Off-Duty Firemen To Get Pagers

By KEN CHRISTIAN
Editor

If you are sitting in a restaurant or at a meeting sometime soon and the person next to you suddenly starts emitting strange sounding squeaks and squeals, don't be alarmed. He isn't a visitor from outer space. He is probably just a Booneville fireman.

The city is planning to purchase 14 tone and voice pagers so that off-duty firemen can be notified instantly if their assistance is needed to fight a fire.

"Presently, it is extremely difficult to alert off-duty firemen to respond to fire alarm calls," Mayor Charles Crabb said. "By improving the speed of mobilization, the Booneville Fire Department can significantly improve the response time to fires in the city and county, but in addition, provide a larger fire fighting force at the scene of the fire."

The Booneville Fire Department has a total of 21 firemen, Crabb said. Only seven are on duty at any one time. If there is a major fire and the off-duty firemen are needed, the dispatcher must call each individually—a time consuming task.

Once the pager system is in operation, the fire department will distribute the pagers to the off-duty firemen who will have the units with them at all times. In the event of a fire, the dispatcher can notify all the off-duty firemen simultaneously over the pagers.

"This action should significantly improve the mobilization and fire fighting capabilities of the Booneville Fire Department," Crabb said.

The total cost of the 14 Motorola "Spirit" tone and voice pagers, complete with rechargeable batteries and single unit chargers, is estimated to be about $3,920.

Mayor Crabb was notified this week that the Mississippi Forestry Commission has approved the city's application for federal funds from the Rural Community Fire Protection Program to assist in the purchase of the pagers.

State Forester R.C. Allen notified Mayor Crabb in a

A New Look!

Beginning this week, The Banner-Independent has a new look.

In an effort to improve the appearance of the newspaper, we have redesigned the flag at the top of page one.

The old flag served well for eight years, since March 1973. However, we feel the type style we are now using is much neater, cleaner and will improve the overall appearance of the newspaper.

Long time readers may find the new flag a bit nostalgic. In the 1950's, prior to the consolidation of the Banner and the Independent, The Booneville Banner used the same style of type, Old English, in their page one flag.

Thrasher Student Wins County Spelling Bee

Tracy Taylor "hoodwinked" her opponents Tuesday night to win the Prentiss County Spelling Bee.

That was the word she spelled to win the title of champion speller.

Tracy and 24 other students, five from each of the Prentiss County schools, participated in the spelling contest Tuesday night in the courtroom of the Prentiss County Courthouse.

Jay Lowrey, who came in second in the contest, misspelled the word "incense" to give the championship to Tracy. Tracy successfully spelled "incense" and one additional word, "hoodwink," to win.

A few words earlier, both Jay and Tracy misspelled "reverence."

Tracy, the 13-year-old daughter of Roy Taylor, is an 8th grade student at Thrasher school. Mrs. Margaret Goddard was her sponsor.

Jay is the 12-year-old son of Tony and Kay Lowrey. He is a 7th grade student at Hill's Chapel Attendance Center and his sponsor was Mrs. Edith English.

Sharon Cagle, 12-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max L. Cagle, took third place in the spelling bee.

She is a 7th grade student at Wheeler Attendance Center and Mrs. Tina Moore was her sponsor. She misspelled "pompous."

Dean Bearden, 13-year-old son of Ray and Geraldine Bearden, placed fourth in the spelling contest.

He is in the 8th grade at Hill's Chapel Attendance Center and his sponsor was Mrs. Edith English. He misspelled "prejudice."

Assistant Superintendent of Education Donald Johnson served as master of ceremonies for the contest in the absence of Superintendent Lex Cain who is a patient in the North Mississippi Medical Center in Tupelo.

Dr. Anne Gaddis of Northeast Junior College pronounced the words for the contestants. Mrs. Versie Jones was the dictionary consultant and Mrs. Vessie Ferrell was the monitor.

Mrs. Reba DePoyster coordinated the spelling bee.

As winner of the county spelling bee, Tracy will compete in the Mid-South Spelling Bee sponsored by The Press-Scimitar at 6:30 p.m. Friday, April 24, in the University Center Ballroom of Memphis State University.

The winner of the Mid-South Spelling Bee will compete in the National Spelling Bee in Washington, D.C., in June.

OUT OF CONTROL—Friday the 13th lived up to its name for Andrew Shinault of Highway 45 South when his wood frame house was destroyed by fire about 4:30 that afternoon. The fire reportedly began in the bathroom, cause unknown. The Wheeler Fire Department and the quick response truck from the Booneville Fire Department responded to the call. Take Effect Sunday

Postage Rates Increased

It's going to cost an additional three cents to mail a letter starting next week.

New U.S. Postal Service rates take effect Sunday, March 22, and after that date it will cost 18 cents to mail a standard size letter.

