 percent spend $25.00-50.00
10 percent spent over $50.00

When asked how much consideration they give to a clothing article before making a purchase, the response was:

8 percent give no consideration, they buy on impulse, 49 percent give some consideration, and
43 percent give a great amount of consideration to the purchase.

Thirty-eight percent of the students care for their own clothing, while 48 percent of the students parents care for their clothing. Sixteen percent said both they and a parent care for the clothing.

When asked if they read the care labels before purchasing a garment, 45 percent responded yes and 55 percent responded no.

Of the students responding, 95 percent had made clothing purchases that they were unhappy with. Only 5 percent had not. When questioned as to why they were unhappy with the purchase; 57 percent were unhappy with the fit, 21 percent were unhappy with the fabric, 6 percent were unhappy with the method of cleaning the article, and 14 percent were unhappy with the performance of the article when cleaned. 2 percent were unhappy with the article for other reasons.

The questionnaire was developed by Judith Jumper Wigginton, home economics teacher at Jumpertown, for use in a research project she is writing for graduate credit from the University of Mississippi. The project is entitled "Textiles for Teenage Consumers." Ms. Wigginton would like to thank principal Jerry Kuykendall, teachers Bill Ward and Kay Stacy and the Students of Jumpertown for their co-operation in conducting the study.

Sypniewski Trains In Greece

Marine Capt. Aloysius Sypniewski, son of Kazimierz and Leokadia Sypniewski of 109 Oak Drive, and whose wife, Peggy, is the daughter of Lee R. and Louise Sherrill of 109 Colonial Drive, all of Booneville, Miss., recently participated in an amphibious exercise at Strimonikos, Greece.

He is the assistant operations officer of Battalion Landing Team One Slant Eight (BLT 1/8), based at Camp Lejeune, N.C. His unit is currently deployed to the Mediterranean Sea with the U.S. 6th Fleet.

Training during the week-long exercise included beach and helicopter assaults. The purpose of the exercise was to reinforce a U.S. tactic facing an attack by a hypothetical revolutionary force. Following the training, Marines had the opportunity to visit ports in Greece, Italy and Spain.

A 1970 graduate of the University of Maine, Orono, Maine, with a Bachelor of Science degree, Sypniewski joined the Marine Corps in July 1970.

Libraries Host Art Display

Seven public libraries in Mississippi will host an art exhibit of paintings by Mississippi Art Colony members from October 1979 through April 1980. Libraries in Indianola, Greenwood, Clarksdale, Oakland, Pontotoc, Kosciusko and Yazoo City will each display the exhibit for one month.

The Mississippi Art Colony is a group of practicing artists who meet biannually for painting workshops. Paintings included in the exhibit were selected during the workshop held September 26-30, 1979 at Camp Henry St. Jacobs in Utica. Approximately 20 paintings were chosen by workshop juror Frank Engle. Engle is a member of the art faculty of the University of Alabama.

The traveling exhibit, coordinated by the Mississippi Library Commission, includes purchase awards presented by Deposit Guaranty National Bank, Commercial Bank and Trust Company of Laurel, Citizens Bank and Trust Company of Belzoni, and the Coca-Cola Bottling Company of Laurel. The tour also includes recipients of awards from Holiday Inn of McComb and the Colony Award, Best of Workshop.

The art tour is the sixth in a series of tours that will visit public libraries across Mississippi. A total of thirty public libraries have participated in the tour from May 1977 to September 1979.

The Mississippi Art Colony workshop is made possible through the Conference Programs of the Mississippi Art Commission, a state agency, and the National Endowment for the Arts, a federal agency.

Heathcock Completes Training

FORT KNOX, Ky.—Pvt. Bobby G. Heathcock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earnest A. Heathcock, Route 7, Booneville, Miss., recently completed training as an armor crewman at Fort Knox, Ky.

The training was conducted under the One Station Unit Training (OSUT) program, which combines basic combat training and advanced individual training into one 13-week period.

During the course, students received training in the duties of a tank crewman, including firing the tank's armament and small weapons. Instruction was also given in field radio operations, map reading, and tank maintenance and repair.

Five FBLA Members

Attend State Seminar

Five members of the Prentiss County Chapter of the Future Business Leaders of America (FBLA) from the Prentiss County Vocational Technical School attended the Mississippi FBLA Planning-Training Seminar held recently in Jackson.

Danita Smith and Tim Horton, co-presidents of the local club, Donna Jumper and Denise Horn, co-vice presidents, and Parliamentarian Darrell Grimes attended the seminar.

After returning to Booneville, they reported to their fellow club members that many important questions concerning the future of the FBLA were discussed at the seminar.

During the first meeting, which was under the direction of state club president Sid Lambert and Mrs. Connie MacMillan, communication was discussed. The group was then divided into smaller groups for further discussion of the topic. Horton and Darrell Grimes made reports from the small groups to the entire group.

The second meeting was also lead by Mrs. MacMillan. During her program on Self-image and Projecting It, she gave some very helpful hints for the Future Business Leaders, the Prentiss County students reported.

In the third meeting, the state officers and the local officers met and discussed goals for the 1980-81 FBLA Chapter. The officers discussed many fund raising projects, many promotional projects, but most of all, they discussed recruiting more members.

Lambert also announced during the meeting that National FBLA week is February 12-18 and discussed ways to promote it.

In the fourth and final meeting, parliamentary procedure was discussed. Mrs. MacMillan told the assembled students that correct procedure should always be used just as it is in the business world. "After all," she said, "we are Future Business Leaders."

At the conclusion of the seminar, some helpful material which can be used to the advantage of the Prentiss County FBLA Chapter were handed out, the local club officers said.

He is a 1979 graduate of Baldwyn High School.

BIBLE QUESTION BOX

QUESTION: Mr. Hogland what is the "Law of sin and death" as mentioned in Rom. 8:14?

WARD HOGLAND

ANSWER: In this text you will notice three laws. First, the law of the spirit of life; second, the law of sin and death; third, the law of Moses. Some have argued that the "Law of sin and death" was the Law of Moses. However, this is not correct. It is true that the law of Moses could not save from sin and impart life. The law of spirit of life, the gospel, makes one free from the law of sin and death. What the law (the law of Moses) could not do, God sent his Son to do through the gospel of Christ. So one can see the Law of Moses could not make one free from sin. The "Law of sin and death" is the rule of sin in the lives of people. The gospel makes us free from the "Law of sin and death." If the law of sin and death is the same as the law of Moses, Paul would be saying the Law of Moses cannot make us free from the law of Moses! The gospel of Christ is God's power to save the soul (Rom. 1:16). The law of Moses has been nailed to the cross (Col. 3:16).

BUILDING A NEW STREET—The section of Third Street from Washington Street to the Kellwood Company is currently undergoing complete renovation. When completed, there will be a new street, new sidewalks, new curbs, new gutters and new sewer lines. The $128,865.03 project is being jointly funded by the city and the Federal Urban Aid System. The city's portion of the funding is 30 percent of the total, or $38,659.51. Work on the project was begun in the later part of August by the contractor, Strange Construction Company. It is estimated that it will take about 160 working days to complete the job. Booneville Mayor Charles Crabb said that the city hopes to eventually refurbish the roadway all the way to George E. Allen Drive when the funding becomes available.

Local Retired Teachers Hear Dr. Prince

The Prentiss County Retired Teachers met in the George E. Allen Library Thursday Sept. 20, at 10 o'clock. Mr. Travis Supt. of the Tupelo Schools. McCharin introduced the speaker, Dr. Julian Prince, Having been a classroom teacher as well as a principal for many years. Dr. Prince could relate to the teachers as he compared the school situations and problems thirty years ago to the present time. "The basic nature of children has not changed," Dr. Prince said, "But the opportunities for self-destruction with drugs, alcohol, and cars are so great today."

He then centered his talk around an imaginary wheel of five parts representing the factors that determine the educational outcome of a pupil: the home, the community, the school, the teacher, and the personality of each child.

During the business session, Mrs. Macon Griffith, who is community affairs chairperson, announced that a Blood Pressure Clinic will be set up in the Peoples Bank on Oct. 3, and will be open to the public.

While the group ate and fellowshiped together, Mr. Billy McCoy, representative elect, sincerely thanked everyone for their support, and promised his very best when he goes to Jackson.

John C. Stennis

REPORT TO MISSISSIPPIANS

The Senate has misplaced its priorities in even considering at this time a resolution which would do away with the Electoral College and provide for the direct popular election of the President and Vice President. Matters of far greater interest and importance to the people are: awaiting action.

The Electoral College system has stood the test of time and many challenges for more than 175 years. It was the result of a compromise between the large and small states which has worked well to preserve our union of states concept.

This proposed constitutional amendment goes straight to the heart of our federal system and could do great harm to it. We have already seen far too many of the once solid walls of federal-state relations breached and torn down.

Passage of this amendment would dilute and weaken the electoral role of the smaller states since under the electoral college system each state, regardless of size, has one electoral vote for each of its U.S. Senators and Representatives.

If this amendment were adopted, a candidate would carry two or three large states by a large margin and lose all the remaining states by a small margin and still be elected. That means you could have a candidate elected with purely regional interests and backgrounds.

No electoral method is perfect, but the chief executives produced by our system match any other in the world. It has produced many great Presidents and few poor ones. We should leave well enough alone.

There are other matters which are of far greater concern and importance to the nation and the people than is this amendment. One of these is the soaring inflation which is ravaging the country. This is grinding the people down, depleting their savings, and limiting their purchasing power. It is creating real hardship in many, many cases.

We in the Congress could better serve the people by addressing ourselves to this inflation problem. One of the ways which we can do this is to amend the Constitution to require a balanced federal budget and put the country on a pay-as-you-go basis.

Eyes On Mississippi—

“Waiting For The Other Shoe To Drop”

By BILL MINOR

Columnist

JACKSON, MISS.—Somehow, until recently, Mississippians have never thought in terms of their state administration being corrupt. Now they are wondering if anybody in state government is honest.

The spectre of seeing criminal activity laid at the doorstep of the governor's office has become real and present in the administration of Gov. Cliff Finch. Whether Finch himself will ever be charged with any specific acts is, of course, rank speculation at the moment.

It's evident from the indictment of Finch's former administrative aide Bob Perry concerning the handling of the $35 million emergency CETA job funds in June 1977, to which the Finch people gave the code name, "Operation Pine Tree," that government investigators are already looking at the governor's personal involvement in the CETA boondoggle.

More indictments are expected to come out of the CETA episode. Whether or not this is where the shoe will drop on Finch is not clear.

Persons formerly associated with the Finch administration say there are other areas of vulnerability which could bring him to bar. One is Finch's "colonel's fund," through which upwards of $1.2 to $1.5 million is believed to have been funnelled since his election in 1975. Sources say the federal Internal Revenue Service is already engaged in an investigation of what happened to the money donated by the more than 7000 civilian colonels appointed by Finch.

How all of this is going to affect the current governor's race is a fascinating adjunct to this unusual political year. William Winter had started out on a strong anti-corruption campaign when he entered the race in June, and evidently the Democratic voters believed he would do a better job at cleaning up government than several of his Democratic opponents, who were saying somewhat the same thing.

Now Republican Gil Carmichael grabs a hold of the issue and demands that Governor Finch resign, obviously hoping that he can create an embarrassment for Winter since Finch and Winter are members of the same party.

There's one irony in Carmichael's present position. Even though he had not been one of Richard Nixon's favorites, Carmichael defended Nixon at the end and said he should not have resigned.

Mississippians had always assumed that their elected state officials and their appointees, although they may not be the smartest people around, were nevertheless honest. One thing that always seemed to discourage stealing at the state level there was not much unattached money floating around.

But now, with the advent of federal aid funnelled through the governor's office, it's a different picture. And when federal funds are brought in by the bushel basket as they have been by Finch, the temptation seems to have been even greater to play fast and loose with the money.

Amazingly, in a span of 30 years, no person working for state government in Mississippi other than a lowly woman clerk caught kiting checks in the State Tax Commission had ever been indicted or convicted for dipping into till Highway Director E.L. Boteler convicted three years ago in a $150,000 bizarre embezzlement scheme, was the first state government official to fall. Then powerful State Sen. Bill Burgin was next. Now Bob Perry seems next.

Strangely, all three—Boteler, Burgin and Perry—held very high, trusted positions in the Mississippi Legislature beforehand. Yet, the legislature has always indignantly defended its ethical standards, even while resisting compliance with a State Code of Ethics.

Whether or not Mississippi, which has watched with amazement neighboring Louisiana's corruption, has had the most honest persons in state government all these years, nobody will ever know. But that was before Watergate, and a much more critical press, and things have changed.

TWO KINDS OF PEOPLE

There are two kinds of people on earth today.
Just two kinds of people, no more, I say.
Not the good and the bad, but 'tis well understood,
The good are half bad and the bad are half good.

