Against Datsun

Former Local Dealership Files $1 Million Lawsuit

By KEN CHRISTIAN
Editor

The former Datsun dealership in Booneville has filed a $1 million suit in federal court in Birmingham, Ala., against the Nissan Motor Corporation in U.S.A. (Datsun), charging Nissan unlawfully conspired to drive the Booneville dealership out of business.

The conspiracy suit, an amendment to a previously filed suit in the Birmingham court, was filed in the latter part of 1980 on behalf of the Spain Equipment Company in Booneville by William H. Spain, a resident of Birmingham.

Spain and his father, Harold Spain of Booneville, currently own and operate Spain Equipment Company as a partnership. However, during most of the period that the company held the Datsun franchise, William Spain was the sole proprietor and manager, even though his father helped him with the business.

The earlier suit filed by Spain charges that Datsun failed to pay the dealership approximately $34,000 in warranty work and approximately $60,000 in new vehicle predelivery work. The previous suit also charges that Nissan collected from freight carriers approximately $2,000 to cover in-transit freight damage and converted these funds to their own use.

The original suit further charges that Nissan forced the Booneville dealership to take unwanted and unordered options and tools in the amount of approximately $10,000.

The original suit also charged that Nissan had, in violation of the Sherman Anti-trust act, required the dealership to take Nissan manufactured air conditioners in order to obtain the dealer's normal allocation of automobiles. Spain has asked for $60,000 in damages.

Total damages claimed by Spain amount to approximately $1,164,000.

"This is an example of what a huge corporation can attempt to do to anyone who dares question their business practices," Spain told the Banner-Independent.

This latest suit and its amendment, tentatively scheduled for jury trial in Birmingham in early 1981, is not the first confrontation between Spain and Nissan.

Spain and Nissan entered into a sales and service agreement in 1973. Under this agreement, Spain was appointed by Nissan as a Datsun dealer in Booneville.

PCDA Makes Some Changes

Members attending the Prentiss County Development Association's fifth annual membership banquet at 7 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 29, at the Northeast Junior College will be greeted by a few changes in the bylaws of the organization.

PCDA President John Smith said the organization is making these changes in an attempt to become more responsive to the community as a whole and to give a continuity of programs throughout the county.

The basic change comes in the structure of the PCDA board of directors—a change that was finalized during a full PCDA membership meeting on Jan. 12.

Smith said the PCDA board of directors will now consist of the mayors of the four municipalities in Prentiss County, two members from the Prentiss County Board of Supervisors, and 15 board members who will be elected during the Jan. 29 banquet.

"We're trying to have members on the board of directors from all areas of the county," he said.

Another change this year is in the area of PCDA membership dues.

As in the past, PCDA will offer individual mem-

Curlee Resigns As Coach; Will Continue As Principal

By LEE GENTRY
Sports Editor

Booneville High School head football coach Mac Curlee Monday announced that he has resigned from the coaching ranks to assume fulltime duties as Booneville High School Principal.

Curlee told the Banner-Independent Monday that this wasn't a recent decision on his part and added that he had been thinking about this for quite sometime.

Coach Curlee will end a three year tenure at Booneville High School, his best season coming his first year when he carried the Devils to an 8-3 overall season record.

Prior to his BHS tenure, Mac coached at both Ripley High School as head coach and at Itawamba Junior College as assistant. Both were successful campaigns.

Curlee, a ten year veteran in the coaching profession, will begin looking for his replacement immediately so the newly elected Booneville head coach can start with the spring football program.

"I had been thinking about this for quite sometime," Curlee said. I talked with Mr. Henderson as early as last August about this and of course confirmed it now."

The former BHS mentor said his decision was indeed a permanent one and added that he would remain in administration.

Booneville City School Superintendent Troy Henderson said he had talked to coach Curlee several times about this and

END OF THE VIGIL—As twilight falls Tuesday afternoon and it becomes clear that the 52 Americans held hostage in Iran for 444 days have left Iranian airspace, Maurine and Earl DuBoise of 104 N. Fifth St. remove the yellow ribbon from a lamp post in their front yard. The couple first displayed a yellow ribbon 14 months ago to show their support of the hostages. After the first ribbon became weather-beaten, Mrs. DuBoise replaced it with another. Several Prentiss County residents have displayed the yellow ribbons which became a national symbol during the trying days of captivity for the Americans.

For PCEPA Customers

Heating Bills Higher Than Last Year

The arctic cold air which has brought record temperatures and fuel shortages to much of the southeast is bringing sharply higher bills to electric heating customers in north Mississippi.

"Bills are noticeably higher than those last winter," according to Nick Anest, manager of the Mississippi district of TVA.

"There are three contributing factors," he said.

"First, there has been a rate increase of about 25 percent since last winter's heating bills," he said.

"And, of course, there is the cold weather. TVA records show the past 30-day period has been about 32 percent colder than the same period last year."

"And then there is the holiday season which is included in bills now being mailed," he continued. "Most families use more energy for water heating, cooking, and heating during this period."

Anest advised customers to try to budget larger amounts for heating bills this winter. He also suggested customers seek ways to save on heating costs, especially by reducing thermostat settings to 68 degrees.

"Older people should not reduce temperatures below the 68 to 70 degree mark," he cautioned.

Anest also suggests customers who have not done so should request a free energy survey for their homes. A trained advisor will check insulation levels and heat leaks and point out ways to save on heating.

"Since we have a substantial backlog of requests, this assistance will not be in time for the present heating season, but will help in future heating and cooling seasons," he said.

Prentiss County Electric Power Association customers may request an energy survey by calling 728-4433 or 365-7161.

City Drug Raid Nets One Arrest

A 24-year-old Booneville man was arrested and charged with possession of illegal drugs as the result of a raid at an East Church Street residence Monday night.

Booneville Police Chief W.W. Stacy said Tuesday that Roy Folds, 24, of East Church Street was charged with possession of marijuana and other illegal drugs following the raid at his place of residence.

Stacy said that, during the raid, police officers confiscated "quite a bit" of marijuana and about 70 RJS's.

According to a spokesman for the Timber Hill's Mental Health Center, which operates a drug counselling program in Prentiss County, RJS is an amphetamine (or sometimes a bi-amphetamine). It is a controlled substance and is

Flu Outbreak Not Epidemic Here -- Yet

By ANGELA SMITH
Staff Writer

State epidemiologist Dr. Durward Blakely said last week in Jackson that the 1980-81 flu season could result in as many as 25,000 Mississippians with influenza.

However, a check with the Northeast Mississippi Hospital and the local school systems indicate that flu has not reached epidemic levels in Prentiss County.

A spokesman for Northeast Mississippi Hospital said Monday there was only one patient there with flu.

According to a spokesman for the office of city schools' superintendent Troy Henderson, absenteeism in the Booneville schools is about normal, except at the elementary school. The number of absent students there is up somewhat, possibly due to flu and a stomach virus, it was reported.

The city schools reported a total of 131 absentees Monday. The elementary school was the hardest hit with 43 absentees. The high school reported 33 absentees; the middle school, 28; and Anderson Junior High, 27.

Overall, the number of

When this agreement expired in 1974, Nissan advised Spain that the agreement would not be renewed. Spain filed a complaint before the Mississippi Motor Vehicle Commission in April 1974, claiming that Nissan's non-renewal was without due cause. Through the Commission's efforts, a settlement was negotiated by which Nissan provided Spain with a new five-year Sales and Service Agreement. Spain filed another complaint with the Mississippi Motor Vehicle Commission in 1979 after Nissan again notified Spain that it was not renewing its sales and service agreement with the Booneville company. In July 1979, the Motor Vehicle Commission, in a report that was very complimentary toward Spain, upheld Nissan's termination of their agreement with Spain and, further, revoked his license as an automobile dealer in the state of Mississippi. (Spain also sells GMC trucks.) In an appeal of the decision of the Commission, Chancellor George Adams ruled that the Commission could not revoke Spain's license since all parties affected had not been notified of the hearing. However, Adams did not reverse the decision by the Commission upholding Nissan's termination of Spain's Datsun franchise. On Jan. 2, 1980, in the United States District Court in Birmingham, Ala., federal Judge Sam Pointer dismissed an anti-trust suit filed by Spain Equipment Company in which Spain claimed that, in order to receive Datsun vehicles to sell, Nissan forced its dealers to purchase a certain number of vehicles with "factory" air conditioning, whether the dealer wanted the air conditioning or not. Spain said this suit was dismissed "on a technicality."

PCDA Makes

berships with dues at $10 each. However, as a result of a board meeting Tuesday night, the organization has now established a family membership, with a $15 fee covering dues for both husband and wife. Both will still be eligible to vote in all PCDA matters, Smith said. The 15 members of the PCDA board of directors to be elected during the Jan. 19 banquet will serve staggered terms of three, two and one years, Smith added. In the future, the PCDA membership will elect five new directors each year to a two-year term, he said. This will keep the terms served by the directors staggered, so that all 15 directors will not be elected each year. The PCDA nominating committee has compiled a list of 39 nominees who will be eligible for election to the board of directors during the membership banquet. Members will be asked to vote for 15 of the candidates. The candidates are: William Arnold, Booneville; Don Carpenter, Booneville; Troy Cox, Pisgah; Richard Coggin, Booneville; Clyde Davis, New Candler; Thurston Davis, Booneville; Layne Dees, Blackland; Gary English, Jumpertown; Marjorie Franks, Frankstown; Eugene Gifford, Thrasher; Charles "Red" Garner, Gaston; Joe Wayne Garner, Wheeler; Dalton Garner, Blackland; David Hill, Baldwin; John Haynes, Baldwin; Kitty Harber, also known by the street names of "bennies" and "black beauties." The raid by the police at the Folds' residence took place about 9 p.m. Monday. Stacy said he received a tip about the drugs and that officers had been watching the residence for some time. As of Tuesday morning, Folds was still in the city jail. No bond had been set as of that time.

