For Separate School District

Implementation Date Draws Near

By KEN CHRISTIAN
Editor

City school board attorney William Smith said Tuesday he expects no confrontation next week between the city and the county school boards over property rights to the city schools.

Tuesday of next week, July 1, is the date set by the state Education Finance Commission for the Booneville Municipal Separate School District to take effect. However, the fate of the new school system is still in question as the Prentiss County Board of Education has refused to recognize the legal existance of the separate school district.

The county school board has said it will continue to operate all schools in the county next year, including those within the city limits of Booneville.

County school board attorney Donald Franks has said that when the separate school district's trustees ask for the keys to the facilities of the city schools "they will be refused."

However, as of yet, the Banner-Independent knows of no one in authority who has come out in support of the county school board's position.

The Education Finance Commission has contended since the approval of the separate school district in November of last year that the formation of the district was legal. An opinion from state attorney general Bill Allain's office last week said the separate school district was formed according to legal procedures. This week state Superintendent of Education Charles Holladay was reported to have said that, based on the attorney general's opinion, the State Education Department recognizes the Booneville school board as the proper authority to operate the Booneville schools beginning July 1.

Holladay reportedly stated that, after July 1, the state monies slated for the Booneville schools will be sent to the city school board rather than the county school board. He was quoted as saying that, if the county school board refuses to hand over the keys to the city facilities on July 1, the city school board can "change the locks."

The county school board's attorney Tuesday termed Holladay's remarks "utterly irresponsible," and said that the county school board has made no changes to their plans.

Franks said the county school board will "do whatever is necessary to protect the interest of the educable children in the county."

The Prentiss County Concerned Parents' Education Committee has said that they will take no action until they see what takes place after the scheduled date of implementation of the separate school district Tuesday.

The Booneville Unemployed Teachers Association is also interested in what transpires after the implementation date as the teachers still have not signed contracts for 1980-81.

Many of the teachers have applied for unemployment compensation and a determination of whether or not they will be eligible for those benefits is expected this week. The Employment Security Commission is reported to have said that the teachers' applications will be reviewed on an individual basis.

If the teachers are allowed compensation, the Prentiss County School System will

In Prentiss County

Unemployment Increases Again

After a slight decrease during the previous month, the rate of unemployment in Prentiss County began climbing in May to reach 7.0 percent.

That compares to 6.3 percent in April 1980 and 4.1 percent of May one year ago, according to Charles Smith, Employment Service Manager for Prentiss County.

In addition to the increase in unemployment, the number of employed also increased. Smith said the civilian labor force for the county increased from April to May of this year and there was also an increase shown when May 1980 is compared to May 1979.

The number of individuals unemployed in May 1980 stood at 790, while those employed was estimated to be 10,510. The number employed represents an increase of 180 over the April 1980 estimate and 260 over the May 1979 estimate. All categories contributed to these increases in employment, Smith said.

Manufacturing employment, estimated to be 3,100 in the county, showed only minor decreases from last month and last year with the majority of these decreases being noted in durable goods.

Nonmanufacturing employment totaling 3,840 edged up slightly from last month and one year ago.

Smith said the civilian labor force in the four-county area of Alcorn, Prentiss, Tippah, and Tishomingo climbed to 45,800 at mid-May. This is a rise of 630 over the previous month and a rise of 1,750 over the same period one year ago. The number unemployed also rose some 320 over the month and 1,550

Vaccinations Needed By Students

JACKSON--The immunization program for Mississippi's school children will include students in all grades this year.

For the first time, all students will come under the program, according to Dr. Charles Holladay, state superintendent of education. Holladay said every student will be required to have the blue Certificate of Compliance before he or she will be allowed to attend class.

The state superintendent of education said this is especially important for children entering the first grade, seniors and for those who did not attend schools in the state last year, since they may not have the required immunizations.

State Health Officer Dr. Alton Cobb said immunization may be obtained from a private physician or the county health department.

Larry Morgan Named New Principal At New Site

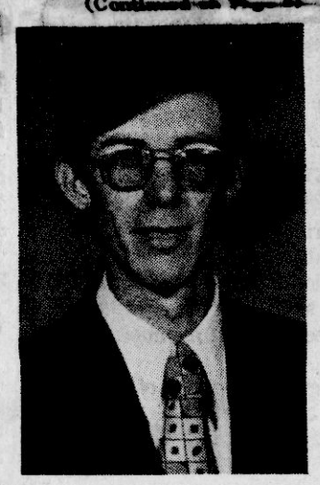

The Prentiss County Board of Education officially announced this week the unanimous selection of Larry W. Morgan as principal of the New Site Attendance Center. Morgan was formerly assistant principal and mathematics instructor at Booneville High School.

In previous action, the board agreed to make the New Site center a school for grades 9-12 beginning with the 1980-81 school year. Students in grades 1-8 will go to Hills Chapel and Marietta attendance centers.

Morgan is a 1964 graduate of Booneville High School and attended Northeast Mississippi Junior College. He graduated from Mississippi State University in 1968 and received his masters degree in Education in 1975.

He holds AAA certification in mathematics and AA certification in school administration. He is presently

The barge began the 225-mile river trip in Chattanooga, arriving at the facility about 4:45 p.m. Saturday.

The value of the reactor components have been estimated at $20 million. It was expected to take about 10 days to unload the components, beginning with the intentional sinking of the barge into the water this past Monday so that the top of the barge would be level with the dock. Operations were to begin Tuesday to transport the components to

Cochran Amendment Adopted By Senate

WASHINGTON–The U.S. Senate has accepted an amendment by Mississippi's Republican Senator Thad Cochran urging the administration to seek an international solution to the Cuban refugee problem.

Cochran's amendment was to the 1981 foreign aid bill being debated on the Senate floor.

He told colleagues the Carter administration should initiate "greater efforts to encourage the participation of other nations in the resettlement and financing of the costs of resettlement of the Cuban refugees."

The Senator noted that while over 100,000 Cuban refugees have poured into the United States, other nations have indicated willingness to accept only about 3,300. He called on the administration to seek help in resettling the Cuban refugees through international organizations such as the United Nations and the Organization of American States.

"We have consistently welcomed more refugees to our shores than any other country in the world," Senator Cochran commented, but added the United States "cannot be expected to shoulder alone what is in actuality a burden for the whole free world to carry."

Senator Cochran contended "the lack of a significant international response may be due, in part, to the administration's policies," which he said the American people perceive to be "badly confused."

He pointed out the sudden influx of Cuban refugees, which totals at least 113,000 as of mid-June, could cost American taxpayers over $380 million and carries "social and economic costs which the American people are unprepared to bear, particularly at this time of economic recession and uncertainty."

His amendment was adopted as the Senate took up the $4.8 billion 1981 foreign aid authorization bill.

The station plans to begin regular commercial operation in early October of this year.

Estimated to be 7.7 percent of the civilian labor force, the area rate of unemployment was up six-tenths of a percent from the April reporting period and some 3.2 percent above one year ago. Employment, estimated at 42,275, also registered gains of 310 and 200 over the month and year respectively.

Manufacturing employment in the four-county area was estimated to be 15,060, which was down from both compariosn periods. Although nonmanufacturing employment at 19,980 reflected a monthly decrease, a yearly rise of 1,270 was experienced.

a temporary storage site about one-half mile away.

Construction of the $2.9 billion nuclear plant began in March 1978 and is about 11 percent complete. The Unit 1 reactor is expected to be on line by April 1986.

TVA officials recently announced that construction on the Unit 2 reactor has been postponed because of lower than expected load demands. It is now scheduled for completion in the early to mid 1990s.

When complete, each of the two reactors should produce 1,375 megawatts, or just over six times more power than Pickwick Dam, a TVA spokesman said.

Conflict Of Interest Complaint Filed

CORINTH–State Senator Theodore Smith of Corinth has filed a complaint with the state Ethics Commission, charging conflict of interest against Corinth City Judge James Dean. Dean also holds a seat on the board of trustees of the Northeast Mississippi Junior College.

Filed by Smith on May 22, the complaint indicated that the two positions held by Dean--judge and trustee member–place him in a position of conflict of interest.

Smith said the attorney general has ruled that the board of trustees of any junior college is a part of the executive branch, while the city judgeship is part of the judicial system.