The new rate for First-Class letters will be 18 cents for the first ounce or fraction of an ounce and 17 cents for each additional ounce or fraction of an ounce, not to exceed 12 ounces.

The rate for postcards will be 12 cents per piece.

Stamp books containing 24 of the 18 cent stamps will cost $4.32 at the Booneville Post Office. Stamped envelopes will cost 22 cents each.

"We will have an ample supply of three cent stamps for those who have 15 cent stamps remaining," Booneville Postmaster Jack Wright said.

The new 18 cent stamp will be purple in color and will be based on a design which was originally used on the 8 cent embossed stamped envelope designed by Bradbury Thompson and issued in May 1971.

Due to the fact that the exact amount of the rate increase had not been determined when the stamps were printed, they will not have the price displayed on them, but will have the letter

For City Election

Two Candidates Qualify

With less than a month remaining until the deadline, Jimmy Jones and Bluford Allen have become the third and fourth candidates to qualify for election to one of the city's five aldermen-at-large posts in this summer's municipal election. Jones, owner of Gray's Department Store, is the son of W.T. and the late Antlean Jones. He is married to the former Sherion Timbes, daughter of Louise Timbes and the late J.W. Timbes, who was serving on the board of aldermen when he died last October.

Allen, a teacher at Biggersville school, presently holds a seat on the board of aldermen. He was chosen in a special election in December 1980 to serve the remainder of Timbes' term.

Willie D. "Dicey" Jumper and incumbent alderman Charles Steen were the first two candidates to qualify to seek positions on the board of aldermen.

In the race for mayor of Booneville, incumbent Charles Crabb is the only candidate to have qualified. R.C. Calton and incumbent W.W. Stacy have qualified to run for chief of police.

April 10 is the deadline for candidates to qualify for the municipal election which will be held May 12.

Labor Survey Response Good, More Needed

The response to last week's labor survey has been very good, according to Doug Mansell, executive director of the Prentiss County Development Association.

But due to the importance of a good showing on the survey, the deadline for completing the forms has been extended seven days, he said. The original deadline was yesterday, March 18.

The labor survey is being conducted by the PCDA to determine the availability of potential employees for a major industry considering Booneville for the location of a new plant.

"A major factor in the company's decision on whether or not to locate here, will be labor availability," Mansell said.

He urged everyone who might be interested in working for the firm to fill out one of the survey forms and to get their friends to fill out one, also.

The survey forms are available at the PCDA office and at the State Employment Office, both located at the corner of Main and Court streets; at the Booneville City Hall on Main Street; or from the Prentiss County Board of Supervisors in the courthouse. The forms should be completed and returned to one of these locations.

Mansell said that about 350 forms have been returned so far. However, he pointed out that, at mid-January Prentiss County had an unemployment rate of 10.3 percent, or about 1,200 persons.

"Today, 30 percent of those have indicated they want to work for the new company," he said. "That still leaves 70 percent of the unemployed who have not."

It was revealed last week that a nationally known company, which has not been identified by officials, is considering the Prentiss County Industrial Park for the location of a 50,000 sq. ft. plant. The plant and equipment is expected to cost about $7 million, and a $4 million expansion could come after about four years.

Initially, the plant would hire between 70 and 80 local workers, mostly male, and could eventually hire as many as 200.

If the industry should locate in Booneville, local officials feel it would give a big boost to the county's economy.

Arts And Crafts

Set For Festival

Arts and crafts displays in the downtown area will be a major attraction of the second annual Boone-Hill Festival to be held here Thursday and Friday, May 1 and 2.

President Marshall Dickerson of the Uptown Association, which is composed of businesses and property owners in the uptown area, said the group has agreed to serve as the coordinating agency for the arts and crafts show again this year. Booths will be located on Main Street between the post office and Booneville Hardware Co.

"We expect most of the participants from last year to return," Dickerson said. "And we have already had several other inquiries from others who wish to display their handicraft."

The Uptown Association approved sponsorship of the arts and crafts displays at its meeting last week. The group also approved awarding cash prizes for the best booths entered. The booths will be judged by Bill Dowdy, chairman of the Blue Mountain College Art Department.

Brochures and entry forms for the show and sale are available at the local banks and various other locations throughout the area.

Other items discussed at last week's meeting were establishing a memorial for the late Marion Smith, parking problems and possible solutions, the proposed relocation of the post office, and retail promotions for the Boone-Hill Festival and the spring season.

Dickerson said the association plans to meet again within the next two weeks to continue discussion of these items.

Prentiss Personalities

Bolivar Shook And His One Great Masterpiece

Editor's note: Donald Franks, a Booneville attorney and lifetime resident of Prentiss County, has begun a series of feature stories for The Banner-Independent on the lives of selected Prentiss Countians. The first is about Bolivar Lee Shook, author of the gospel song, "The Cabin On The Hill."

