Energy Assistance Program Announced By Gov. Winter

Gov. William Winter has announced a Low Income Energy Assistance Program (LIEAP) in the amount of $12,917,719 to provide financial assistance to an estimated 130,000 low-income Mississippi households for the upcoming winter months.

The program, designed to help meet rising energy costs, will be administered by the Governor's Office of Federal-State Programs and the Department of Human Development, Division of Human Resources, through the state's 20 community action agencies and other community based organizations.

These agencies will begin taking applications on Jan. 12 and all eligible recipients must be certified through an application process to obtain program benefits. When applying, applicants must bring proof of household income, such as check stubs, pay slips, or written statements from employers regarding wages, a government spokesman said.

Those eligible are low-income households who are affected by energy cost increases. Operators of public or subsidized housing may be eligible on behalf of their tenants. Benefits to recipients will vary from $50 to $200 depending on income, region of the state, type of heating used, and category of eligibility.

Of Most Tornadoes

State Ranks In Top 10

Mississippi ranked among the top 10 states with the most tornadoes in 1980, according to a report from the National Weather Service in Kansas City, Mo. The agency reported that Texas had the largest number of tornadoes, with 112 reported. Florida was second with 58. Mississippi and Georgia were tied for ninth with 32 tornadoes each.

The states with the most tornado deaths for the year were Michigan, Indiana and Nebraska, with five each. Mississippi reported two deaths attributed to tornadoes in 1980.

Officials in Jackson reported that 10 of the 32 tornadoes reported in Mississippi in 1980 occurred in October. The most active day was Oct. 17 when seven tornadoes were reported around the state.

Tornadoes killed two people and injured 54 in the state in 1980. The two deaths occurred in separate storms, but both occurred in house trailers.

The average tornado death toll in the state is 17 per year, based on figures kept since 1916.

Crabb, Stacy Seek Re-Election

By KEN CHRISTIAN
Editor

Booneville Mayor Charles Crabb and Police Chief W.W. Stacy have both qualified to run for re-election to their respective posts in the city election to be held this spring.

City Clerk June Hutcheson said Tuesday the city's primary elections have been scheduled for Tuesday, May 12, with the second primary (or runoff) scheduled for one week later if a second primary is necessary.

The general election will be held in June. Mrs. Hutcheson said that if there are no Republican or Independent candidates, the general election will be just a formality. This was the case four years ago.

In addition to the mayor and chief of police posts, all five city aldermen posts will be up for election this spring. The aldermen posts are currently held by Jack Arnold, Wade Lambert, Charles Steen, Norman Young, and Bluford Allen.

Allen was elected to his post on the board of aldermen just this past Saturday in the second primary of a special election to fill the post vacated by the death in October of Alderman J.W. Timbes. Allen's post will also be up for election in May.

Although Stacy and Crabb are the only two candidates thus far to file to run in this spring's election, the fact that five candidates ran in the special election last month indicates that there could be a large field of candidates by the time the May election comes around.

In this spring's election, Crabb will be seeking his second term as mayor of Booneville. Stacy, who was first elected chief of police in 1961, will be seeking his sixth term to that post, having served in that capacity for the last 20 years.

In the election four years ago, Crabb, who had served previously as an alderman, was unopposed in his bid for mayor. Stacy ran in a field of four candidates and defeated Charles (Coe) Moore in the second primary to win re-election.

The deadline to file as a candidate in the May primary election is 30 days prior to the election, or by Friday, April 10. In order to qualify, a candidate must reside within the city limits of Booneville from at least 30 days prior to the first primary and must be a qualified voter in the city.

In order to run in the general election in June as an Independent, a candidate must qualify by filing a petition containing the names of not less than 50 qualified municipal electors.

The deadline to register to vote in the May 12 primary is 30 days prior to the election, or by Friday, April 10.

Draft Registration Now Underway

Draft registration that began July 21, 1980, with the registration of some 3.7 million men nationwide, continues this week as all young men who were born in 1962 are required to register.

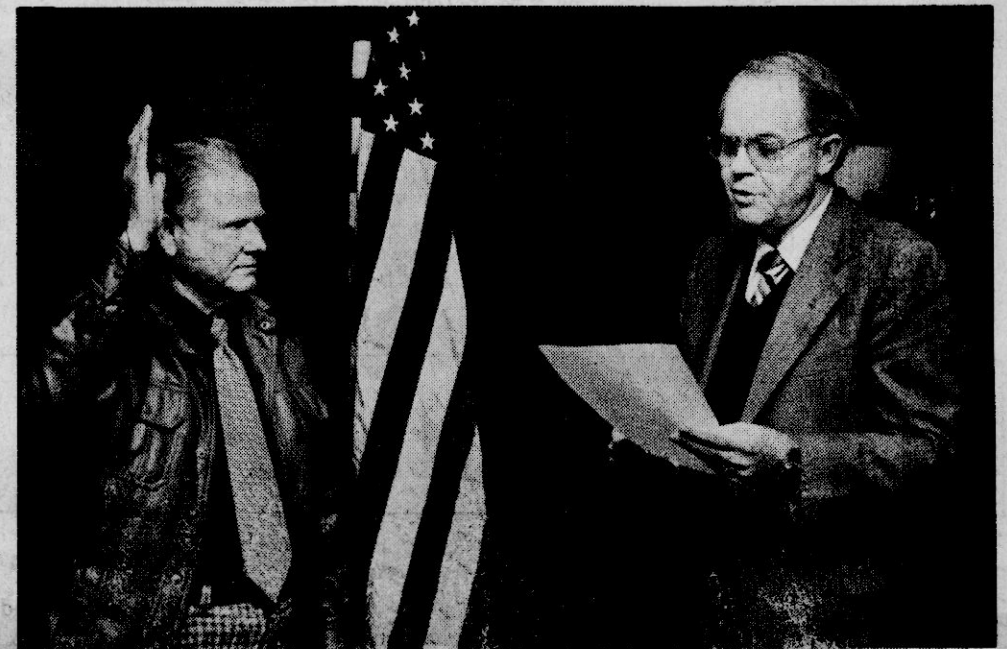

Booneville Postmaster Jack Wright said several young men had registered Monday and Tuesday. He was unable to give an exact total as Selective Service officials have told the Post Office Department not to keep records.

Wright was told, however, that he could expect approximately the same number to register this week as registered in a two-week period in July.

Those who are required to register are: U.S. citizens, aliens residing in the United States, and conditional entrants, refugees, and persons who are at least 18 years of age.

This week will conclude the mass registrations. Young men born in 1963 or later will be required to register within 30 days before or 30 days after their 18th birthday.

TAKING OATH—Bluford Allen (left) takes the oath of office from Mayor Charles Crabb Tuesday night prior to the city's regular monthly board meeting. Allen was elected Saturday to fill a vacant seat on the city's board of aldermen in the second primary of the special election. He received 274 votes to 243 for his opponent, Robert Floyd. A total of 519 city residents voted in Saturday's election, but two ballots were disallowed.

MEC And NAACP Disagree On NTE

The Mississippi Economic Council and the state chapter of the NAACP came out separately last week on opposite sides of a controversy over a recent decision of the State Board of Education.

The board voted Monday of last week to raise the minimum score state public school teachers are required to make on the National Teacher Examination before they can be certified.

Presently teachers are required to make a minimum of 805 on the test. As of January 1983, this minimum will be an average of 915 (a different minimum is now required in different subject areas). The highest possible score on the test is 1,980.

State NAACP president Aaron Henry of Clarksdale and Jackson branch president Fred Banks, both members of the Mississippi House of

Local Company Awarded Contract

Armstrong Construction Co. of Booneville has been awarded a contract totaling $194,875 for the construction of gymnasiums at Alcorn Central and Kossuth elementary schools in Alcorn County.

The contract, which comes to an amount larger than the $181,470 allocated for the project, was let by Alcorn County school officials. In an effort to reduce the cost of the projects, Alcorn Superintendent of Education Tony Parker said he will submit requests to the Educational Finance Commission to change some aspects of the construction.

Armstrong Construction Co. submitted base bids of $91,108 for the Alcorn Central gym and $92,177 for the Kossuth facility. The Alcorn County School Board accepted the base bids, plus an extra $5,795 per facility for asbestos floor tiles.

'Government Can Be Dangerous To Your Health!'