Although the two have been political foes since Smith defeated Dean for the senate seat in 1967, Smith came to Dean's defense in 1976 when the Alcorn County Board of Supervisors attempted to oust Dean from the college board. Smith reportedly praised the progress made while Dean was serving as president of the college's board of trustees.

Smith reportedly said this week that Dean was not a city judge in 1976 when he came to his defense. However, Dean is reported to have responded by saying that he has been city judge since 1974.

In 1977 the attorney general's office said the Alcorn Board of Supervisors did not have just cause for removing Dean from the college board and he continues to chair that board.

Agricultural Museum Fund Increases

During the past few months more than 1,200 Mississippians have contributed in excess of $217,000 to the Mississippi Agriculture and Forestry Museum Foundation fund raising campaign, according to Commissioner Jim Buck Ross, Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce.

"More donations are coming in steadily," Ross said, "but more are needed to keep the project moving toward completion."

The first phase of the museum, a 40,000 square foot exhibition building, should be completed by early fall.

"An appropriation of $1.5 million by the legislature for construction of the exhibition building will be exhausted soon and another $1.5 million is being sought by the Museum Foundation to fund the exhibits as well as other phases of this worthwhile endeavor," Ross explained.

Designed to be educational as well as interesting, the museum will serve as a living laboratory of Mississippi's rural past and a helpful guide for future planning. Students and other groups will find it invaluable as they look backward into the rural history of the state.

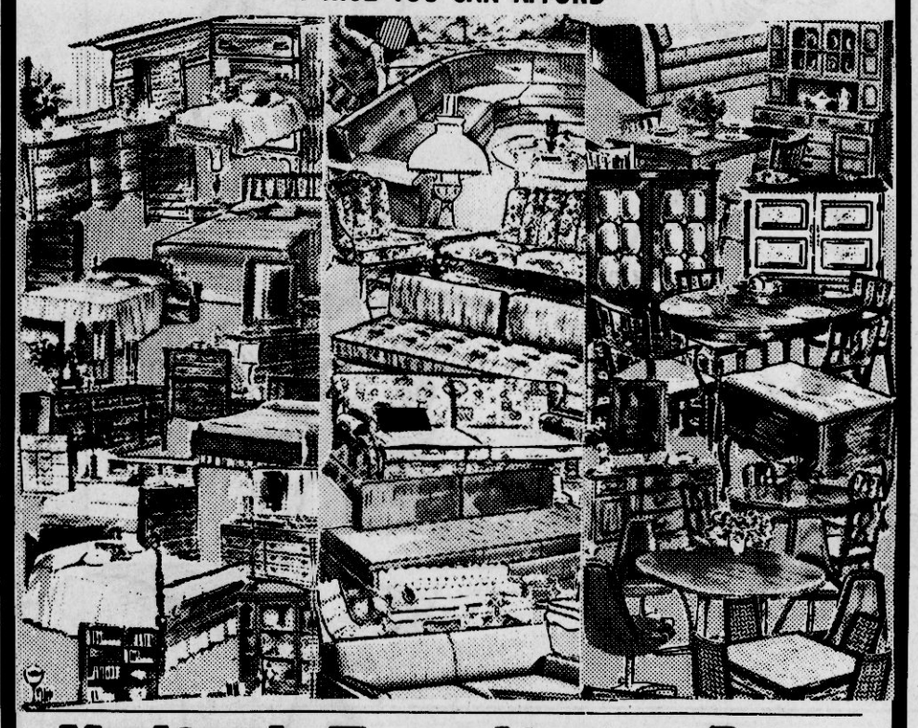

"We are asking that the other fine citizens of Mississippi join in becoming a part of the rural life museum being built now on Lakeland Drive in Jackson, near Interstate 55, on a 39-acre site, which was generously donated by the city."

Prentiss countians who have contributed to date are: Eugene B. Gifford Sr., Ed Honeycutt, and R.C. Tice Sr.

BIBLE QUESTION BOX

WARD HOGLAND

QUESTION: Mr. Hogland, could you explain just when Paul was saved? I always thought he was saved on the Damascus road.

ANSWER: Your question is a good one and needs to be answered by all the scriptures dealing with the subject. As you know the account of Paul's conversion is recorded in Acts 9, 22 and 26. The latter two give Paul's account of his conversion and the first is a record of Luke's account. Paul could not have been saved on the Damascus road because the Lord said to him (Acts 22:10) to go to Damascus and he would be told what to do. It is true the Lord appeared to him on the Damascus road but did not tell him what to do to be saved. Ananias, told him to "arise and be baptized and wash away thy sins, calling on the name of the Lord." (Acts 22:16). Actually, Paul was saved when he did what he was told to do by a God sent preacher. If Paul was saved on the Damascus road he was saved before God knew it, before Christ knew it and even before he knew it.

Demise Of Judicial Council To be Marked

By BILL MINOR
Columnist

JACKSON--There will be a small requiem here June 30 marking the demise of the Mississippi Judicial Council, one of the state's rare attempts at reform of its horse-and-buggy judicial system.

The Judicial Council committed the unpardonable sin in Mississippi's political spectrum, it attacked some of the sacred cows and tried to change things that the politicians regard as unchangeable.

So the Council's death warrant was sworn out and executed in the State Senate during the recently-ended 1980 session of the Mississippi Legislature. The work started just three years by the Council to finally bring some reorganization and reform to the system of delivering justice in this state will stop.

Those who view Mississippi political and governmental responses close range regard the short life of the Judicial Council as a classic example of politicians in this state refusing to face up to problems involving entrenched systems and those who run those systems.

The Judicial Council was probably in trouble from the beginning because it would inevitably lead to court reorganization, but its real headaches didn't start until it proposed replacement of the old Justice (JP) Courts with a more efficient and professional magistrate system.

From the time that a Judicial Council-authorized study last year began to firm up a case for abolishing the JP's by showing the high cost of the Justice Court system in relation to the quality of justice, the politically-potent JP's started getting their axes sharpened for the Council in the 1980 Legislature.

The battle was joined for real after the Council voted 9 to 4 last December to formally propose the replacement of the Justice Courts with a magistrate component of the circuit court to the 1980 meeting of state lawmakers.

Few legislative observers gave the abolition of the JP's much of a chance its first time out, but few really expected it would generate sufficient hostility among legislators to retaliate against the Judicial Council to the extent of refusing to renew the law creating the Council when it expired June 30, 1980.

Apparently backers of the Judicial Council didn't contemplate how treacherous the political process can become, or where their real enemies would come from.

While the JP's were doing a number on the Council from one side, there were some personal vendettas against certain members of the Council working on another.

Two of the most vicious foes of the Judicial Council emerged in the Senate--Sens. Emerson Stringer of Columbia, and David Smith of Hattiesburg. While neither had ever been regarded among the Senate heavyweights, they began effectively undercutting the Council with the highly impressionable, and inexperienced crop of freshman Senators. Since the Council was something that had been created before they ever got there, it didn't have a lot of meaning to the Senate newcomers.

Both Stringer and Smith, it turned out, held personal pique for Chancery Judge Michael Sullivan, one of the leading Judicial Council members, growing out of Sullivian's handling of divorce cases in which they were personally interested. In the case of Stringer, it was his own divorce, and in Smith's case, his brother's.

Despite expressions of outrage from the House, the Senate in March killed the bill extending the life of the Judicial Council through parliamentary maneuvers, often the device used in the Mississippi Legislature to avoid a head-on confrontation with an issue.

It was mostly the freshman Senators who helped seal the doom of the Council, with stage managing from Stringer and Smith. Now, reportedly, several of the Senate newcomers have been catching considerable flak back in their districts for the votes they cast to kill the court-reform agency.

A side effect of the death of the Judicial Council was a sudden chill in the legislature toward creation of a new Circuit Court district up in the DeSoto County area. Not only was the new district pigeonholed, but there's some indication that a freeze may result on creation of any new state judgeships until the work being done by the Judicial Council to gather case-load reports from throughout the state is revived.

Mississippi, whose system of having a separate chancery court and a circuit court handling civil and criminal matters dates back to the British judiciary, has continued to create new court districts without any pattern or scheme over the last century.

All it takes in the legislature to get a new chancery or circuit court district created is to propose it, and with the proper amount of political trading, voila, it's done. No justification necessary as to the amount of case load.

As a consequence, there are some court districts in the state handling only 350 cases per judge, and others which are handling 1300 to 1400 cases.