By DONALD FRANKS

After deciding to write a series of sketches on the lives of Prentiss County personalities, it became necessary to make a choice of those deserving such attention and the reasons for such recognition. An excellent first choice appeared to be to select the person deemed to be the most creative individual produced by Prentiss County.

From a review of many who exemplified traits of creativity, the life and work of Bolivar Lee Shook impressed me most.

Bolivar Lee Shook was born Feb. 11, 1896, in District One in Prentiss County, Miss., the son of Noah W. and Mary J. Shook. He attended the public schools of the county and displayed an innate musical talent at an early age.

He spent his childhood in a frame cabin on a hill about four miles south of Booneville near Pettys Crossing. His home overlooked a narrow valley to the east and a wide valley to the west, with a low range of the southern terminus of the Appalachian mountains standing in the distance.

In 1914 at the age of 18, Shook was hitching a ride on a freight train near his home and was thrown from the train injuring his left leg. He remained a cripple for life.

His disability was too much handicap for manual labor, and he turned to music for a livelihood. He taught piano, singing schools and tuned pianos until his death March 4, 1964.

Bolivar composed a long list of gospel and country songs. Many were published in popular song books of the times. He was among that talented and select group who possessed perfect pitch, and could tune a piano without the aid of a tuning fork or other mechanical aid.

He wrote both words and music for most of his compositions.

His most celebrated and popular song is "Cabin On

The Hill," whose lyrics instantly strike a responsive chord in all who hear it sung or simply contemplate the thinking of the author as he translated his thoughts and memories of his boyhood home into the words and music of this great classic.

I have been unable to determine the exact date when "Cabin on the Hill" was written. It appears in the gospel hymn book, "Sacred Thoughts" published by James D. Vaughn of Lawrenceburg, Tenn., in 1943.

"Cabin on the Hill" was recorded by Lester Platt, Earl Scruggs and The Foggy Mountain Boys who later included it in an album. Other noted performers have recorded this song and have included it in concerts and radio and television broadcasts.

However, the most significant recognition came after the death of Shook when in 1975, Dorothy Horstman, a fan, author and scholar of country music and a radio disc jockey on WNYC, New York City, included "Cabin on the Hill" in her book, "Sing your Heart Out, Country Boy" published by E.P. Dutton & Company.

Ms. Horstman's book contains 15 categories, including Songs of Home, Religious Songs, and Prison and Cowboy Songs. She selected some 10 to 20 songs for each category, based on lyric excellence, popularity, representative content, balance and impact, (to use her words).

The first category in this great book is "Songs of Home" and the second song appearing under this subject is "Cabin on the Hill," as being one of the finest and best-loved songs written over the past 50 years.

It stands in outstanding company in the book with "Coal Miner's Daughter" by Loretta Lynn; "Daddy and Home" by Elsie McWilliams and Jimmie Rodgers; "Detroit City" by Danny Dill and Mel Tillis; "Take me Home, Country Roads" by Danoff, Danoff and John Denver; and "That Silver-Haired Daddy of Mine" by Gene Autry and Jimmy Long.

Bolivar Lee Shook was a warm, friendly and sensitive individual, possessing an unusual talent for imagination and creativity. It is ironic that, by today's standards, he remained poor throughout his life. Notwithstanding, he was possessed with a capability that with proper direction could have made him a millionaire.

But, hark, money isn't everything. In my imagination I can now see my old friend with a subtle smile over his face, born of a deep feeling of satisfaction engendered by the recompense of worthwhile accomplishments and the critical acclaim of one's fellows, and I can hear the familiarly husky voice singing the doleful lament of his one great masterpiece:

"There's a happy childhood home in the memory I can see

Standing out upon the hill 'neath the shadow of the tree

If I only had my way, it would give my heart a thrill

Just to simply wander back to the cabin on the hill.

"Oh, I want to wander back to the cabin on the hill

'Neath the shadow of the tree, I would like to longer still

Just to be with those who love, joy my heart would overflow

And I want to wander back to the cabin on the hill.

"But the saddest of it all, I can never more return

To the happy childhood home, matters not how much I yearn

If I only had my way, it would give my heart a thrill

provide matching funds from its general fund.

In order to receive the federal assistance, the project must be completed by Aug. 31. However, Mayor Crabb said the fire department should be able to receive delivery of the pagers within four to six weeks of the date of order. It is hoped the pagers can be in operation before the end of April.

It was pointed out that the pagers will benefit the county as well as the city.