By CARL BARKER
Hospital Administrator

Recently, a friend gave me a hand-out that came from the North Mississippi Medical Center. It reads:

"Warning! Government can be dangerous to your health! And Government can and does contribute substantially to your hospital bill, too!

"Did you know that a major portion of this bill (more than $200 for most patients) goes to pay an 'Indirect Tax' placed by government on the people who need hospital care?"

"This year North Mississippi Medical Center alone had to budget $5,200,000 to offset losses suffered as a result of providing elderly patients. When the government does not pay its 'fair share' for patients covered by government programs, the loss must be made up by increasing charges to patients like you. You are forced to pay two taxes. One direct tax is to support the government health program and the second indirect tax is to offset underpayments to hospitals by government for these services.

"Year after year, government itself is the major contributor to the increasing cost of saving people's lives and restoring them to health.

"North Mississippi

Medical Center is pleased to provide services for patients, regardless of age or ability to pay. The Medical Center does not believe, however, that it is fair to force hospitals to place a substantial portion of this government cost on patients like you.

"If you agree, you may want to share your thinking with your elected representatives in Jackson and Washington, D.C."

Congratulations to the Board of Trustees, Administration and Medical Staff of the Tupelo hospital for their effort to inform their patients of one of the reasons that medical cost are rising.

A comparison of the increasing cost of medical cost as compared to other everyday living cost will reveal that in most cases, medical costs are not increasing any faster than other costs. Often, a slower rate is revealed.

However, medical cost is something that is not popular, even if it were considerably less. When comparing it to the cost of luxury items, people will complain about medical cost because of its natural unpopularity while accepting without complaint luxury items.

An example of one way government regulations do not carry its weight follows. All patients must be charged the same price for the same service.

When determining the hospital's daily roomrates, all expenses related to the roomrates are added up. For simplicity, let the daily expense total $7,500.00. This would include all rooms, furniture, equipment, labor, utilities, supplies, etc.

Still keeping it simple, estimate 100 patients of all types a day would use the hospital. This would include patients covered by Medicare, Medicaid, Blue Cross Insurance, regular insurance, or private pay. These patients would be for surgery, obstetrics, children and general sickness.

Dividing the total expense of $7,500 by the 100 patients would mean the roomrates would be $75. So each patient will pay $75 per day. Right? Wrong! Now the changes begin:

-Medicare will not recognize any expense that does not relate to Medicare-type patients. Therefore, the expense for anything related to obstetrics and children are not recognized by Medicare. In our example, that amounts to about $8 per day.

-Of the approximately 70 patients per day that would be Medicare. That would amount to about $560 per day that the other 30 patients may have to pay.

-Since Medicaid patient

days are limited to 10 days every six months, anything beyond that amount--we won't refuse services to a Medicaid patient or any patient if they need the services, even though they may not be able to pay--plus other things that Medicaid doesn't pay adds more to what the paying patient will have to pay. There will be about six or seven Medicaid patients a day.

-That leaves about 24 patients a day to pick up their own plus what Medicare and Medicaid doesn't pay.

-But wait, Blue Cross of Mississippi doesn't always pay all of what they are billed. And since there could be about five or six Blue Cross patients per day, a remainder of about 18 to 20 patients made up of commercial insurance holders and private pay are left to pick up their own plus what Medicare, Medicaid and Blue Cross doesn't pay.

From Oct. 1, 1979, until Sept. 30, 1980, the audited difference between what Medicare patients were billed and what Medicare paid was $528,446 short. During the same period the unaudited estimate between what Blue Cross patients were charged and what Blue Cross will recognize is a little over $40,000. Medicaid's audited figure was $64,091 short.

Can the 18 to 20 patients each day afford that kind of charges? Think about it.

I join North Mississippi Medical Center in suggesting that "you may want to share your thinking with your elected representatives in Jackson and Washington, D.C."

MEC And

because it discriminates against minorities.

"I have great problems with this," Henry was quoted as saying last week.

"My experience with testing one's ability generally has nothing to do with what one has been taught. If a test is to be given, the contents of the test should be taught during the course of study."

Banks agreed, saying blacks have "historically" had problems with written tests.

According to a Memphis newspaper last week, a study completed two years ago showed that 90 percent of the students from predominantly black Mississippi colleges scored below 1,000 on the NTE test, while about the same number of white students

"I'm still of the opinion that tests don't reflect the ability of anybody," Banks said. "It shouldn't be used as the sole criteria."

On the other hand, the MEC called the decision by the Board of Education "a definite step toward enhancing the quality of education offered in the state's schools." The MEC went even further, suggesting that the minimum scores should be gradually raised even higher.

"Increasing the quality of the state's classroom personnel is of paramount importance in raising the standards of education in the state," MEC chairman Lewis F. Mallory Jr., a Starkville bank executive, said. "Many elements enhance the quality of a child's educational experience, but few factors have greater influence in the learning process than quality personnel."

The new scores for teacher certification concern 12 subject areas and bring the state up to the 12th percentile nationally from the previous third percentile. Mississippi's minimum score has been 850 across the board, but other states using the NTE require scores in the 1,000 to 1,100 range, Mallory said.

"An MEC study, 'Teacher Training and Certification,' adopted by the Council's board of directors in November, points out that wide variances exist in NTE scores among students at the state's universities," he said. "And if Mississippi is to improve the quality of education, it must upgrade the requirements for certification of teachers and upgrade the quality of training teachers receive at the state's universities."

"MEC recommends that minimum scores on examinations used by the state to certify classroom personnel should be increased in steps until the state's score for certification reaches the national average score for the examination used."

BIBLE QUESTION BOX

QUESTION: Mr. Hogland, I noticed in the paper you received a phone call about church suppers. My question is about gymnasiums. I noticed a church in New Albany has recently built a gym, what is your feeling on this matter?

ANSWER: My feeling on this matter would be no better than yours. However if you want what the Bible says I will tell you. There is no authority for a church using its funds for building gymnasiums or recreational facilities. In the Bible the money from the church treasury was used for Preaching the gospel (See 2 Cor. 11:8). It was also used for relieving the needs of the poor saints (See Acts 11:27; 1 Cor. 16:1, 2). I fail to find in my Bible where the church used money for social activities. This was carried on by the individual members and not out of church funds. If the church has the authority to build gymnasiums, why not swimming pools, golf courses and tennis courts? Actually, where could we really stop? We need to let the church be the church and let the home be the home.

MSU Project Looks At Use Of Solar Energy

Because it can be expensive "to let the sun shine in," recent studies indicate that it will take approximately 20 years for the construction of solar homes to have an impact on our total energy needs. Designing and constructing buildings to accommodate the use of solar energy is At NEMJC expensive. And it remains expensive whether the buildings utilize active or passive systems. However, there's a cheaper way to capture the sun. Mechanical engineering Professor Lynn D. Russell and his students at Mississippi State University have designed a low-cost, passive system which can be installed in an existing structure. The design has potential for cooling as well as heating purposes. The Tennessee Valley Authority has provided $50,000 for the MSU research project. "There are no moving parts in this design, and there is no expensive equipment," Russell said. The design is the best of three models developed by Russell and his students at MSU's South Farm, where the models have been tested. The model is an all-acrylic, well-sealed water wall made by Plastico Inc.

in Memphis. Although it is scaled to 32 square feet, the model represents an area of about 320 square feet, which would be attached directly to the wall of a building. The water wall absorbs heat from the sun and transfers this heat to the building's interior through vents at the top and bottom of the building's wall.

Based on computer data gathered for the Nashville area analyzing the impact this system would have on a 1,600 square foot home, the 320 square foot-water wall could provide up to 75 percent of the heating requirements for the home. "The heating system already installed in the house could be used to supply the remaining 25 percent of the heat needed," Russell said. In addition to plastic, the materials used in the water wall include glue, nails (or screws), and water.

According to Russell, the life expectancy of this system is 20 years. He said the design could probably be produced for $5-6 per square foot; $2,000 or less for a 1,600 square-foot home. "The key to solar use is low cost," Russell said. "Our aim is to get the cost as low as possible. By using computer calculations and study, we hope to find the simplest solar heating method which will do the most for you," he said.

RESA Sponsors Workshop

Admittance is free for all participants. The workshop is open to the public.

Shrine Club Officers To Be Installed

The Prentiss County Shrine Club will install officers for the coming year during their regular monthly meeting Jan. 29 at the Town Motel. Officers to be installed at this meeting are Jessie Campbell, president; Danny Childers, vice-president; and Robert Baggents, secretary-treasurer.