Not the happy and sad, for the swift flying years
Bring each man his laughter and each man his tears.
Not the rich and the poor, for to count a man's wealth
You must first know the state of his conscience and health.

Not the humble and proud, for in life's busy span
Who puts on vain airs is not content just to stand.
No! The two kinds of people on earth I mean
Are the people who lift, and the people who lean.

Wherever you go you will find the world's masses
Are ever divided in just these two classes.
And strangely enough, you will find too, I wean,
There is only one lifter to twenty who lean.

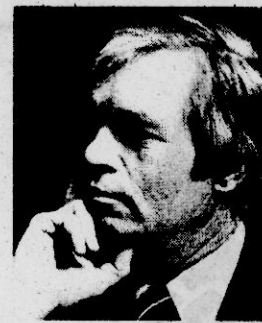

This one question I ask, Are you easing the load
Of over taxed lifters who toll down the road?
Or are you a leaner who lets other hear
Your portion of worry and labor and care?

SPECIAL REPORT:

Disaster Relief Top Priority

Several hundred thousand Mississippians have been trying to get back to normal after Hurricane Frederic hit a three-state area of the Gulf Coast earlier this month.

I have directed my staff here in Washington and in Mississippi to give top priority to helping state and local officials, and those citizens suffering damage from the Hurricane. I have personally conferred with the federal disaster relief officials responsible for administering the various programs Congress has authorized and funded to cope with such emergencies.

As many of you may have seen, Senator Stennis and I met with the President and the Governor on the Gulf Coast, and I have been in contact with other members of our congressional delegation and various civil defense and disaster relief officials to help coordinate the overall recovery effort.

Disaster relief centers have been activated by federal and state officials in George, Harrison and Jackson Counties to process applications and help solve problems related to the Hurricane and its aftermath.

As you know, the White House declared 14 counties eligible for disaster assistance as a result of the Hurricane. This area is roughly the southeastern quarter of the state, from the Gulf Coast back to the Meridian and Laurel areas.

I have dispatched my mobile office and staff members from our state office to the disaster area to assist local officials and citizens in any way possible and to let me know of any special problems which might develop, and which might require special attention here in Washington.

One of the most pressing problems for the areas affected by the Hurricane was digging out from under the debris, fallen trees and limbs, and other wreckage blocking roads and knocking down power lines. In fact, the restoration of essential services such as electric power and water, and clearing vital transportation routes has taken several days. And there is still much work to be done.

Hurricane Frederic, of course, is the second major natural disaster to hit our state in five months.

In April, the Easter flood forced thousands of families from their homes, and caused a great deal of property loss and misery from the Columbia area in the northeast to Columbia near the Louisiana line. At one time, 400,000 acres of valuable farm land were flooded, creating havoc in our planting season and the agricultural economy.

We have been waging a two-pronged legislative battle in Congress this session to help provide disaster relief now and in the future for victims of such devastation as that wrought by the flood and Hurricane. We succeeded in re-enacting earlier this year the disaster relief program administered by the Small Business Administration, and pocket vetoed by the White House last October.

In fact, my amendment to lower interest rates to one percent, from three percent, lost by a narrow margin on the Senate floor, with strenuous opposition from the President and several senior members and key chairmen of the Senate.

On the eve of the Hurricane hitting our state, we secured Senate passage of an expanded and vastly-improved federal crop insurance program to help farmers insure themselves against losses due to such natural disasters as floods, fire, hail, wind or related weather disasters.

As a member of the Senate Agriculture Committee, I was among those who helped draft and pass this important farm legislation. During committee consideration of this crop insurance bill, I succeeded in having included a provision for prevented planting payments, to help farmers who are forced to plant another crop in the middle of planting season recover some of their loss. This has not been possible under the present law.

I know those involved in farming and otherwise concerned with the agricultural economy of our state will be interested to know that we were able to defeat several crippling amendments on the Senate floor and pass this very important bill. We are now awaiting action by the House of Representatives, which is working on similar legislation.

The people of Mississippi have proved time and again their unmatched capacity to overcome hardship and disaster. This time we will, do it again by helping each other and by helping ourselves, with sensitive support from our government.

Visiting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bilbo Moore last weekend were Mrs. Zera Hayden, Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Brumbley all of Memphis, Mrs. Mary Spencer of Tupelo and Hang Nguyen of Corinth.

Wasted Opportunity—Ruakin once said that when we fail to praise a man who deserves praise, two sad things happen; we run a chance of driving him from the right road for want of encouragement, and we deprive ourselves of one of the very happiest of our privileges, the privilege of rewarding labor that deserves a reward. We regret the continued illness of Mr. Fred Rogers. Let's keep up our praying for him and his family.

Librarian

The fifth graders have put a lot of time and thought into their study of safety practices and their posters could serve as a quick review for adults.

Posters that were winners in their contest are on display in the Allen Library's children's area. You will enjoy seeing them.

A popular spot with some of the young people is the corner of comics. The library does not buy or check out these books, but has an area set up with containers for comic books to be exchanged, one of your own for one from the peg-board. Many boys and girls come in, find a quiet and comfortable corner, and do their reading in the library.

Current magazines for both young people and adults are used in the library reading areas, but there is quite a good supply of older magazines which the library has received as gifts and of which it has more than one copy that can be checked out in the same way as other materials. The staff appreciates being able to offer this service through the generosity of library users and invites you to make use of it.

Prentiss Countians who responded to the needs of victims of Hurricane Frederick are to be highly commended. May this spirit of compassion continue.

Mr. Earl Kennedy has not been feeling as well lately.

Mr. and Mrs. Beal Coats spent a few days last week with Mrs. Wayne Coats in Mt. Juliet, Tn. They wanted to be of help and comfort to her in her hours of loneliness and grief.

Mrs. Jodie Barnes had heart surgery in St. Joseph East the first of the week. Her room no. is 534 in this hospital in Memphis.

Get-well wishes are extended to Jodie, to Peggy Pannell, to Dalton Ward who had surgery in North Mississippi Medical Center last week, and to all shut-ins.

I'm sure everyone has enjoyed the bright sunshine after so much rain. Let's hope "Indian Summer," stays with us.

Kenneth and Jackie Hutchison are entertaining a little daughter, Beverly Denise. She arrived Sept. 19, at North Mississippi Medical Center in Tupelo. Congratulations, Kenny and Jackie! They now have two boys and two girls.

The Larry Long family are now worshipping with the Hillcrest Church in Baldwin. They live closer to Hillcrest than to Oak Ridge; we miss them so very much!

We welcome another new member to our club, "The Bull" unit 37. We are always proud to have anyone join us. Our club has always tried to help in every way that is possible contrary to what some rumors that have been circulated. The Northeast Mississippi C.B. Club is the oldest C.B. Club that is still in full operation in this area and the members working together is what it's all about.

Happy birthday to "Ole Blue," "Fury III," "Muskat," and "Little Wrecker." Hope each of you have a nice day and have many more happy years to look forward too.

The Northeast C.B. Club is going to have a yard sale on October 6 at the community center in city park from 7 p.m. til 4 p.m. Anyone having anything to donate to the sale may carry it to "Upholstery Man."

Several of our members have been on the sick list again this week. "Sparrowhawk," spent a week in Big M-home for few days, "King" is in Veterans Hospital in Big M-possibly have back surgery sometime this week, "Round Lady," spent Friday night in Tupelo hospital, "Brass Monkey," has been in coronary unit here, but is in a room now. Several others had colds, but sure hope everyone is feeling better.

We may have to have someone teach a few ladies where things go in the home. That lady that won a bushel of apples started fixing her coffee pot up at the river Sunday morning and instead of putting pot on stove she put it in the refrigerator. My! My!

Thursday night, September 27, at 7:00 p.m. at City Hall is the meeting for the handicapped. Any persons interested is urged to please attend this meeting.

"Little Princess," had a false alarm on night last week. "Queen," rushed her to Tupelo, but the doctor said no not yet.

Happy Anniversary to "Hilltopper," and "Lady Hilltopper." Hope you have a nice day a have many more wonderful years together.

Saturday night, October 6, is our regular social at the community center. It will be at 6:00 on account of going to Carbon Hill on Sun. Oct. 7 for coffeebreak. It will be pot luck, so everyone please come early because the "Bear Creek Boys," are going to entertain awhile and we'll go home early in order to make the break on Sunday.

Sunday, October 7, at the National Guard Armory in Caron Hill, Ala., will be their annual coffeebreak jamboree. 1st Prize-Browning Golden Eagles Mark IV; 2nd prize-$300 cash; 3rd prize-$200 cash.

Every club member that can attend be getting those uniforms ready. Also all Junior Club members are urged to attend because they give a trophy for the largest junior club in dress. We will leave around 6:30 or 7:00 and stop and eat breakfast. "Upholstery Man" has tickets.

very beautifully decorated cake. Many words of appreciation were spoken to the pastor and his family as the members and visitors enjoyed a delightful hour of fellowship.

Friday night, September 14, Mrs. Melvin Johnsey, Jr. was co-hostess with Mrs. John Weatherbee of Rienzi, Route 3 when they entertained a group of friends with a shower honoring Mrs. Milles Cox a lovely assortment of dainty and useful gifts were presented to Mrs. Cox who graciously expressed her appreciation. Several games were conducted by Mrs. Donnie Weatherbee.

The hostesses served appropriately decorated cakes, toasted nuts and lime sherbert punch. Those attending from Rienzi included Mrs. Johnsey, Mrs. David Potts, Mrs. Bill Crow, Mrs. Noble Williams and Mr. Viola Presley.

Mitchell Isbell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Isbell, is reported to be much improved. He is a patient in the Magnolia Hospital in Corinth.

Bro. and Mrs. James H. Moore and Mr. and Mrs. Milton Bishop have been in Selmer, Tenn., this weekend due to the death of a nephew of Bro. Moore.

Mrs. Mollie Palmer is at home after being in the Northeast Mississippi Hospital in Booneville for several days, a host of friends joins in get well wishes for Mrs. Palmer.

Mr. and Mrs. Billy Crow had all their family at home Sunday night as they observed the first birthday of their grandson, James Kevin Crow of Corinth.

Members of the WMU circle of the Rienzi Baptist Church honored two of their fellow churchmembers, Ms. Nellie Roach and Mr. Ben Massengill with a white Bible service. The couple will exchange wedding vows, Saturday night, September 29. The Director of the UMU, Mrs. William Perry, conducted the impressive candlelight service with members taking part. Mrs. Perry also presented the white Bible. Mrs. Irb Benjamin was organist. Buddy Johnsey sang "Oh, Perfect Love," accompanied by Mrs. Jerry Palmer. Mr. William Perry, read a scripture selection, gave some spiritual thoughts and led in the benediction.

Afterwards all present were invited to the fellowship hall where Mrs. E.M. Furtick's college and career age Sunday School class sponsored a shower. The refreshment table was draped with a natural color lace cloth. Serving refreshments were Sheila Roateu, Lisa Cox, Brenda and Rita Johnson and Myra Massengill Hamblin. A very beautiful arrangement of blue silk flowers centered the table. Special guests included Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Massengill, the parents of Ben, also his grandmother, Mrs. Ella Massengill and two aunts, Mrs. Lawrence Gallaher and Mrs. Frank Eldridge. Members of Nellie's family were unable to attend due to illness and to prior engagements. The number of exciting gifts to be opened and shared in admiration by all those present, together with the good wishes showered on Nellie and Ben made it a truly happy event.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Bishop were in Corinth Sunday to attend the funeral service of Mr. Lane Caldwell.

Miss Gay Armstrong enjoyed a trip to Memphis over the weekend visiting with friends and attending the mid-South fair.

County Agent's Reports

September is the month when a large percentage of the fall seeding of cool season forages is done. This includes cool season perennials such as fescue and white and red clover. Also, much of the ryegrass and cereal grains is seeded during September.

Tall fescue should be seeded with a high germinating seed at 12 to 15 pounds per acre between September 1 and November 1. The best combination with fescue for north Mississippi is 3 pounds of white clover or 6 to 8 pounds of red clover or a combination of these two.

Established fescue not clipped this fall needs to be mowed. Fall mowed fescue will regrow more rapidly, have higher quality and allow more legume growth than unclipped fescue.

Soil test to determine fertilizer needs. Soils have a medium to high level of fertility usually require small amounts of phosphate and potash for establishment and require only 60 to 70 pounds each of P2O5 and K2O per acre for maintenance unless forage is removed for hay. When beginning with a low level of soil fertility, these rates may need to be doubled.

Nitrogen should be used only on grass without a clover stand of 40 percent or more. Improved white clover will fix up to 180 pounds of nitrogen per acre per year, while red clover can fix up to 110 pounds of nitrogen. These legumes in pasture improve the quality as compared to grass grown alone.

Forage legumes require inoculation, the process of mixing legume seed with the correct legume inoculant (bacteria) before seeding. The bacteria form nodules on the roots where they live and change atmospheric nitrogen into usable form. A "sticker" supplement is helpful in sticking large amounts of inoculant on the seed and for protecting the nodule bacteria until the seed germinate. These products are commercially available.