"The Booneville Fire Department provides fire protection to the City of Booneville and works in conjunction with volunteers in the five fire districts of Prentiss County to provide fire protection to the overall county population," the mayor said. "The City of Booneville is on a 24-hour alert to provide manpower and equipment to fight fires within any of the five fire districts."

The Booneville Fire Department currently has five American LaFrance pumps in operation. Two are rated at 1,200 gals. per min.; one at 750 gals. per min.; and two at 500 gals. per min.

One quick response truck, rated at 250 gals. per min., is also located at the Booneville

Fire Department. It is used primarily to respond to fires outside the city limits in an effort to keep the blaze under control until a county tank truck manned by county volunteer firemen can respond to the scene.

BIBLE QUESTION BOX

QUESTION: Mr. Hogland, I like to study Revelation, especially to read about the battle of Armageddon, when do you think this battle will take place?

WARD HOGLAND

ANSWER: I like to study Revelation also, but may I suggest that you also study the plan of salvation as given in Mk 16:15, 16; Matt. 28: 18-19 and Acts of the apostles. In Rev. 16:12 we read of this battle. The word "Armageddon" is used only one time in the Bible and is derived from the Hebrew word "Har megiddo" which means mountain of megiddo. This takes us back to the days of Deborah and Berek and the time they defeated Sisera (1 Sam 31). The word Armageddon is used about the same way we use the word Waterloo, it signifies defeat. Early Christians were in the throes of great persecution and the Lord assures them of a great victory. The battle will never be literally fought. It is a symbolical method of revealing God's ultimate victory over Satan. Today Christians are fighting the forces of Satan and you may be assured there will be a great victory. Remember the book of Revelation is filled with signs and symbols.

At Hill's Chapel

Great Balloon Race Starts Monday

The Great Balloon Race begins Monday at Hill's Chapel Attendance Center.

That's when Hill's Chapel students in grades 1-6 plan to release approximately 400 helium-filled balloons as part of the nationwide Writing Pals Balloon Contest sponsored by the Weekly Reader, the classroom newspaper.

Principal Cayce DePoyster said that a message attached to each balloon explains the project and asks that the finder return it to the Hill's Chapel Attendance Center.

The Weekly Reader will present a $500 prize to the school that with the balloon that travels the farthest distance. One hundred runner-up prizes will also be awarded.

Since the annual balloon launch began, the Weekly

Reader has furnished more than a million free balloons to schools participating in the Writing Pals program, a pen pal program in which classes across the country are paired.

The balloon launch is the climax of a year-long participation in Writing Pals by the fifth grade class of Hill's Chapel. The goal of the program is to motivate children to write to and become familiar with students in other parts of the country.

Hill's Chapel fifth graders have already written letters to other fifth graders in Greentown, Ohio, and Waterford, N.Y. The letters discussed such things as the weather, football, baseball, fights, fashions, girl friends, boy friends, schools, the Erie Canal, games, holidays, TV shows, ambitions, and songs.

The Hill's Chapel students were asked such questions as: What do you do with a deer after you kill it? Do you live in the Delta?

In return, they received instruction on how to make snowballs and what to do with them.

"These fifth graders are looking forward to next year and another group of pen pals," DePoyster said.

Pimiento Contracts Being Awarded

Contracts are being offered again this year to people in Prentiss County who would like to grow pimiento pepper, according to W.H. Haden, local Extension county agent.

Pomona Products Company of Griffin, Ga., will again offer contracts that guarantee the producer a market and a price. Haden said. The receiving station will continue at Cairo.

The contract price in 1981 will be $287.50 per ton. Plants will be $8 per thousand and 6,000 are required to set one acre, the Haden said.

Anyone interested in growing pimiento pepper should visit the county agent's office or contact R.L. Lindsey of the East Prentiss Community.

Geddie Is Named New Assistant DA

A new assistant District Attorney is now working in Prentiss and the other six counties comprising the First Judicial District, according to First Judicial District Attorney John R. Young.

On March 1, Rowland H. Geddie Jr. joined Paul Funderburk, Richard Bowen and James Johnston as assistants in Young's office.

As District Attorney, Young and his staff are charged with investigating and prosecuting felony charges throughout the seven county area of Northeast Mississippi.

"A felony," Young said, "is a serious crime, one for which a term of years in the state penitentiary may be imposed."

Geddie, born in Charlotte, N.C., attended the University of Alabama, receiving his degree in commerce and business administration. He moved to Tupelo in 1957, where he served as president and general manager of McCaughy's Department Stores for several years.

While in retail management, Geddie served as an officer with several merchants', civic, and scouting organizations. He helped to organize the Tupelo Community Theatre and served as treasurer for its first six years.

A licensed pilot, Geddie has also served as president of the Tupelo Flying Club.