Officers participating in the raid included Chief Stacy and police officers Bob Jones, Bill Ingram, Bill Barnett, Steve Bell, and Tony Childers. Deputy Sheriff Carl Sartin and Constable Bob Glover. Chief Stacy also reported that there were two attempted break-ins over the weekend at two city drugstores, but apparently nothing was taken from either store. A rock was thrown through a glass at Tigrett's Drug store on First Street Sunday night, Stacy said, but nothing was reported missing. That same night, an attempted break-in at Hill's Discount Drugs on East Church Street was foiled when officers arrived on the scene just after the glass in the door of the store was broken out, Stacy said. "The officers got there so fast they (the burglars) didn't have time to get anything," the police chief said.

Tigrett Warns About Social Security Books

Some books sold as social security information are useful, but there are others that are inaccurate, misleading, overpriced, and deceptively advertised, according to Hugh Tigrett, social security district manager in Tupelo. "The Social Security Administration doesn't discourage the sale of commercial publications," Tigrett said. "At the same time, we don't endorse any non-government publication. People can get free, accurate, up-to-date publications and other information about social security at any social security office." Social security information is organized and illustrated in a different way in some commercial books. Some of them are well done, Tigrett said, but the information in them is not "secret" or "inside." "If advertising suggests it is, the advertising is false," he said.

For Mississippi

Unemployment Rate Up

Mississippi's unemployment rate rose to 7.6 percent in December, an increase of five-tenths of a percentage point compared to November's 7.1 percent. The initial jobless rate, according to Mississippi Employment Security Commission executive director O.H. Simmons. Last year's December unemployment rate was 6.2 percent. The 7.6 percent unemployment rate for the state was higher than the 6.9

percent national rate for December. MESC figures showed 77,000 unemployed and 934,700 employed out of a civilian labor force of 1,011,700. The initial unemployment insurance claims totalled 25,683 for December. The counties having the highest unemployment rates in December were Alcorn, with a rate of 14.6 percent; Tate, with a rate of 14.4 percent; and Sharkey, with a rate of 12.8 percent.

Rankin, Issaquena, and Oktibbeha counties had the lowest jobless rates for December. Rankin had a rate of 3.6 percent, Issaquena had a rate of 3.7 percent, and Oktibbeha had an unemployment rate of 4.6 percent. Sixty-three of the state's 82 counties showed an increase in their unemployment rates for December, while 14 reported decreases. The jobless rate in five counties remained the same.

said that replacement would get underway soon. Henderson said that the future looked bright for Booneville High School with the new playoff system and said that in the future BHS could compete on an equal basis with anyone. Coach Curlee said he wanted only the best for next year's football team. "We have some good talent coming back next year, he said. "I feel like next year's squad will be competitive in Class A competition." The newly elected head coach will not only start a new slate from the coaching standpoints but an entirely new playoff system and conference. The former Tombigbee Conference has been abolished and current State Playoff system will be effective for the 1981 season. Booneville next season will compete against seven Class A opponents and three non conference opponents and will compete to advance to a possible State Playoff birth. Curlee said he will begin taking applications for the new coaching job and said (pointing to a calendar) "We have to have one in just a short time so he can start with the spring program." Curlee said the players were working out on weights now and will be ready for their new coach to start with the early training programs. All applications will be submitted to the principals desk and upon his recommendation to the school superintendents office and then the school board, a new successor will be named.

Flu Outbreak

absentees in the county schools is running a little above average. There were 282 students absent from the county schools Monday. This figure was up from 215 on Friday. Hill's Chapel had 70 students absent, Jumpertown, 31; Marietta, 43; New Site, 27; Thrasher, 65; and Wheeler, 46. County superintendent Lex Cain said it would take 20-25 percent absentees to close school, but as of Monday only 10 percent of the students were absent. Student absenteeism at Northeast Mississippi Junior College was running very normal for this time of year, according to Dean Joe Childers. Dr. Blakely said he anticipates the flu to die out at the end of January or the first of February, with a few cases occurring through March. This season's flu seems to be the classic type, the physician said. The first symptom is usually a sudden onset of fever, sometimes as high as 104 degrees. The fever usually subsides after two or three days, leaving the patient exhausted for days afterward. With fever are its companions—chills, headache, weakness, muscular pains in the back and limbs, and loss of appetite. The flu sufferer may also have a sore throat and a dry cough, nausea, and burning eyes. For most people, influenza is only a moderately severe illness. Without complications, the normally healthy person can be on his feet within a week. Complications occur because the body's weakened defenses cannot ward off germs that invade the respiratory tract. The complications can be sinusitis, bronchitis, an ear infection, or pneumonia. Mississippi's flu season generally runs from September through April, with the peak occurring mid to late January through mid to late March. In calendar year 1980, the State Board of Health reported about 1,500 cases of influenza, compared to 900 in calendar year 1979, 8,600 cases in 1978, and 1,600 cases in 1977. Two major kinds of influenza virus are known as A-type and B-type. A-type generally occurs more often and is more severe than B-type. Man cannot build up specific immunity to influenza because its makeup changes so often, the Board of Health reported. For those who get influenza, physicians generally recommend plenty of fluids, bedrest, and aspirin or Tylenol to reduce fever. Victims are encouraged to stay out of crowds, where they may infect others or become re-infected. Individuals should see a physician if the illness lasts more than a week, particularly if symptoms are those of pneumonia (chest pains, coughing phlegm, nasal secretions, and continued fever). The chronically ill should look for any worsening condition in the illness and see a physician.

BIBLE QUESTION BOX

QUESTION: Mr. Hogland, I have read in Matt. 16:28, where some of the apostles would see Jesus come in his kingdom, did they really see him with their eyes?

ANSWER: The passage says, "Verily I say unto you, there are some of them that stand here, who shall in no wise taste of death, till they see the son of man coming in his kingdom." The two phrases in this verse, when correctly understood answers our question. The first is "Taste of death" and the second is "See the son of man coming." As you know it is literally impossible to "taste death." This is figurative and means to experience death. The word "see" sometimes means to see with the eyes, but sometimes it also means to experience. In Jno. 3, Nicodemus, was told if he would be born again he would "See" the Kingdom of God. The word obviously means to enjoy or experience. The same is true in our text. Jesus did not literally appear on the day of Pentecost in Acts 2, therefore they did not see him with their eyes. However, they did experience his presence, by the coming of the Holy Spirit. There appeared unto them cloven tongues like as fire and also the sound of a rushing mighty wind (Acts 2:2-4).

TOTAL LOSS—This frame building on Jacinto Road, owned by L.C. Wright and Shelby McCoy, was totally destroyed by fire about 1:30 Saturday afternoon, Jan. 17. The cause of the fire has not been determined. The Thrasher Volunteer Fire Department and the Booneville Fire Department answered the call to the house, but it was already engulfed in flames by the time the fire fighters arrived. City and county firemen have answered a number of calls recently, many of which were grass fires attributed to the unusually dry conditions that existed prior to the rain Tuesday.

Help In Preventing Fires Asked

The State Forestry Commission is asking Mississippians to increase their awareness of forest fire danger during the next several months.

It is not an unusual request, since the woods and fields of Mississippi always become more vulnerable to wildfire through the winter and early spring months.

According to State Forester Dick Allen, well-distributed, timely rains and the continuing cooperation of the citizens of Mississippi in preventing and reporting wildfires will be necessary if the State is to avoid having a bad year for fire losses on valuable timberlands.

"We especially need the full cooperation of debris-burning landowners, motorists, hunters and others who historically start a high percentage of the accidental fires we have each year in Mississippi," he said.

Allen added that local law enforcement people will be joining Forestry Commission investigators to apprehend woods arsonists and others who violate the State's fire laws. The State Forester pointed out that increased public cooperation in the identification of incendiaries is urgently needed.

He said several forest fire reward programs are helping, but much more could be done if the general public would report suspicious activity in and around woodlands the way they might do if the property being set afire was a house or barn.

"Each time a woods arsonist strikes he is taking money out of the pockets of every man, woman and child in our State," he said.

Allen also pointed out that timber is now number two in agriculture income in Mississippi—valued at nearly 600 million dollars last year, second only to soybeans.

How can individual citizens help the foresters protect against forest fire losses? According to the State Forester the following personal steps would be helpful:

—Don't burn anything outdoors if there is the slightest chance your fire could escape.

—Call the county dispatching tower for a permit to burn. Current fire danger information is available from the tower. (Giving the tower the location of your planned burn could save a lot of valuable gasoline expended by Commission crews in checking unreported smokes.)

—Report unattended fire or fires if you come across in your community to the local fire towers.

—Suppress any small fire you might find if it's not too dangerous. Afterwards, report the fire to the local fire tower. Do not attempt to put out fires in heavy, dry vegetation on windy days. Get to a phone fast, and call for help!

—Talk fire prevention to your neighbors.

In case a woods fire is observed, Prentiss County residents are urged to report it by calling 728-4214 or 728-6835.

Education And Economy Are Key Items In Governor's Program

Gov. William Winter unveiled a 1981 legislative program last week which placed a firm emphasis on education and measures to stimulate the state's economy.

Kindergartens and compulsory school attendance were central features of the governor's education proposals in his State of the State message. In the economic development sphere Winter called for measures to boost the state's small business enterprises.

In his remarks, Winter again called for a "new resourcefulness" to maintain the state's financial integrity while simultaneously insuring that Mississippi develops as rapidly as possible.

In his message Winter asked legislators to "consider and approve programs that will leap-frog our state in a few short years over states with less vision than our own. To do that," he said, "we must develop further those opportunities for all of our citizens that afford them quality education and training as well as worthwhile and satisfactory jobs."

In his message the governor placed special emphasis on the need for a system of state-funded kindergartens. He said that kindergartens would be the single most important measure to improve education.