Driver Escapes Injury, Pigs Get Shaken Up!

Driver Thomas Gallaher of Waynesboro, Tenn., escaped serious injury Monday when his truck, loaded with 115 live hogs, overturned as it rounded a curve on Highway 30 near the Big V community. Gallaher, enroute from Waynesboro to West Point, Miss., said he was not carrying a full load and the hogs shifted to one side as he came out of the curve. "I knew it was gone when I looked in the rearview mirror and saw the rear wheels come off the ground," he said. The accident, which occurred about 11:30 a.m., trapped most of the hogs inside the truck for some time until help could arrive to transfer them to another vehicle. Gallaher said a few of the hogs managed to escape and run away shortly after the crash. Gallaher himself was thrown through the windshield of the truck by the impact of the crash. He landed some 15 or 20 feet in front of the vehicle. He received only minor injuries, but he said there were some anxious moments before the overturned truck came to a rest. "I was afraid it was going to come over on top of me," he said. The truck came to rest against a light pole, which stopped any further forward motion of the truck.

Nunnally Said Surprised By Reports About Pay

Rep. James Nunnally of Ripley said this week in Jackson that he was surprised by reports in a Jackson newspaper that he will be asked to repay the state about $600 he received in 1977 and 1978 from a Prentiss County daycare center. The Clarion-Ledger reported Tuesday that Nunnally will be asked at an Ethics Commission meeting on Jan. 9 to reimburse the state for about $600 of his salary from the center. The report contends that Nunnally received this pay while attending to legislative business in Jackson or while he was at home. The Jackson newspaper said it learned from sources that Nunnally was a victim of sloppy bookkeeping and was paid for more days than he should have been. Prior to the opening of the 1981 legislative session in Jackson Tuesday, Nunnally, who is now a teacher at Walnut High School, said he has not been contacted by the Ethics Commission about attending the Jan. 9 meeting.

Energy Progress Being Made

By TRUMAN HUNT
Executive Director
Mississippi Petroleum
Council

The United States reached an energy crossroads in 1980, and it appears we may have chosen to take the correct turn. If we—the people of the United States—continue along this new course we have charted, we are on our way to solving our complex energy problems. It is a beginning. During the past year petroleum consumption dropped significantly; imports of foreign crude oil declined accordingly; natural gas and petroleum production began to stabilize following years of decline; drilling of new oil and gas wells skyrocketed; and

Americans made great efforts to conserve energy. Each of those developments relates primarily to the petroleum industry, but there were equally important developments in other areas. Coal production increased faster than anticipated. Numerous shale oil and other alternative energy projects were launched or given new emphasis. The general public became more aware of the energy problems, and the role coal, nuclear and alternative sources must play in solving these problems. If the United States continues to make progress in those and other areas, our dependence on foreign energy will be reduced more and more in each coming year. Then the United States can get on with the task of continued economic growth, thereby benefiting all Americans. However, as we progress, we are aware of certain impediments, mostly in the area of government roadblocks. Those obstructions must be removed. Mineral exploration and production on federal lands and water—now largely prohibited—must be allowed. Certain overly-stringent environmental regulations must be modified, while still maintaining an adequate margin of safety. Once those changes are made, continued progress should become not a wish, but a reality.

From The MEC

Kindergarten Program Needed

The establishment of kindergarten programs in the public schools of Mississippi could have a dramatic impact on the average educational achievement of the state's students—now below the rest of the nation by most measurable standards. Many educators believe that about 17 percent of a child's growth takes place between the ages of four and six and that a kindergarten program could have far-reaching effects on learning patterns. The impact of these far-reaching, positive effects did not go unobserved by a special blue-ribbon committee appointed by the governor to consider the state's education system. One of the recommendations approved by the committee calls for the establishment of a kindergarten program in the public schools of the state. As soon as the recommendation was made public, an outcry was heard from various state legislators over the potential costs of such a program—up to $10 million by some legislator estimates. But can we really place a price tag on the future of Mississippi's youngsters? Our young people represent one of the most valuable commodities this state has—its hope for the future. The value of the kindergarten experience for five-year-olds is widely accepted both among educators and the public. The experience places the child on a firm foundation for later educational achievement. The Mississippi Economic Council recognizes the fact that the ultimate goal of the educational system is a person who is an asset to his family, community, state, and nation. And, in order to enhance that goal, upgrade that product of the educational system, the MEC recommends that a public school kindergarten program be established.

Diabetics Need Regular Eye Check-ups

With the number of diabetics in the United States rising steadily, an eye disease linked to their condition is fast emerging as the nation's leading cause of blindness. The Mississippi Society to Prevent Blindness reports that the eye disorder, diabetic retinopathy, is already the number one cause of new cases of vision loss among adults between ages 20 and 74—some 4,700 a year. "The longer a person has diabetes, the greater the risk of retinopathy," said Dr. Richard Blount, Medical Advisory Committee Chairman of the Society. "Most of those who have diabetes for 15 years or more are affected by it to some degree." It is estimated that there may be as many as 10 million Americans who are diabetic. Since early diagnosis improves the chance of saving vision in many cases, the Society urges all

State Facing Probable Tax Increase

By BILL MINOR
Columnist

JACKSON, Miss.—State government in Mississippi has moved into the $2 billion-plus category, which sounds like a lot of money, and is, in contrast with the state budgets of a decade ago when it cost only about a quarter billion dollars for all state operations. The proposed 1982 fiscal year (FY 82) budget handed to lawmakers by the State Budget Commission—at a total price tag of $2.8 billion—is going to be one of the toughest ever faced by the Mississippi Legislature, because it falls short of the money for services Mississippians either want or need. Financing state government in the current recessionary-inflationary period in some ways is trickier for a state such as Mississippi than it is for the federal government. For one thing, Mississippi's Legislature can't intentionally create a deficit under the state constitution, and for another, the state doesn't have a printing press that can print money. What many Mississippians don't realize, however, is that state government in Mississippi depends very heavily on funds it gets from the federal government. For instance, in the newly proposed $2.8 billion 1982 budget, the state is counting on getting $1.05 billion in federal funds. So, some 39 per cent of the burden of state services in Mississippi is being shouldered by the federal government, a factor that could become quite critical if the incoming Reagan administration goes through with its promise to shift the load for certain programs from the federal level back to the states. Already, Congress's cutback in Federal Revenue Sharing funds for use by the states is going to put a severe crimp in what the legislature can spend for Capital Improvements, the purpose to which revenue sharing funds have been devoted since the program started back in 1972. Since then, Mississippi has built $336 million worth of buildings at state institutions out of revenue sharing. Using Federal Revenue Sharing money has relieved the state of the necessity of borrowing capital outlay funds, thereby substantially saving Mississippi taxpayers millions of dollars that would have gone to service the bonded debt. The upcoming legislative battle of the budget will mainly be fought over appropriations for the General Fund, the part of state government that comes directly out of Mississippi taxpayers' pockets. The Budget Commission has recommended $1,106,828,775 in spending for the General Fund, a figure everybody knows is the bottom amount the lawmakers could get by with. But nobody believes that will happen. For example, that $1.1 billion figure doesn't include pay raises for teachers or state employees, bail-out funds for Medicaid, and it assumes that the $42 million in sales taxes now going to the Highway Department will be terminated. Lawmakers will have some bitter scraps, but they are going to give teachers and state employees raises, vote more money for Medicaid, and very likely keep the $42 million in sales taxes going to highways. That doesn't say anything about funding parts of the new quality education program or giving existing state programs, such as higher education, a bigger slice of the pie than proposed by the Budget Commission. How the Winter Administration and the legislature can get by without raising some taxes either at the 1981 Regular session or at a special session soon after, now appears extremely problematical. In its transmittal letter accompanying the proposed 1982 FY budget, the budget Commission laid the predicate for the inevitability of new taxation in view of the present economic uncertainty if the legislature makes any significant increases over the recommendations. Because of its track record over the past two decades of being very conservative in estimating revenues, and very tight-fisted in spending, the Budget Commission has lost some of its credibility with lawmakers when it tries to paint a grim picture. The Budget Commission, however, is dominated by the fiscal leaders in the legislature, and its recommendations have a great deal of clout. Because of the legislative control of the budgeting process in Mississippi, the governor consequently doesn't have a chance to propose his own budget, as is done in practically every other state. Gov. William Winter intimated before he took office he wanted to change this, but thus far he has made no move to challenge the long-standing budgetary system. Since he signed the Budget Commission's recommendations, he is more or less stuck with them.