He received his law degree from the University of Mississippi, where he was a member of the Mississippi Law Journal staff, was elected to Phi Delta Phi legal fraternity, and to Phi Kappa Phi academic honorary fraternity.

Legislative Report

By Billy McCoy

Representative District III
Prentiss And Alcorn Counties

It was somewhat ironic. At the time the House of Representatives was considering the Highways bill, which sought to limit State Aid Road Funds to the counties and which provides that the State Highway Department may abandon certain Highways back to the counties, it was also the same week another bill passed concerning reappraisal of property.

This is but another in a long series of efforts by some members of the legislature to shift the cost of certain essential services back to local government. Through the reappraisal bill of 1980 and through additional bills, such as the one at last week, they are providing local government with the means to secure the funds necessary to provide these services.

Of course, state government has many sources from which it may obtain its needed revenue, such as income tax, tobacco tax, alcohol tax, sales tax, severance tax, and others. County government, on the other hand, has one primary source—property tax.

Therefore, when local government has to assume more of the cost of an essential service, the property must bear the burden of raising the needed dollars.

In the reappraisal bill of 1980 and also in the recently passed bill, the concept of assessing different classes of property at different rates has not been allowed. I believe a majority of the legislature would support the concept of classification if given an opportunity.

So far this idea has not been allowed out of committee in a separate bill and parliamentary maneuvers have kept it from being presented in amendments to the big reappraisal bills.

This simply means we are moving closer and closer to the time when all counties must face the reappraisal of properties and that, without classification, the burden of taxation will shift from utilities, big business, and automobiles over to the homeowner and landowner.

The Highways bill presents the possibility of the counties paying for a much larger share of the cost of their State aid and feeder roads. The reappraisal bill allows the counties to levy several more mills to pay for the cost of reappraisal and for other purposes. Thus we can readily see that these two bills will increase the tax burden for the homeowner and landowner.

I do not disagree with the concept that local government should pay a larger share of the services its citizens demand, but I do not agree that we should mold our laws in such a manner as to squeeze all the additional cost from our homes and farms. We must allow access to other sources of revenue.

I believe that as more and more counties reappraise according to our present laws and in accordance with State Tax Commission guidelines, more and more will be heard concerning the need for farms and homes to be assessed at different rates from automobiles, utilities, and commercial property.

Clay county recently reappraised under these guidelines. The taxes on one large gas pipeline went down over $100,000. As this gas companies taxes went down the taxes on homes and farms went up. I simply do not believe the citizens of Mississippi will allow this to happen statewide and not protest in noticeable form to their public officials.

Eyes On Mississippi

Newman More Powerful Than Governor

By BILL MINOR
Columnist

JACKSON, Miss.—The 413,620 Mississippians who voted in the 1979 governor's race for William Winter may have thought they were selecting the most powerful public official in the state.

What they didn't know is that only 3,147 persons who voted for Clarence Benton "Buddie" Newman as state representative from a small, rural legislative district tucked away in the meander of the Mississippi River were electing the man who would actually be more powerful than the governor.

Buddie Newman is not only the representative of House district 55 consisting of tiny Issaquena, Sharkey and the northern part of Warren counties, he is the Speaker of the Mississippi House, a job that has been controlled by river county lawmakers for the last half century.

The legislative branch of Mississippi's government has traditionally been the dominant branch, due considerably to the powers given it under the state's 1890 constitution. Moreso, the center of the legislative power in the last 40 years has shifted into the hands of the Speaker of the House.

Now, Buddie Newman, who grabbed the speakership in something of a palace coup in 1974, is possibly the shrewdest and most powerful operative to hold the post. What's more, he knows it and at times flaunts it.

Newman studied for the job at the elbow of the late Speaker Walter Sillers, the personification of the Bourbon gentry which came forward after the Civil War to wrest the state back from the carpetbaggers and blacks who were suddenly thrust into power during Reconstruction.

Newman is not the well-educated, patrician Delta plantation-statesman of the Sillers mold. But Newman learned well from Sillers how to use the tools of power in the House, and he has added some of his own that Sillers never knew about.

For instance, Sillers never had any blacks to deal with. Newman, while deeply involved in some of the worst racist strategies of the 1950's and 1960's, has cleverly brought some black lawmakers into his team, and neutralized the others by tossing out a few goodies.

Remarkably, Newman is the only politician left from the inner circle (sometimes called the Kitchen Cabinet) of legislators Ross Barnett had around him during the Ole Miss-James Meredith crisis which brought Mississippi very close to insurrection against the United States government.

Some who were present in the governor's mansion on the night of Sept. 30, 1962 when the riot broke out on the Ole Miss campus after federal marshals arrived, say Newman was one of the strongest voices around Barnett who advocated further defiance of the federal government.