A large amount of ryegrass, wheat, oats and rye is planted in September. On prepared land, 30 to 40 pounds of ryegrass seed per acre are sufficient. If a small grain is mixed with the ryegrass, 30 pounds of ryegrass plus 90 pounds of cereal grain per acre are needed. Crimson clover at 15 pounds, arrowleaf clover at 10 pounds or subterranean clover at 20 pounds per acre can be added if a winter annual legume is desired. Make sure legume seed are inoculated with the specifically required nitrogen fixing bacteria. Cotton harvesting will soon begin in earnest, and with about 1 million acres available for harvest, there will be some problems. However, you can help ease this situation by making preparations now.

One problem is weedy turnrows. Turnrows need to be cleaned up, but in a way that will leave the soil firm. Disking is not recommended this late in the season. It will cause pickers to mire down if turnrows are wet. The best approach to this problem is use of a contact herbicide. Karmex, Lanex, Probe, Bladex, Lorox, Cotoran or Caparol all will do a good job. You probably have leftover herbicides you can use.

VA Questions And Answers

Q—What is the maximum amount I can borrow on a VA guaranteed loan? I have been told I can borrow four times the $25,000 guaranty.

A—The maximum loan which may be made is limited to the purchase price or the appraised value of the property, whichever is less. However, some lenders, as a matter of policy, restrict the loan amount to four times the amount of a veteran's available entitlement. The VA will guarantee up to 60 percent of the loan, with a maximum guaranty of up to $25,000.

Q—Is there a nation-wide toll-free telephone number veterans can call to get information from the Veterans Administration?

A—VA has no nation-wide number but there are VA regional offices in each state and all have toll-free numbers. Look in the telephone book white pages under United States Government, Veterans Administration.

Q—I am in college as a GI Bill student. If I receive a failing grade in a course, can I repeat it and still receive educational benefits?

A—Any course in which a veteran receives a failing grade is not considered successfully completed. Therefore, the course may be repeated and benefits will be paid.

Q—If a veteran is incarcerated at the time he is scheduled for a compensation exam is his claim disallowed until he can report to a VA facility for his exam?

A—Normally the VA will have a VA physician examine the veteran at the prison or arrange for an examination by a fee basis physician.

Q—I have an opportunity to purchase a four unit apartment building. May I use my VA loan guaranty entitlement to purchase this building?

A—Yes. You may purchase the property on a VA loan provided you meet all requirements and plan to occupy one of the units as your home.

Q—I am receiving a non-service connected pension. My wife died in June. There have been no other changes in my dependency or income status. Must I report social security paid her up to the time of her death?

A—Yes. However, you should show the cost of her illness and burial if you paid for it yourself. This is an allowable exclusion which serves to reduce your countable income for VA purposes.

State's Young Leaders Named Delegates

Forty-five of the state's outstanding young leaders have been named as delegates to the Mississippi Economic Council's sixth annual Leadership Mississippi Seminar scheduled for October 2-3 in Jackson.

The delegates were selected from some 200 nominations received from members, chambers of commerce, and local civic leaders by the leadership Mississippi Committee chaired by James Carr, a Jackson businessman.

"Mississippi-It Will Be What We Make It" has been selected as the theme of the seminar," said Carr. "We have an excellent program for the Leadership delegates, and we believe the information they will be exposed to will encourage them to take a greater part in public affairs."

The delegates are T.E. Walker, Sr., Ackerman; Wayne L. Hengen, Biloxi;

Joseph A. Fernald, Brookhaven; Monte Ladner and Karen D. Smith, Carthage; Gene Ayers, Cleveland; Richard Aukerman, Columbus; Mike P. Sturdivant, Jr., Cruger; Thomas C. Keith, Jr., Decatur; W. Wayne Drinkwater, Jr., Greenville; Don Case, John R. Pittman, and Shirley G. Rice, Greenwood.

Claudia E. Perley and L. Wayne Tisdale, Gulfport; Rex E. Kelly and John M. Tatum, Jr., Hattiesburg; John Deal, Kathryn Hester, John F. Hurley, Jerry S. Lee, and Albert Simmons, Jackson; W.A. Taylor III, Louisville; Keith Starrett, Magnolia; Jack O. Coppenbarger and William H. Smith III, Mendenhall; and C. Jerome Kittrell, Meridian.

Gerry Gilmer and Larry Templeton, Mississippi State; Bruce J. Bellande and Brent E. McMahan, Oxford; Willie Simmons, Parchman; Edward R. Jones, Pascagoula; Alan L.

Dukes and Donald L. Kilgore, Philadelphia; Henry Hollifield, Prentiss; H. Lamar Rodman, Jr., and Charles Tackett, Southaven; E. Robinson McGraw, Tupelo; and W. Owen Cook, Jr., Yazoo City. University students selected are Timothy Carpenter,

University of Mississippi; Janet Culliver, Mississippi State University; Michael G. Goodwin, University of Southern Mississippi; Suzanne LaForge, Delta State University; and Richard S. Porter, Jr., Jackson State University.

"The hopes of Mississippi are in its young leaders," said Carr. "That is the reason MEC enacted this program six years ago—to identify these emerging leaders and encourage them to become involved in public affairs."

Vocational Home Economics Expands Scope

Vocational home economics no longer consists of just stitching and stewing. The home economics programs sponsored by the Vocational and Technical Division of the State Department of Education (SDE) have changed with the times.

Though food preparation and clothing construction are still parts of the program, the major emphasis is on other areas. Socio-economic conditions have changed greatly in recent years and home economics programs have changed to meet the needs of the people.

Another reason for the change in the programs is the changes in the law. The most recent law, Public Law 94-482, mandates the teaching of consumer education; promotion of nutritional knowledge and food use; management of resources such as energy conservation; and parenthood education.

"Parenthood education or parenting is one of the most important parts of home economics programs being taught today," said Ida Ballard, vocational home economics supervisor, SDE. "Rearing children who are physically and emotionally healthy begins with informed, healthy and caring parents."

According to Ballard, parenting has always been a part of the instruction in home economics programs, but the request for more parenthood education courses has increased in the last few years.

"We would not dream of applying for a highly skilled job without first preparing for it, either by attending college or by taking some other training," said Ballard. "Yet, many adolescents and young adults become parents each day with no preparation. There is just no such thing as automatic parenthood. It is learned."

Having a child changes one's lifestyle and Ballard feels that it is easier if the education process is handled prior to the birth of the child. "Education of both the mother and father is extremely important," she said.

The fundamental core of parenting is the emotional nurturing of the child. This includes affection, child-parent relationships, guidance of behavior, and establishment of ethical and moral values. Parenting also includes health and physical care of a child; prenatal and postnatal care; as well as providing food, clothing and shelter.

In the 1977-78 school year, 7,640 students were enrolled in parenting or family living classes in Mississippi. Of the students enrolled, 2,925 were males. Many groups of people are reached by the vocational home economics programs offered by the SDE including the aged, young children, school-age parents, single parents, handicapped persons and educationally disadvantaged persons.

Programs are taught in high schools, area vocational schools and junior colleges in state. Last year a total of 45,698 students were enrolled in vocational home economics courses.

According to Ballard, another reason for the importance of teaching parenting is the increase of adolescent pregnancy in America today. About one out of every five births in this country is to a teen-age mother and nine out of ten teen-age mothers keep their babies.

"We must help prepare adolescents for the job of parenthood," said Ballard, "and in many instances the high school is the last opportunity for parenthood education. We are trying to reach and teach teen-agers in ways that will make a difference."

Parenting is taught as a one year course or semester course, depending on the needs of the students in each school district. Parenting courses are offered as electives in almost every school in Mississippi.

"Most of us were fortunate to have loving, understanding, consistent parents," said Ballard, "but some children are not so fortunate. We tend to rear our children as we were reared—right or wrong. We need to learn how to parent."

ICG Begins New Study

A vice president of the Illinois Central Gulf railroad last week told members of a task force opposing abandonment of an ICG branch line which serves northeast Mississippi that it is beginning a study of the feasibility of continued operation of the line that may well result in the filing of a petition for abandonment by next spring.

Gerald Stuckey, representing the railroad, cited the railroad's overall losses as reasons for proposed abandonment of lesser used rail lines in the state and attempted to persuade the group which met Monday at Pontotoc Inn to accept the fact that the railroad is a business under the free enterprise system and cannot continue to operate without a profit.

The rail spokesman used figures for the railroad conglomerate as a whole to picture heavy losses, and did not discuss the relative merits of the branch line serving northeast Mississippi from Bemis, Tennessee, to near Ackerman, Mississippi, except to say the roadbed was in bad condition and ICG could not afford to rehabilitate the line but soon would initiate a feasibility study.

This writer asked Stuckey if more hopper cars would be available to area farmers this year than last when one Pontotoc grain elevator alone received only one-third of the grain cars it requested for harvest shipments. The railroad official replied that he could not be optimistic that more would be available than a year ago despite the fact that the railroad now has 800 new hopper cars. He decried the 'equal distribution' requirement of the Interstate Commerce Commission as a problem in meeting localized railcar needs especially during harvest crunch situations.

The opposition group, consisting of northeast Mississippi business, industrial, and farm leaders, listened to Stuckey's presentation with courteous restraint in expressing some of the deeper convictions that seemed to permeate the meeting that the railroad was too interested in profit, apparently disinclined toward public service, and had little concern for the effects abandonment would have on the area economy.

The task force headed by the mayors of four area county seat towns held a planning session after Stuckey's departure from the room, and presented information by a Tennessee group that in recent years purchased a derelict short line railroad abandoned by its parent line. Various businessmen involved in the Tennessee venture described how the private group purchased the line for scrap value and proceeded to rehabilitate the roadbed and equipment that today is providing a viable service to area businesses, particularly in the harvest of forest products, and beginning to show a profit to the small rail line.

A feasibility study was authorized by the task force group by a private firm with expertise and experience in similar undertakings.

Discussions were held of several government programs which may apply to rehabilitation of the railroad line in the interest of the welfare of the local economy.

It appeared from statements by business, industrial and farm groups that there is more than adequate business along the northeast line to make it a profitable local operation.

The question remains—who will rehabilitate and run the needed branch line in the future—ICG or another railroad line through purchase? Or, will business and farm groups have their century old iron horse shot out from beneath them and instead be saddled with higher transportation costs forced on them by less energy efficient truck lines?

Notes From Your Home Economist

By CLAIRE T. ROSS
Extension Home Economist

Feeding a family is expensive! And food prices continue to rise. The U.S. Department of Agriculture estimates a 10 percent rise in food prices. The truth is scary but, with increasing costs of processing, including handling, transportation and marketing, the poor weather and of course, inflation, there's only one way for prices to go up! But there is hope. And you can meet these culprits head-on, and win, with wise food selection, careful planning and sensible shopping.

The major problem in getting a balanced meal on the table is the cost of protein. Government sources say that a whopping one-third of the food dollar is spent on protein.

But there is some very good news, even in the face of statistics--eggs. Always an excellent protein buy, eggs can provide you with much needed relief for a strained budget. Eggs supply complete high-quality protein at a relatively low cost. For example, when you buy a dozen large eggs (that's 1-1/2 pounds) for 90 cents, you're paying only 60 cents a pound. The projected price of eggs shows only a slight rise of 4 percent for 1979 while other foods are expected to increase as much as 18 percent or more.

You may be saying, "Okay, low cost is really great. But will my family like eggs as a main dish? Are they filling, versatile, nutritious, quick and easy to fix?" The answer to all these questions is a resounding "Yes!" Imagine delicious main dishes like omelets, quiches, casseroles and simple, fast and inexpensive skillet suppers--all made with eggs. The possibilities are endless!

Poach eggs in simmering soup for a super meal. Use diluted condensed tomato, cream of mushroom or celery soup. Serve in soup bowls or place eggs on top of cooked rice or noodles and spoon soup-sauce over all. Accompany your easy but elegant meal with a green vegetable and tossed for fruit salad.

Any food that's not quite enough for a full meal can be easily stretched! when you scramble it with eggs or enclose it in an omelet or quiche. Any of these dishes is a great choice for the day you clean the refrigerator, because scrambled eggs, omelets, quiches or souffles are perfect vehicles for leftovers. Accompany your entree with a simple salad for a tasty make-do meal.

Classy, easy-to-do and different describes this baked combination of eggs, cheese and toast. It's perfect for a special supper or company brunch, sauced with elegant (but surprisingly easy) Hollandaise Sauce.