A national study done four years ago, "The Future of State Court Management" by James A. Gazell ranked Mississippi last among the 50 states in court unification and listed as one of the last states with no structure for statewide administration of the courts or a mechanism to evaluate court operations.

Apparently the political system in Mississippi will keep it's foot on the brake of judicial reform as long as it can.

Senate Report

By Bill May

Senator District 5

Itawamba, Prentiss and Tishomingo

S.B. No. 2200. This bill establishes a statewide personnel system. The overriding purpose of this legislation is to formally charge a specific body with the development and maintenance of a statewide system of personnel administration.

This act sets forth intended areas of responsibility by identifying elements within the process of personnel administration. Specifically, those areas for which policies are to be developed and applied uniformly are: (a) the establishment of employment positions; (b) classification of positions; and (c) employment conduct, including the movement and separation of state employees.

Goals which must guide policy development in these areas include building a career service to attract, select, retain and reward the best persons based on individual and objective evaluation of ability, knowledge and skill. The implementation of principles outlined in this act requires assigning to the new State Personnel Board statewide functions which are not addressed within existing laws.

One such function is to develop a state posture in compliance with federal directives regarding affirmative action and to require application of that posture at the agency level. A statewide training function is required which, at minimum, means the creation of trainee levels in each occupational series.

"State service" is redefined by consolidating into a state personnel system the agencies subject to regulation by the Mississippi Classification Commission and the agencies operating within the Coordinated Merit System Council.

All employees of Institutions of Higher Learning are exempted from regulation by the State Personnel Board.

The act creates and empowers a State Personnel Board responsible for promulgation of administrauve procedures to be implemented by a professional personnel staff. The board is composed of eight members, four to be appointed by the Governor, and two legislators from each house to be appointed by the Lieutenant Governor and Speaker, respectively. The original terms are staggered and subsequent terms are for four years. All appointees must have at least a Bachelor's Degree in public administration, personnel management or the equivalent, or, in the alternative, may have a graduate degree with at least three years' working experience in management or professional development. The existing Classification Commission members may be appointed to the new board.

This bill also creates and empowers a Mississippi Personnel Advisory Council, consisting of the personnel directors of five major state agencies, to be appointed by the Governor, whose terms will be concurrent with that of the Governor. The duty of the council is to advise and assist the State Personnel Board in policy determination.

This bill requires the selection by the board of a professional personnel administrator whose primary functions include the administration of daily operations of the State Personnel System based on board-approved policies and the recommendation of proposed rules and regulations for board consideration.

The director must have at least a Master's Degree in business administration, personnel management or the equivalent, with at least five years' working experience. The new functions assigned the director and the board by this act include establishment of appeals procedures which meet procedural due process; the requirement of reports describing employee performance; the development of employee training programs; identification of standards for administering vacation and sick leave; and acquisition of payroll information for analysis.

The language within this bill affords all employees within the state service appellate rights which previously were enjoyed solely by merit service employees. Additional provisions require the appointment of a three-member Employee Appeals Board to hear, investigate and recommend disposition of employee grievances. A probationary period of not to exceed twelve months is to be implemented by the board, after which an employee may not be dismissed except for good cause shown.

The bill contains a state

From The MEC:

For The Public Good

Recent news reports have indicated several threats by publlic employee unions to strike for higher wages and benefits, creating a situation in which the public good is generally ignored.

Public employees who perform services essential to the health and safety of a community--including law enforcement, fire protection, and waste disposal--have a sacred trust to uphold with the public.

And, public employees do not have the same relationship to the public as private employees to their employer regarding strikes or threats of strikes.

Strikes of this nature result in transferring government taxing and spending powers from elected officials to non-elected persons, union negotiators.

The Mississippi Economic Council opposes granting public employees the right to strike or to bargain collectively. The MEC believes that it is essential that authority and power given to elected officials not be delegated to a person or organization which is answerable to neither governmental authority nor to the public.

Golden Slippers For The Governor's Wife

(Reprinted in the Booneville Banner from the Clarion-Ledger)

"Mrs. Hugh White, wife of the governor, Monday night sported a new pair of golden ballerina slippers in which she can cut capers at one of the 'Miss Hospitality' dances, if she chooses.

"No, the state's first lady didn't buy them. In fact, until Monday afternoon she had no idea she had them. But shortly after the governor and Mrs. White drove into Biloxi Monday afternoon to join the "Miss Hospitality' contest, Miss Betty Gordon McGee of Booneville obtained an audience and presented Mrs. White with the slippers.

"They were manufactured at the new Brown Shoe factory in Booneville, which was dedicated recently by the governor. at the instance of Booneville's mayor, M.W. Smith.

"Through one of the governor's secretaries, Miss McGee obtained the size of Mrs. White's shoes and the Brown Company did a special job in gold just for the 'Miss Hospitality' occasion."

Need More

"I want to say that we have a wonderful paper, but we need more feature items in the paper about people out in the country and in the city too -- cooks and people in different professions. And we also need a recipe column for people to send in recipes, especially during canning season."

'Isn't Fair'

"Think about it. We the taxpayers of Booneville are being taken advantage of on our separate school system. It isn't fair and I think it is not legal, because we haven't had a chance to vote whether or not the people would want a separate school district. I think it ought to go back to the county and people still support the county schools with county tax. The city tax is doubling on us and going hiigher on us without our approval of it. We don't even know from one day to the next how much it is going to increase."

'Good Job'

"This is addressed to the editor because I and others think he is doing a great job with the paper. And the letter in the June 19th paper proved his ability even more. People appreciate the Speaking Out column as that is a good way to express their opinions without being embarrassed. Thank you."

Speaking Out

"I just want to say that I guess some people will quit taking the Journal, too, because Ann Landers has her speaking out column. I just think it's wonderful what's being done in the column because it praises people and different aspects off life."

Challenges

"In last week's issue of the Banner-Independent in the letters to the editor, the Banner states that our problems must be brought out into the open for any kind of meaningful solution to result. I challenge the Banner to bring into the open the deplorable conditions of our schools in Booneville and Prentiss County. I challenge the Banner to bring into the open the activities that were denied to those children that were not released by the county school board to attend the Booneville city schools. Why must Prentiss Countians depend on Channel 9 news and Bill Ross of the Tupelo Daily Journal to be informed? There is a difference in reporting the news and being informative. Where are you Banner-Independent?"

Timber Thefts Continue To Rise In Nation

By ED BLAKE
Mississippi Farm Bureau Federation

Despite the nation's housing slump, timber thefts continue to rise in the nation.

The Pacific Northwest today is beset with a timber crime wave that has reached a 'big time' status, while 60 Federal Bureau of Investigation agents have been assigned to combat the problem nationwide.

Mississippi, fortunately, has been spared from most of the new elements now in the illicit business, according to Mississippi forestry and law enforcement agencies. However, the new breed of bad guys victimizing federally owned forest lands in Mississippi are reportedly using the latest harvesting equipment to strike quickly and be on their way.

A spokesman for the National Forests of Mississippi acknowledged to this writer that thefts of standing timber on the federal preserves in this state amount to more than local folks poaching a few trees for firewood. While this minor form of timber thieving does go on in the state, the federal lands occasionally are hit by operators who drive in, cut a load, and drive out. They take pains not to attract attention to their presence, or if they do, they try to appear as legitimate cutters.

The Jackson office of the FBI reported that the problem here was not acute enough for special assignment of agents.

But on the West Coast helicopters have been used recently to work in conjunction with self-loading trucks, according to the current issue of the American Forests magazine. The publication reports that ancient cedar trees are being felled on federal lands, hemlock and Douglas-fire logs are being stolen from off decks, and throngs of illegal firewood cutters have set up for illicit business on national forest lands.

Around the country, the Great Lakes region continues to have a problem with the theft of black walnut trees, highly valued on the international market for furniture veneers. In the East firewood thefts are the biggest problem as about half of the homes of New England today burn wood as an alternate energy source.

Glen Jones, executive secretary of the Mississippi Forestry Association, reports that there is no particular rise in reports of timber thefts among the commercial forest owners who are members of the state association. However, Jones added that occasionally property owners complain of trees felled by operators who stray beyond property boundaries.

Oddly enough, probably the most troublesome tree heists in Mississippi in recent years come from alongside the state's highway system where many thousands of Magnolias have been planted as a beautification program of the Keep Mississippi Beautiful Committee. The 'Avenue of Magnolias' project is several years old now, but annually is plagued by passers-by who, unwittingly or not, dig up the special plantings along the entrances of the state.