Water Extravagance Must Be Curbed

By ED BLAKE
Mississippi Farm Bureau
Federation

The world's water distillery to serve all life forms is powered daily by about one-quarter of the sun's daily energy output which amounts to a force nearly four times as much as the total of daily energy contrived by all the world's man-made systems. Daily this powerful sun distills fresh water from the seas through evaporation and propels it by solar energy, manipulating the winds and the breezes over the diverse face of the earth to unleash it in the form of rainfall to replenish our soil, lakes, and streams to keep humankind at an arm's length from non-productivity.

These findings by Dr. Roger Revelle, director of the Scripps Institute of Oceanography, illustrate the delicate balance of nature that serves agriculture the world over, the daily thirsts of a growing population, and even recompense for many of man's mistakes of stewardship. The ocean scientist tells us that even nature itself is a capricious steward—exact-ing a toll of seven-eighths of that water evaporated daily from the seas as rain returned immediately to the oceans. Thus only one-eighth of the oceans distillate moisture ever is swept and released over land masses for the direct benefit of mankind. Only in recent years has this nation and its people focused serious attention beyond our normally well fruited plains to what the future holds with respect to water supply and use—and not without some resistance by you and me. But alter we must our public attitudes or fights at the water foundation will be more than idle distraction down an elementary school hallway. City water conservation came home to New Yorkers in 1949—a dry year that struck just before completion of a sorely needed additional reservoir. New York City nonetheless receives an annual rainfall of 42 inches, most of which goes down the gutters while the city's water supply is tapped from upstate, less populated sources. Typical irresponsibility was reflected in that same city on a June day in 1963 when citizens drew water from their taps at the rate of 211 gallons each, 44 gallons more than their daily use with much of that extra water gushing from open fire hydrants to cool children playing in the streets. Even Jackson and other state towns were hard pressed to supply daily water needs during a seasonal drought. While urban water extravagance may be rather eye-catching, it is no secret that rural folks likewise have been negligent in watchdogging this resource with failures to terrace, seed, sod and timber the land to make it more of a sponge, less a worn dishrag. Officially Mississippi gave heed to the mounting problem of the diminishing water resource during the governorship of Hugh White in the early 1950's and studied increasing demands upon the water resources of the state caused by such factors as irrigation, industrialization, urbanization, drought and pollution. The end result of the study was legislative enactment of a seven member water commission to monitor and regulate the quantity and quality of state water resources. And while today's pressures may be causing the damming of both streams and (damning) regulators at an accelerated pace, the fact remains that however we handle this critical resource will have a profound affect on tomorrow's economy and the lifestyle of the future for both our state and nation.

SPECIAL REPORT:

Religious Exemption

I am very pleased that Congress has enacted legislation I originally introduced to provide tax relief for missionaries and others who are engaged in religious or charitable work overseas. This legislation, first introduced in June 1979 to correct the adverse impact of a 1978 tax law adjustment, allows an income tax exemption for a portion of the earnings of those persons involved in missionary or charitable work in foreign fields. Without this change in the law, many religious and charitable groups were faced with reducing their activities overseas, and many of these missionaries and other workers would have been forced to give up their very worthwhile service. The result of the 1978 Foreign Earned Income Act has required religious and charitable workers overseas to pay an additional $1,000 to $4,000 annually in federal income taxes. Tax hikes of this magnitude would have a very adverse impact on our private missionary and charity activities. In recent years, many of these organizations have experienced great difficulty in adjusting pay scales to keep pace with inflation and the declining value of the dollar. Unlike their counterparts in private industry, they have no way to pass along cost increases and can adjust to such an added burden only by cutting the services they provide. I pointed out in my testimony before the Senate Finance Committee on behalf of our bill that concern had first been expressed to me by religious leaders and missionary officials in Mississippi. I discovered that other organizations such as CARE, the Salvation Army, the YMCA and the YWCA, and agricultural officials from land grant colleges working in developing countries overseas were also adversely affected. For example, the Southern Baptist Foreign Mission Board informed me that the 1978 act would impose nearly $1 million in additional taxes. To a foreign mission board of any religious denomination, or any non-profit charitable organization, this jeopardizes very important services. Other Senators and Congressmen subsequently joined me in seeking legislative relief for religious and charitable workers in foreign countries.

During the closing days of the 96th Congress, an amendment was successfully added to a House bill, H.R. 4968, to include language similar to my original bill, S. 1372. Passage of this bill was obtained in both the Senate and the House. The bill containing this tax relief for missionaries and charitable workers overseas was dispatched to the President's desk as the recent lameduck session came to final adjournment. Under the new act, American missionaries and charitable workers overseas could exempt the first $20,000 of earned income from federal taxes. Without this legislation, many of our missionaries and other workers were faced with a hard decision as to whether or not they could remain in these foreign fields. I do not believe the authors of the 1978 act realized the very serious impact that law would have on religious and charitable workers. Our missionaries and charitable workers overseas should be encouraged to continue to carry out their service, not discouraged by punitive tax laws.

"Why"

Why do we wait till a person's gone
Before we tell his worth?
Why do we wait, why not tell him now
He's the finest man on earth?

Why do we wait till a person's gone
to send him flowers

galore.
When a single rose would have meant so much
If we'd taken it to his door?

Why do we wait till he cannot hear
The good things that we might say?
Why put it off, why not tell him now
And share in his joy today?

Of course, we're busy,

that's our excuse,
But why, oh why, do we wait
To tell a person our love for him
Until it becomes too late?

Miss Tennison, Mr. Foster Exchange Vows

The East Marietta Baptist Church was the setting for the Nov. 28th wedding of Miss Norma Ellen Tennison, daughter of Bill Tennison of Burton and Mrs. Jimmy Pharr of Marietta, and Jim Foster, son of Mrs. Dovie Foster of Baldwin and the late Ellis Foster. The Rev. Castor Buse officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Guests were registered in vestibule by Mrs. Teresa Huddleston, sister of the groom.

Nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Kay Jones, aunt of the bride, who sang "The Wedding Prayer" and "The Twelfth of Never" accompanied by Miss Terri Huddleston. Guests were seated by ushers Randy Eaton and Mark Samples.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal Victorian gown of white delustered taffeta. Chantilly lace edged the chiffon caplet encircling her shoulders.

Irish lace with pearl clusters outlined the neckline, the empire waist and the flowing skirt, which formed a chapel train at the back and was completed with Irish lace over deep ruffles underlined with soft chiffon.

The bride's veil of illusion was shirred with chantilly lace and edged with tiny pearls. She carried a colonial bouquet of pink and white rosebuds accented with cascading streamers tied with love knots.

The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. Janet Pounds, as matron of honor and by Mrs. Donna Foster, sister of the groom, as bridesmaid.

Their empire-styled floor-length gowns of pink crepe with flowing accordin-pleated skirts were held with tiny spaghetti straps. A cape of soft chiffon covered their shoulders and each carried a single long-stemmed pink rose with cascading streamers tied in love knots.

Little Miss Susan Rowan, niece of the groom, sprinkled rose petals in the path of the bride from a tiny straw basket.

The groom was attended by his brother-in-law, Mike Huddleston, as best man. Larry Cagle served as groomsman and Sam DeVaughn, cousin of the bride, was ring bearer.

Mrs. Shirley Moreland directed the wedding.

Reception

Misses Marla DeVaughn and Lawanda Samples served the snow white wedding cake, decorated with doves and cherubs and crested with a miniature bride and groom, from the bride's table which was covered with a floor-length white cloth and pink underlay. Sparkling frappe was poured by Mrs. Sherry DeVaughn from a silver bowl.

Misses Darlene Tennison, sister of the bride, and Tracy Rowan, niece of the groom, distributed tiny pink rice bags from white straw baskets.

Floating hostesses, Mrs. Frances Hodges and Mrs. Virginia DeVaughn, served coffee from a silver service.

For travel, the bride chose a black velvet blazer and wool skirt, accented with a corsage from her wedding bouquet. After a short wedding trip, the couple is at home near Baldwin.

Mr. And Mrs. James Foster

Thought for the week: Ten Rules for Happy Living:

(1) Keep busy. One cannot always work strenuously, so have a hobby.