GOURMET BAKED EGGS

4 slices toast, cubed; 1 can (4-1/2 oz.) deviled ham; 1/4 cup catsup; 8 eggs; Salt; Pepper; 1/2 cup (2oz.) shredder Cheddar cheese; Corn flakes, optional; Easy Hollandaise Sauce, optional

Butter four 9-1/2 oz. custard cups or individual baking dishes. Divide toast cubes among cups. Combine deviled ham and catsup. Spoon about 3 tablespoons mixture over toast cubes in cups. Carefully slip 2 eggs into each cup. Season with salt and pepper. Sprinkle with cheese. If desired, garnish with corn flakes. Place custard cups on baking sheet in preheated 325 degree F. oven until eggs are desired degree of doneness, about 20 to 25 minutes. Serve with Easy Hollandaise Sauce, if desired. 4 servings.

For the Easy Hollandaise Sauce, call the Extension Office at 728-5631.

Touch-A-Matic Phone Now Available Locally

A telephone that can store up to 32 telephone numbers in electronic memory and dial them automatically by the touch of a single button is now being offered to local customers by South Central Bell.

Bell's Touch-a-matic telephone-the phone with a built-in memory is available both in Touch-Tone and rotary dialing and comes in two different models.

The Touch-a-matic 32 has a capacity for storing up to 32 telephone numbers and is generally recommended for businesses. The Touch-a-matic 16 can store up to 16 numbers and is ideal for home use as well as for business use.

Touch-a-matic telephones also have a "Last-Number-Dialed" memory button which will recall the last number you dialed-especially convenient if you get a busy signal or must immediately call someone back.

"The Touch-a-matic telephone has obvious advantages," said Bob Bartley local Manager for South Central Bell. "It saves time by speeding the calling process because, to place a call, you push only one button rather than dial seven or more digits. The Touch-a-matic also improves dialing accuracy."

Because of these features, Bartley said the Touch-a-matic has several practical applications.

"For instance, busy professional people-such as doctors, dentists, and attorneys-could have a secretary program all incoming calls requiring a callback into a Touch-a-matic phone. Then, when the professional sits down to return his calls, he presses one button per call.

"The Touch-a-matic 16 in the home," said Bartley, "can also serve as a security device when programmed with emergency numbers, and in a crisis situation could even save someone's life."

Colored stickers come with each Touch-a-matic 16 so that selected numbers-for the police or fire departments, for example-can be color coded. Use of the stickers makes it easy to teach small children which buttons to press in an emergency.

The Touch-a-matic can also make telephone calling much easier for some handicapped persons, particularly those with visual impairments or motor difficulties.

"The Touch-a-matic is really a product of computer-age technology and we're proud to offer it in this area," Bartley concluded.

News From The ASCS

By C.E. CALVERT
County Executive Director
Farmers Expand
Storage Space

Funds are still available for farmers who wish to build additional facilities or to expand their present storage structures. Loans are also available for building high-moisture forage and silage storage space and solar grain drying systems. Adequate on-farm storage and drying facilities provide farmers with greater crop handling and marketing flexibility at harvest time. Farmers can reduce field losses by harvesting when the crop is ready, and can store crops in good condition until prices rise.

ASCS will loan farmers up to $50,000 on structures adequate to store two years' crops, with 15 percent down and 10.5 percent interest. Loan payment terms allow for a maximum of seven equal annual installments over a period of eight years.

To qualify for a farm facility loan, a farmer must grow one or more crops of barley, corn, dry edible beans, flaxseed, grain sorghum, oats, peanuts, rice, rye, soybeans, sunflower seed, wheat and high moisture forage.

Borrowers must provide adequate security to protect the Commodity Credit Corporation's interest.

USDA Foresees Another
Record Farm
Export Year

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) predicts that fiscal year 1979 will show the greatest agricultural export total ever achieved--at least $32 billion--nearly $5 billion more than last year's record.

With some 128 million tons of U.S. commodities scheduled for shipment to foreign customers, USDA also foresees a major breakthrough in the volume of farm exports.

The increased export activity will be good for the economy and for farm income. Farmers depend on foreign markets as an outlet for much of their production, with more than one-fifth of all cash receipts from farm marketings coming from exports. Growth in U.S. agriculture over the past 10 years has been largely based on exports. A high level of export trade helps to hold down costs of domestic farm programs by decreasing the need for production adjustments, and the extra income from exports increases buying power of farmers in the domestic economy.

Farm exports have contributed a net surplus in the U.S. agricultural trade of more than $10 billion each year for the past five years, according to USDA. This contribution has come at a time when the price for imported oil has been rising and non-agricultural trade has been in deficit. The balance of payments has been supported in a major way through farm exports.

You Can Help Control Your Health Care Costs

Mississippi physicians are concerned about rising health care costs. Some cost factors are the unavoidable result of inflation. There are, however, some things you can do as a patient to help save on your own health care costs.

The Mississippi State Medical Association offers these suggestions:

-Keep a good medical reference book handy. Common sense and a good reference book may answer minor problems. Such a volume may help you decide when to call your physician.

-Get a personal or family physician. A "primary care" physician takes care of the whole body. It's worthwhile to find such a doctor when you're well.

-Use the emergency room for emergencies. Use of the hospital emergency room can be expensive. The cost is usually two or three times that of the doctor's office. Many conditions can wait for regular office hours.

-Ask for consultation if you are in doubt. If you want further evaluation of a recommended treatment or surgery, ask your doctor to arrange a consultation with a second physician. A confirmation, while adding cost, may give reassurance. If other options appear, you will have the recommendations to weigh.

-Don't press for tests and x-rays. Your age, sex and general health may make some tests worthwhile; others perhaps are unnecessary. Let your doctor decide.

-Choose hospitalization only when necessary. Go to the hospital only when advocated by your doctor. Don't insist. Some people believe inpatient care is "free" because private insurance or the government will pay. This is a mistaken idea, since costs must be passed on as higher premiums and or taxes. Also, whenever possible, it's money-saving to have tests done before you go to the hospital.

-Check fees and prices in advance. Physicians' fees vary for many reasons. Your doctor should be happy to discuss his charges with you. Or you may visit first with his office personnel. You should check hospital rates and prescription prices, as well. They vary from place to place.

-An ounce of prevention will help. Manage your life and that of your family by using good judgment. This means appropriate nutrition, rest, exercise, and the avoidance of health-damaging habits such as smoking, excessive drinking or the improper use of medications. You have the ability to prevent many medical bills.

County Forester's Report

By JOHN STUART
County Forester

While the impact of wood energy production on our Nation's energy budget may not be highly significant nationally, it could play a very important role locally and regionally.

Wood is not the Nation's panacea for energy problems. According to scientists at the Forestry Products Laboratory, if all the harvesting residues and all the unused residues from primary manufacturing plants were used for energy, they would provide about 2.2 quadrillion Btu's or about 3 percent of the Nation's energy needs. If all the rough, rotten, and salvable dead trees are included approximately 5 percent of the Nation's energy needs could be supplied. If one adds wood waste from secondary manufacturing plants, urban wood waste, biomass production, etc. the percentage increases still further.

It is almost impossible to predict the impact on the national energy budget if energy wood were harvested from our commercial forests as a competing product. For example, in highly timbered areas such as the South and the West, wood could have a tremendous impact on regional energy budgets. This new "energy wood" product could be in the form of total trees chips, total tree hogged fuel, highly specialized chips for various types of burners, or compressed wood pellets.

While heavy demands for energy wood do not now exist, there are indications that such demands could develop. Machinery manufacturers have reported being behind in filling orders for wood burning equipment. The wood using industry and many other industries, such as textiles, are switching from fossil fuels to wood. Greater numbers of sawmills, perhaps hundreds, have switched from natural gas and oil to dry wood waste infiring their dry kilns.

Many wood using industries also produce steam from wet wood waste such as sawdust and bark. Some plants generate their own electricity. Feasibility studies are now being made for industries which will produce wood energy products such as steam, wood energy chips, wood energy pellets, etc.

Several universities and other institutes are studying the feasibility of using wood fuel. There is also evidence that numerous home owners are installing wood burning stoves and fireplaces. Firewood now bring $100 per cord in many urban areas. Numerous meetings and seminars on wood energy have been held throughout the country and have drawn large audiences.

Should heavy demand develop for energy wood, one can easily visualize both problems and opportunities for the forest manager. With high values for the new forest product and heavy demands, forest managers could encounter alrivate timber cutting practices such as clearcutting on steep slopes, erodible soils, etc. However, such high values and heavy demands will probably offer the forest manager many more opportunities than problems. For example, hundreds of thousands of acres of upland low grade hardwoods in the Appalachians, the Ozarks, and other areas could be utilized.

This is not to say that all hardwoods in these areas are low grade, but the markets are presently weak or non-existent for pulpwood-size material. The costs of timber stand improvement and site preparation could be reduced. Logging slash from the West and other areas could be converted to energy-and reduce the fire hazard as well. These thoughts were taken from the Forest Products Utilization Bulletin of September 1978.

MUW Offers New Degree Programs

COLUMBUS—Three career-oriented degree programs, including a paralegal studies major, are being developed at Mississippi University for Women.

Paralegal studies, a new major in The W's social science department, will "offer students an opportunity to receive an education that is well-rounded and at the same time one that prepares her for a career as a lawyer's assistant," according to Joe Portera, M.U.W.'s director of extended studies.

He cited existing demand for paralegals in law firms, real estate, insurance companies, banks and county government as a major reason for the addition of the major.

Paralegal courses, covering such topics as corporate law and family law, will be offered next semester at the university.

In addition, Dr. Thrath C. Curry, dean of the M.U.W. School of Home Economics, announced the development of two master's of science degree programs with a major in family and human development and a major in clothing, textiles and merchandising.

She noted that both master's degree programs are being added in response to interest expressed by persons in the home economics field.

According to Dr. Curry, the family and human development major could lead graduates to university-level teaching positions or administrative and staff positions in institutions such as nursing homes and family planning clinics.

Friends Of The Arts Seeks To Expand Its Base

"Whether you're an artist or just a part of an audience, we believe there is much to be gained by forming a united voice for the arts in Mississippi," said Mrs. E. Grady Jolly, Jr., of Jackson, secretary of the board.

According to Mrs. Jolly, the Friends evolved from a loosely organized network of individuals throughout the state who joined together several times in support (and sometimes defense!) of the Mississippi Arts Commission's annual budget requests from the state legislature.

"After a few fairly successful efforts, consisting mostly of letter writing campaigns, we realized a need existed for a continuing organization promoting the arts in general," Mrs. Jolly continued.

"People sometimes think of the arts as elitist, but they need not be. The arts are frequently familiar achievements that provide us personal pleasure, bridge time and distance and cultures and generations, and enrich our lives, such as singing, guitar-picking, storytelling," she continued.

"Whatever the discipline, all of the arts open doors to new experiences. If you've ever built a sandcastle, then you know something about the way a potter or a sculptor uses his hands. And if you've ever sung in the shower," Mrs. Jolly laughs, "then its likely you can appreciate a disciplined voice, whether its singing hymns or jingles of arias."

In the coming year, in addition to the statewide promotion campaign, the Friends of the Arts in Mississippi hope to increase their numbers and develop a broad base of support across the state, and to coordinate a legislative advocacy effort culminating in a statewide Arts day in Jackson on behalf of the Mississippi Arts Commission's budget request for fiscal year 1981.

They'll kick the year off with a First Annual "Be A Friend" luncheon meeting in Jackson on Wednesday, September 26, at 11:30 at LeFleurs Convention Center. Guest speaker will be James Backus, executive director of the American Arts Alliance in Washington, a national policy-development and advocacy organization representing professional art museums, orchestras, opera, dance and theatre companies to the White House, the Congress, and federal agencies.

For more information on Friends of the Arts in Mississippi, write P.O. Box 1582, Jackson, MS 39205.

"Who, me?" the half-turning businessman, briefcase in hand, seems to be saying from the top left corner of their letterhead. "Yes, you," says the clown who closes their television spot to the rousing refrain of a Sousa march.

Their slogan is "If you've ever tapped your toe...If you've ever sung in the shower. If you've ever built a sandcastle...You're a Friend of the Arts in Mississippi," and in letterhead, tv and radio spots, billboards and brochures, this newly-organized group of arts supporters is urging all Mississippians to "Be One!"

The multi-media public awareness campaign being launched this week by the Friends of the Arts in Mississippi is designed to remind Mississippians of their rich cultural heritage, according to board president Dr.

John Bettersworth of Starkville, and to build a broad base of support for the fledgling Friends.

Incorporated recently as a non-profit, civic improvement association, Friends of the Arts in Mississippi has as its purpose insuring that the arts become recognized as essential ingredients in the daily lives of all Mississippians, and that they be given a higher place among the priorities of our society, Dr. Bettersworth said.

Its twenty-three member board of directors includes representatives from throughout the state, including Corinth, Cleveland, Greenwood, Gulfport, Greenville, Magnolia, Meridian, Hattiesburg, Laurel, Jackson, Yazoo City, Indianola and Tupelo.

VA Will Open New Office In Jackson

The Jackson Veterans Administration Regional Office is scheduled to open their brand new quarters in the Federal Office Building on Monday, October 1, 1979. The new location will be at 100 West Capitol Street in downtown Jackson. The Veterans Services Office, which takes care of all personal interviews and incoming telephone calls, will be located on the first floor of the building.