The magnolias are

I have given you several definitions of happiness, so today I have one written by Jane Porter. I hope you like it.

"Happiness is a sunbeam which may pass through a thousand bosoms without losing a particle of its original ray; Nay, when it strikes a kindred heart, like the converged light upon a mirror, it reflects itself with redoubled brightness--It is not perfected 'til it is shared."

Mr. and Mrs. Omar Jones, Betty and Will spent a few days last week in Biloxi vacationing.

The guests were served petits four cakes, decorated with violets, cheese straws, party mints and nuts. Fruit punch was also served.

Miss Walden was presented a blue and white daisy corsage by the hostesses. The guests watched as she opened the gifts and each one offered their best wishes for the future.

Retired Teachers Hold Panel Discussion

In keeping with President Carter's proclamation setting a special time of consideration of the older citizens, the Retired Teachers' Association of Prentiss County held a panel discussion on the subject at their meeting Thursday, June 19.

The panel consisted of John Hanley, Area Agency on Aging director; Mrs. Luzene Triplett, Home Economics teacher at Thrasher; Velma Clayton, I and R director; and Billy McCoy, state representative.

Each panel member spoke briefly and then the panel responded to questions from the teachers.

One main point that was made is that the public is often unaware of the help that is available to the elderly, the low income people and the handicapped.

At the close of the meeting the dedication and service of S.C. Downs was discussed briefly and the group honored his memory with a few moments silence.

A fellowship meal ended the meeting.

The newly elected officers of the retired Teachers' Association for this year are Ethel Mae Johnson, president; Elmer McCoy, vice-president; Ida Lee McCutchen, secretary; and Louree Jones, treasurer.

This cheerful person is Ananda. She works in the front office processing insurance claims and patient information. Ananda is highly trained through special educational seminars in business management and patient relations. She has received qualification as a technician in neuro-vascular examination.

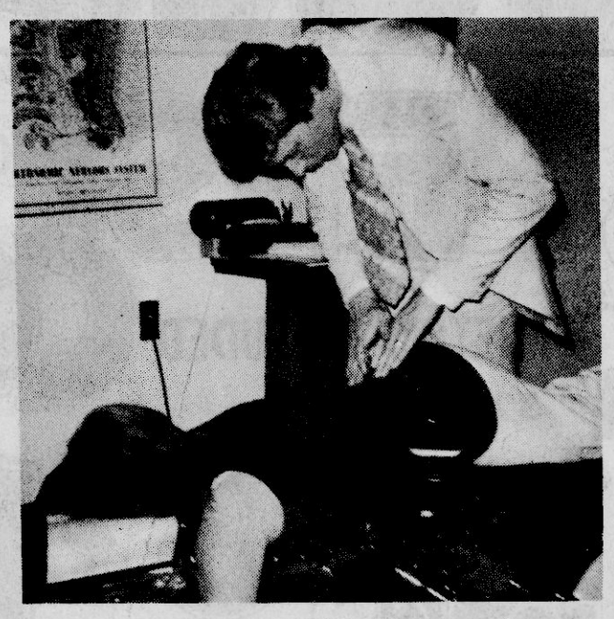

This is one of the examination rooms. We use the most modern diagnostic tools available to the profession. Dr. Ream is pictured utilizing the "Vasculizer." This instrument is used to diagnose disease and neurological malfunction in the blood vascular system.

This is a mobile intersegmental traction unit. This therapy gently massages the spine by putting it through its range of motion, which increases the mobility of the spine and assists healing to the intervertebral discs.

After careful and thorough examination sometimes x-rays are indicated. This modern unit surpasses all current safety regulations. All x-rays are carefully analysed and discussed with the patient.

Dr. Ream is trained in the use of many adjusting techniques. Each patient receives specific and individualized care. This patient is receiving a non-force adjustment that corrects pelvic and lumbar sacral imbalance.

Dr. Ream believes in positive Doctor-patient relationships, and discusses individual findings with each patient. With better understanding comes patient cooperation and faster results.

A FLOWER BY ANY OTHER NAME–No, this is not an orchid Mrs. Bill (Rose) Green is holding. It is a piece of purple cabbage she bought at a local grocery. After part of the cabbage was eaten, Mrs. Green said it remained untouched in her refrigerator for a few days. The next time shenoticedit, it had sprouted purplish leaves looking almost identical to a purple orchid.

June 21 was the first day of summer and has always been considered the longest day of the year. The weatherman who appears on the "Today" show said one day is no longer than another and, of course, that's true when you think of the hours, but there were more hours of daylight and sunshine on June 21. The predictions are for a long, hot summer.

Because of previous commitments, Mrs. Calvin Barber was unable to stay the full week at Maywood Christian Camp. Bro. Clyde Mize from the Antioch congregation volunteered to look after the youth from here. He drove the bus back and they arrived here about 2:30 p.m. Saturday.

The boys had a wonderful time; Mike and David Coats each brought home awards. As a result of the Bible studies, Ricky Kennedy was baptized into Christ by Bro. Mize. One sad note—Lee Jones who had suffered ear infections at intervals became sick and got worse after reaching home. He was carried to the Baldwyn Hospital last Sunday morning for treatment.

Sorry to report that "Ma" Green has suffered a heart attack and is in the Coronary Care Unit in the Booneville Hospital.

Mrs. Clara Lee Rutherford who has been very ill is taking treatment in the Belle Vista Unit of the North Mississippi Medical Center in Tupelo.

Clyde Gardner was brought home from the Baldwyn hospital Saturday, June 21, but is not improving. He has been asking to go back to the hospital.

Mam-ma Coats remains in an unchanged condition.

Mrs. Maye Eldridge is home from the Baptist hospital in Memphis. It was good to learn that she did not require surgery.

Aunt Myrtie Harris isn't doing as well as her loved ones had hoped.

Get-well wishes are extended to all those people and others who may be ill.

Bro. Calvin Barber conducted the devotional at the Aletha Lodge Nursing Home last Sunday evening. A group from Oak Ridge went along to sing.

On Wednesday night last week two young ladies were visiting for the services. They were Cathy Cook from Booneville and Pam Wheeler from Mobile, Ala. They are granddaughters of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Barnes.

It was so good to see Mrs. Gladys Kennedy Sunday night, June 15. This was her first opportunity to come to worship since her surgery. She has been feeling fairly well, but Mr. Earl doesn't improve.

Visitors Sunday morning were Jeff Frame, Rufus and Joy Page from Smyrna, Tenn. They, with several others from here, drove out to Allen Line to decorate graves of loved ones.

Several days ago Truman Ballard and his son Terry, accompanied by a friend, visited relatives in Chicago, Ill. They all had a pleasant time in the "Windy City".

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. E.E. Miles who recently celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. They once lived in the Blackland Community and Mrs. Miles attended worship services at Oak Ridge.

Many of us are concerned about the little daughter of Larry and Martha Finger. We believe that she will be helped in the Le Bonheur Children's Hospital. We can feel for the Finger family and Martha's relatives, too. Our little grandson, Nathan Sean Polk was carried there over a year ago and no one, not even the doctors, expected him to live. Now he's growing and doing remarkably well--so well that Dr. May was astonished at his progress–he walked into his office!

Work and Pray

Let's work today for Christ our Lord
And pray according to His Word
That we may live from day to day
Prepared for His coming alway.

Work in His Kingdom as opportunity is afforded us
And pray for more time to serve Him thus
Work with living hands and hearts, too
And pray that others desire so to do.

Work to imitate our blessed Savior
And pray never to lose his unmerited favor;
Strive to have a forgiving spirit
And pray an eternal home to inherit.

Sunflower News

By BETTYE BRANDON

The aftermath of a wonderful week of revival services at Spring Hill M.B. Church is a pastor pledged to a greater interest in the welfare of the church, the over all membership and to the community at large, a collected group of Christian believers rededicated, united in spirit with a mind to work and eight new converts.

The Rev. Prentiss Harris thoroughly delivered an effectively combined spiritual preaching and teaching nightly to a very receptive congregation. On Monday night, he dealt with the elimination of doubt. On Tuesday night, emphasis was placed on the importance of accepting Christ as the Lord of your life as well as Saviour. The subject was "Accepting Christ As Lord And Personal Saviour."