Winter's economic development proposals include tax breaks for small businesses similar to those given to large industries in the state. Another feature of the economic stimulus package is the creation within the Department of Economic Development of a new division designed specifically to advise small businesses and help them find sources of capital. Winter also called for a one-stop permitting process for new businesses.

Winter additionally asked the legislators to establish a long-range highway construction program, take additional steps to develop state ports, and establish a revolving fund for railroad maintenance. The governor also asked legislators to set up a special committee to study Medicaid and problems within the state's health-care programs and recommend improvements to the 1982 session of the legislature.

At Northeast

McGreger Named Purchasing Agent

Harold T. White, president of Northeast Junior College, has announced that members of the board of trustees approved the appointment of George W. McGreger to director of purchasing at their regular board meeting Tuesday.

McGreger, who has served as director of the school's educational media program for the past nine years, is a graduate of Tupelo High School, Itawamba Junior College and The University of Mississippi. He holds a masters degree in audio visual education.

Prior to his association with Northeast, he served as band director at Booneville High School and principal of the Booneville Middle School.

"In addition to fulfilling my other duties, my purpose is to purchase the most product for the least amount of dollars without reducing quality," McGreger said, in commenting on his recent appointment.

The department was formed to centralize the purchasing for the school into one office.

McGreger is married to the former Janet Hurst and they have three children.

GEORGE MCGREGER

Neely Named Bank President

The board of directors of the Peoples Bank and Trust Company has announced that E.C. Neely III of Grenada has been elected president and chief executive officer of the bank.

Neely was previously serving as president of the Grenada Bank, with which he has been associated for over 18 years. He has previously served as manager of Bank of Ackerman, Calhoun County Bank and Bank of Louisville, all branches of the Grenada Bank.

Neely is a native of Grenada. He is married to the former Claudia Johnson and they have three children. He is a member of the board of directors of the Greanda Chamber of Commerce and is presently serving as president of the Greater Grenada Economic Development Foundation.

He formerly served as chairman of the Calhoun County Hospital board. Neely is a graduate of the University of Mississippi and also the LSU School of Banking of the South. He has also attended the Harvard School for Senior Bank Executives.

In announcing the election, W.P. Mitchell, chairman of the board, said, "We are indeed fortunate to secure the services of this outstanding young banker. He is experienced in all phases of banking and will enable The Peoples Bank and Trust Company to continue to be the fine financial institution which it has been for the past 75 years."

The Peoples Bank and Trust Company has total assets of over $260,000,000 with 23 branches and offices located in Tupelo, Booneville, Amory, West Point, Pontotoc, Guntown, Sallito, Plantersville, Shannon, Smithville, and Hatley.

In addition to the regular 75-cent per share quarterly dividend, the bank recently declared an additional special cash dividend of one dollar per share, payable to shareholders as of Dec. 29, 1980.

Name Omitted

The name of Sheila Stroupe Johnson was inadvertently omitted from the Northeast Mississippi Junior College Dean's list which was supplied to the Banner-Independent by college officials last week.

Mrs. Johnson was named to the Dean's list for academic achievement during the first semester.

"Northeast Mississippi Junior College regrets the error," a spokesman said this week.

State Textbook Scheme Uncovered

By BILL MINOR
Columnist

JACKSON, Miss.—What apparently had become an accepted form of kickback from the highly competitive textbook publishing industry that put possibly millions of dollars in the pockets of untold numbers of respected educators and others in Mississippi educational circles for three decades has now come to the surface.

Almost by accident, the Legislative PEER committee stumbled upon the long-standing practice by which those connected with the adoption and purchase of textbooks for Mississippi's public schools are given sample textbooks by publishers eager to peddle their merchandise, then later sell those books back for cash.

A preliminary report brought out by the PEER Committee this past week citing some $80,000 that the State Superintendent of Education and officials of the State Textbook Purchasing Board were paid for sample books after the 1976 and 1978 book adoptions is admittedly only the tip of the iceberg.

The PEER investigation so far only deals with sample books that were adopted by the Textbook Purchasing Board that were brought by the state's privately-run book depository, School Book Supply Company.

That is only a small part of an estimated $600,000 to $900,000 in sample textbooks not adopted by the state in 1976 or 1978 that were sold by individuals at both the state and local educational levels in Mississippi into commercial book channels outside the state.

While the initial PEER report singles out only six persons at the state level who peddled $79,181.83 worth of sample textbooks, it is virtually certain that the practice of selling sample books also extends down to county superintendents of education and local rating committees which decide books to be bought.

Book publishers load their bid prices on the front end to take care of sample books they provide so the state is in effect paying double for books sold back to the state depository.

The PEER revelation showing that State Superintendent of Education Charles Holladay benefitted to the tune of $10,300 and W.A. Matthews, executive secretary of the State Textbook Purchasing Board, some $17,000 from sample books after the 1976 and 1978 book adoptions could cost them their jobs.

A little known state statute makes state education officials subject to removal from office for taking any gift that comes to them by virtue of their employment. Only Holladay and Matthews out of the six persons named thus far were actual employees in the State Department of Education.

Already, Atty. Gen. Bill Allain has initiated efforts which could lead to a civil recovery for the state of the $80,000 from Holladay, Matthews and others connected with the 1976 and 1978 purchases.

This column has also learned the PEER committee has conferred with the Hinds County District Attorney as to possible criminal charges.

PEER probes uncovered the practice of peddling the sample textbooks gratuitously while looking into the operations of Matthews as part of a performance evaluation of the State Textbook Purchasing Board.

Ironically, a 1974 PEER investigation of the long controversial system of having a privately owned book depository for state owned textbooks had failed to turn up the sample book scheme.

A second PEER investigative report will come out soon on the activities of Matthews, who, sources have told this column, was found to have been lavishly entertained and taken on plush vacations by textbook publishing houses. Matthews has been executive director of the board since 1972.

Matthews, who is also a lay minister, aroused concern of the PEER Committee when it was learned he had used attorneys for publishing companies for legal opinions rather than the state's Attorney General regarding price differentials between the cost of textbooks sold to Mississippi as compared with neighboring states.

Whether or not disclosure of the sample textbook sale scheme is going to hurt the cause of education in Mississippi is not yet indicated. But it is a virtual certainty the state legislature is aroused enough to make sure it can't happen in the future.

World Must Have Free Grain Market

By ED BLAKE
Mississippi Farm Bureau Federation

American agriculture has gone international.

American farmers were in New Orleans last week—some 7,000 of them—attending the 62nd annual meeting of the American Farm Bureau Federation. And the bottom line of most speeches and reports had to do with internationalism.

The bottom lines went something like this:

Retired U.S. Army General William Westmoreland told the farmers that a grain embargo is no substitute for men under arms, referring to the year-long sanctions against the Soviet Union imposed by the Carter Administration.

Soybean farmers were reminded of a world population growth of about 20 percent in the next ten years which is anticipated to create dynamic growth in demand for oilseed crops. Between 1980 and 1990, less developed countries will generate a 50 percent growth in demand, according to Allen Housh of Cargill, Inc. grain exporters.

Government involvement in international markets came up for review—and Dr. Lowell Hill, as economic professor at the University of Illinois, said that a comparison of grain market situations in the U.S. with several countries that use some type of national grain boards involved in their international trade favors the non-governmental marketing system used in this country.

Argentina's use of national trading, Dr. Hill said, has led to problems of price declines and excessive carryover, while Canada has found its share of the world markets declining when prices were favorable and increasing in years of unfavorable prices.

Joseph Halow of the North American Export Grain Association, said grain export trade has grown enormously in the past ten years and will continue to grow because of instability in grain exporting and importing countries. He added that it is tremendously important to farmers that they are able to sell their grain wherever they choose, whenever they have it to sell.

Timothy Regan of the office of the U.S. Trade Representative, said that while attention has been focused on expanding export markets for grain and oil crops, export levels for fruits and other specialty crops have been growing just as rapidly. These crops now are being sent to overseas markets that were thought to be inaccessible ten years ago.

"In 1970, nearly 60 percent of all fruit, vegetable and specialty crops went to one country—Canada," Regan said, noting that 1980 horticultural exports from the United States totaled $2.7 billion—up from $394 million in 1970.

He cited eastern Europe, the mid-East, Japan, and the far East as the primary sources of new agricultural export trade. He credited aggressive marketing and the devaluation of the dollar as principle forces behind the increases.

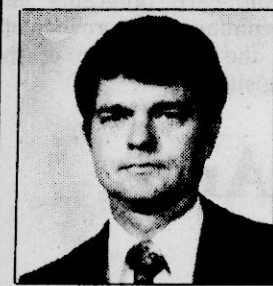

Regarding imports to the United States, Regan charged that the Trade Act of 1974, is not adequate to protect horticultural producers from injurious competition. He added that the way the law is written, the U.S. government simply cannot act quickly enough to relieve producers of perishable products from injury before producer returns for an entire season are affected.

U.S. Secretary of Agriculture-designate John Block told the farm group that food can be an effective economic tool in promoting world peace and stability. But he cautioned that this tool can be effective only if we are a reliable supplier of products. We should not give it out and pull it back like a carrot, he said, because then no one would count on us.

The Reagan Administration official said that we need to use this great asset to bring nations closer together and create an interdependency even across ideological lines.

American Farm Bureau president Robert Delano opened the convention with

Legislative Report

By Billy McCoy

Representative District III
Prentiss And Alcorn Counties

The week of Jan. 12 saw the tempo of activity increase with each day. Legislators are busy preparing bills in which they have specific interest as Jan. 21 is the deadline for introduction of bills and constitutional amendments. Committees have begun to meet and consider their assigned bills.

The Education Committee, which I am a member of, is meeting daily to consider its many bills. Not only will we again address the question of teacher salaries and benefits, but we will consider the many proposals of Governor Winter's Special Study Committee.