All veterans and other VA beneficiaries who have been visiting the Regional Office on Highway 80 West should remember this change of location. Telephone numbers, however, will remain the same.

The VA Medical Center located on East Woodrow Wilson Avenue will not be affected by this change.

A message from Gil

My uncle, Andy Smith, is a retired Highway patrolman, My mother retired from the Welfare Department. It was through them that I first learned of the damage politics does to the operation of state government.

Politics is really the root problem of corruption and inefficiency. Take out the politics, appoint people because they are qualified, and most of the problems will be solved.

In the business world you have to hire competent people or your business will suffer. Mississippi government needs to be run like a business, not a political football.

I've never been part of the old politics that has controlled state government for so long. I have run a successful business. As Governor I won't have an old political machine interfering with your business or meddling with your tax dollars.

That's how you can take politics out of state government.

This time...

Tiger Ducks Paddle Out 6-0 Victory

By LEE GENTRY
Sports Editor

Northeast's Tigers, known over the years as a team with gills, fanned their way to a 6-0 victory over Coahoma Junior College in a juco contest held during a heavy downpour at Tiger Stadium Thursday night.

Not a dry thread in the house. That covers the entire team, coaches, cheerleaders, band, and the 200 plus people that turned out for the swimming battle between the two Tiger teams.

This Week's Choices

Well another week has rolled around and it's once again time to stick our neck out on our prediction chart for this week.

There have been a few upsets thusfar and the course could very well continue this week with some top area games on tap.

As a special feature this week, we have some guest predictors to try to better the prognosticating charts across the area as well as predictions from our sports desk.

We will do this from time to time and are hoping for at least a 65 percent average between the guest pickers and from the sports desk.

Well lets have a go at it:

Everything that could possibly occur (turnover wise) did including six fumbles the Tigers lost during the course of the night.

The Northeast troop, led by Coach Bill Ward, who has played several of these type games in the water, appeared to be the heavy favorites and if the weather had been dry, could have easily handled the Clarksdale team.

The Tigers, who picked up their third win in a row (3-1) substituted backs like one would footballs in the water soaked field. Runningbacks

Mike Williams, Randy Cochran and Butch Ayers accounted for most of the yardage (168 yards rushing) while Robert Codgill and Al Graves combined for the signal calling duties.

The key to the Tiger victory came on the foot of punter Eddie Morman. The Northeast booter amazed the 200 plus fans time and time again with booming punts in the terrible field conditions.

Northeast scored the winning touchdown with 32 seconds left on the clock in the first half. The Tigers, after taking ball possession at their own 41 yard line following a Coahoma punt, struck on the scoring column on a third and eight from the 27 yard line. Codgill fired a 27 yard pass that was tipped twice by Coahoma defenders and Walt Walton caught the deflected pass for the touchdown.

The Tigers held on from there and snuffed all Cohoma's threats. Don't think the excitement stopped there. Time and time again both teams were riddled with turnovers.

The big play of the game came late in the fourth quarter. Northeast has been stopped at the 38 yard line and was forced to punt. The entire attendance knew what Coahoma had in mind-try to block that punt. But Eddie Norman, who kicked extremely well all night long, took a skipped pass from the center that hit the turf (wet on that is) and booted the ball to the Cohoma 33 yard line.

Coahoma had one final shot at the win with only seconds left but the Tigers knocked down a long pass near the endzone as the buzzer sounded to take the six point swimmer's delight.

Coach Bill Ward said he was pleased to win this type ballgame. "We wanted to get the game in if we could," Ward said. "It was the worst field conditions possible but your always glad to win."

The Tigers will hit the road again this week when they travel to the Mississippi Gulf Coast Saturday night before returning home next week Oct.

6 when they host East Mississippi for Homecoming.

Ward Says GC Is 'Awesome' Team

"Awesome"...Those were the words of Northeast Mississippi Junior College head football coach Bill Ward talking about Saturday's upcoming battle with Gulf Coast Junior College.

"You have to call them that," Ward said. "They're a good football in all aspects of the game. They run well, pass well and their defense is tops."

Ward said he expected Coach George Sekul to run a pro 4-3 defense against the Tigers. "They run this alot but we feel like we can move the football against this particular defense," Ward said. "Offensively they will probably run the pro set and alternate it with the Full T we call it."

"They were picked to win the South Conference," Ward continued. "We always know that we're in for a tough game when we face Gulf Coast but our kids are fired up now with three wins in a row and we know they will be up for the game."

Coach Ward said he was especially pleased that the Tigers came out victorious (6-0) over Coahoma in last Thursday night's game held in a heavy down pour.

"I felt like it was better to go ahead and play the game in the rain than to cancel it," Ward said. "Our kids were ready to play Thursday and we would have had to schedule the game for Saturday night and that's just too long to make the players wait to play the football game."

When asked what the turning point of last Thursday's rain battle was, Ward said. "When we scored the six points." It's hard to pick a turning point in that ballgame. They're were just too many mistakes in the game and when we scored the touchdown, we felt like we were one leg up."

Ward added that the Tigers would have to be in top form to beat Gulf Coast but said the Tigers were working on three in a row and it's going to be hard to stop them.

The NE mentor said the Northeast pawmen were in pretty good shape physically and added that there were no additional injuries substaigned in the Coahoma game.

Anderson Takes Two Games From Saltillo

Anderson Junior High School took a Tuesday night football twin-bill from Saltillo with Booneville's seventh grade winning 22-0 while the eighth grade chargers managed an easy 32-6 win.

In seventh grade action, Ben Leach scored two touchdowns while Michael Braddock added one and Rodney McVey and Jody Rone chipped in with the two point conversions.

In eighth grade action, Jeff Harrington scored for the Baby Devils on a 15 yard scamper with Craig Brooks adding the first extra point. Harrington then connected to Carlos Hastings for the second score with Roger Spencer adding the extra point.

Harrington connected again, this time to Gary Pippin for the third score with Richard Stafford adding the extra point and the final six pointer came on a five yard run by Stafford with Craig Brooks getting the point after.

Anderson coach Ken Shackelford said the Baby Devils would play Alcorn Central next Tuesday night at 6 p.m. at The Northeast Mississippi Junior College.

furnished by Coca-Cola U.S.A.

The volleyball games are open to all ages and are promoted and directed by troops 79 and 96 of the Boy Scouts. Individuals who want to play may come by the Mormon Church on George Allen Drive starting at 7:30 p.m. Friday and anytime during the games.

The Volleyball Marathon will end at 8:00 p.m. Saturday

Copeland Now Playing At North Iowa

Danny Ray Copeland, former Booneville High School performer, is now on a football scholarship with North Iowa Area Community College in Mason City Iowa.

Larry Mozack, assistant football coach at NIAC told the Banner-Independent last Friday that Copeland was doing an outstanding job with the team and added that they were extremely pleased to have him on the team.

Copeland has rushed the ball

25 times in three ballgames this year for a 167 yard total and a 6.7 yard per carry average.

He has also run back three punts for 60 yards for a 20 yard average and has a 21.5 yard average on kickoff returns.

Head football coach Jerry Dunbar had this to say about Danny Ray, "We feel like Danny is a top notch runner. He has great potential and has the ability to get the job done."

'Devils Fall To Bulldogs

By LEE GENTRY
Sports Editor

NEW ALBANY—New Albany's Bulldogs scored a single touchdown in the second quarter and added a field goal in the third here last Friday night to take a 10-0 victory over Booneville's Blue Devils in a rivalry matchup at W.P. Daniels Field.

The Devils, now winless in four games this season, played one of their better games of the year. Starting in the first period and continuing through the other three, the Devils marched the football down the Bulldogs' throat but failed to cross the goal line.

Even at the closing seconds of the game Booneville marched on New Albany's door but fell short at the clock's buzzer.

Booneville charged several offensive threats in the ballgame. One came in the third period when quarterback Buddy Hall, who had one of his better nights this season, fired a 54 yard spiral to Bill Groves for a first down deep in New Albany's territory. When things began to look bright for the Devils, an interception followed at the nine yard line to stop the drive.

New Albany lit up the scoreboards in the second quarter for their first score. With 8:03 left before the half, New Albany quarterback Terry Hatch, a 187 pound sophomore, fired a 45 yard pass to Dexter (Spider) Nesbit for the Bulldogs' first and only six pointer of the night. Mickey Basil booted the extra point to give New Albany a 7-0 lead which held till the intermission.

The Blue Devil defense, played exceptional in the first half and stopped the Bulldog corps' offensive machine. Key tackles and key defensive specialties by the Devil machine held New Albany to a single six pointer in the first two frames.

The Bulldogs added their final three points of the night at 4:22 in the third quarter when, after a New Albany drive had again been snuffed by the Devils, Basil split the uprights with a 28 yard field goal for a 10-0 margin.

Booneville came back at em time and time again in the final two quarters. The Devils were marching late in the game on the passing arm of Buddy Hall. With time running out however, the Booneville drive stopped inside the 10 yard line as the clock expired.

Booneville, who without a doubt has one of the toughest schedules in the area, will march on Kossuth's Aggies Friday night.

The game has several things riding on it. (1) The Devils need to score, (2) It's a rivalry game that dates back several years, (3) Kossuth coach James Drewry was a BHS mentor—Also last year's assistant coach Ronnie Jackson is now on the Aggie staff. (4) The Devils want to break the four game losing streak. These are just a few of the interesting topics that will occur tomorrow night the Devils and Aggies collide at the Kossuth Field.

He Always Comes Back For More

White's Pain Don't Stop Him

Booneville's Brad White has never been one to let something as minor as an injury stop him...not when it comes to playing football, that is.

Anyone who followed his high school career as quarterback for the Booneville Blue Devils can attest to that fact.

On more than one occasion, after White had been roughed-up on a play, Coach James Drewry (who has since left Booneville to coach the Kossuth Aggies) would call him over to the sidelines to ask if he was all right. No matter what, Brad would always say that he was okay and ask to be sent back into the game...only to have one of his concerned teammates come up to Coach Drewry a few plays later and tell him that Brad was injured and should be taken out of the game. Only then would Drewry learn the extent of any injuries White might have suffered.

But never did the coach or the players hear White complain or feel sorry for himself. He was always ready to play, no matter what.

Thus, it came as no surprise to his hometown friends and fans that White was determined to play in the Ole Miss-Missouri game in Jackson this past Saturday, even though he had suffered a broken right hand one week before during the first quarter of the game against Memphis State.

In a story in the Sunday sports section of the Memphis Commercial Appeal, Brad was quoted before the Ole Miss-Missouri game as saying, "I figure if I can play three quarters with it (his hand) broken against Memphis State, I don't see why I can't play four against Missouri if I have to."

Listing other injuries he has received thus far in his football career at Ole Miss, the sophomore tackle said, "Well, I've had broken fingers...about four of them, I think. I had a separated shoulder, a problem with my neck, a hyper-extended knee, a hip pointer, a bruised knee, shin splints and I've been knocked out a bunch of times. I'm sure there's something else, but I just don't remember right now."

White wasn't bragging. He said that he does not particularly enjoy getting hurt.

"I guess I'm just at the right place at the wrong time," he said. And that's exactly how he received his broken hand in the first quarter against Memphis State.

"They ran an inside Veer and the wide receiver cracked back on the free safety, so I took the quarterback," he said. "His knee caught me right on the hand. I looked down at my hand and I couldn't even see the knuckle on my index finger, so I knew something bad was wrong. It was hurting pretty bad. It even hurt to walk...just the slightest movement and I could feel the bones hitting together in my hand."

But, true to the Brad White tradition, after a quick trip to the dressing room for further examination and some protective bandaging, he returned to play most of the game.

Echoing what surely must have been Coach Drewry's feelings when White played with the Blue Devils, Ole Miss head coach Steve Sloan said, "He (White) tolerates pain better than most people and he's awful tough. You can hardly get him to come out of a game."

Not only was White's hand broken in the Saturday night game, but it required surgery Sunday afternoon to insert four pins to provide support for the bone structure. The pain from the hand and the orders from the doctors to keep his arm elevated at night caused Brad to miss many hours of sleep.

However, on Monday afternoon White showed his determination to play against Missouri by taking the sling off his arm long enough to do some running while his teammates practiced.

"The running made my hand swell up real bad," he said. "I couldn't sleep at all Monday night."

While his teammates slept, White said he left his room, went downstairs to the film room and reviewed films of the Missouri offense until 1:30 a.m.

"Tuesday I ran about two miles and started throwing a football up in the air and catching it," he said. I got some good medicine to make me sleep Tuesday night and I slept real good."

By time for practice Wednesday, he had discarded the sling completely. By Thursday, he said he was feeling better and was confident his hand could stand the pounding a game might offer. However, he knew he would not get to start in the game because he had missed too much practice.