(2) Never indulge in self-pity. Maybe you did not have opportunities as a child, but you can make them now.

(3) When you go out, prepare to give a smile to everyone who will take it. "No one is properly clothed unless he wears a smile."

(4) Cultivate a cheerful disposition and a sense of humor.

(5) Put yourself out to help someone every day.

(6) Fill your life with worthwhile things. Then should the light go out, you will have something to think about.

(7) Appreciate people. Nothing gives more pay than appreciation.

(8) Children are the hope of the world. Make at least one child happy everyday.

(9) Refuse to be discouraged. What should be done, can be.

(10) Read your Bible and talk to God about your affairs---Selected.

Cairo News

By ESSIE ENGLE and FRANKIE BATES Correspondents

Happy New Year to everyone. Last year is history. This year is future. Lets hope and pray for a better year.

I am behind time in my writing. I have been sick. A flu of some kind is traveling around. It hit Cairo, found it's way into our house and bit two of my children and myself. At night it sounds like hound dogs are hot on the trail of a coon. We bark, bark, bark. This cough is hard to get rid of.

A few December birthdays were Keith Cox, the 4th; Opel Holder, the 15th; Ronnie Holder, the 15th. Essie Engle, the 18th; Cris Lowrey, the 26th; and Monica Cox, the 28th. Happy Birthday to all. Any January birthdays please call me.

The weather is so nice to be January, but cold weather is bound to come. Did everyone get their water pipes wrapped and their cars and trucks winterized? I wonder how many Mom's are pulling their hair out thinking Monday will never get here. School has been out almost two weeks. It is a relief to get up and get the children off to school and sit down and relax with a cup of coffee.

I got a phone call from Roy Newborn. He now lives in Hayward, Calif. He was born and raised near Cairo. His brother, Marvin, lives in Lambrook, Ark., and Charley lives near Jacinto. Marvin had heart surgery last week. He is in the Baptist Hospital in Memphis. We wish him a speedy recovery.

Home Economist's Notes

By CLAIRE T. ROSS Extension Home Economist

It is a well known fact that it's much easier to break a resolution than it is to break a habit. 1981 will bring continued high prices so if you have resolved to develop plans to deal with the situation, you may have to work harder to break old habits that get in the way.

Perhaps one of your New Year's Resolution was to start budgeting your income. However, you may already have grown sick and tired of the word "budget" and your plans and good intentions may be about to fall by the wayside. If that is the case, something is wrong with your methods. Remember, you must be the master of your budget not its slave.

The first step in successful budgeting is to find out what you really need and want. Set your own goals. Once you decide just what you want, you can usually find a way of fitting these goals into your spending plan.

The secret of having something to show for your hard-earned dollars is planning to make those dollars buy exactly what you want and need before they disappear in those "unexpected ways" that we all know so well.

Much of the rest of budgeting is mechanical.

and enjoys reading it. Thanks Roy for taking the time to call and tell me you read and enjoy the paper.

We had company New Years Eve. Gerald and Fran Joiner of Indianapolis, Ind. They are very dear friends of ours. We went to Corinth for dinner, came back home and sat and talked for hours. We enjoyed the dinner and the talks and invited them to visit us again soon.

Essie Engle spent five days in the hospital. Her sinus tubes got infected, causing a high fever. Her lungs got congested almost to pneumonia. She also had bladder infection. She was so sick but is better. She came home but is still so weak.

She had company while in the hospital—her baby boy, James Robert Engle, and his wife, Rita, and four boys, Jamie, Rickie and the twins, Terry and Jerry. They also visited Rita's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lester of Booneville.

The J.R. Engles live in LaVerne, Tenn. They left for home today. Here's wishing them a safe trip home. They also get the Banner-Independent and enjoy it. Mrs. Green of Booneville passed away Monday. She was the mother of Troy Green, Cairo, Carl Green of Snowdown and Annie Pearl Engle of Memphis. She will be missed by all her friends and family. She was laid to rest in the Snowdown Community.

Eddie and Annette Holder and two girls were home for the holidays. The Holder family got together for a delicious dinner at the Hassell Holder residents.

Geneva Parker hopes to open her place of business by Friday. The name of her business is "Parker's Quick Food." I wish her a quick, prosperous business.

The main factor to success in budgeting is making a complete listing of both, all your income and expenses. Then, and only then, will you be able to get a clear and adequate picture of your financial situation.

Do you remember how clumsy you were the first time you ever tried to drive a car? The same thing will happen in learning to handle money in a planned way. In your planning be sure to cut food price and not nutrition.

Since meat is the most expensive food item, it's usually a beginning point for curtailing expenditures. But meat is the protein food. Buying economical meat cuts is one way to beat the high cost. Another is to use meat substitutes occasionally. Plan dishes with extenders to make a little meat go a long way.

Egg, cheese, milk—dishes from these foods count as a meat serving. Another substitute is the dried bean. Dry beans and peas are among least expensive sources of calories, protein, iron, thiamine and riboflavin. They're always in season and the price changes vary little normally. This year prices will be up due to weather conditions and marketing processes. Even at higher prices they are a real food bargain, money-wise and nutrition-wise.

Tom Leach Makes On-Site Safety Inspection

Safety Program Keeps Yellow Creek Inspectors Busy

IUKA, Miss.—Whether it's visual inspection of the job site or an accident investigation, Don Feezell and Tom Leach are constantly on the run.

Feezell and Leach look for and take notes on violations of safety practices and work to correct existing and potential hazards at TVA's Yellow Creek Nuclear Plant.

You won't find the two carrying Sherlock Holmes-styled magnifying glasses or wearing button-down caps, but they are likely to be wearing hardhats and carrying a Polaroid camera.

Feezell, 41, and Leach, 31, are safety engineers at the 1,160-acre plant site north of Iuka. Their work includes locating unsafe working conditions, preparing accident trend reports, initiating safety orientation programs, and assisting Public Safety in implementing the project fire prevention and protection program.

Feezell holds a bachelor's degree in engineering and a master's degree in safety engineering from UT-Chattanooga and North Carolina State, respectively. Leach graduated from East Tennessee State University with a mechanical technology degree.

and Safety branch to better enforce and comply with safety standards on TVA jobs in 1979.

"The safety field is an active job," says Leach, a six-year TVA veteran. "Every day you're pursuing a new activity that requires something different along safety lines."

According to Leach, negligence is the largest cause of accidents on construction jobs. "People make accidents happen," he remarked. "Most injuries are from falls, hoses lying on the ground, and exposed reinforcing steel. The injuries are primarily to backs, knees, and ankles."

Because some employees are working high above the ground on structural steel erection, safety nets are being used in the unit 1 turbine building area. The nets cost approximately $20,000, with one crew of ironworkers constantly working to hang the nets. If one life is saved, the time and trouble will be more than justified, say the safety engineers.

"Safety meetings are required each week by the Division of Construction," adds Feezell. "We try to make workers aware of accident potential before it occurs."

When conducting visual inspection of an area, Feezell says he looks for violations in the use of hardhats and safety belts, observation of entrances and exits into a work area, and inspection of potential hazards like electrical cords and air and water hoses. He adds that you can generally find something everywhere you go.

"Our other primary role is to investigate accidents," said Leach. "We check out an accident area following the mishap to determine if a definite hazard existed, the cause of an accident, and possible preventive action."

And finally, like a true detective, Leach admits, "We check out accident claims to decide if they are fraudulent or legitimate, and submit our evidence for worker's compensation acceptance or rejection."

Research Could Lead To New Energy Source

Mississippi has large reserves of lignite, the brown, low-rank coal used by the Germans during World War II as fuel for their war machinery. However, lignite has not been used as an energy source in Mississippi.

Dr. David Cornell, professor of chemical engineering at Mississippi State University, believes more research in this area will lead to the use of lignite as an energy source in the state.

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

Due to the necessity for amending the specifications for the high-band VHF-FM emergency response pager and two-way radio system as previously advertised, the deadline for submitting bids has been extended to close of business February 10, 1981. Amended specifications will be on file at the offices of the Yellow Creek Watershed Authority, Tishomingo County Courthouse, Iuka, Mississippi, and will be available for inspection during normal business hours.

Bids will be opened at the YCWA Board of Director's Meeting on February 17, 1981, 7:00 p.m. at the Booneville, Mississippi, George Allen Public Library, subsequent to which this Board will make its recommendations to the County Supervisors for acceptance or rejection.