They will include public kindergarten, compulsory school attendance, appointment of school superintendents, funds to meet required accreditation, changes in the fair dismissal law, and many others.

I am also a member of the Penitentiary Committee. The Senate Correction Committee and the House Penitentiary Committee have spent many days this past summer seeking ways and means of improving our penal system.

We must provide space in state institutions to relieve our overcrowded county jails. We must provide meaningful work for inmates at Parchman. We must secure and retain quality guards and other employees at our penal institutions.

For the third year in a row, Medicaid faces a funding crisis and, if funded, will once again consume a large share of the available dollars for other programs. The Medicaid Commission has implemented certain cuts including a cut-off of funding to intermediate care nursing homes and the entire outpatient drug program, if the Legislature chooses not to fund the program.

I personally believe the Legislature will fund the Medicaid budget because of the personal hardships and economic catastrophe that would result if the program is allowed to collapse.

The Legislature will need to make a deficit appropriation of over $5 million to complete this fiscal year. This will be matched with about $15 million of federal funds.

Over $200 million is spent yearly in Mississippi in Medicaid funds, and none of it goes directly to the recipient or user. This money is spread throughout the state to hospitals, doctors, pharmacies, nursing homes, and other providers. Other state agencies such as the University Hospital, State Board of Health, and Department of Mental Health consume $20 million alone.

As your Representative, I am committed to continuing the Medicaid Program at the 1980 level of services. I expect Gov. Winter and other state leaders to be even more zealous in their efforts to develop a detailed, comprehensive plan of budgeting and coordination in the health care field, in order that this most needed program can be funded and continued for those who need and must have it to sustain life and health.

Senate Report

By Bill May

Senator District 5

Itawamba, Prentiss and Tishomingo

The Legislature has now completed its first full week of the current 90-day session. During this initial period most legislators have been at work preparing legislation and introducing legislation before the first deadline for introductions, which comes on Wednesday, Jan. 21. Committees have now started meeting, and legislation will start reaching the floor for consideration.

Probably the highlight of this week's activity was an address by Gov. Winter to a joint session of both the House and the Senate. It had been hinted that the Chief Executive might request a tax increase, but to the pleasing ear of the legislators, he did not recommend any new or increased taxes this session.

This session insures economic complexity, in that we have less discretionary funds this year than in most previous years. If the basic monetary expenses to maintain the present level of state government are funded, the Legislature will have $152 million of discretionary funds.

These funds are the remains of $2.9 billion funding state government. It is the general feeling that the annual highway diversion of $42 million will come out of this $152 million. There has also been a $5.5 million deficit appropriation to the Mississippi Medicaid Commission which will come out of the above mentioned money. According to most economic authorities, it is advisable that a minimum of $20 million be retained in the state treasury for emergency purposes.

This does not seem out of line, since it costs approximately $3 million per day to run the state.

As you may know by the above mentioned information, the Legislature will be left with approximately $84.5 million in discretionary funds. This $84 million will have to be spread over the numerous requests that have confronted the Legislature.

An additional $150 million has been requested by various state agencies. There has also been a request by teacher groups and state employees for salary increases.

For every 1 percent that state employee salaries are increased, $4.7 million is required to meet this addition. For every 1 percent that a minimum education teacher's salary is increased, $4 million is required to meet this addition.

One can readily appreciate the problems that we as legislators have in this particular session.

Even though this was the first full week, the Senate has passed approximately six pieces of legislation. One bill was to reconstruct the State Forestry Commission. There is an increasing concern on the part of many of us that we need to take a new look at our forestry program in the state, due to the fact that the state is reaching the point where timber is being cut faster than it is being grown, and due to the important place forestry plays in the economy of this state.

The Senate also passed a deficit appropriation of $5.5 million to the State Medicaid Commission, which will fund this program for the remainder of this fiscal year (July 1, 1981). There has been some alarm that various people would have been forced to leave nursing homes due to an inappropriate appropriation for this fiscal year.

I shall not expand on this matter at this time, but will state that I personally feel this belief to be unfounded. I intend to go to greater lengths on this matter in my next report.

The Senate also passed a bill providing that names of presidential and vice-presidential candidates be placed on the ballot, rather than the names of electors, which has caused some confusion in voting in the recent presidential election.

I have introduced numerous pieces of legislation, three bills of which have received noted statewide support. One bill is to further restrict the state drunk driver law.

Mississippi presently has the highest DWI rate, at 1.5. Most medical authorities contend that a person becomes inebriated at .08. Since this may be somewhat discretionary and arbitrary, most states have gone to a 1.0 for their DWI classification.

Based on this medical evidence, it is legal to drive in Mississippi while intoxicated. My bill intends to rectify this unfortunate condition.

Also, I have introduced a bill which redefines "paraphernalia," and makes its sale illegal. "Paraphernalia" as defined under my present bill would be any device manufactured for the use, or intentional use, of illicit or illegal drugs.

Much favorable response has come to my bill which calls for reform in the method of issuing automobile tags. There is a feeling among most notable authorities that the cities and counties are losing valuable revenue under the present system, and that the present system needs to be corrected. My bill is an attempt to make the necessary correction.

I appreciate any communication concerning matters of which I can be of assistance to each of you. My mailing address is Post Office Box 1018, Jackson, Mississippi 39205. I can be reached by telephone in Jackson at 948-7321, or on the weekends in Fulton at 862-3671.

Legislative Letter

By Tim Ford

Representative District 18
Lee and Prentiss Counties

While Gov. William Winter supports other measures, he is pushing two major legislative issues this year—public kindergartens and permanent funding of the highway department.

Gov. Winter gave his annual State of the State address this past Tuesday before a joint session of the legislature. He believes both can be done without a tax increase.

I don't believe they can be, if we are to fund the present highway program, teacher and state employee pay hikes, Medicaid, prison mandates, minimum foundation for education and others. As I stated last week, the legislature has had requests for funding three times the amount available.

The money situation is tight, but we in the legislature are in no mood to increase taxes for new programs while we have serious trouble funding what we've got now. Both of the programs that the Governor supports are very worthwhile and needed, but I believe this year should remain status quo. Next year the revenue may be available.

I have received numerous letters from individuals expressing concern over the proposed cuts in the Medicaid program. I realize most of the letters were prompted by nursing home directors or administrators who will feel a pinch if the cutbacks become reality, but the problem is a serious one.

The program is for the blind, disabled and elderly, and is a good one. For each state dollar put into the program, the federal government matches it with three to four dollars.

The Medicaid Commission, who administers the program, comes before the Legislative Budget Commission each year with a recommended budget. The legislature funds the program. If the recipients overspend the budget, the cutbacks are issued by the Medicaid Commission, not the legislature.

The root of the problem is that there are many people who abuse the program. However, at this point, I believe that the legislature will fund the deficit amount whereby the proposed cutbacks can be avoided.

A new garnishment bill has been passed by the House, but lacks Senate approval. If they approve the measure, the bill will become law March 1, relieving some creditors of their inability to collect debts.

Thank you for your concern and consideration as I work each day for you in Jackson. My vote is your voice in State Government. I appreciate your continued support.

UDC Club Meets

The home of Mrs. Troy Moore was opened to the members of the D.T. Beal Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, on Jan. 14 for the regular monthly meeting. Mrs. Mae Smith and Mrs. Ruth Keeton were co-hostesses.

During the social hour the group was served fresh apple cake, nuts and coffee. Mrs. Richard Kemp presided over the meeting and opened the program with the UDC ritual with members participating. Mrs. Allie Miller Isbell led the chapter in the Pledge of Allegiance and the salute to the Confederate flag.

Mrs. Troy Moore presented the program for the meeting. Her subject was "Civilian Life During the Seizure of Vicksburg." She opened her remarks by quoting President Abraham Lincoln as saying, "Vicksburg is the key. The war can never be brought to a close until that key is in our pocket." She said Lincoln made this statement in mid-November 1861.

Immediately after Lincoln's meeting with a group of Union officers where this statement was made, efforts were begun to gain control of Vicksburg. It was later termed as "one of the greatest campaigns in history."

The people of Vicksburg were called upon to make supreme sacrifices, Mrs. Moore said. Many fled when the attack began.

Many fled to caves, she said. Many of the servants who possessed great courage slept at the entrances to the caves to protect their owners.

The sky overhead looked to be filled with shooting stars as the mortar boats' explosives were making vivid light as they shelled the city. At night, people slept fitfully and, when the shells nearby exploded, would wake and listen, then sleep again.

The people began to realize one can get used to anything, Mrs. Moore told the UDC members. The women of Vicksburg were a hardy lot and bore the inconveniences with bravery and fortitude. They suffered deprivation in various fields in their living from day to day. The ladies made bandages for the wounded and helped to care for the wounded in the hospitals.

The seige became more intense in the spring, she said. The once proud and prosperous city on the Mississippi was in shambles.

Men at the breastworks were growing weaker under their labors of fighting. Short on food and ammunition, General Pemberton decided to sacrifice himself to save the remainder of the army which had so hotly defended Vicksburg, Mrs. Moore said.

General Grant, by a series of brilliant and strategic movements, succeeded in May 1863 in closely investing the city, she said. On July 4, the flag of truce went up and the Gibraltar of the Confederacy capitulated to the enemy.

Thought for the Week:

If my days were untroubled

And my heart always light
Would I seek that fair land
Where there is no night;

If I never grew weary
With the weight of my load
Would I search for God's
Peace at the end of the road;

If I never knew sickness
And never felt pain
Would I reach for a hand to help and sustain;
If I walked not with sorrow and lived without loss

Would my soul seek sweet solace
at the foot of the cross;
If all I desired was mine
day by day

Would I kneel before God
and earnestly pray;
If God sent no "Winter"
to freeze me with fear
Would I yearn for the warmth of "spring" every year...