Wednesday night the subject was "Let Them Grow Together," from which he skillfully pointed out the disasterous results of human interference in trying to separate the good from bad within the church. The message Thursday night was on how the two emotions hope and despair determine the outcome of Christian accomplishments. The subject was "A Closer Encounter With God."

On Friday night, the message on a new birth was beautifully illustrated as he compared God's love, care, and concern of the new born Christian to that of a mother's for her infant from the beginning of conception to the age of puberty.

All of the messages were well received and closely followed by those attending the services. The meetings were followed nightly with a fellowship supper in the fellowship hall of the church which added greatly to the revival spirit.

Mrs. Georgia Nunn who is a patient in the local hospital is reported to be steadily improving. We pray for her complete recovery and for all the sick and shut-ins of the community and the city.

Little Joseph Cummings is now enjoying an added bonus to his summer vacation. He and his father left the city Saturday, June 14, for a week of fun and relaxation at a resort in far away Eureka, Jamaica.

Mrs. Armissy Grizzard, a former resident of this community who has been living in the city of Murfreesboro, Ill., due to illness, was brought home again on Saturday, June 14, by her granddaughter, Mrs. Margret McGee, who states that she withstood the trip well and appears to be somewhat improved. Mrs. Grizzard is at present in the home of Mrs. McGee. We hope that she is soon fully recovered and we welcome her back to the community.

Another in the series of Sunday School seminars was conducted at the Wolf Creek M.B. Church on Saturday, June 21, with the Rev. Lewis Ragins conducting. It is reported to have been well attended with excellent results.

To fulfill a promise made to Mrs. Jessie Nunn, a faithful reader of the Sunflower News, and one of our strongest supporters, we give her special honor this week for no other reason than that she is a very special person. Always full of motherly concern and helpful advice. She is the widow of the late Marcus Nunn, a faithful and active member of the Wolf Creek M.B. Church of the Osborne Community.

As a member of this community she often takes an active part in the activities of the local church. She is an employee of the Booneville Head Start Center as one of the cooks and has held this position for fourteen years. She is presently enjoying the summer vacation from the center but looking forward to returning in the fall.

Mrs. Gail Swinney and Miss Cassandra Gardner were greatly handicapped in their efforts to produce a successful children's day program because of the activities at the community park. They did an excellent job with the young people they were able to collect and hold.

On behalf of the leaders who have planned programs for the young people in the church, I wish to urge parents to encourage your children to attend. They will be greatly benefited from them.

On Sunday afternoon, June 29, at 2 p.m. Annual Choir Day will be observed at Spring Hill M.B. Church, sponsored by both the senior and junior choirs. The public is invited to attend.

Annual Woman's Day will be observed at Beckley Chapel C.M.E. Church on Sunday afternoon, July 6, at 3 p.m., sponsored by the Missionary Society. Mrs. Sera M. Hastings will appear as the guest speaker. The public is invited to attend.

On Sunday morning, July 13, immediately following Sunday School, the new converts will be baptised in a special service to be followed with the regular worship service and fellowship at Spring Hill M.B. Church. The candidates for baptism are Jacqueline Grizzard, Teresia Hines, Tabitha Hines, John Hooper Jr., Lamar Williams, James L. Triplett Jr., Cedric Crump and Anthony Crump.

Mr. Gude Pamms, a former resident of Greenwood, Miss., came to this community four years ago and immediately became an active part of it. His interest and concern for the citizens of the area has won him great respect and admiration. He is a member of Spring Hill M.B. Church, employee of Colleague Inc., in his spare time coaches one of the many Little League ball teams.

He is a highly spiritual young man and completely devoted to his wife and family. At the present time he is going through a probationary period as required for the position of a Deacon of the church. He needs your prayers and encouragement during this time.

On his behalf we solicit your support to help him maintain his present status and achieve this goal for we feel that the church and community will profit to an even great extent by his acceptance in this capacity. God Bless You.

Till Next Week

Wells Named Welfare Specialist

Navy Machinist's Mate 2nd Class John E. Wells, whose wife, Margie, is the daughter of Thomas L. and Ivy M. Kilough of Route 3, Rienzi, Miss., has been designated an enlisted surface warfare specialist.

He received the designation while serving aboard the guided missile cruiser USS Dale, homeported in Mayport, Fla.

To earn the insignia he was required to demonstrate superior knowledge and proficiency in his shipboard watch stations, especially during emergency and battle conditions. Other requirements include being in the top categories of leadership and performance, having 24 months aboard ship and passing an oral examination by his commanding officer.

Wells joined the Navy in August 1971.

CB Club News

By LADY BLUE SURF

Have you got your thinking cap on? Well, you should because in a few weeks it will be time for nominations of new officers for the club for another year. All offices are open for candidates. July 15 is one of our most important meetings, so make a note of this and everyone attend.

Happy anniversary to "Kingfish" and "Lady Kingfish". Hope you have a great day and enjoy many more years together.

Saturday, June 28, the junior club is sponsoring a trip to Libertyland. All junior club members are welcome to attend. You are to meet at theupholsteryshop at 7:45 and leave at 8 a.m. You should bring a sack lunch and your drink. Ice will be provided. Bring money for your supper.

You will leave Memphis at about 7 p.m. and should be at the shop again around 9. Everyone please call "Upholstery Man" and let him know how many are going to attend, so they will know how many vehicles to have ready for the trip.

"White Dove" must have been a bad girl. We saw a fella pick her up with one hand and give her a good whipping. That I can believe, but picking "Running Bear" up and putting him in a boat? It would take a mighty strong man, so "Cotton" must really be something.

Happy birthday, "Lady Sidekick." Hope you have a nice day and have many more to enjoy. Don't let that "Sidekick" celebrate too much.

"Lady Termite's" mother is still in critical condition in the North Mississippi Medical Center, Room 578. We are very sorry to hear this, but we hope her and all our folks are soon able to be about.

"Little Blue Wave" took his first boat ride this [illegible] he sees he wants to ride.

Until next week, stay well, be happy and attend the church of your choice. Hope all you folks on vacation next week have a great time and a safe one.

County Agent's Notes

By W.H. HADEN
County Agent

CONTROL SOYBEAN WEEDS

The old standby herbicide dinoseb (dinitro) and 2, 4-DB are low cost, effective ways to control many weeds in soybeans. Dinoseb will kill most small weeds that can be covered except sicklepod, which is more resistant. 2,4-DB is highly effective on cockleburs and small morninglories. Combined with Lexone, Sencor or Lorox, 2,4-DB will control most weeds.

Where there is a height difference, these materials should be directed to avoid soybean injury. Use 2-4-DB as a broadcast spray only in late season about two weeks before blooming.

FERTILIZE PASTURES

The best way to guard against running short on feed in July and August is to apply adequate nitrogen every 45 to 60 days from now through mid-August. You'll get more forage, a higher protein content and cattle will use more of the forage.

Apply 200 pounds of ammonium nitrate or equivalent per acre. Once fertilizer is applied, rotate cattle to use all forage produced. If there is a surplus of grass, cut the extra for hay as winter feed.

WATER GARDENS THOROUGHLY

Giving gardens plenty of water is a must to keep plants healthy. A frequent mistake of many gardeners is watering too lightly. Each watering should wet the top three to five inches of soil. Watering too frequently and lightly will cause shallow rooting, which makes plants more susceptible to drought and wind damage.

Timber Thefts

provided for highway right-of-way plantings by garden clubs of Mississippi and by interested individuals as memorials to honor Mississippians. Because of a considerable number of thefts of these trees, warning signs have recently been posted by the Mississippi Highway Department and both local and state law enforcement officials are stepping up vigilence in the areas.

The Natchez Trace Parkway rangers' office in Jackson reports that anywhere from 10 to 25 citations are issued annually to local citizens for cutting Christmas trees from the parkway between Tupelo and Natchez. Fines assure that these trees are neither Christmas gifts nor bargains, and whether or not a culprit appears before a federal magistrate depends on an evaluation by the ranger of aesthetic damages to the parkway's natural appearance.

Mississippi landowners victimized by timber poachers may well take a cue from law enforcement officers in Florida who have scored well in court by matching suspected stolen logs with stumps to prove their cases before the judge.

INTEREST RATES LOWERED ON 1980 COMMODITY LOANS

Interest rates on 1980-crop commodity loans made by Commodity Credit Corporation through the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) have been reduced. The newest interest rates were announced by Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland on June 12, 1980. They apply to all 1980-crop loans including those disbursed prior to June 12, 1980.