Newman's climb to power has been methodical and coolly calculated, seizing on opportunities when they came along and moving quickly, as he did in 1974 when Speaker John Junkin became ill to create a new job of Speaker pro tem and delivering a fait accompli before Junkin could name another choice.

He handled effectively the key job as chairman of the House Ways and Means committee, even though lacking in understanding of complicated tax matters, but finding the right lieutenants who could carry the ball for him. Much to his embarrassment, it was reported in public print after his election as Speaker pro tem that Newman had failed to file a state income tax return for three years during the latter 1960's while he was chairman of the tax-writing Ways and Means committee.

For more than 25 years, Newman has been on the payroll of Southern Natural Gas Co., a gas transmission company which basically pipes natural gas through Mississippi, but maintains some pumping facilities and underground storage of gas in the state.

Newman has said he was paid to do "public relations" for the gas transmission company, although he mostly has divided his time for years between running his cotton and soybean farm at Valley Park, and the legislature.

On some occasions, Newman has been known to have gone before the State Tax Commission in behalf of giving Southern Natural's a favorable property tax assessment in Mississippi. Several years ago, he had a major role in the legislature passing a bill providing for underground storage of natural gas, with the provision that it not be subject to property taxation while in storage.

Newman has consistently discounted the appearance of a conflict of interest between his retainer from the gas transmission company and his powerful position in the legislature.

Significantly, the president of Southern Natural Gas bragged in testimony before a state regulatory body in Alaska in 1978 that the company had "friends" in Southern legislatures who "know how to get what we want."

Newman, unchallenged for the speakership last year despite the fact almost 50 percent of the House was made up of newcomers, has cleverly eliminated any organized opposition from the younger members.

Strangely, there is no more Rebel group, or Young Turks to challenge the Old Guard as there was even in the days of the mighty Sillers.

The current House contains about 40 of the brightest, new people ever to come into the legislature, who were thought initially to also be among the most independent lawmakers in years. So far they have not been able to stage any major uprising against Newman's absolute control, apparently because they have no leader.

How Newman exercises his control is an art in itself. For instance, Newman doesn't like making public records public, but he didn't have to lift a hand to see that the Public Records Bill died a quiet death on the House calendar awhile back when the House adjourned on a deadline night.

It was not happenstance that Newman earlier that day had told somebody the House would adjourn at 7 p.m. It did at 6:55 p.m. with Public Records several notches down the calendar.

County Roads—An Expensive Habit

Management of county road programs in Mississippi, with few exceptions, is a five-way proposition, with each supervisor having his own labor force, equipment budget, and method of building and maintaining roads in his district.

This results in over 400 county roads departments commanding approximately 60 percent of each county's revenue—excluding schools.

A study conducted in the early 1970's for the state Legislature concluded, "Counties with central control procedures, wherein the five districts are combined into one, tend to reduce the inefficiency, illegality, and other undesirable elements that thrive in other counties." This same investigative committee reported losses of "millions of dollars" due to inefficient management of the county roads systems operating under the beat system.

A Mississippi Economic Council study—conducted at the same time as the legislative investigation—revealed that among the states, an average of 17.5 percent of all highway user taxes was used for county roads purposes.

In Mississippi, 35 percent of these revenues was used for county roads purposes—twice the national average.

Under a county unit system—where all county road work is administered on a countywide basis—management of county roads would mean more efficient use of tax dollars while improving the administration and maintenance of county road programs. And, the MEC recommends that the Legislature require consolidation of all county and road activities under the county unit plan.

Senate Report

By Bill May

Senator District 5

Itawamba, Prentiss and Tishomingo

When the Senate returned to work this past Monday, we were faced with over 90 general House bills to be debated and acted on by the full Senate before the deadline for final passage of this type bill on Thursday, March 12.

Most of these bills merely make amendments or changes in existing statutes already on the statute books, and are what might be called "house-keeping legislation." They range in scope from bills to raise the maximum allowable interest rate of bonds issued by various agencies and political subdivisions of the state to bills dealing with the probation and parole laws of criminals sentenced to the state penitentiary.

A few of the actions taken this week which might be of interest to the general public are as follows:

DUI and DWI Laws: House Bill No. 743 was passed which will tighten up the law for driving while intoxicated or under the influence of alcohol. The present law provides that when a person is arrested and charged with driving while under the influence, and a test is taken that shows a blood alcohol content of .10, the person is charged with driving while under the influence (DUI), for which he would be subject only to paying a fine. If the test shows a blood alcohol content of .15, the person may be charged with driving while intoxicated (DWI), and is subject to a fine, jail sentence and the loss of driver's license for one year.

The new law would abolish the .15 test and, in effect, make one test of .10 which would support the charge of DUI, and on the second offense would call for the suspension of the person's driver's license for one year.