I ask myself this and the answer is plain—
If my life were all pleasure

and I never knew pain
I'd seek God less often and need him much less,
For God's 'sought more often in times of distress.

And no one knows God or sees Him as plain
As those who have met

Dick Rice has predicted warmer weather with a small chance of rain; lets hope the rain comes as it would reduce the possibility of fires, especially grass fires.

Friends and relatives are concerned about some people who suffer continued illness. Those we know about are Clyde Gardner, Mrs. Clara Rutherford, Mrs. Myrtle Harris, Mrs. Virgie Harris and perhaps others. Those reported sick Sunday morning were Phillip Coats and his son, David Lee, and Virgie Harris.

Mrs. Gladys Kennedy was absent from services here Sunday morning due to illness, also Nonan, Bill and Shane Eaton.

Mrs. Zana Floyd was absent; she was visiting relatives in Tupelo.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Kennedy drove to Memphis last Friday to visit a relative in the Methodist Hospital.

The Wheeler Eagles have done it again! In the Homecoming game at Wheeler they defeated Jumpertown by a score of 105-50. This was their 30th victory, having lost not once. The Eagles were victorious, too.

Three of our teenagers participated in the homecoming festivities.

When is this day called "Tomorrow" ever going to get here? I'm beginning to think that it is just a hopeful creation that exists only in our minds.

If it only knew the things that we have planned, perhaps it would hasten its arrival. Or, could that be the reason for the delay?

On Monday, we have to go to school, but tomorrow we'll go to the park.

On Tuesday, I have to shampoo the carpets, but tomorrow, Son, I will read you a new storybook. For now, you just look at the nice pictures.

On Wednesday, I have an appointment at the beauty shop, but tomorrow I'll visit your classroom and meet your new teacher, my darling daughter.

On Thursday, I have a Country Club meeting, but I'll visit you tomorrow, Mother.

On Friday, I have to do the laundry, but tomorrow I'll call my sick and ailing friend.

On Saturday, I have to mow the lawn and wash the car, but tomorrow we'll have a family picnic and spend sometime together. We certainly need a good rap session.

On Sunday, I have to rest and catch the big football game. I've worked so hard this week. But tomorrow I'm going to start back to church. I certainly need all the help that I can get.

We will certainly all be busy as bees when "tomorrow" finally gets here. Heaven only knows the many plans that we have been saving up.

But I guess I'll have to make new plans. My son can read that storybook all by himself now, and my daughter is no longer in school. My mother is no longer with us, so I can't visit her. My sick friend no longer needs my cheerful words.

Our family picnic is out, because the children are scattered here and there. They are too busy making their own plans for "tomorrow." I sure hope that they include me, because I'd really like to see them.

Oh well, there's my diet to start. At least, I can still use my plans for that.

Wishes for a happy birthday go out this week for Irene Hare, Laurie Harris, Brenda Kendricks, Angie Hutchens, Bill Tennison, Elvia Moorman, Bob Wigington Rachel Floyd, Gerald Rowland, Bobby Johnson, Christy Taylor and Leroy Foster.

Katie Mercier has returned to her home in Louisiana after spending a while with her son Leroy Foster in our community.

Mrs. Wilodene Horn received a good report on her medical check up last week. We hope that she will continue to do well.

Mrs. Eulalor Holder is home again after spending a few days with her granddaughter Benita Leon. Benita's grandmother, Mrs. Lizzie Mae Tigrett, passed away last week. Funeral services were held on Friday. Our sympathy is extended to her loved ones.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lee Newcomb, parents of Bobby Newcomb, have just moved into our community from Burnsville. They live in the trailer house near the house of their son and his family. We welcome them and hope that they will like it as much as we do.

Weekend visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Foster and family were Mr. and Mrs. Larry George and Desiree of Baldwin.

Mrs. Myrtle Cole was admitted to the hospital in Baldwin on Saturday. She remains there at the time of this writing on Monday. We hope that she is able to be home again soon.

Neil King visited a while on Sunday with Jennifer and Brock Dunaway while his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sonny King visited Myrtle Cole at the hospital. The children really enjoyed the beautiful weather. I'm sure that all the children and grown-ups were glad for a chance to get outside for a pleasant day for a change.

An overnight guest of Miss Michelle Penna on Saturday night was Miss Sharon Pannell of Jumpertown.

Lucille Phillips and Estelle Taylor visited with Snowdown Church of Christ for the worship service on Sunday morning. They enjoyed the fellowship and the message brought by Bro. Jim Archer. After services Lucille and Estelle went onto the Cairo area to visit with the Clayton Barnes family and Ines Pollard. Bertha Frye, sister of Ines, passed away at a Memphis hospital. Funeral services for her were held in Memphis on Monday.

Helon Taylor of Greensburg, La., was in our area last week visiting with friends and relatives here. She left Sunday for Jackson, Tenn., to see relatives there. Melton Taylor has been transferred from a McMinnville, Tenn., hospital to Nashville where he was to have surgery earlier in the week.

Delar Cole was taken to the local hospital by ambulance on Sunday afternoon. I am not aware of her trouble at this time. We all wish a speedy recovery for her and hope that she is home again soon.

Lucille Phillips and Rhonda Steelman visited in Rienzi on Thursday with Fray Rhinehart and family and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Windham in the Thrasher area.

Joining with Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Foster for Sunday dinner were Mr. and Mrs. Jim Foster and Susie, Pam Penna, Michelle, Jeff and Jared. It was also a celebration for Leroy's birthday.

Jerry Cole of Jackson, Tenn., visited with his mother Delar Cole, Ray Cole and Allen over the weekend.

Sunflower News

By BETTYE BRANDON

Having been told recently by several different individuals, we are beginning to get the message that the program held last Sunday afternoon at Spring Hill was one that we should not have missed.

It seems that local talent was at its very best with Mrs. Marsha Ragins heading the list. Marsha has developed a style of singing that is entirely her own and the results are very effective.

The message presented by the Rev. Neil Donalds was easily followed in its context and thoroughly enjoyed by everyone. The singing group, namely The Gospel Consolers of Corinth, included former members of the Rienzi Community Choir who are known for their great musical talent and singing abilities.

The unexpected appearance of one of our leading ministers brought special delight and added greatly to the enjoyment of the program. So from all reports, we did miss a great event. But, again we can only apologize and again state, that in order to work effectively on the job, we have to sleep sometime and hope that you understand and accept the situation.

We were informed three weeks ago by the Rev. Eddie L. Jumper of his plans to attend a seminary in the very near future. We were elated to learn from him this past weekend that his plans are in effect and he is now in his third week as a student of theology at the University of Tennessee. We wish for him all the best and a successful work in the Lord.

The voice of the Rev. Lewis Ragins has been heard in most of the homes this week throughout the community as he brings the morning inspirational messages from our local radio station. If you have not done so, tune in this morning and Friday morning at 8:30 a.m. and share with him moments of meditation and inspiration courtesy of the Prentiss County Ministerial Alliance.

Among those who were able to return for worship on Sunday morning was Bridgette Hall. We were very happy to see her once again among the juniors and hope that she is back to stay. She has been greatly missed.

The presence of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Williams and Lemar and Mr. and Mrs. John Henry McDonald and family and the Brooks Family was missed. We hope they are able to return soon.

We are late in doing so, but still we extend to all the January people a sincere wish for a happy birthday, especially to Phillip (Man) Hastings, and to Mickey.

Mrs. Lillie White is the community's most recent member to be admitted to the local hospital. She is out of the CC-Unit but is reported to still be in very serious condition. We are thankful that those who are still in the hospital are steadily improving and those at home are holding their own are able to be up and about. We pray for their continued improvement.

The Mt. Olive M.B. Church Junior Choir held their choir day program on this past Sunday afternoon to begin a series of Choir Day programs for the year of '81. It is reported that the event was well attended and enjoyed by all.

The Mattie E. Coleman Circle will present a program at Beckley Chapel this Sunday afternoon at 2:30 p.m. the public is invited to attend.

At 2:30 p.m. at Spring Hill M.B. Church, the Pastor's Aide Club will present a program. Mrs. Zera Maud Hastings is in charge of program arrangements.

Oliver and Josephine Fields

Oliver and Josephine Fields are the heads of one of the oldest, best loved and most respected families of the community and still actively involved.

As far back as I can remember from the early 1940's until now, their home has been a favorite gathering place for all ages. Even if you just happened by, your welcome was always assured and your visit a pleasant one.

The family has a unique talent for making one feel that you've granted them a favor by visiting. Josephine kindly presses upon you when leaving a gift of some kind, a plant, canned goods, or some small item she just happened to have handy.

If there is sickness anywhere in the community, they are always there to help and for simple ailments, especially in children, she usually has a remedy and will not hesitate to administer it day or night. For advice or someone to just tell your troubles to, they are never too busy to stop and give what ever is required.

They are known to everyone as Uncle Dick and Aunt Jo, a title given to them years ago when the community was teeming with their neices and nephews. The Fields, Youngs, Martins, Brandon's, Christian's and the McCLOUD's, to name a few, and those who were not related to them claimed to be anyway because they are the kind of people you just want to be associated with.

Uncle Dick is quiet, easy going and gentle natured. He is a retired federal compress worker, but he is always busy. He is a competent carpenter and mechanic and his home and surroundings give evidence of his daily activities.

Aunt Jo gives the appearance of a roaring lioness, but she is as gentle and as loving as a kitten with a heart as big as the community itself. They are both members of the Baptist church. She is a member of the senior choir, with a membership of the longest standing and among the strongest alto voices.

They are the parents of four children who are all grown up with children of their own. One daughter remains in the home and, with their help, has raised two wonderful sons. And they, as individuals, do them credit in every way. They are also grown up and live away from home but return every weekend to enliven their lives and fill the home with youthful activity.