"I don't know whether I should tell you this or not," White told the reporter from the Memphis paper, "but starting Tuesday night while I was sitting in my room, I started hitting my hand against the bedboard to see what it felt like. It hurt real bad the first night, but I wanted to go ahead and get used to it."

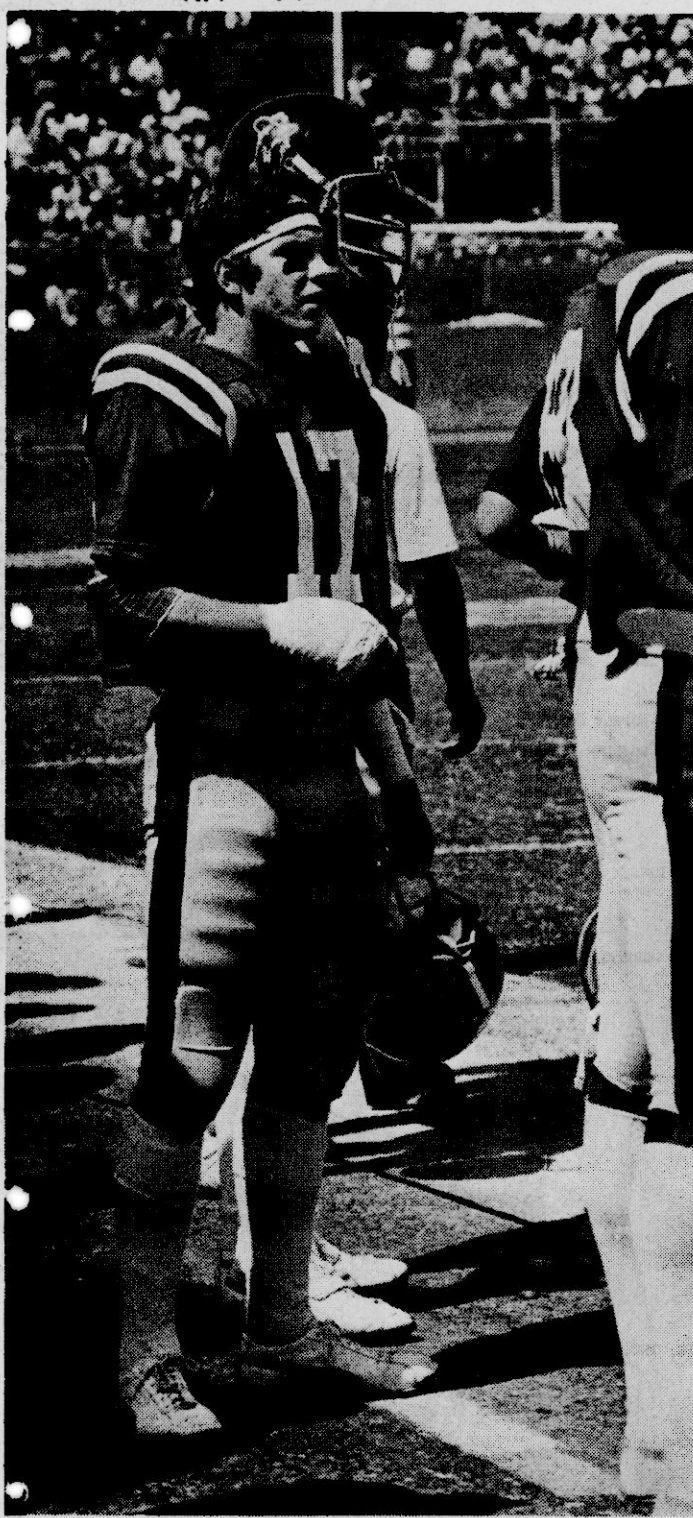

On doctors orders, Brad will have to wear a cast for at least a month. However, because rules do not allow casts to be worn in football games, the doctors will cut it off on Saturdays for the games and wrap his hand in the permitted protective garb so that he can play.

When the game against Missouri began Saturday, no one who knew White was surprised to see him standing on the sidelines, dressed out and ready to play.

Although he spent most of the game on the sidelines, he did get in the game for a few plays. Unfortunately, he came away from the game against Missouri with an even greater hurt than the one he received in the Memphis State game.

Whether or not as a result of his injured hand, he failed to hold onto a Missouri receiver who broke loose for a touchdown.

After the play, as White sat on the Rebels' bench with his head held low in his hands, it was obvious that the missed tackle hurt the young player much more than the injury to his hand had.

'Devils, Aggies Meet For 43RD Time

Booneville's Blue Devils will travel to Kossuth Friday night where the two teams will battle for the 43 time since the series began in 1937.

Since that time, The Devils lead in the series with 28 wins against just 11 losses and there have been three ties.

At home the Devils have won 15, lost 5 and tied 2. The last time Kossuth beat Booneville was in 1961, 47-27. Kossuth holds only one consecutive win streak, that coming in 1950-54.

One of the most one-sided games was played in October of 1945 when Kossuth, led by Rocky Felker's father, Babe, ran Booneville out of Box field 33-0. Booneville would, however, not lose another home game until November 1949.

Booneville and Kossuth also met on October 21, 1938. Both teams were undefeated, Kossuth was coached by J.P. Box who would leave the next year and become an assistant and later head coach at Booneville. The game had such wide area interest that schools in other adjoining towns closed for the day so they could attend. Booneville won 6-0.

Another side light to Friday's game, the Aggie Coach, James Drewry, who was at Booneville 13 years, never lost to Kossuth. His first year, 1965, it was a 13 all tie, and leaving out the one point win for Booneville in 1976. The Devils have won by rather large scores. The biggest score was at Kossuth in 1967. On the first play from scrimmage Bill Breedlove ran 75 yards for a

TD. Booneville scored the first four times they had the ball. It was 27-0 at the end of the first quarter and the final score was 54-0.

In 1978 Booneville won 25-0 with Brad White, BHS quarterback scoring 3 TD's.

Last year, the Devils, behind the scoring of Robert Rowan, Raymond Justice and Mike Triplett, took a 20-6 victory at Tiger Stadium. Rowan scored on a 31 yard run, Justice scored from two yards out and Triplett caught a 25 yard pass from Buddy Hall to account for the Devil scoring.

Makin' It By Hand Makes It Good.

Comin' in for good

TO RAISE MONEY FOR THE PURPOSE OF CONSTRUCTING, RECONSTRUCTING, AND REPAIRING ROADS, HIGHWAYS AND BRIDGES, AND ACQUIRING THE NECESSARY LAND, INCLUDING LAND FOR BUILDING MATERIALS, AND RIGHTS-OF-WAY THEREFOR, WITHIN SUPERVISOR'S DISTRICT NUMBER THREE OF PRENTISS COUNTY, MISSISSIPPI, AND DIRECTING PUBLICATION OF NOTICE OF SUCH INTENTION.

WHEREAS, the Board of Supervisors of Prentiss County, in the State of Mississippi (hereinafter referred to as the "Board"), acting for and on behalf of Supervisor's District Number Three of said County (hereinafter referred to as the "District"), does hereby find, determine, adjudicate, and declare as follows:

1. That it is necessary and in the public interest to issue general obligation bonds of the District in the maximum principal amount of One Hundred Sixty-five Thousand Dollars ($165,000) to raise money for the purpose of constructing, reconstructing, and repairing roads, highways and bridges, and acquiring the necessary land, including land for building materials and rights-of-way therefor, within Supervisor's District Number Three of Prentiss County, Mississippi.

2. That the assessed value of all taxable property within the District, according to the last completed assessment for taxation, is Four Million Eighty-eight Thousand Eight Hundred Sixty-five Dollars ($4,888,865.00); that the District has outstanding bonded indebtedness subject to the ten percent (10 percent) debt limit prescribed by Section 19-9-3, Mississippi Code of 1972, in the amount of Two Hundred Thirty-four Thousand Dollars ($234,000.00); and outstanding bonded and floating indebtedness subject to the fifteen percent (15 percent) debt limit prescribed by Section 19-9-5, Mississippi Code of 1972 (which amount includes the sum set forth above subject to the 10 percent debt limit), in the amount of Two Hundred Thirty-four Thousand Dollars ($234,000.00); that the issuance of the bonds hereinafter proposed to be issued, when added to the outstanding bonded indebtedness of the District, will not result in bonded indebtedness, exclusive of indebtedness not subject to the aforesaid ten percent (10 percent) debt limit, of more than ten percent (10 percent) of the assessed value of taxable property within the District, and will not result in indebtedness, both bonded and floating, exclusive of indebtedness not subject to the aforesaid fifteen percent (15 percent) debt limit, in excess of fifteen percent (15 percent) of the assessed value of taxable property within the District and will not exceed any constitutional or statutory limitation upon indebtedness which may be incurred by the District.

3. That the District is authorized by Sections 19-9-1 through 19-9-3, Mississippi Code of 1972, to issue the bonds hereinafter proposed to be issued for the purpose hereinafter set forth, for which purpose there are no other available funds on hand.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED BY THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF PRENTISS COUNTY, MISSISSIPPI, AS FOLLOWS:

Kudzu Vines May Become A Source Of Energy

A green menacing monster creeps silently towards it prey. Three-pointed feelers protrude in all directions forming a blanket of silent suffocation. Nothing stands in its way: not fire, poison or hopeless attempts by man.

The Creature from the Black Lagoon? The Loch Ness Monster? The Thing that ate New Jersey?

No, kudzu.

Kudzu. The very word sounds sinister. Unkillable. Nasty.

What is kudzu and where did it come from? Kudzu is a vine, a member of the legume family. Its latin name is Pueraria Thunbergiana, almost as long as the vine grows. It sports a delicate lavender flower and millions of green tendrils. For the past 100 years, kudzu has claimed the South as its home.

Following a century of cursing, kudzu is now being viewed in a favorable light. The vine is seen by some as a possible solution to the energy crisis. A researcher at a southern university is studying the possibility that the oriental greenery may provide roughly half the heating value of coal.

Dr. Neil A. Miller, associate professor of biology at Memphis State University, feels the energy potential of kudzu is strong. "Kudzu is a rapidly growing plant, so there is an abundance of it. It contains all of the carbohydrates and hydrocarbons needed to produce the energy. I see no reason why it could not duplicate coal's output--after all, coal is formed from fossilized plant and animal matter," he said.

Dr. Richard W. Lounsbury, professor and chairman of the Memphis State department of geology, is not so sure. "It's too early to know if there is any credence to the energy theories," he said. "If they can find a use for it, that's great. But they have to learn to control it first."

Kudzu was a gift from Japan at our nation's centennial in 1876. The Japanese saw it as a cure for excessive erosion, and it was thought it would serve such a purpose here.

President Franklin Roosevelt had the same idea when he began a massive kudzu campaign in the South in the 1930's. The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service gave away millions of the incessant plants to help curtail the erosion of the dust bowl areas. Unfortunately, kudzu outsmarted its human owners--it not only stopped the soil from eroding, in many cases it also stopped the soil from supporting any other form of plant life.

Lounsbury has fought a lifelong battle against the tenacious vine. "Kudzu is the most rapidly growing plant I have ever seen--it can grow as much as a foot overnight. I have fought my own personal battle against it on my land. You cannot kill it--you can chop, burn, poison--but it always comes back."

The explanation for kudzu's stubborn cling to life is its root system. The main root can grow as large as six inches in width and can grow as deep as seven feet. But that is just the beginning.

"The tendrils are projected horizontally along the ground," said Lounsbury. "Every foot or so the tendril shoots a root of its own into the ground. You would have to destroy each and every root to kill it."

Lounsbury has found what he considers to be the best solution. "If you keep cutting it back before the green leaves can get above ground, the root system may eventually die out. But it is incredibly persistent."

At the Memphis State field station near Shelby Forest, biologists have had some success using a broadleaf killer to control kudzu. "Kudzu can be destroyed, but it takes several years of spraying in the spring," said Miller. "However it is possible to kill kudzu."

In their attempts to deal with kudzu, Southerners have desperately searched for alternative uses for the deadly flora. The most common is an alternative from air conditioning--kudzu provides extensive shading to hot summer porches.

The control of erosion has long been kudzu's claim to fame. The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers uses kudzu at such locations as Sardis Dam in Mississippi for just such a purpose. The city of Vicksburg, Miss., uses the vine to control erosion of the loessial (wind-blown) bluffs.

"It is useful as a deterrent for large scale erosion," said Lounsbury. "But even in these sports engineers have problems keeping kudzu under control."

Miller is skeptical of kudzu's ability to control erosion. "Kudzu dies back in winter, and that's when the heavy rains occur. You may have the coverage of the thick leaves in the summer, but it does not do much good if there is nothing there in the winter. It's like putting a Band-Aid over a dirty cut--the infection will still take place."

Exasperated Southerners have even taken to placing the foliage in a pot. Witness the success of kudzu cookbooks, which provide hundreds of suggestions concerning the potential kudzu delicacy.