Housing Bill: Another bill which passed the Senate and has gone to the House is a bill to allow the Mississippi Housing Corporation established by the 1980 Legislature to issue $200 million in new bonds for lower interest home loans in the state.

This new money would become available for loans under practically the same conditions as the $150 million of loans to home builders last year; however, some changes have been made to conform to the change mandated by federal regulations.

Highway Bill: The House passed a greatly watered-down version of the Governor's variable gasoline or fuel tax. This bill is loaded down with amendments and is now in both the Highways and Transportation and Finance Committees of the Senate.

Yellow Creek State Inland Port: One bill of particular interest to the Yellow Creek State Inland Port is Senate Bill No. 3011. When this bill reached the Senate floor, I offered an amendment for an additional appropriation of $23,400 for the purpose of defraying the costs of acquisition, moving and renovation of a crane to be used there at the port. After showing the full Senate that this appropriation would not come out of the General Fund, and that there were sufficient monies in a Special State Port Fund (No. 3413), the Senate unanimously passed this amendment.

Minimum Education Program: Back in 1953, during an extraordinary session, an act was passed by the legislature, under the leadership of Gov. Hugh White, which would establish a minimum program of education for all children legally enrolled in public schools of Mississippi in grades 1 through 12 and would provide an equitable plan for the financial support thereof.

That was 28 years ago, and here we are in 1981, with that same minimum foundation program for the education of the young people of this state.

Back in 1953, the salary for a teacher holding an A certificate was $2,000. In the school year 1980-81, the salary scale for a teacher with no experience holding an A certificate was $9,600 per year. It has been stated in a recent study committee on education that it appeared a duty had been served with simply raising the teachers' salaries.

Education is a many-faceted machine. It not only deals with teachers; it deals with children, it deals with administrators, it deals with facilities. None of the above can function properly without the other. And, without money—a lot of money—none can function, period.

The minimum foundation program established in 1953 met a need, and, just as our economy has drastically changed, so have the educational demands of our young people changed. A revamping of the original program is imperative in order to move forward in the field of education.

The special task force that studied public education in Mississippi last summer made several recommendations, among them: compulsory school attendance; public kindergartens; a revised school funding program; appointed school superintendents; and a state lay board of education. To these, I would add the unification of school laws.

These measures all died before getting a vote. It was the general consensus of the legislature that an overhaul of the minimum foundation program is essential, but that the suggestions of the special task force were overly ambitious and would tend to throw an already strained budget situation into an impossible strait.

It was also felt that this whole area should not be approached and accomplished suddenly—that it should be moved into moderately and with caution, so that a firm, positive base for a new educational structure of the state could be achieved—a base which could carry our state forward and result in Mississippi being a leader in the field of education.

Legislative Letter

By Tim Ford

Representative District 18

Lee and Prentiss Counties

This next week the House will take up the justice court judge situation.

Earlier this year, the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals ruled unconstitutional the fee system by which the lay judges are compensated coupled with the "forum shopping" aspect in criminal cases. This allowed creditors to shop around for a judge who ruled favorably to their situation.

A special House subcommittee, of which I was a member, has been studying the problem over the last five weeks, and is ready to make its report to the full House this week. The following major recommendations will be made:

To get away from the "forum shopping" aspect, the present five justice court judges will have countywide jurisdiction, and will be assigned cases on a rotating basis—every fifth case. All actions, civil and criminal, will be assigned to the judges on an equal basis. On Oct. 1, 1982, the judges should go to a salary system.

Although the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals did not rule the fee system unconstitutional as it stands alone, the Attorney General's office has speculated that such a ruling is only a matter of time. From 1982 until 1984 the judges will be part-time and will be paid by the county from funds generated through fees collected on cases filed.

In 1984 the number of judges will be reduced to two (the constitution requires at least two) elected from the county-at-large, and the position will be full time. Emphasis was placed on making these judges more available to the public.

If a county has a population of over 40,000 from the last census figures, the county may have an additional judge. In this circumstance, the board of supervisors would have to draw up three districts within the county from which the candidates would run for office.

Additional educational requirements have been imposed, but the committee stopped short of recommending a licensed attorney for the position, based on hearings and testimony from different segments of the state at large, including retail merchants and the State Bar Association.

It was the feeling of the committee that a court should be maintained for small claims in which a person could come without an attorney. Jurisdictional amounts were discussed and in all probability will be increased to $1,000. The present amount is limited to $500.

As I pointed out, this is only the recommendation of the special subcommittee. The full House of Representatives must vote on it, at which time amendments or deletions may be offered.

If the bill gains House approval, then it is sent to the Senate for consideration.

Ms. Green also served as installing officer and, assisted by officers and other members, initiated Molly Ethridge into the Gamma Conclave.