The Fields' home is situated on a hill south and in direct view of my home and many times as I look in that direction I am reminded of the words of Christ when he stated, "Ye are the light of the world. A city that is set on a hill cannot be hid. Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works and glorify your father which is in heaven."

This is true of the entire family for they all thrive on doing for others, giving of themselves and their means never expecting personal gain. It is simply their way of saying I love you and I care.

Except for the weekends now, their home is most of the time quiet and visitors are few, but this is because of the demands of a changing world and not because of choice for their kind of people will always be sought out for reasons of the love that they generate and because they are loved and needed in return. This will always be so.

Thought for the day: Return to him who does you wrong your purest love, and he will cease from doing wrong; for love will purify the heart of him who is beloved as truly as it purifies the heart of him who loves.

Till next week.

Sixty-nine young people had a great time at last Saturday's magic show. The Super Saturdays planned by members of the Junior Auxiliary at the George E. Allen Library will continue throughout January.

Gymnastics will be featured on the twenty-fourth. Interested young people will be welcomed at 2 p.m., in the Marion W. Smith Room, for another hour of enjoyable activities.

A workshop looking toward National Library Week, which will be April 5-11 this year, was conducted at Jackson, Miss., on Thursday, Jan. 15. Special guests at luncheon were Mississippi legislators. Special awards were presented at the conclusion of the luncheon. Mrs. Nadine Hall of this area was honored with the Golden Book Award for her many years of service and fine support to the Hickory Flatt Library, another branch library of the Northeast Regional Library on whose library board she has also been serving for a long and much appreciated period.

Mrs. William Winter, our state's First Lady and State Chairman of National Library Week, presided at the workshop and the luncheon. The luncheon speaker was Dr. Paul Murrill, until recently Chancellor of L.S.U.

He emphasized the growth in communication and information facilities as they are and as they are expected to become. He foresees these as another way that libraries may serve but not as a replacement for books.

Geneva Parker is now a working lady again. "Parker's Quick Food Restaurant" opened for business last week.

She offers a variety of fine food, plate dinners and sandwiches, soup's and salad's. Good luck, lady.

Novie Engle is in the Booneville hospital with Pneumonia. We hope by the time you read this paper she will be home and up and around.

I got a nice letter from Opel Burcham of Chattanooga, Tenn. She and husband Bob enjoy the Booneville Banner-Independent every week. She sent me some beautiful pictures of the Holy Land. One of these days I hope to take the cruise with her to Israel.

Essie Engle is improving slowly. She is not able to assume her full duty as house wife, but is up and around. She went on a trip to Tupelo, yesterday to visit her granddaughter Carol Ann Bearden.

She enjoyed her visit with Carol. The trip was very tiring, but she came home and rested. Her daughter, Ann Lowrey drove her to Tupelo.

She had several visitors last week—Haroldene and Letha Bryant, Troy and Emogene Greene, Verlon and Bill Padgett, Lucille Phillips and Estell Taylor, Jake and Silvia Green, Alta Williams and James Engle from Laverne, Tenn.

Mr. and Mrs. Troy Green had all their children home for a visit yesterday, but one—Kay and husband Tony Lowrey and two children, Jay and Brandon. Brandon was sick with a cold so Grandma and Pa went to visit them last night. We hope she is out of bed and back in school soon.

My grandson, John Robert is home from school with a cold.

Household tip: Place a length of aluminum foil under the ironing board cover. Heat is then reflected and ironing takes less time and less electricity.

Scripture Cake

Make from a rick recipe keyed to the Old Testament.

4 1/2 cups of 1 King 4:22
1 1/2 cups of Judges 5:25 (last clauses)
2 cups of Jeremimah 6:20
2 cups of 1 Samuel 30:12 (raisins)
2 cups of Nahum 3:12
1 cup of Numbers 17:8
2 tbs of 1 Samuel 14:25
Season to taste of 2 Chronicles 9:9
6 oz. Jeremiah 17:11
A pinch of Leviticus 2:13
1/2 cup of Judges 4:19 (last clause)
2 tsp. of Amas 4:5 (baking powder)

Follow Solomon's prescription in Proverbs 23:14 and you will have a celebrated Sunday cake, besides being a very good cake to eat, it makes a fine conversation piece.

This cake should never be made in a hurry. The best cakes are made by the bakers who took time to read not only the exact verse but also the chapter in which the verse was found. Hope you have good luck with it.

Delano also presented the AFBF's "Distinguished and Meritorious Service on behalf of Agriculture Award" to Allan Grant who retired as AFBF president a year ago.

Delano said Grant is recognized as a vigorous advocate of expanded foreign trade and improved international relations. He lauded Grant for leading trade delegations to Europe, Japan, India and China as AFBF president and other trips abroad previously as head of the California Farm Bureau.

Clement Wants

Tax Exempt

Bonds

TVA Director Bob Clement says that the Federal government should examine the possibility of allowing TVA to issue tax exempt bonds to finance its construction programs if the Federal Financing Bank (FFB), which gives TVA preferred interest rates on loans, is abolished.

Clement, whose comments came recently during a speech before the Union City, Tenn., Rotary Club, said that the loss of the FFB preferred interest loans could cost Tennessee Valley ratepayers an extra $20 million per year in increased interest costs.

The TVA director pointed out that most of those lower interest loans from the FFB go for the agency's nuclear construction program.

Since that program has profound consequences not only for the region but the Nation as well in decreasing our dependence on oil from the Middle East, Clement said that the TVA ratepayer should not have to bear the burden alone for higher interest loans if the FFB is abolished.

Clement has stressed that TVA's primary obligation is to its own customers, but he believes that TVA's surplus power could well be of benefit to oil-dependent utilities in outlying regions. The TVA director emphasizes the Federal government should realize the large problems the agency would face if it cuts off TVA's FFB funding.

The director noted that TVA would suffer from some substantial losses if the agency had to turn to the public bond market, which is the only alternative under present law.

Clement also suggested that TVA study the possibility of issuing Energy Bonds on the same principle as savings bonds. Another option he cited was to get TVA's distributors to assist the agency by raising enough tax exempt money to offset the losses the agency will certainly sustain when it sells bonds at higher interest rates.

"TVA has an obligation to review every feasible method for raising inexpensive capital--we've got to do everything in our power to defend our ratepayers against these viciously rising costs," Clement said.

VISIT RADIO STATION—The fourth grade classes of Mrs. Shirley Cole (top photo) and Mrs. Becky Harris recently visited radio station WBIP and other area businesses. The trip was a part of their classroom social studies which included learning about career opportunities. In addition to WBIP, the students visited Young's Service Station, Jordan Industries, Big Star and the Prentiss County Health Department. Parents and friends were also involved by talking to the classes about their jobs. Classroom visitors included: Becky Tryner, operating room technician; Mike Tryner, ambulance driver; Will George, salesman; Kenny Reed, truck driver; Duane Rinehart and Bobby Burrell Jr., game wardens.

TROPHY WINNER—Macky Barnes Jr. of Jumpertown recently returned from Houston, Texas, after winning four trophies in the Baby Miss and Mr. America Pageant. He was punctuality winner, semi-finalist winner in state costume and tuxedo wear, and he also received a national finalist trophy for being chosen as a state winner. Macky and two other young men were chosen from among 1,200 children in Mississippi to attend the pageant.

30,000 Benefit From State Food Programs

State Superintendent of Education Dr. Charles Holladay has released figures on the number of children participating, in the child care food program in Mississippi.

"Currently, there are 30,000 children taking part in this program which is jointly operated by the State Department of Education and the U.S. Department of Agriculture," he said.

"Child care centers and day care homes may serve children breakfast, lunch, dinner, plus a mid-morning and mid-afternoon snack," said John Walker, assistant director of the SDE's Division of Administration and Finance. "Under the program, Mississippi public and non-profit private child care centers and day care homes are reimbursed for part, or in some cases, for all the costs involved in serving children nutritious meals that meet federal requirements."

When Mississippi began the program in 1969, it served children in three child care centers and day care homes. Since then, the number participating has grown to approximately 500 centers.

"But we know that there are approximately 600 centers and homes that are potentially eligible but not yet enrolled," Walker said. "We want to make sure they know about the help that's available."

To qualify for participation in the program, child care centers and day care homes must be licensed or approved by state or local authorities.

For more information on who is eligible and how to apply, contact: J.H. Walker, Child Care Food Program, Division of Administration and Finance, State Department of Education, P.O. Box 771, Jackson, MS 39205, or call Clarence Lovelady, 601-354-6916.

Forestry Report

Order Seedlings Now

Landowners who are planning to plant pine or hardwood seedlings during the coming winter months and still haven't ordered their trees had better hurry, says the Mississippi Forestry Commission.

"We're down to our last few million loblolly and slash pines and have already sold out of all the hardwoods with the exception of Sycamore, Yellow Poplar and Cottonwood," declares Wison McNeel, Supervisor of Forestry Commission Nurseries.

McNeel said the Commission would continue to accept seedling orders until about mid-December or until the supply runs out. He said orders are being filled on a first-come, first-served basis with delivery month (December-March) to be selected by the buyer.

An important piece of national legislation signed into law last month by the President (H.R. 4310) offers a sizeable tax credit and deduction to landowners to help defray reforestation costs and has already stirred considerable new interest in tree planting, according to State Forester Dick Allen.

Details on tax break provisions of the new law are listed in a Forestry Commission brochure entitled: "H.R. 4310-A New Tax Break for Mississippi Landowners" available at county offices of the Commission or by writing the State Forester, 908 Robert E. Lee Building, Jackson, MS 39201.

For further information, contact your local County Forester, John Stuart by calling 728-6835 or come by his office located in the back left-hand side of the Bank of Commerce.

Of Wood Ducks
Nest Boxes Increase Number

By DON JONES
Soil Conservation
Technician

In spite of continuing land use changes, our state remains blessed with an abundance of excellent habitat for wood ducks.