"Lignite has potential for use as fuel in steam-generated power plants. It can also be used to produce low, medium or high Btu gaseous fuels, and synthetic liquid fuels," Cornell said.

There are two methods under study for producing synthetic liquid fuels from lignite, as described in the report. The first involves liquefying the lignite to best way to recover lignite, and to utilize its energy potential," Cornell said.

Cornell is co-author of a report sponsored by the Mississippi Mineral Resources Institute on lignite research projects and the future of lignite research in Mississippi.

The report describes use of lignite in South Africa, where it is being converted to gasoline and other synthetic fuels. It cites Texas and North Dakota as the only states which are using lignite commercially, though Louisiana will soon make commercial use of its lignite reserves.

Texas mines about 20 million tons of lignite each year for this purpose.

The Gulf Coast region holds an estimated 22.5 billion tons of lignite. Mississippi contains the second largest share of proven lignite reserves in that region—5 billion tons. Texas holds the largest share in that area—11.5 billion tons.

"Lignite has potential for use as fuel in steam-generated power plants. It can also be used to produce low, medium or high Btu gaseous fuels, and synthetic liquid fuels," Cornell said.

There are two methods under study for producing synthetic liquid fuels from lignite, as described in the report. The first involves liquefying the lignite to oil which can be further refined to produce other liquid products such as fuel oil and gasoline.

The second method involves gasification—the conversion of solid lignite to a gaseous form—in which a synthesis gas is produced.

"This gas can also be refined to produce products such as methanol and ammonia fertilizer," Cornell said.

While Cornell predicts Mississippi will be using lignite as an energy source in the future, he said, "It won't be easy. Mississippi has a high water table, and there will be mining problems."

He emphasizes that much work must be done before energy from lignite can become a reality in Mississippi. As stated in the report:

"While lignite and other coals have been studied extensively in many laboratories throughout the world, essentially no work has been done with the Mississippi lignites. Experience teaches that all coals are different, and we recommend strongly that studies be initiated to compare the behavior of Mississippi lignites with other coals." Cornell said.

Walker To Exhibit At Conference

James C. Walker of Booneville plans to be among 100 breeders from 21 states that will be exhibiting Yorkshire seedstock at the American Yorkshire Club's 1981 Winter Type Conference in Bowling Green, Ky., on Jan. 15, 16 and 17, according to a Yorkshire spokesman.

This swine conference will feature a purebred breeder's seminar, a breeding stock show for boars, gilts and bred gilts, and a national sale of breeding stock, according to Glenn Conatser, the club's executive secretary.

The purebred breeder's seminar will be held at 2 p.m. on Jan. 15 the new Livestock Center at Western Kentucky University.

Featured speakers for the day will be Jack Rodibaugh of Rensselaer, Ind., Bruce Leman of Roanoke, Ill., Linus Solberg of Cylinder, Iowa, Ernie Barnes of the Yorkshire staff and Warren Beeler of Western Kentucky University.

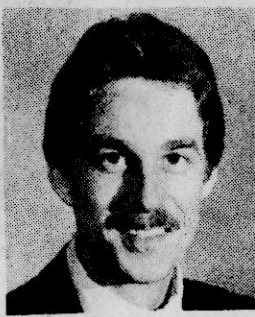

The breeding stock show is scheduled for Friday, Jan. 16. Some 300 head are expected to show and sell at the conference.

A special feature of the conference will be a 20 percent discount to all 4-H and FFA members who make purchases at the conference.

HEALTH TIPS Are You Aiding Your Enemy?

By Dr. Michael J. Ream

Time is your worst enemy when it comes to matters concerning your own health. Time can convert a curable cancer into a fatal growth. The passing of only a day or two can make the difference between a sore throat and a far advanced diphtheria. A very short time can transform a functional heart condition into serious organic heart disease.

Every minute that passes after the beginning of disease increases the odds which the doctor must fight. There are numerous methods of diagnosis and treatment available today which were unknown a few years ago. Yet well equipped as he is, with all these newer methods of fighting disease, your doctor is often handicapped by his worst enemy, time.

Your spine does much more than help you hold upright. Its most valuable function is the protection of a vital part of your nerve system. That's why even a slight spine failure is to be most carefully guarded against. When there is any degree of spine failure the result is that some body tissues are being deprived of the necessary nerve control or influence they need to function normally.

Are you or anyone in your family aiding your worst enemy, TIME by saying, "I'll wait and see how I feel tomorrow." For tomorrow or next week or next month, TIME may have piled up tragic obstacles to your recovery.

County Executive Director
No Set-Aside
For Cotton

Cotton farmers will not be required to set-aside or divert cropland for the 1981 cotton crop in order to be eligible for program benefits.

U.S. Department of Agriculture officials in Washington decided that there was no need for a set-aside program in 1981 because of extremely poor growing conditions which reduced 1980 production. The reduced crop, along with continued relatively strong demand for cotton likely will result in a carryover next fall of about 2.6 million bales.

Participating farmers will be eligible for price support loans on their 1981 crop. They will also be offered protection in the event (1) they are prevented from planting due to a natural disaster, (2) suffer crop failure due to natural disaster, or (3) the market drops below a specified level.

A preliminary 1981 crop upland cotton national program acreage of 14,021,538 acres was also announced. The program acreage is an estimate of the number of acres needed to meet domestic needs, export demand and provide a desirable carryover.

The target price for the 1981 upland cotton crop will be announced next spring when final yield and production cost estimates become available for the 1980 crop. Department officials estimate that the 1981 target price may be between 68.5 and 75.5 cents per pound. The 1980 target price is 58.4 cents.

Changes Made In
NCA Requirements
For 1981

Agricultural producers planting wheat, feed grain, upland cotton and rice in 1981 will not be required to plant within the NCA nor will cross compliance and off setting compliance requirements be in effect in order to earn program benefits. Each farmer, however, is encouraged to maintain cover on land that is subject to severe erosion and protect this land for future use.

NCA crops planted for 1981 in excess of the 1981 NCA or the 1980 planted and considered planted acreage will not be used in determining a farmer's NCA in future years.

Librarian

Magic is the theme for Super-Saturday on the tenth at 2 p.m. That should be an exciting start for the January programs at the library. Girls and boys of a wide range of ages are invited to an hour of happy activities.

A fresh start on term papers at school has been given a boost by gifts of magazines indexed in the "Reader's Guide." Staff and students appreciate the gift.

For those who need the use of an encyclopedia at home temporarily the library has several older sets from which you may check out a volume. The latest edition of each set, as well as the current issues of magazines, are for use in the library. The gifts of encyclopedia sets as well as magazines help the library meet a real need.

The beginning of this new year, full of plans and opportunities, is a good time to again say, "Thank You."

Forestry Notes

By JOHN STUART
County Forester

If you own timberland and spent money for improving it by planting trees during 1980, you probably have a sizeable tax credit due you on this year's federal income tax return, according to provisions of legislation signed into law last October by President Carter.

The new statute, H.R. 4310, includes a tax incentive provision (originally known as the Packwood Amendment) that provides a 10 percent investment tax credit on reforestation expenses of up to $10,000 per year. It also allows for 7-year amortization of the entire reforestation cost (up to $10,000) as a deduction from gross income. The law covers expenditures dating back to Jan. 1, 1980.

As an example: If a timber owner spent $10,000 in 1980 for reforestation (cost of site preparation, seeds, or seedlings, labor and tools including depreciation of equipment used in planting or seeding), he would receive a $1,000 credit ($10,000 x 10 percent) against the taxes otherwise owed, plus an amortization deduction of one-fourteenth of $10,000 ($714) in 1980, one-seventh of $10,000 ($1,428) in each of the succeeding six years and one-fourteenth of $10,000 in the last year (1987).

The Mississippi Forestry Commission is offering a free brochure explaining H.R. 4310 in more detail. It is titled, "H.R. 4310-A Much-Needed Tax Break for Qualified Owners of Timberland in Mississippi," and is available from the local county forester, or by writing State Forester Dick Allen, 908 Robert E. Lee Building, Jackson MS 39201.

If any of you missed our column last week, I am very sorry. Can you believe I forgot to get in early Monday. A little advise to some of you, don't ever remodel your house during Christmas holidays.

Happy birthday to "Mama Clutch," "Lady Blue Surf," and "Little Telephone Girl." Hope each of you have a nice day.