The interest rate on all 1980-crop commodity loans is lowered from 13 percent to 11.5 percent. However, the interest rate on farm storage and drying equipment loans is unchanged and will remain at 13 percent. The new interest rates for 1980-crop loans do not affect the interest rates on loans for 1979-crop commodities.

PRENTISS COUNTY FARMERS URGED TO CERTIFY CROP AGREAGES

Prentiss County farmers are encouraged to come by the county ASCS office and report their planted crop acreages. Farmers must certify their crop acreages in order to be eligible for program benefits such as price support loans for certain crops, disaster benefits, proven yields, and deficiency payments to which they might otherwise be ineligible if market prices become depressed.

Through close of business June 20, 1980, only 300 farmers have been to the county office to certify. July 15 is the final date for certifying and those who wait until the last week may encounter that inconvenience of waiting in line.

PRESERVE FARM-STORED GRAIN

When soybeans, wheat, oats, corn, or other crops are stored on the farm for extended periods, proper steps and regular inspections are required to preserve the quality and prevent economic loss from insect damage.

Since warm weather is the ideal climate for rapid insect development, careful and frequent grain inspections may be necessary during this time.

Farmers are advised to look for insects on the exposed inside and outside bin surfaces, especially around the base, doors, aeration ducts, and joints or seams in the walls. Check for water leaks through the roof or walls and look for evidence of rodent or bird entry into the bin.

When determining eligibility for the grain reserve program or commodity loans ASCS considers the condition of the storage and the commodity stored within the structure. Farmers maintain ownership of and responsibility for their reserve supplies and are encouraged to check the grain often during the storage period.

Market value of infested grain may be substantially reduced if the number of insect-damaged kernels is sufficient to lower the grade of the grain or if the number of insects in the grain causes it to be designated "weevily" on the grade certified. Discounts against the price paid per bushel are often assessed by the buyer if live insects are present in the grain. And some grain dealers may refuse to accept heavily infested grain that might contaminate their storage facilities.

Reserve grain may be rotated as new crops are harvested. For instructions on proper rotating methods, contact the county ASCS office.

LEADERSHIP DEVELOPMENT

Life skills are abilities that are useful for living everyday life. They include thinking, doing and feeling skills.

The overall purpose of the life skills approach to leadership is the development of skills necessary to perform leadership functions in real life. The program consists of two major elements: 4-H leadership roles and learning experiences that teach life skills needed to participate in those leadership roles.

The leadership development program is designed to allow 4-H members and volunteers an opportunity to develop life skills that will make them more effective leaders. There are several basic leadership concepts underlying these materials.

Leadership roles in 4-H include elected and appointed positions such as member, president, committee chairperson, activity leader, and many more.

Similar roles in other life situations exist, also. These include elected and appointed positions in other organizations and situations throughout life.

Certain life skills needed include communications, decision making, working in groups, understanding yourself, getting along with others, learning and management skills.

The two factors most important in learning basic leadership skills are a desire to learn and knowledge of what is expected.

Both individual and group learning experiences can be used to teach life skills.

Developing a skill involves both learning information about the skill and practicing the skill. 4-H provides an opportunity to practice new skills with support and guidance. Apprenticing to an adult or older 4-H'er in the leadership role is an excellent way to practice new leadership skills.

Life skills learned to perform as 4-H president will also be used when serving as president of other groups.

For more information about 4-H Leadership Programs, call 728-5631.

Soil Conservation Notes

By DAVID SUMMERS
Soil Conservationist

Proper management of your hayland will increase both the quality and quantity of your hay. Well managed hay will produce more tons, while being higher in protein, energy and digestibility. Factors to consider in hayland management are cutting heights, stage of harvest and fertilization.

Most grass hay should not be cut any lower than 3 inches. Alfalfa should not be cut any lower than 6 inches and Johnsongrass or sudan grass should not be cut any lower than 8 inches. Harvesting hay at the proper cutting height will allow for a much faster regrowth allowing you to make more cuttings of higher quality hay.

The stage in which the hay is harvested is one of the most important factors in harvesting quality hay. Most grass hay sould be harvested between the boot and dough stage. Alfalfa should be harvested during early bloom, while Johnsongrass or sudan grass should be harvested during the early boot stage. By harvesting hay at these stages we insure ourselves of both quality and quantity.

Proper fertilization and liming of hayland is extremely important in obtaining both quality and quantity. When harvesting hay, we harvest the whole plant thus removing more nutrients; therefore, we need to apply more fertilizer and lime to hayland than to pasture.

Remember, good hayland management provides both quality and quantity plus gives good ground cover to protect the soil from erosion. For more information on hayland management come by the Soil Conservation Service office in Booneville or call 728-3544.

Seedlings Now On Order

It's time to put in your order for seedlings, according to the Mississippi Forestry Commission.

There is a good supply of pine seedlings available, but the hardwood supply is somewhat limited. Landowners should place orders now to reserve both pine and hardwood seedlings which will be delivered beginning in mid-December.

Species of Southern Pines available are: Loblolly, Slash, Longleaf, and Shortleaf.

Other species available include: Virginia Pine, Bald Cypress, Green Ash, Yellow Poplar, Sycamore, Sweet Gum, Cherry Bark Oak, Black Locust, and Cottonwood.

Pine seedling prices per thousand seedlings are $14, if picked up at the nursery. If seedlings are picked up at a central point in the county, the price is $14.50.

HOME CANNING

Recently more than 30 million Americans have rushed out to beat inflation with a garden hoe and a jar lid.

Many of these gardeners have produced some prize-winning blisters and backaches. They have reached a low level of despair with jelly that didn't gel, pickles that didn't pickle, and preserves that didn't preserve.

Other gardeners, though, have found they had an unsuspected green thumb. They have showered friends and loved ones with fresh-from-the-garden produce and take-home presents. They have packed their pantries with home-preserved fruits and vegetables.

Home canning gives a great feeling of pride and accomplishment. It brings family members together in creative activity. It provides security in having food within an arm's reach. It offers a supply of food prepared according to family preferences and special dietary needs.

WHAT TO USE

Spoilage and botulism are always threats to home canning. To produce home canned foods that are safe to eat, always use the right equipment.

When you can fruits and vegetables, heat them to a high enough temperature for a long enough time to destroy spoilage organisms and stop enzyme action. Do this processing either in a boiling-water-bath canner or a steam-pressure canner. The type of canner you use depends on the kind of food you're canning.

For fruits, tomatoes, and pickled vegetables, use a boiling-water-bath canner. These foods contain enough acid to be safely processed in boiling water.

For common vegetables, except tomatoes, use a steam-pressure canner. Processing these low-acid foods safely in a reasonable length of time takes a temperature higher than a boiling-water bath.

You can use a pressure saucepan, with an accurate indicator or gauge for controlling pressure at 10 pounds (240 degrees F) as a steam pressure canner for vegetables in pint jars. If you use a pressure saucepan, add 20 minutes to the processing time given for each vegetable. (If you don't know how to check your pressure guage, ask your Extension Home Economist.)

Several North Mississippi netters took home first place trophies here last weekend in the finals of the Fourth Annual Northeast Tennis Tournament held at the local courts.

Prentiss County performers placed well in their respected brackets and finished in the top places at either the first or second place tilt.

Booneville's Kathy Arnold went to the winner's circle on four occasions including a first place finish in the girl's 16 singles and runnerup spots in women's singles, women's 18 doubles and women's open doubles.

Tracy Arnold placed in the second position with trophy awards in women's 18 doubles, women's open doubles and mixed doubles.

Fulton's Henry Hankins, the favorite of the tourney successfully defended his third consecutive men's singles crown in a 9:30 p.m. match Sunday night with a 6-2, 6-2 win over Corinth's James Dilworth.

Kathy earned here first place trophy in the girls 16 singles with a 6-0, 6-3 victory over Tupelo's Janice Crockett while in the boys 18 singles Ripley's Anthony Clark turned back Dave Greene 7-5, 7-5.

In Sunday's women's doubles finals, Tracy and Kathy dropped sets to Northeast Junior College netters June Saman of Corinth and Julee Boyd of Tupelo 6-2, 6-7- 6-3 while in an earlier finals match the Arnold duo fell to Corinth's Antrice Kay and Mary Pierce 7-6, 7-5 in Thursday's action of women's 18 doubles.