Cypress-tupelo swamps, wooded lakes, sloughs, rakes and the bottomland hardwood forests bordering major rivers are good examples of such prime wood duck breeding and nesting areas.

Additional quality habitat for wood ducks is provided by the thousands of small wetlands which have been created throughout the state over the years. These wetlands are extremely important to wood ducks and are serving to offset some of the habitat loss occurring in the bottomland forest areas. For every acre, few wetlands surpass the quality of a beaver pond as wood duck habitat. Dead trees are numerous which supply nesting cavities and the shallow marshy areas with dense vegetation, provide quality brood cover. A nest box program for wood ducks is usually very successful on beaver ponds, and can be of great value of man-made lakes.

Even though natural cavities may appear abundant, wood ducks will accept and use man-made nest boxes in most areas. Studies have demonstrated the majority of natural cavities in living and dead trees are not suitable as nest sites for wood ducks.

Another consideration is that competition for use of natural cavities by squirrels and raccoons as well as by other birds is quite severe. The overall nesting success of wood ducks using man-made boxes, which are properly built and protected from predators, is greater than that of ducks using natural tree cavities.

For more information on wood ducks boxes and their construction contact the Soil Conservation Service.

State's Rehab Program Increases Income

Over 6,400 Mississippians more than doubled previous incomes after receiving services from the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation of the State Department of Education, according to Dr. Charles Holladay, state superintendent of education.

Holladay said salaries of the 6,430 persons grew from $13.7 million a year before rehabilitation to $38.4 million a year after rehabilitation. A person is considered rehabilitated when he or she is placed on a job and has successfully adjusted to it, he said.

The Division of Vocational Rehabilitation is a state-federal service provided by law to help disabled men and women earn a living. It eliminates or reduces disabilities, where possible, and prepares working-age handicapped persons for earning a living. It also helps them find work and adjust to it.

The program is open to persons with physical, mental or emotional disabilities which are substantial hindrances to their earning a living. There must also be the likelihood that, as a result of the services, these persons will have their ability to work improved.

Dr. Holladay reports that 189 Prentiss Countians received these services during Fiscal Year 1980. Of these, 71 were considered to be rehabilitated.

"A total of 25,523 persons (statewide) received our services last year," said John Webb, assistant superintendent of education and director of the

Vocational Rehabilitation program. "These services included counseling, evaluation of needs, medical help, physical aids, job training and placement, and follow-up after placement."

Of the 6,430 successfully rehabilitated, 3,192 (49.6 percent) were severely disabled. The largest number of disabilities, almost 1,400, were orthopedic (amputations or physical impairments). Ranking second, with over 1,200 cases, were mental and emotional disorders. These were followed by some 900 digestive problems.

These figures are included in the recently released annual report of the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation. The report noted that the Division administers a statewide system of "sheltered" workshop facilities, which hire and train the handicapped.

These facilities earned almost $2.7 million in sub-contract work for industries statewide last year. Over $1.5 million was paid in trainee wages.

Among other services, the Division also administers a Disability Determination Services unit. The unit, under contract with the Social Security Administration, helps determine who is eligible for disability benefits.

Last year, the unit processed over 53,000 claims, approving about one in four.

Maintaining Your Mental Health

Reasons For Avoiding Counseling Vary

From Timber Hills
Mental Health Services

Quite frequently Timber Hills' counselors receive calls from "referral sources," i.e., doctors, lawyers, clergymen, school principals and others to whom someone in trouble has turned. The referral is usually made because a situation has clearly reached the point where the source feels that help from a mental health professional is indicated.

For instance, a youngster is getting into progressively more trouble. The next step might well be a brush with the police or the juvenile court. The school realizes that there is something seriously amiss with the youngster's home life, and urges the parents to call Timber Hills for an appointment even though the parents are reluctant to do so.

Or a physician realizes that his patient's constant exhaustion and headaches have no physical basis. However, she has said that she is not getting along with her husband, and her marriage is thoroughly miserable. So, the doctor tells her about Timber Hills and then calls the agency to let the counselor know that one of his patients will be making an appointment.

Most often these referrals work out very well. The problems have become so painful and difficult, that the people involved are prepared to take the difficult step of asking for outside help. They have come to understand, that asking for help is not a sign of weakness, but of strength.

However, there are times when the parents of the youngster will not come in, or will come once and then not come again. There are couples who seem to fight interminably, but who can't bring themselves to do anything including asking for professional help.

The referral sources, or the couple's friends or relatives, just cannot understand why anyone would be willing to tolerate what to them seems like a completely intolerable situation indefinitely. "These people are obviously miserable...so why don't they do something?", they may ask.

There may be several reasons why people who clearly seem to need help cannot accept it. One of those reasons may be that they are perhaps, not as miserable as they might appear to the outsider.

There are couples who have been fighting for years, and who would miss their old established patterns if peace suddenly broke out, for instance. And then there are others who underneath it all, realize that "doing something" about a problem means that they themselves must change.

Often they find the prospect of change itself is more uncomfortable than their present problems. So when they see that a family counselor will not make their marriage partner or their "defiant" child be or act differently, they don't come back for more counseling. Sometimes, when the situation has really gotten out of hand sufficiently to be threatening, they come back and try to find ways of solving the problem.

It's a fact that counseling is not a one-way street. The counseling process requires a basic desire to change an unhappy situation by finding new ways of solving it, and making difficult changes in one's way of handling problems and relating to people. Often it's a fear of this kind of change that keeps people from doing something about their troubles.

For information about services available at Timber Hills Mental Health Center, phone 728-3174 or come by the offices on the Highway 30 By-pass in Booneville. After hours and on weekends phone 1-286-9209 toll free for emergency counseling services.

DISTRICT RECEIVES MEDAL—Buddy Smith (right), district commissioner, holds the "Honor District" medallion received by the Prentiss County Soil and Water Conservation District in the 33rd annual Goodyear Conservation Awards Program. Bobby Hodge (left), deputy commissioner, accepted the award at the Mississippi Association of Conservation District's annual winter meeting held recently in Jackson. The award was made for the local district's continuing record of excellence after receiving top honors in the contest.

A big day for the residents of Booneville was when the meat market management and staff of Foodway, Inc. received Foodway's "Best Meat On The Block" award.

The meat market operations of Foodway are fastly becoming the standard by which other meat markets are judged. The newest program "The Best Meat On The Block," has the strictest guidelines for the retail of Foodway's quality meats: Foodway market managers must trim closer to assure greater value. Foodway meats are always dated to assure freshness, many kinds of fresh ground meats, service when you want it, custom cut just for you, variety unlimited; 500 kinds and cuts of meat, and 100 percent money back guarantee on everything we sell!

Foodway, Inc. bases all its programs on continued lower prices, with emphasis on service, quality, and variety. Customers throughout Tennessee, Mississippi, and Alabama find food bills consistently lower when shopping a Foodway Supermarket.

Coach Akins Says Tigers Are 'Too Nice' ...

By LEE GENTRY
Sports Editor

"We've got to reduce our turnovers and keep the ball among our home folks more," remarks from Northeast Tiger head coach Noal Akins who said Tuesday that his squad was playing well enough to win but needed that killer instinct to really put people away. Akins and his Tigers, now 12-3 overall and 6-1 in the conference, will travel to Itawamba tonight to face the always tough Indians in a rivalry game at Fulton. The Northeast coach said his team just wasn't playing well enough and added that he hoped they'd be prepared for tonight's game with IJC. "How are we playing right now? 'Poorly,'" coach Akins said but we're going to get in there and hustle tonight against the Indians. We're still loafing." Coach Akins said the Tigers have to play above average since they have two of their biggest tests of the year in IJC tonight and the tough home encounter Monday night against Northwest. "We have to be ready for these games," he said. The Tiger mentor said Northeast would indeed have to be ready for IJC in tonight's battle. "They have a young ballclub and will play a man to man defense and we'll have to match that." "What we have to do, is hustle," Akins added. "Sometimes I think we're a bunch of good guys and don't want to hurt anyone." To play IJC, or anyone else for that matter we have to be ready to rise to the occasion and beat some folks early." The Tigers are shooting at a 50 percent mark from the floor hitting on 458 of 911 shots and are averaging 36 rebounds per outing along with 19 assists, while at the line, Northeast has 65 percent average. Coach Akins said injury wise the Tigers were in pretty good shape. He added that Biggersville ace Maurice Stafford and Frank Durrrough both have ankle problems but are capable of performing and said these were the only two major problems. The Northeast boss said the Tigers were a talented ballclub but just liked that extra incentive to put the game away. Akins said he was really preparing for tonight's IJC game and said he has worked his pawmen hard this whole week. "We know that anytime we play IJC, we're in for a fight," He said. "There mostly freshmen but we beat them here four points (84-80) and they'll be gunning for us.

Calvert, Miller Sign Grants With Northeast

Northeast Tiger football head coach Bill Ward Monday announced the signings of five gridsters for the 1981 season.

Two of the top signees are from Booneville High School while three others are from Corinth.

Booneville's Bradice Miller and Carlton Calvert have agreed to terms with Northeast. Calvert, a 6'1" 180 pounder and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Calvert of Booneville, will play at both tightend or splitend while Miller, a 5'10" back and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Murry Miller will be one of the Tiger backs next season.

Signed from Corinth are, Rusty Price, a 6' 180 pound center and defensive end; Craig Gaines, a 6' 210 pound tackle and Stan Pearce, a 5'8" wide receiver.

The Northeast head grid mentor said he planned to sign some 25-30 footballers for scholarships next season.

Ward and the Tigers ended the 1980 season with their best record in the history of the college. The Tigers finished with a 9-1 overall mark and was ranked as high as fourth in the Nation by the NJCAA poll.

in the boys finals at Booneville while coach

Rickey Ford's Lady Blue Devils won the girl's title

Hypothermia May Cause Winter Deaths In State

A University of Mississippi Medical Center physician says winter may claim lives among the elderly not only from the temperature-raising illnesses like flu and pneumonia, but from hypothermia --abnormally low body temperature.