"Running Bear," is out of the hospital after a few days in Big M. He must be feeling better, he was in the deer woods in a couple of days.

Mr. Livingston is still in the hospital here in Booneville. A lot of others have colds, some have the flu, and others just haven't got over the holidays. I hope each of you feel better soon.

We extend our sympathy to the family of "Blue Lady," in the passing of her brother, Buford Ramey. We will have a quilting party at the Upholstrey shop Friday night at 6:30. We will have some stew for the ones that want to eat with us. Just bring some crackers, your own bowl, and your drink. We will have silverware. Hope each of you come, enjoy the fellowship, and get some of the quilts finished for the coffeebreak.

"Buffalo I," enjoyed the ballgame at Thrasher Saturday night until he got into his car. Someone must have had a bad battery. They borrowed his and forgot to return it. Sure am sorry about that.

The "Yo Yo," "Little Rascal" and I had friends up over the weekend from Brookhaven and Carthage, Miss. They came up for the ballgames at New Site and Thrasher with West Lincoln and Loyd Star. We all had a great time.

Hope each of you have a great week. Go to the church of your choice but go.

A Wish For Leaders

I sincerely wish you will have the experience of thinking up a new idea, planning it, organizing it and following it to completion, and then having it be magnificently successful.

I also hope you'll go through the same process and have something, "bomb out."

I wish you could know how it feels "to run" with all your heart and lose—horribly.

I wish that you could achieve some great good for mankind, but have nobody know about it except you. I wish you could find something so worthwhile that you deem it worth investing your life.

I hope you become frustrated and challenged enough to being to push back the very barriers of your own personal limitations.

I hope you make a stupid, unethical mistake and get caught redhanded and are big enough to say, "I was wrong."

I hope you give so much of yourself that some days you wonder if it's worth it all.

I wish for you a magnificent obsession that will give you reason for living and purpose and direction.

I wish for you the worst kind of criticism for everything you do, because that makes you fight to achieve beyond what you normally would.

I wish for you the true experience of leadership!

For Southern Culture Studies

Ole Miss Receives Grant

The University of Mississippi is among 122 educational and cultural institutions across the country receiving a Challenge Grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH).

The NEH grant was awarded to the University's Center for the Study of Southern Culture and could provide up to $300,000 in funding to increase library collections on the South and to process and house library materials as well as enhance library services.

"This Challenge Grant will help the University significantly to improve its library resources dealing with life in the South," said Ole Miss Chancellor Porter L. Fortune Jr. "The University is a national center for study of the South, and improving our library holdings is vital to our continued success in this area."

Institutions participating in the Challenge Grant program must raise $3 in private funding for every $1 in federal monies.

To obtain the NEH support, Ole Miss must secure $100,000 from private sources by June 30, 1981 and an additional $800,000 by 1984. The grant is spaced over a three-year period, with second and third year funding dependent upon action by Congress and ability to raise matching funds.

"If the University is to receive the full $300,000 from the National Endowment, we must raise $900,000 from other sources during the next three years," Chancellor Fortune said. "I am confident that the University's friends and alumni will recognize the importance of this effort and provide substantial assistance."

The University will use some $200,000 of the Challenge Grant total for immediate acquisition of badly needed materials about the South and to support the processing of holdings. The remaining $1 million will be placed in an endowment, the income from which will be used for future purchases.

Since the Challenge Grant program began in 1976, 99 percent of grant recipients have been successful in raising the matching funds and more than $134 million has been awarded through the Endowment. Congress established the program to help nonprofit, humanities-oriented institutions generate new financial support. The grants are awarded on a competitive basis.

The National Endowment for the Humanities was chartered by Congress in 1965 and is the government's principal cultural agency supporting research, education and public activity in the humanities.

For Latin American Studies

MSU Receives Grant

A $45,000 grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities means that 40 Mississippi high school teachers will have the opportunity to participate this summer in a Spanish and Latin American studies institute at Mississippi State University.

The funds are being provided to MSU's Department of Foreign Languages for the five-week institute in July and August.

"Participants will study Latin American social and political history while practicing Spanish language skills," according to institute director Carmen McClendon of the foreign languages department.

Courses will be taught by faculty from the university's Colleges of Arts and Sciences, and Education. In addition to McClendon, instructors will be Dale Krane of political science, Donald Mabry of history, Silvia Romero of foreign languages, and Herbert Handley and James R. Thompson of education.

Maria Krane of Wood Junior College, Arlene Schrade of the University of Mississippi and Kenneth Chastain of the University of Virginia will also participate in teaching and project evaluation.

Tenn-Tom Work Ahead Of Schedule

Construction of the Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway continues to move at least a year ahead of the scheduled completion date of 1986, according to Grover Wilkins, administrator, Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway Development Authority. Only one major structure is not yet under contract, he said.

The waterway, which has long been the victim of controversy, cleared its latest set of hurdles in Congress and in the courts during 1980. An all-out effort by waterway supporters defeated amendments in both the U.S. House and Senate which would, if passed, have deleted construction funds for the project.

Congress passed and the President signed both a $58 million supplemental appropriation for 1980 and a $212 million appropriation for fiscal year 1981 which will keep construction of the project on a 1985 completion schedule. The $58 million supplemental appropriation brought total funds allocated to Tenn-Tom construction in 1980 to $223 million.

Immediately following the Tenn-Tom victory in Congress, Federal District Judge William C. Keady refused to hear the remaining 12 counts of a lawsuit seeking to halt the project which was filed in 1976 by the L & N Railroad and a small special interest group. As the year-end neared, there was more good news for waterway supporters when the U.S. Supreme Court upheld the March 1979 dismissal of the first two counts of the same lawsuit which alleged that the project as being constructed, had not been authorized by Congress.

The plaintiffs have now appealed the latest district court decision to the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans and have requested a court injunction to halt construction. So far, the plaintiffs have lost every major court decision rendered in this legally complex case.

The 232-mile Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway will connect mid-America's 16,000 miles of navigable waterways with ports along the Gulf of Mexico. The waterway extends from Demopolis, Ala., on the Black Warrior-Tombigbee system via the Tombigbee River into a chain of lakes paralleling the east fork of the Tombigbee, then through a divide cut into Pickwick Pool on the Tennessee River.

Its navigation facilities represent the most modern technology for barge transportation and will accommodate eight barge tows. When completed it will provide direct benefits from transportation savings to a 14-state area of America's heartland.

The Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway is approaching the two-thirds mark of completion with more than $1 billion of contracts completed or underway. The only remaining major structure not under contract is Lock E which is scheduled for award in early spring, Wilkins said. Nearly two-thirds of the 150 million cubic yards of excavation in the Divide Cut section of the project is completed.

Limited navigation is now open on the southern one-half of the waterway from Demopolis, Ala., to Columbus, Miss. Channel dredging and some railroad relocation work remains before this portion of the waterway is fully opened. Although the waterway is not officially open for navigation, over 2.5 million bushels of soybeans and wheat have been shipped on the reach of the project from a private terminal near Aliceville, Ala.

About 5,000 workers are now employed on waterway-related activities. Nearly 890,000 hours of construction work was performed during the period from April to June 1980 of which about 800,000 hours or 90 percent of the work was accomplished by minority employees.

In reviewing waterway construction timetables, Alabama Governor Fob James said "completion of the Tennessee-Tombigbee as soon as possible is crucial to the future of much of the Southeast as we face continued inflation and energy shortages. Our transportation costs must be held to a minimum if we are to insure a prosperous future for our children," the governor said.

Gov. James will succeed Tennessee Governor Lamar Alexander as head of the Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway Development Authority in 1981. His vice-chairman will be Rep. Richard "Rick" Manley, a board member from Demopolis who serves in the Alabama State Legislature as Seapker Pro Tem of the House.

Rep. Manley previously served as chairman of the Authority's finance committee and as a member of the executive committee. He succeeds James A. "Buddy" Skinner of Nashville. Skinner, along with Gov. Alexander, will continue to serve on the board.

The Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway Authority, headquartered in Columbus, Miss., is a five-state compact responsible for promoting development of the waterway. Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee, Florida, and Kentucky are members of the compact with Glover Wilkins serving as administrator.

As Gov. James prepared to assume his duties as chairman of the Authority he noted that much of the southeast is now looking to the Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway region as their most advantageous avenue for growth. He said port after port is under construction or in the planning stages on tributaries of the Ohio, Kentucky, and Tennessee Rivers to allow these areas to take advantage of the shorter, cheaper transportation route offered by Tenn-Tom.