"Lately everyone says kudzu is loaded with vitamins and minerals," said Lounsbury. "For a long time people said if you put kudzu outside the cows and pigs would eat it. From my experience, they will eat it only if there is nothing else."

Regardless of the nutritional value or the energy possibilities, one thing remains certain: kudzu kills trees.

From the smallest cherry tree to the mightiest oak. The three-pointed leaves wrap their deadly fingers around the tree until the weight of the layered vines is too great, and the tree comes crashing to a premature death.

"Kudzu is either a curse or a blessing," said Lounsbury. "They say in Georgia you can lie in bed at night and listen to it grow--they tell you not to leave your windows open or it will come inside."

Even in its heralded days of the dust bowls, farmers were wary of its ability. The familiar phrase was "When you plant kudzu, drop it and run."

The fear is not without reason. "I have know people to leave their house and car unattended for the summer and come back to find them covered completely with kudzu," said Lounsbury.

Why is the South particularly blessed by this green quilt? No one is sure, but biologists believe it must prefer a sultry climate. "People from the North are fascinated by it--they want to see pictures of it and find out all about it," said Lounsbury. People have even paid money to see it--as they did when "Kurse of the Kudzu Kreature" played to semi-packed movie houses in the 1950's.

With all its horrors, frustrations and unkept promises, there is an eerie beauty to the plant. There are few people who are not genuinely fascinated by its ability to engulf everything into a scene of green stillness, not unlike figures in a wax museum.

Production Of Forest Lands Must Be Increased

The South's forest industry planted a record 629,370,682 pine and hardwood trees during the 1978-79 planting season, but that's not enough to meet the double-demand for wood and paper products projected for the year 2020, says Southern Forest Institute. "Consumers should be concerned with productivity on independent lands owned by farmers, factory workers, businessmen and housewives—some two million individuals owning 73 percent of the 200-million acres of commercial forestland in the South," says Don Smith, SFI's director of forest resources.

He adds, "Tree-planting efforts on the 18 percent owned by industry is 'intensive' forest management. On the other hand, private, non-industrial lands—too often not managed—are producing at only half their potential."

The U.S. Forest Service reports one-million acres of valuable pine forests lost each year because independent landowners don't regenerate harvested tracts.

Smith says, "many landowners don't understand forest management. Some don't have the capital to invest in a long-term forestry investment. Many have other plans for their land. Too many, however, aren't aware of available assistance."

For example, industry distributed 92,227,229 pine seedlings and 54,900 hardwood seedlings to landowners during the last planting season. State nurseries sold another 200-million seedlings to non-industrial landowners.

Smith warns, "There is, however, a seedling shortage on the horizon. State nurseries aren't receiving adequate funds to expand. Forest companies are rapidly establishing new nurseries in the South, but it takes time to get them into full production. Last year 372,237,126 pine and hardwood seedlings were grown in industry nurseries."

SFI encourages landowners to order seedlings early and to consider other methods for regenerating their lands—for example, under professional guidance, direct seeding a harvested site in much the same way you sow other agricultural crops. Industry direct seeded 52,534 acres last year.

Another method is to leave a few trees standing in a harvested site to allow for "natural" tree regeneration.

Productivity can be increased by planting superior seedlings—trees that grow faster, straighter and taller than normal trees. During the '78-79 planting season, industry planted 296,238,348 "super-trees."

Smith concludes, "Forestry is agriculture in slow-motion. It can earn as much as 10-15 percent return on investment. It's also an investment in improved recreation, wildlife habitat, watershed protection and control or erosion. A simple phone call by an independent landowner can get the ball rolling."

SFI recommends landowners contact local forest companies, state forestry agencies, extension service offices, or private, consulting forestry firms for advice. They can make recommendations and help find financial assistance through government cost-share programs.

By National Guard— September Named Appreciation Month

Seven years ago a movement was started to develop a better understanding of the National Guard and Reserve among civilian employers who have Reservists on their payrolls. This movement took form as the National Committee for Employer Support of the Guard and Reserve (NCESGR). From the start, its main objective has been to obtain voluntary cooperation of employers in developing and promoting personnel policies and practices which smooth the way for employees to participate in the military reserve.

In keeping with this program, the month of September has been officially designated National Employer Appreciation Month by the NCESGR to recognize employers throughout the nation who have pledged their support to their employees who are members of the military reserve components.

"The importance of employer support is keenly felt by our unit members," said Colonel Sidney Tucker, Commander, 40th Ordnance Group of Mississippi. "The job performance of Guardsmen and Reservists is very often determined by the pressure or support they receive at home and at their civilian job. If, for example, they feel their participation in the Reserve is harming their chances for promotion in their civilian job, they can't function as a soldier without some reluctance. Employers who voluntarily lend their support to these people are lifting a great weight from them, and it shows up in their attitude toward their military job."

Since the formation of the National Committee in 1972, some 350,000 employers, representing over 60 percent of the work force, have signed voluntary pledges of support. By so doing, they agree: not to reduce or limit job or career opportunities of employees who are members of the Guard or Reserve; grant leaves of absence for military training without sacrifice of vacation time; and make the company's policy known regarding its support.

"When one takes time to look at the composition of the Nation's defense structure and realizes the dependence which is placed on the Guard and Reserve in the event of a future mobilization, it becomes clear that every little bit of support helps," Colonel Tucker said.

"Two problem areas have been recognized by the Committee and are being acted on to improve the effort," Colonel Tucker continued.

"First, increased awareness is needed to gain the support of smaller employers throughout the Nation. Second, more effort must go into working with large corporations to ensure that personnel policies and practices are passed from top level management down to first line supervisors. These two objectives can only be achieved by a 'grass roots' effort. As a single body, the NCESGR simply can't handle all of the local projects directly."

"It's this kind of effort which smooths the way for our citizen-soldiers to take a full and active role in the military programs which are so vital to our Nation's defense," concluded Colonel Tucker. "The support shown by all employers who have signed a voluntary pledge of support is being recognized this month. We owe all of them a large vote of thanks."

Winter Asks For Disaster Aid

Democratic gubernatorial candidate William Winter this week called for permanent and comprehensive Emergency Disaster Aid legislation to assist victims of tornadoes, floods, hurricanes and other natural disasters in the state.

"The property damage caused by Hurricane Frederic, like the devastating flooding along the Pearl River and other rivers this spring demonstrates that Mississippi needs an Emergency Disaster Aid Program to provide immediate financial assistance for needy victims," Winter said. "At present, Mississippi is unable to help homeowners and businessmen quickly and effectively. Mississippi has insufficient permanent disaster legislation."

"When a group of Mississippians suffer through a major natural disaster it requires a special session of the legislature to deal effectively with the problems," Winter noted. "We need permanent disaster legislation which will permit an immediate, effective response from our state government and allow our citizens and businessmen to begin recovery procedures without delay."

"A natural disaster, whether it is caused by a tornado, a flood or a hurricane often has very serious consequences," Winter continued. "These disasters cause disruption and dislocation in many people's lives. Any leadership the state can provide to speed and assist in the recovery process should be exercised. For this reason it is imperative that we have sufficient legislation on the books to call into play whenever a disaster occurs," Winter concluded.

Hospital Association To Sponsor Program

The Mississippi Hospital Association will sponsor a program on hospital accreditation standards October 22-23 at the Holiday Inn in downtown Jackson.

The program is designed for hospital administrators, trustees, chiefs of medical staffs, medical directors and medical records administrators.

The national Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals, headquartered in Chicago, conducts programs nationwide throughout the year.

The faculty includes a physician experienced in the accreditation program, plus members of the JCAH Division of Education and Publications.

The program describes changes in hospital-accreditation procedures and standards relating to the assurance of quality health care. It includes discussion periods as well as plenary lectures.

For additional information, contact James R. Baddley, Vice-President for Education, Mississippi Hospital Association, P.O. Box 16444, Jackson, Mississippi-39206.

THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Love, God's Greatest Gift To Man

By John Wilson

The Bible tells us in Deut. 6:5 "And thou shall love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might." We sing, "Oh, How I love Jesus," but do we show our love to our fellowman? It's very easy for us to love those who love us, but Jesus said in Matt. 5:44 that we are to love our enemies and do good to them who hate us, and to pray for them who despitefully use us. The best way for us to show that we love God is to love those with whom we come in contact each day. In fact, according to 1 John 4:20 if we do not love our brother whom we have seen we cannot love God whom we have not seen.

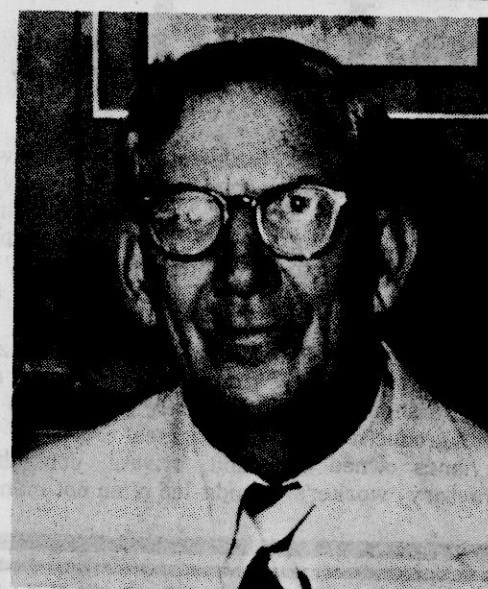

Jesus gave us a new commandment in the New Testament, that we are to love our neighbor as ourselves. If every christian kept this commandment this would be almost heaven on earth.

1 Cor. 13 is called, by many the 'love chapter' of the New Testament. These words which Paul wrote to the Corinthians can well be applied to our own lives today. "And though I speak with the tongues of men, and of angels and have not charity (love); I am become as sounding brass or a tinkling cymbal. And though I have the gift of prophesy, and understand all mysteries and all knowledge; and though I have all faith so as to remove mountains, and have not charity, I am nothing. And though I bestow all my goods to feed the poor, and though I give my body to be burned, and have not charity it profiteth me nothing." We may well assume, from this discourse, by I Paul that nothing will be accomplished in the kingdom of God without love.

God has shown in many ways that he loves us. Two prime examples are found in John 3:16; and Romans 5:8; For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in him should not perish but have everlasting life and For God commendeth his love toward us, in that while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us.

Those who would witness to others about Jesus cannot be effective unless they do it in a spirit of love. If we are to bring those who are lost to the saving knowledge of Jesus we must show them that we are concerned about their souls condition and that we love them. Let us pray that we may show our love for God, our Father, by our love for our fellowman.

Eyewitness Report—

Hurricane Frederick Strikes

By ED BLAKE
Mississippi Farm Bureau

Trying to keep abreast of agriculture's main events sometimes brings this ag reporter into the mainstream of the action—a premise hardly ever more significant than this week as I headed to the southeast corner of Mississippi to report on Hurricane Frederic's epic visit to the state.

Hurricanes and farmlands don't get along very well together so the coverage was slanted perhaps from the outset. But neither do hurricanes and forests or cities make the best mixers.

The radio was describing preparedness and the resident exodus from the coast as I headed southward from Jackson. My original plan was to go down Highway 49 to Gulfport and hence to Pascagoula, Mississippi's next door neighbor to Mobile—calculated landfall of the storm already tagged one of this century's deadliest. The stream of refugees from the pending storm got thicker as I headed south and before reaching Hattiesburg I figured that I would probably get caught in traffic congestion and management later in the day to hinder my movement closest to Pascagoula. So I left the main highway and took a southeasterly course that would put me near or at Pascagoula before Frederic.

All roads were clogged with traffic in their northbound lanes, but before 5:00 p.m. I emerged on U.S. 90 near Gautier and decided to check out the situation in Pascagoula at least while I could before the storm. Besides, all motels to the north seemed full of evacuees.

I checked into Travelers Motor Lodge facing north on U.S. 90 in Pascagoula after questioning the lady at the desk about its elevation above the anticipated tidemark of 15 feet. Assured that it was above tidemark I was given room 230, moved in, and went into the restaurant and sat just inside the huge glass window to watch the developing storm. About a dozen REA trucks were outside on the parking lot and the soon to be busy linemen were packed around the tables eating heartily. I read the paper as I ate, carefully noting significant predictions—particularly comparing Frederic's anticipated velocity with devastating Camille's ten years ago. This was important as I had decided to ride out Frederic there at the Travelers' Lodge so I would be on location Thursday for my post-hurricane coverage—particularly with respect to shipping facilities on the west bank of the Pascagoula River.

Biloxi's mayor Guice had been quoted on the radio as saying that "all hell would break loose about 6:00 p.m.!" I finished my meal after snapping several pictures through the big glass window of the building storm and let myself out of the room which the waitresses already had closed off with a red velvet cord. I was the last patron there.