In other matches, Tracy Arnold, teaming with Shane Langston of Millsaps college were nipped in a three set performance by Tupelo's Mike Olmstead and Jennie Green 7-5, 4-6, 6-3 in the mixed doubles competition.

In Saturday's women's finals Antrice Kay defeated Booneville's Kathy Arnold 6-0, 6-3 to take the women's singles crown.

Continuing, Corinth's Sammie Kay and Nicky Young earned first place honors over Booneville's Billy (B.B.) McQuiston and Ripley's Anthony Clark in three sets 5-7, 6-3, 6-2.

To round out the competition Corinth's Nicky Young took the top honors in the men's 30 and over singles crown defeating Jay Lee, also of Corinth, 5-7, 6-3, 6-2.

And in earlier round robin action Mark Eubank won the boys 14 singles while Laura Little of Corinth took the girls 12 year old title.

One of the most unique moments of the Fourth Annual Tournament came in semi-final play of the mixed doubles competition. An age difference of some 60 years occurred when Sammie Kay of Corinth, who is 15, was playing against Tupelo's famed Charles Close who is some 75 years young. Kay and his partner Nicky Young went on to win the struggle, but not without a fight.

The Fourth Annual Tournament was again termed successful this year according to director Ray Cozort. 129 applicants turned out for this year's affair which got underway Wednesday afternoon and concluded at 10 p.m. Sunday night.

Prather Ranks High In Corinth Tourney

CORINTH--Booneville's Bill Prather Jr. made a fine showing here last weekend in the Annual Corinth Invitational Golf Tournament held at the Hillandale Country Club Course.

Prather finished seventh in the championship flight shooting a three day 223 with a 75-74-74.

Corinth's Sonny Fowler took first place honors in the event shooting a two under par 211 finishing four strokes better than second place finisher David Senter of Fulton who fired a three day total 215.

The win for the Corinth golfer was his fourth Corinth title in the last nine years tabbed as the All-Time leader in this event on the won column.

Fowler shot rounds of 69,69,73 and led at the end of each day's 18 hole round.

Tupelo's Gene Box gave Fowler a run for his money in Sunday's round tying him after the first nine holes Sunday. Boz however bogied the next three straight holes and Fowler went on to win it from there.

Corinth junior performer 18 year old Pat Palmer placed third in the tournament with a 216 showing (74,74,68) while Box finished fourth just one stroke back with a 217.

Tupelo's Dick Dewese captured first flight honors and also had the tournament's only hole-in-one scored on the opening day of the tournament.

The tournament expanded to 12 flights this year with some 240 golfers shooting at a chance for the top honors.

The next stop on the North Mississippi tour will be the Ripley Tournament this weekend.

Love, Marriage—And Careers

Two of most things iis better than one. But, two careers, one marriage .. . . is it better? Can it work??

Special problems crop up for the two-career couple that can place extra strain on a marriage, but the fact is, more and more couples are managing this new lifestyle and managing well.

Fifty-four percent off U.S. women between the ages of 20 and 65 are now part of the labor force, so if both of you aren't working right now, chances are that sometime in the future you will be.

You should be prepared for some of the problems you'll have to face. According to one expert, they fall into three main categories: long-range decision-making, daily organization of life and psychological and emotional conflicts.

Whose career comes first? That's one of the toughest areas of long-range planning for partners who have careers rather than just jobs. It affects where you live, what you do.

Probably the best way to deal with the problem is for both of you to make up individual career plans, then come together and decide which parts of each plan can work for both of you. Perhaps one person's career can take precedence over the other's at certain points in your relationship.

Another of the long-range bones of contention is whether or not to have children. Both working partners have to sit down and decide whether they are willing to take time off from their careers at various stages to deal with the raising of children. They have to determine whether they will place the child with a day care center, hire a babysitter or stay at home and raise the child themselves.

On a day-to-day basis, household chores can cause problems. If the two of you cannot agree on a division of work which is suitable, remember you have the option of hiring outside help.

Money management, too, presents some hassles. There are a number of ways you can go, but one expert recommends that each of you pay for a certain area of home expenses out of your own separate bank accounts. That way, each partner has a share of the economic responsibility.

Entertainment is also likely to cause some troubles. Once again, you'll have to talk things out. Ideally, you might want to take turns accompanying each other to business functions and entertaining business friends.

On an emotional and psychological level, a working couple has to come to terms with a number of conscious and unconscious fears: fear on the husband's part that his wife will be more successful than he is; fear on the wife's part that she won't be able to play all the roles of wife, mother and professional; anxiety on both parts when it comes to traditional sex roles.

The important thing for any couple, and in particular the two-career couple with all its special troubles, is to talk things out the moment there is a problem. Remember that you are each different individuals and see things differently. You alone are responsible for your happiness — not your partner. Take time to do things together and have fun.

With good communication between partners, the two-career couple can enter on a challenging, but very interesting and rewarding life together.

Home Accessories Make Welcome Gifts

They're young, in love, and have everything going for them but a lot of money! Like many of today's newlyweds, they're probably eschewing those beautiful but expensive living room and bedroom suites in favor of the new knock-down and modular units; not only are they attractive and modern, they're within young budget range.

You can help the newlyweds "get it all together" by gifting them with accessories to complete their contemporary decor. A hanging, industrial-type lamp will be welcome for any room in that first apartment or home, for instance.

Colorful director's chairs are attractive additions to the living room or dining room now, can go onto the patio later on.

A rattan or wicker plant stand or a ceramic tree planter can highlight that handsome fern or indoor tree they're so proud of.

Plastic cubes can create a handy storage unit that the young couple can incorporate into almost any room of their new abode.

Parsons tables come in many sizes (select according to your pocketbook) and make great coffee tables, end tables, sofa tables or even dining tables.

Baker's racks can accommodate anything from a plant collection to stereo components, are popular looks on the contemporary scene.

Baskets are in — they add a touch of texture to glossy chrome and glass decors, are handy for storage. A set of attractive baskets will rate a big "thank you" from the newlyweds.

Copies of small Indian rugs make great wall hangings for today's decors, also add texture.

Pillows add both comfort and color to living rooms and bedrooms; if you're creative, custom-made pillows would be especially meaningful.

Earthenware pottery will make those modular wall units come alive with warmth and color, makes an usual gift.

Framed prints add the finishing touch to a new abode, are available in all price ranges.

Decorative accessories such as these will provide grace notes to the function and form of today's "contempo" rooms in the newlyweds' home or apartment.

THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

"Do You Love People?"

By C. D. Edge

C. D. Edge, Pastor
Grace and Liberty
United Methodist Churches

In a foreign country, a tourist that had never trusted Jesus for salvation happened to see an American nurse thatt was dressing an open leprous wound. The sight was a shocking one, revolting to the eye amd stomach.

I wouldn't do that for a million dollars, he said to the Christian nurse.

Neither would I, she said smiling. What a million dollars wouldn't do, God's love in her heart for the poor andl suffering did. The Christian nurse loved people.

God's word makes itt very clear, when it says in I John 4:20–IF A MAN SAY, I LOVE GOD, AND HATETH HIS BROTHER, HE IS A LIAR: FOR HE THAT LOVETH NOT HIS BROTHER WHOM HE HATH SEEN, HOW CAN HE LOVE GOD WHOM HE HATH NOT SEEN?

The teaching leaves NO DOUBT–we can't love God unless we love people.

What is the greatest reason people fail to care for and truly love others? UNFORGIVENESS. If we would all be quick to forgive then certainly we would demonstrate the love a Christian should have for others. Lets remember, THE THICKER OUR LOVE THE THINNER OTHERS FAULTS.

Someone may ask, Do you expect us to do impossible things? Well, Paul talked about that. He said, "I CAN DO ALL THINGS THROUGH CHRIST WHICH STRENGTHENETH ME." The word impossible was not in Paul's vocabulary.

DO YOU LOVE PEOPLE?

'Tin Can Lady'

She Fights A Personal War Against Pollution

By LINDA KAY HUSSEY

Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service

Peering through the stacks of newspapers in front of her house, Mildred Smith of El Paso, Texas, plots to save this Garden of Eden in which she lives.

"Look what we've done to our garden," Mildred said. "We've polluted the air, contaminated the water and pillaged the natural resources."

But, Mildred, or the Tin Can Lady as a school principal christened her, is bent on a personal crusade to salvage as much as she can of the Garden of Eden she considers America.