"The port of Mobile is growing far beyond our greatest expectations," he said. "It is one of the 10 busiest ports in the nation and fast catching up."

"The $80 million expansion planned for the Port of Mobile is required to meet the demand when the Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway becomes fully operational in the mid-1980's. Every indication shows tonnage through the Port of Mobile will double in less than 20 years," according to the Governor.

"This waterway," He said, "is justly termed an 'energy-way' - hope for the future. The World Conference on Coal held in Venice last May called for more than doubling the present world use of coal for energy. The rest of the world is looking to the United States to supply much of that additional coal."

Business and industrial development related to the Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway is already outstripping every expectation, Wilkins said.

Gov. James noted that foreign trade potential,

"which is so important to the future of our region and to the entire nation, is greatly enhanced by the promise of this tremendous transportation artery. When the Tenn-Tom region is fully opened by the advantages of water transportation, our potential for foreign trade development is virtually limitless."

Who Must File Tax Return?

The question is often asked, "Am I required to file an income tax return?" The answer depends on your level of income, age and marital status, says Dr. Johnnie Sartor, leader, Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service Agricultural Economics.

A single person under 65 years of age who makes as much as $3,300 is required by law to file a return even though no tax is due. The same person may make up to $4,300 before filing a return if he is 65 or older. Married persons filing a joint return may make up to $5,400 if both are under 65 years of age; $6,400 if one spouse is 65 or older; or $7,400 if both are 65 or older. "Even if you don't make enough money to be required by law to file a return, if income taxes have been deducted from your wages, you must file a return to get a tax refund. This is true when you qualify for earned income credit, too," he adds. A different level of income applies to the self-employed. For example, if the self-employed have a net income of $400 or more, they must file income tax returns and pay the self-employment tax even though they do not owe income taxes. This is true regardless of age.

"You must file a self-employment tax return for any year that you have $400 or more of net earnings from self-employment," Dr. Sartor says. "This is true even if you are receiving Social Security benefits. The tax rate for calendar year 1980 is 8.1 percent of self-employment income, up to a maximum of $25,900." Don't confuse the self-employment taxes with Social Security taxes, Dr. Sartor says. Even though the end result is the same, they are different taxes. For example, a self-employed farmer is required by law to pay self-employment taxes on earned income between $400 and $25,900. If he has employees working for him who meet the requirements set up by the Internal Revenue Service, he should deduct their Social Security taxes at a rate of 6.13 percent in 1980, match this amount and send the taxes to the Internal Revenue Service. If a farmer pays $150 or more during the year to an employee or if the employee performed agricultural labor for 20 or more days (figured on a time basis) during the year for cash wages, the Social Security taxes must be deducted from his wages, matched by the employer and reported to the Internal Revenue Service. For household help the Social Security taxes must be withheld, matched by the employer and sent to the Internal Revenue Service if the pay is $50 or more during a calendar quarter. One calendar quarter of coverage is received for each $290 income during 1980, up to a maximum of four quarters of coverage for the year. Any taxpayer with questions on any phase of income tax should call a local Internal Revenue Service office or the toll-free number in Atlanta, Ga., 1-800-241-3868.

For Cancer Research

USM Awarded $80,000 Grant

HATTIESBURG—The Environmental Protection Agency has awarded the University of Southern Mississippi College of Science & Technology $80,000 to use Gulf of Mexico fish to warn scientists of the presence of dangerous chemicals.

If scientists can recognize effects shown by fish exposed to cancer causing chemicals, both the fishing industry and the National Cancer Institute will benefit, said Dr. B.J. Martin, research coordinator and biologist at USM.

The study now underway could also uncover better methods for screening chemicals and detecting cancer. Common Gulf fish, such as sheepshead minnows, when raised for experimental use, may in some ways prove better laboratory subjects for cancer research than mice and rats, he said.

Fish may handle carcinogens metabolically as much like human beings as rats, in addition to showing signs of cancer quicker than lab rodents. Fish show signs of tumors 20-30 times faster than people. The cold-blooded invertebrates would also be more economical for researchers.

The cooperative agreement between the University and EPA will provide for testing fish from three areas of the Gulf, including Mobile Bay. The occurrence of tumors, both benign and malignant, and other fish diseases may reveal dangerous levels of potential cancer causing agents in those environments.

Fish studied in natural habitats could be the "early warning system" cancer researchers and environmentalists need to locate and eliminate potential carcinogens. The fish will serve as biological indicators for chemicals in the water and scientists in return can keep fish populations healthy and plentiful.

Dr. Martin said most of the locations where fish will be collected are likely not heavily contaminated with carcinogens but contain low levels of petroleum products and discarded "everyday chemicals" which can contain potential cancer causing agents similar to those in cigarettes.

Carcinogens probably will not cause dramatic fish kills like a toxic agent, Martin said adding that they would more likely cause stress and lowered disease immunity in fish populations. Lengthy exposures to carcinogens could therefore cause tumors and other diseases to increase and ultimately cause problems for the fishing industry along the Gulf by decreasing the fish populations.

The long-term project was established and funded by the National Cancer Institute and the Environmental Protection Agency. For the next year the study will primarily focus on the NCI concern of finding known human carcinogens and EPA's responsibility of protecting the marine environment.

Pharmacists Meet In Tupelo

More than 30 pharmacists from the 13 county District II area of the Mississippi State Pharmaceutical Association attended a continuing education Pharmacy Seminar in Tupelo Dec. 9.

The seminar was sponsored by the University of Mississippi School of Pharmacy and its Bureau of Pharmaceutical Services in cooperation with the M.S.P.A.

Guest speaker at the meeting was Dr. Marvin Davis of the Dept. of Pharmacology whose topic was "New Developments in Vitamins."

"No new new vitamins have been discovered since B12 in 1948, despite unsupported claims for supposed vitamins B15 and B17; but there are indications of possible newly recognized advantages of an adequate intake of several vitamins," Dr. Davis said.

"Vitamin C (ascorbic acid) is increasingly being recognized as vital to the bodily defense mechanisms against infection, and perhaps even against cancer and atherosclerosis. Vitamin A may also help to protect against occurrence of cancer. If the further research required on these subjects confirms these possibilities, the benefits of good nutrition to supply vitamin needs will become even greater than we now realize.

Higher field prices have made more gas available while helping conservation

More natural gas is available now, due in large measure to increased field prices which have given producers the needed incentive to explore for and produce this precious fuel. It's textbook economics.

A revision by Congress of the laws covering natural gas allowed interstate pipelines like the United Gas system to acquire gas that would normally not have been available. This fortunate development, combined with our gas acquisition program, has enabled this company to add reserves in excess of withdrawals for two consecutive years.

While these beneficial conditions may be only temporary, we continue working very hard to make them permanent.

That's the way we do things at United Gas—where the search for new energy never stops.

THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK:

A Costly Mission

By Charles L. Potts

Scripture: Luke 1:51-53

“He hath shewed strength...”
“He hath put down the mighty...”
“He hath filled the hungry...”

The mission given to the Church by our Lord has never been popular by the majority of people. When Jesus announced his intention to embrace a mission that included preaching good news to the poor and release of captives, his hearers became threatened. He sounded like one of the prophets...thus his message was rejected because it was disturbing and contrary to their belief that they were God's favorites.

It seems that in every age there is evidence that God's message has sought to be toned down in its full impact...thus becoming less offensive and more compatible to the spirit of the age. However, this was not the method of Jesus. He did not hesitate to confront the rich and powerful with the demands of social justice, peace and concern for the impoverished. The Church too often has been willing to compromise in an effort to protect itself and remain in good standing with those of high status...thus economic and political considerations have often taken precedence over the demands of the Gospel.

The mission that Jesus Christ...Lord of the Church...gave to His Church...will always be costly. It identifies with the poor and the powerless as indicated by Jesus' word in Luke 4:18. This Gospel presence cannot become the servant of any particular political or economic system. In the message of Jesus, the way we treat "the least of these" transcends the question of political persuasion. The mission of the Church is often threatened by those who have vested interests to protect. Yet when the Church has been more concerned with the mood of God than with the mood of the time; it has elevated the total society to which it ministers. The final test of faithfulness is whether the Church will remain loyal to Christ or seek to adopt a mission other than that proclaimed by Jesus in the giving of His life.