Dr. Cherie Long, assistant professor of family medicine, and developer of the geriatric segments of the Department of Family Medicine curriculum, says hypothermia isn't confined to extremely cold climates.

"For certain people, usually those over 65, a gradual loss of body heat can occur at temperatures as high as 60 or 65 degrees Fahrenheit," Long said.

Accurate figures on the number of deaths caused by accidental hypothermia are unavailable, both in Mississippi and elsewhere.

"An autopsy might note, for instance, that death was due to a heart attack, which would be true," Dr. Long said. "The internally cold temperature slows the flow of oxygen to all vital body tissue, including the heart. Unless a person were found dead in an extremely cold place with little protection, most physicians would not list phypothermia as the cause of death."

Figures gathered in Great Britain over the past 25 years, do indicate that 10 per cent of the over-65 population is susceptible to accidental hypothermia.

Some conditions and life styles make some people more vulnerable. A 70-year old who plays tennis regularly isn't a likely candidate both because of the physical activity and social contacts, Dr. Long explained. But a person who lives along and isn't able to move around well, is at risk, especially if the house isn't heated adequately. If an elderly person falls and spends several hours on a cold floor the body temperature could easily fall below 95 degrees, she said.

Many people over 65 have trouble regulating their body temperature.

"They're simply not aware that they're cold," Dr. Long said.

An underactive thyroid, stroke, severe arthritis and Parkinson's disease, or alcoholism may all blunt the body's response to cold. Drugs commonly prescribed for anxiety, depression and nausea can do the same. And some otherwise healthy older people, for reasons no one understands, just cannot regulate their temperature.

"We saw the same problem during last summer's heat wave. Most of the heat stroke victims were senior citizens who lived alone. They stayed in a closed-up house while the temperature soared, and they never felt hot," Dr. Long said.

Normally when a person feels cold, he or she takes steps to get warm. They bundle up, move around, and shiver. The muscle activity from shivering and moving raises body temperature.

Dr. Long recommends that indoor temperatures be kept no lower than 65 degrees in homes where old people live. Those who are ill or cannot move around well may require higher temperatures.

Other suggestions include: dressing warmly and eating enough food during the day to maintain body heat; sleeping warmly because hypothermia can begin during sleep; asking a physician if the drugs he or she is prescribing can affect the control of body temperature; and staying in contact with other people who can call for help if needed.

Hypothermia can be gradual, and its warning signals should be heeded, Dr. Long said. There may be a change in appearance or behavior during cold weather. Speech may be slurred and breathing slow and shallow. The lower the temperature, the closer the victim will be to unconsciousness. Blood pressure drops and the pulse is weak.

"If the temperature is below 95 or does not register on an oral thermometer, it should be checked with a rectal thermometer. If the temperature is still below 95 or does not register, call a doctor or an ambulance immediately," she advises. "Keep the person warm while you wait for help. If the victim is alert he should be given hot food and drink, but nothing alcoholic. Breathing warm mist can help warm the internal organs."

But she cautions against warming the surface of the body too quickly. "Rubbing a person's limbs causes the blood vessels to open wider and more heat escapes."

"Our climate in Mississippi isn't usually associated with deaths from cold," Dr. Long points out. "But with steadily rising fuel costs, the persons most vulnerable to hypothermia may be the ones who can least afford to heat their homes adequately."

Things would have gone differently today.

This is the aftermath of a hurricane that left 400 dead in Corpus Christi in 1919. Red Cross was called in after the damage was done.

When Hurricane Allen hit Corpus Christi in 1980, Red Cross was there before the disaster struck—to help people prepare and evacuate. We were there during the crisis to help provide relief. And, afterwards, we were there to help the victims minimize their pain. Hurricane Allen claimed two lives in Corpus Christi.

One hundred years of experience with disaster has taught us that being prepared for it is half the battle.

STUDENTS LEARN—Mrs. Joann Potts, Miss Hattie Alexander, and Mrs. Kathleen Arnold use many instructional aids to reinforce learning in their Title Reading and Math program at Booneville Elementary school. One such method is popping popcorn which involves the students in active participation. This teaches reading, following directions, and measurement. It also teaches skills of coordination important to elementary students as well as cooperation with others. One of the most useful devices in teaching money value is the "play store." The students take turns running the cash register while others pretend to be customers. (Photo by Lee Gentry.)

Home Economist's Report

By CLAIRE T. ROSS
Extension Home Economist

What does interior design mean to you?

Interior design involves creating not only an aesthetically pleasing environment, but also one that is functionally and psychologically acceptable. Well-designed interiors are based on the interrelationships of structure, furnishings and environment, with the personalities and life styles of the people who live within.

Interiors that are beautiful but fail to satisfy living needs are poorly designed. Equally dissatisfying are extremely functional interiors that project a cold, sterile, impersonal mood, as well as designs that are both functional and beautiful but inappropriate for the family.

But it is possible to successfully combine both functional and aesthetic requirements in an interior by taking the time to develop a carefully thought out plan based on your specific needs. The basis of interior design is knowing how to use space and select and arrange furnishings to enrich various life styles.

Although there are several different factors to consider in planning, the greatest importance should be placed on individual and family life styles. This includes such things as the number and ages of people, resources, values, personalities, tastes, and interpersonal relationships.

In other words, how does each person like to live and what are the living patterns of the family as a whole? If you do not have a thorough understanding of the life styles expressed within your family, it may be helpful to begin writing down your thoughts, reviewing, and revising them over a period of several days.

Your time and abilities are invaluable resources that need consideration during the financial planning stage of your design project. If you are going to tackle some of the work yourself, make sure you have the necessary knowledge and skills required to complete a quality job.

But evaluate the amount of time required to complete the work with the amount of satisfaction gained. Sometimes it is wiser in the long run to pay someone else to do some of the work when you can, perhaps, derive more pleasure, save money, or spend your time more efficiently completing other tasks.

Offentimes, the most difficult part of interior design can be knowing how or where to begin your project. Lack of information, too much information, too many ideas, or not knowing what to do first can lead to confusion from the start.

At this stage of the game, you may not know how to totally evaluate, design, or develop a complete plan, but you can initiate several of the ideas that make interior design work for you.

For example, with no knowledge about interior design, you can begin to develop a worthwhile resource file. You will acquire the ability to complete the remaining steps in the overall plan.

To prevent wasting time searching through masses of magazines and clippings, create a system for organizing good design information and ideas that you collect. File these resources by types of rooms or by specific categories, such as good color schemes or storage ideas.

In addition to magazines and newspapers, take advantage of other resources for ideas-displays, friends homes, and exhibitions. You can even increase your design knowledge while waiting in line or in an office. Look around you and analyze the area.

An excellent course is just beginning on Appalachian TV, entitled "Designing Home Interiors." For information, call Opal Melvin, NEMJC.

We had another wonderful night Friday at the Upholstrey Shop quilting, for the ones of you who missed it. You really missed a great time and a lot of good stew.

We will have a repeat this Friday night at 6:30. We would like to have your help with our quilting.

We are glad to report "Lady Q" is to come home from the hospital in the Big M. We hope she continues to improve.

"Bird Hunter's" Daddy is to have surgery in the Big M this week. Hope they get a good report.

The "Bug" is still raging, a lot of us are still having some trouble. Maybe if we would have some wet weather we would all feel better.

Happy birthday to the "Little Rascal" on Monday, the "Wilaway," on Wednesday, and "Little Bear," on Thursday. Hope all of you had a nice day.

The "Little Rascal," had a nice birthday and got some nice gifts. We had a fish supper with the "Hippie" and his wife, the "Plow Boy," and his wife, and Amanda. And Mother Brackeen. She even got a birthday cake, sure was good.

We hear the "Letter Man" is still not feeling good. "Telephone Man," we are sorry we made you quilt so much you didn't come back last week. Next time we will take pity on you.

Some of you should get out Friday night. Some of us quilt, some eat, some have a little huddle here and there and others get around to "leg showing." Boy you should see that.

But if you would like to see, come out Friday night. We have plenty of needles, thread and thimbles.

Sure hope everyone feels better this week. Go to the church of your choice but go.

Miles offshore a giant compressor station becomes an ecological refuge

It's an unusual sanctuary, a towering compressor station nearly 50 miles out in the Gulf of Mexico. Marine birds fly here by the hundreds, unafraid, because in this instance man has proved that complex machinery and the creatures of a marine environment can exist side by side—if someone cares enough.

This distant installation pumped more than 280 billion cubic feet of gas ashore in 1979. Much of this was consumed by the Gulf South economic base. That's important. But we think it's just as significant to prove that as the search for new gas reserves grows more intense, native ecology can be preserved and perhaps enhanced.

That's the way we do things at United Gas—where the search for new energy never stops.

THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK:

Joy
The Fruit Of The Spirit Is Joy . . . Galatians 5:22

By Tom F. Rayburn

Tom F. Rayburn, Pastor
First Baptist Church
Booneville, Miss.

Everybody is seeking for joy or happiness. Real joy is something you cannot put your hands on. It is intangible. That is it cannot be easily formulated or grasped. It is a product of the Spirit of God. I have discovered that things do not bring lasting joy or happiness. An old preacher said that happiness is what you stumble over on the road of duty.

Albert Schweitzer, the missionary, musician, biographer, philosopher, and surgeon turned his back on wealth and prestige when he sailed for Africa in 1913. An old abandoned hen house was his first hospital, and an old camp bed was his first operating table. On a trip to the United States, a reporter asked him, "Dr. Schweitzer, have you found happiness in Africa?" He replied, "I have found a place of service, and that is enough happiness for anyone."