"Americans have forgotten that this country was founded on religious freedom–that our ancestors considered America their Garden of Eden," she told homemakers gathered at Mississippi State University for the recent annual meeting of the Extension Homemakers Council.

"Instead of preserving the garden, America has become a throw-away society. Each year every American accounts for one ton of garbage. Every day across this nation, 600 to 800 tons of waste are produced.

"Of course, most of this is thrown away, but 75 percent is recyclable. When will we realize that our natural resources won't last forever?" she lamented.

Mildred, a retired nurse who projects a grandmotherly zeal, is waging her own personal war against waste.

"Nowadays, if you mention recycling or littering, people automatically label you an 'environmentalist.' I'm not one; I'm merely a concerned citizen. Many people say we can't recycle--that it's too much trouble. I don't look at it that way. I think what people really mean is we can't be bothered," she said.

Many people live their lives around what they consider their missions in life. Mildred considers her advocacy of recycling as her ministry.

"In 1971, I attended an environmental seminar in El Paso. On the way home, I could hardly wait to begin my crusade," the retired nurse said. "You know, for years, I had spent my life nursing and raising a family. Now I knew I had been presented a challenge that could benefit the entire nation.

Armed with facts, Mildred presents a convincing case.

"As a nation, Americans make up only six percent of the world's population. Yet, we take the liberty to use 46 percent of the world's natural resources," Mildred said. "Not only do we misuse America's natural resources by using products only once, we import from other countries as we deplete our resources and panic sets in. By the year 2000, economists predict we'll import seven times more and still we abuse our chance to recycle."

Her vengeance to recycle America's throw-away goods have netted about $20,000 so far, and that figure has accounted for a city park built on donated land and has supported cancer research, Boy Scouts, Christian television ministries and a teen-age drug rehabilitation program.

"Every cent I earn from selling recyclable goods goes back into something for El Paso," Mildred said. "Citizens are helping me, so why not let them benefit? I'm not hauling these cans for profit; I'm just trying to stretch our resources.

"If people didn't deposit their recyclable goods in my three dumpsters which are spread around the city, my efforts wouldn't be so successful."

"Those cans and newspapers you haul out every week for garbage pickup represent money," she told Mississippi homemakers. "Last October, steel cans brought $40 a ton. Now they've gone up to $60. In the nine years I've been collecting recyclable cans, aluminum cans have gone from $300 to $740 a ton in redeemable value.

"I get sick every time I'm on my way home from the grocery store or hauling these cans when I hear something on the radio about the energy crisis. If people are so concerned about energy, why don't they recycle?"

It takes only five percent of the energy used to make a can to recycle it. That accounts for 95 percent savings in energy. To top that, one ton of garbage can produce a barrel of crude oil and every day oil is imported at extravagant prices.

"Isolated cities across the nation are recycling, so we know it can be done. We have skill, but not the will," Mildred said. "Steel cans were saved during the war to make tanks and planes and guns. And, not because there was a shortage but because we were fighting a war. If they can make a tank or gun out of recycled steel, why can't they make stoves or washing machines?"

Recycling doesn't stop with metals. Mildred recycles everything that has a second use. In El Paso's desert environment, she's proud of her flower beds that bloom the entire growing season.

"We have rich soil; you know why? Because every vegetable peeling and every coffee or tea ground that leaves my kitchen goes into those beds. My neighbors used to come over to see if my soil had unusual colors. No, it doesn't–in a week you can't even see the peelings and they wonder why my plants do so much better than theirs.

"The neighbors also wonder what the front of my house looks like, and I have to strain my memory sometimes to guess myself. You can't see the front of the house for the newspapers. People from all over the city deposit them there, because they know I'll do something with them.

"The strange thing about this recycling is that no one seems to think it's part of education. The schools will let me have their cans and they accept the memo pads I make from scratch paper and leave in the name of the Tin Can Lady. But, they won't let me into their system. Sometimes I get in through art teachers who realize that children can develop their creative abilities through manipulating re-usable items."

"We've all heard the saying that the hand that rocks the cradle rules the world. That may not be true, but we women must get started if we want to save our world," Mildred said to the Mississippi Homemakers. "We can't get into the organized educational systems, but we can start that education at home. We can learn and teach others not to create so much waste."

Only dedicated caretakers like Mildred can revive unattended gardens. Perhaps, as more people join her forces, America will boast once again plentiful resources.

Use Common Sense In Exercises

With the various "runs" being held around the area–including the jog scheduled by the Jumpertown Jaycees for June 28 and the Hill Country Run planned for the Boone Hill Festival August 7-9--local runners and joggers are urged to beware of the hot weather.

Dr. Frank Rosato, associate professor, Health, Physical Education and Recreation, Memphis State University, says vigorous exercise outdoors in the hot and humid summer months presents certain hazards to the participant.

These hazards can be alleviated, he says, by following some common sense guidelines:

First, the amount and intensity of exercise may have to be reduced on hot and humid days.

Second, participants should dress appropriately. Rosato recommends they wear as little clothing as possible, a shade hat and fish-net shirt or no shirt at alll, for men.

The less clothing the better, he says, so air can flow over the body and help in the evaporation of sweat–the major mechanism for cooling the body during physical work.

Third, exercise should be done during the cooler part off the day.

Fourth, participants should drink as much water as possible about 30 minutes before exercising.

"By the time you begin the workout," Dr. Rosato says, "this liquid will have left the stomach. Being hydrated in this manner enables you to sweat for a longer period of time and aids the cooling process."

Rosato also recommends that participants stop and drink during exercise and continue to drink in recovery from the exercise.

The replacement of liquid is more important than the replacement of salt, he says.

"Do not take salt tablets! They are unnecessary and pose some problems for susceptible people," Rosato said.

"If you feel salt replacement is a must," he added, "then sprinkle some on your evening meal or mix a little with lemonade. This is quite tasty and much cheaper than the commercially made drinks."

"Use very little sugar in this drink," he said, "because sugar slows the emptying time from the stomach."

Last, if an exercise program is started in the summer, participants should allow for a gradual break-in period of at least two weeks, the professor said. He recommends to start slowly and progress slowly.

"If one adheres to these guidelines," Dr. Rosato said, "then exercise can be an enjoyable and safe experience."

Rural Growth Good For State

AG AFFAIRS
By ED BLAKE

This thing has gone far enough--branding, right or wrong, every extension of a municipality into its adjacent environs as 'urban sprawl'.

Call it urban expansion or country living if you will, and your integrity will muster up a few extra points, for you will have avoided a misnomer that is grossly unfair to millions of good American citizens who wisely have chosen to live in the rural setting whose natural assets and amenities today are an ultimate in the good life.

But don't call it 'sprawl' which is defined as a spreading out in a loose, irregular manner with an implication of awkward, haphazard repositioning. Sprawl is poor referencing similar to 'concrete jungle' when irresponsibly applied to the city.

As a farm writer I would be derelict if I did not put in a disclaimer here and now that his column is not talking about the willful gobbling up of choice farmland. A lot of this has happened in this country, and others, since World War II, as our rising population has created a need for more housing, industrial, recreational, and service zones around our cities.

There have been abuses and a lot of good farmland has gone the way of the subdlivisions planner's plats. But in our observation over the state of Mississippi the newcomers to the country side have brought with them custodial pride and resourcefulness that have enhanced this state.

In our opinion Mississippi is not over-populated in most areas but decidedly underpopulated in many. And there are few rural areas of the state that would not benefit from new citizens moving in and sinking their roots of homemaking and citizenship there.

A few decades ago superconsolidation of the public school system drained from many rural communities one of its most cohesive and positive institutions--the local school with its dedicated live-in faculty, civic, and cultural influences. With the schools' passing from many rural areas, all that remained of mutualinterestto all citizens were the various churches and cemeteries. The good life lost much of its savor.

So now the rural communities are being repopulated with families who work in town or a nearby factory. Hurrah! The country never had it so good.

Most of these newcomers to the country side are building attractive homes and developing grounds that enhance the area anyway you look at it. They add to the local tax base. Many get home from work in the afternoon early enough in spring and summer or have work shifts that allow for caring of their homesteads in an enviable way.

Many are part-time farmers--raising a few cows or horses, home gardens, and crops. Philosophically they share an interest in the weather and other factors that affect their mini-farms that often are shared by full-time farmers. They too need herbicides and pesticides and share concerns with farmers over their availability and proper usage to secure productivity.