Room 230 was in the dead center of the horseshoe-shaped complex of the east side of the motel. Beside the door was a narrow, heavy duty window which overlooked the parking lot and office entrance. Mostly on-duty cars passed. The sky darkened and winds already were gusting and rain splashed in all directions. Already I could see Frederic was on schedule. As I attempted to watch TV intermittently with the spectacle outside electricity constantly popped off for a short span and then back on. As darkness came the power outages were more significant as the bedlam thickened outside.

I watched the first 30 minutes of Holocaust—then power went off permanently. Frederic faced my room head-on—the pulsing surges of pressure roaring across U.S. 90, tearing at the canopy beside the office and hence to blast the row of rooms obstructing the rush back to the seas. My car was parked beneath me and my first concern was that it would be struck by the pieces of sheet metal now tearing off from the front canopy and sailing through the air. Each piece as it severed itself flew toward the row of rooms, some striking parked cars and lodging against or beneath them.

First I smelled and felt grit in the room. As I checked my belongings and my hair it was full of gritty plaster and particles of celotex. Hurriedly by flashlight I tried to gather up my belongings to put them back into my suitcase. Too late. Already water was streaming through new cracks in the roof right on top of my bed. The carpet turned mushy with water at every step. I grabbed up my recorder which I had turned on to record sounds of the storm inside the closed room. It was covered with grit but still was running. I snapped it off and into the suitcase to save it from the water now streaming into the room. The pulsing howls of the wind was tearing at the roof over the catwalk outside the rooms. I stood beside the window to note that suddenly there was no longer an overhang over the two rooms to my left as I looked out. Then mine was gone. Next there was a heavy crash and rumble that jolted the foundations of the structure. I heard masonry scudding across the roof. I retreated momentarily to the still enclosed bathroom, but emerged moments later to find my white ceiling—the entire front section of it—had turned black. No, on second look it wasn't there, but I was gazing into the black sky above. I wondered what would go next as I gathered up my suitcase, camera bag and retreated into the bathroom and closed the room for both protection and to shut out some of the roar of the disaster.

I had a customary conference with the Lord as I sat in the bathtub—intending to ride both the first and latter to the first floor level if matters continued to worsen. Sitting in the tub—the plumbing amuck but spilling noisily into an ironically still operating drainage system. I was learning to read each pressure surge, following it to its full intensity and wondering what would go at the next peak.

The lull of the eye finally came—and I grabbed my suitcase, camera bag and found the door still worked and I picked my way onto the catwalk—bedraggled as it was—and down to a lower level. There I ran into others emerging from rooms. I soon saw that my room and its neighbors were in worse shape than the others not facing Frederic's bad breath. I set my gear into a stairwell still intact as motel guests gathered on the first floor level on both sides to discuss their experiences to the moment. Then I heard a voice crying out near my room. I called out and asked if help was needed, and getting an affirmative answer I headed back up with two other men to enter the room next to mine where a black couple was attempting to emerge without a flashlight. The young woman was nearly hysterical and shaking badly as I grabbed her hand and led them outside, down the stairs to the relative safety of the stairwell on the side of the complex.

So far as we could tell no one was hurt, except for two ladies injured by flying glass when the huge window to the restaurant blew out about 7:00 p.m. I had observed the ambulance's arrival and saw one lady jump into it with an overnight bag but didn't learn until then who was hurt.

I found the young black couple was looking to me for guidance. He was a young sailor whose ship, a destroyer, had set out to sea to ride out the storm. But he was scared and admittedly so. We three knew we could not return to our rooms for Act II after the eye. We had to do better. The black woman said there was a laundry room nearby on the first floor level. I set out to check it out and found the floor covered with six inches of water. The young blacks were going where I went so as we prepared to move in, a son of the motel operator appeared and offered his room on the first floor paralleling the counter pressure that would follow. We took him up on the offer and headed in the room just as the loud wail of a National Guard truck was heard and wading guardsmen and police with bullhorns and high powered lights arrived offering a ride to a storm center.

He didn't sound like it was mandatory at first so as we considered the relative risks involved Guard reinforcements arrived a bit more specific about us leaving the wrecked motel. Again the blacks turned to me and asked what I was going to do. I said I was going to the shelter and soon it was apparent that all were voluntarily or involuntarily. All pitched in to board the tall vehicle that already had lost its canvas canopy for the ride through the rebuilding wind and rain to Clay elementary school.

The eye was over just as we arrived and were filed into the corridors already full of refugees. The rest of the night was comparatively dull, but much safer. The school was apparently designed partly with storm safety in mind and the corridors particularly insulated us from the sounds and fury of the storm outside. Once, during the remaining hours of the night a large group filed through vacating a cafeteria room struck by a falling tree where the room was leaking and in danger of disintegrating.

Three pregnant women were among the approximate 350 persons at the school. Shortly before dawn I heard ladies announcing among themselves that the three had been taken to Singing River hospital and one had delivered. The weight and well being of the new baby was discussed and rejoiced over by the voices in the darkness sitting and lying on the floor. I never heard its sex however and still wonder if he or she was named Fred or Fredericia.

It was a slow down from my perch on the clean tile floor, but finally it dawned and moments later after thanking the efficient young lady who with others ran the shelter I stepped outside to walk back to the motel, hoping that my car too had survived so I could be on my way to photograph, interview, and observe Frederic's visit to the area.

The sun was shining as I made my way down to U.S. 90. The businesses were open in a different way—like no roofs or fronts and their merchandise spilling out onto the streets. I stopped to help a man pull a big limb out of the street. Back at the motel I was a bit shocked at the mangling it had taken. As I approached many cars stood in the water where they were parked the night before and many had been banged up by flying debris. Many had shattered windows from the pressure build-up. Finally I got close enough to see my grey Ford. It looked like a pink goose-covered with pink insulation from the motel. No windows were broken. I waded to it, cranked up, and slowly backed out over pieces of sheet metal and drove out to the parking lot of a bowling alley next door that was demolished. I scraped the pink fleece off my grey again goose and reparked it so I could return and make pictures of the motel including my pathetic room.

My first visit and the only one I shall relate in this article was the West Bank Port facilities which included Ingalls Shipyards, the grain elevator which buys and exports much of Mississippi's soybean crop, and the port warehouses. The large metal warehouses were totally in shambles on the north side—facing Frederic's onslaught. Bales of merchandise from Indonesia were sodden under the sun. A small boat was towing a small ship away from the pier as I filmed the port damage.

And now the good news. The grain elevator which stands like a landmark sentinel on the west bank of the east branch of the Pascagoula River stood largely unscathed. A large mass of blue steel lay beside it the size of several boxcars side by side, and I inquired of an early arriving Dreyfus Corporation official how important the detached piece was. He indicated that it was a comparative trifle and the elevator would be ready for the new crop soybean arrivals which will begin in about two weeks.

Beside the elevator a ship was still berthed, having ridden out the storm at dockside. It had been caught there in the middle of the loading process and elected to remain. It appeared okay.

Police were closely patrolling downtown Pascagoula as I left town for the country. Soon I ran into a National Guard roadblock and had to do it their way—exiting to I-10 and hence to Highway 49 for my return to Jackson. I photographed the damaged roadways and forests and observed communities working together with chainsaws and trucks to clear highways and local roads. Some were removing trees from housetops. On I-10 I was behind a young man who suddenly stopped and crossed the median and disappeared into the weeds taking a short cut to an exploded trailer home—apparently his.

Fiddlers' Convention
Next Month

ATHENS, ALA.—When the 13th Annual Tennessee Valley Old Time Fiddlers' Convention gets underway here at Athens State College on October 5-6 many of the hundreds of grass roots musicians and thousands of fans from throughout the South and beyond who make this yearly pilgrimage will have fulfilled a promise. Over the years this old time music festival has developed into a traditional, down home musical home coming. And the parting words spoken last year were: "I'll see you in Athens in '79."

This event, established in 1966, led the way for the current revival of early rural string music in the South and has become known as the "Granddaddy of Mid-South Fiddlers Conventions."

To satisfy the keen competitive spirit of old time musicians, contests in twelve categories of their kind of music will be judged. Included are four fiddle divisions, guitar, bluegrass and old time banjo, old time and bluegrass bands, harmonica, mandolin and buck dancing. Over $2600.00 in cash prizes plus trophies will go to the winners.

The modern country music sound with the thunder of electricity and drums, is not heard here. Judging rules are designed to permit only genuine acoustic music of yesteryear practiced and perfected on rural front porches and passed down through succeeding generations.

Registration and jam sessions will fill the day Friday, October 5, with special concerts and some of the contests starting at 7 p.m. Registration will resume at 9 a.m. Saturday and contests begin at 10 a.m. and end at 11:30 p.m. The climax of the two-day festival is the great fiddle-off between the junior and senior fiddle champions with the winner crowned "Tennessee Valley Fiddle King."

Arts and crafts to include several exhibits of vintage musical instruments will be on display.

The old time anvil shoot will provide a thunderous salute in honor of traditional fiddling and related music when it kicks off the festivities on Saturday, at 9 a.m. and 6 p.m. The anvil shoot, an almost disappeared early American folk custom of celebration, is made by loading black gunpowder between two heavy blacksmith's anvils and touching off the charge with a fuse. The result is a cannon-like explosion which hurls the top anvil high in the air.

Free camping without hook-ups is available on college grounds. Admission is $2 Friday and $3 Saturday or $4 for both days. Children under 12 admitted free with parents. Contact: Bill Harrison, 305 Stella Drive, Madison, Ala., 35758, (205) 837-4235.

History Symposium
At Ole Miss

UNIVERSITY—Religion, technology, migration, and true Southern womanhood are among topics of The University of Mississippi's 1979 Chancellor's Symposium on Southern History, Oct. 8-9 in the Ole Miss Union Ballroom. Theme for the program, which is open to the public, is "When the South was West: The Old Southwest, 1780-1840." Lectures by leading historians from throughout the U.S. will trace the evolution of the Old Southwest, the area that is now Mississippi, Alabama and Louisiana, into the cotton-producing South. The Chancellor's Symposium on Southern History is co-sponsored by the Ole Miss History Department and the Center for the Study of Southern Culture, and partially funded by the Mississippi Committee for the Humanities.

1,000 RNs Needed In State Now

The Mississippi Hospital Association Society for Auxiliaries will hold its fifth annual educational assembly at the Ramada Inn Coliseum, Jackson, on September 26.

The agenda will include discussions of the MHA program to encourage high-school students to seek careers as hospital nurses.

An MHA survey has shown that there are over 1,000 registered-nurse openings in Mississippi which hospitals would fill if they had applicants.

"We will discuss the role hospital-auxiliary members may be able to play in helping hospitals attract young people to nursing careers," said Mrs. Beverly Gilbert, Jackson, president of the society, in announcing the agenda.

Mrs. Gilbert said members of the 40 hospital auxiliaries affiliated with the society have given "well over 100,000 hours this past year to volunteer duty in hospitals."

She listed the following speakers for the meeting:

Dr. Sarah E. Allison, vice-president for nursing service administration, Mississippi Methodist Hospital and Rehabilitation Center, in Jackson, will talk on "Problem Resolution Between Nursing Personnel and Volunteers."

Gil Magee, coordinator of community services for Mississippi School for the Deaf, will have as his subject "A Greater Dimension in Hospital Services: Treating the Handicapped Patient."

A panel on "Sharing Experiences in Revenue Producing Projects for Auxiliaries," with Mrs. Irene White, Southwest Mississippi Medical Center, McComb, presiding.

A panel on "Show and Tell of Current Auxiliary Projects," with Mrs. Gerry Toney, director of volunteer services, Golden Regional Triangle Medical Center, Columbus, presiding.

Harold Simpson, of Tyler-town, chairman of the legislative committee of the MHA Society for Auxiliaries, will report on current federal and state legislative activities.

Michael Hughes, coordinator of poison-control services at the University of Mississippi Medical Center in Jackson, will talk on life-saving procedures in poison cases.

VA Pension Program Changes

A number of veterans and widows of veterans must soon decide whether they should change to the new Veterans Administration pension law which went into effect January 1, 1979. According to Bill Chittom, Veterans Service Officer for Prentiss County, a veteran or widow who can receive greater benefits under the new law can have the increased amounts paid back to January 1, 1979. Any elections made on or after that date will provide the added benefits only from the time it is received by the VA.

The new pension law provides for automatic increases each June 1 based on the cost of living index. Effective June 1, 1979, a veteran with no dependents is guaranteed an annual income of $3,902. Subtracted from that figure would be any other income which he might have. If he has a dependent wife or child, he is entitled to $5,112 per year. A widow with no children has entitlement to $2,615 per year, less any other income she might have. If she has a dependent child, the annual amount is now $3,425.

Any veteran or widow who is interested may visit their local Veterans Service Officer and discuss their individual entitlement under the new pension law. If a change to the new law will be to their advantage, assistance will be provided to prepare the proper request to the VA. Pensioners already receiving VA benefits under previous laws may change to the new law or remain under their present eligibility, whichever is to their advantage. For additional information, contact your local Veterans Service Officer.