UDC Club Meets At Allen Library

Mrs. John Curlee and Mrs. Allie Miller Isbell were the hostesses for the March meeting of the D.T. Beall Chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

Members assembled in the Marion W. Smith Room of the George E. Allen Library for the program. A dessert and coffee were served.

The club welcomed Mrs. Kathryn Houston, who was recently reinstated as a member.

Mrs. Doug Holland presented a program on the Battle of Fredericksburg. Fredericksburg, located on the Rappahannock River, was once a bustling port for seagoing ships, Mrs. Holland said. By the 1850's, the population of 5,000 was concerned mainly with agriculture and related commerce; no major industry or military base was located nearby.

Many southern officers stayed at the Planters' Hotel as they traveled through Fredericksburg to their homes, she said. It was not long before they would have to choose between loyalty to their native states or their oath of office to the army.

If the quiet little city had not lain midway between Washington and Richmond, it might have escaped destruction in one of the bloodiest battles in the Civil War, Mrs. Holland said.

The army of Northern Virginia was led by Robert E. Lee and General George McClellan commanded the army of the Potomac.

Only women, children and men too old to fight remained in Fredericksburg, she said. They were given orders by the Federals to evacuate or be shelled. Many had no place to go or shelter from the elements in cold November and December.

The fighting continued for sometime. In mid-December, the outnumbered army of Northern Virginia had delivered a stunning defeat to the army of Potomac, Mrs. Holland said. Union forces suffered casualties of 12,653 killed, wounded or missing. Confederate losses numbered 5,309.

Lee knew the Northern Army could replace its losses without strain, but the Confederate losses would not be so easy to replace, she said.

The city itself was practically destroyed. Only the courthouse and the spires of the churches remained standing.

The battle itself accomplished nothing in Lee's opinion, Mrs. Holland said. It was a blunder of the worst kind in the eyes of the North, she said.

Did you hear who answered roll call Sunday night? "Mr. Songster!" He got out of the hospital Thursday and, as of today, he is doing real good.

I know "Mrs. Songster," is really proud to have him feeling better, their daughter, Doris, from Missouri has been here for two weeks.

We heard this weekend that "Walking Cane," has been on the sick list. I hope he is improving by now.

We would like to wish the "Tree Climber," Happy Birthday on Saturday, hope you have a nice day.

Hope all of you are getting ready for the Jamboree, April 11-12. Please get your gifts in a quick as possible. Tickets are ready, so do your part. We need your help.

Some of us rushed the season last week and went camping. The "Brass Monkey," "Fig Leaf," "Upholstrey Man," "Tweety Bird," and "Chipmonk," went over in Alabama. They had a very good time.

The "Yo Yo," and I went up to the back waters Wednesday. We got in some fishing and relaxing. The "Carpenter Man," and "Lady" came up Thursday night. The "Little Rascal," and the "Carpenter Boy," visited with us on Thursday and we had a fish fry. But we were ready to come home and get back in the groove.

We have heard that the "Wil-A-Way" has been on the sick list. Hope he is improving by now.

Hope to see each of you at the business meeting. Take care of yourselves; go to the church of your choice, but go.

HEALTH TIPS Co-Ordination of Body Is God's Gift

By Dr. Michael J. Ream

The human body is an example of perfect timing and co-ordination. No machine or instrument of earth is so complicated or so perfectly timed and co-ordinated as the human body. Like any great factory the human body must have a controlling center—the brain is that center.

If we eat a meal the brain immediately sets up muscular, as well as glandular action, which secretes fluids and chemicals necessary for assimilation. The brain controls these activities over the nerve system, which is similar to a great telephone system only far more complicated. If we go out into the cold, the brain controls the heat of the body. The brain is always balancing the body chemically and in other ways, compensating for changes due to outside influences.

A body becomes sick or out of balance due to an interference with the nerve system. If there is an interference or pressure upon nerves the brain does not have complete control over the body. An organ or gland gets out of time, which results in inco-ordination all down the line. The stomach may secrete too much of one chemical and not enough of another, resulting in indigestion, gas formation causing pain, intestinal trouble and many other ailments all because of nerve interference.

The only place this interference can occur is in the spine, where nerves make exit between spinal segments. If these segments become slightly misplaced, due to falls and strains, pressure is produced on nerves—result—bodily incoordination and varied ailments. The chiropractor scientifically locates nerve interference and corrects spinal misplacements, restoring co-ordination between brain and body.

A body free of nerve interference, or nerve pressure, is a healthy body.

(One of a series of articles published in the public interest to explain and illustrate the practice of scientific Chiropractic, written by Dr. Michael J. Ream whose office is located at 208 First Street, Booneville, MS. Tel. 728-8456.)

ASCS Report

By C.E. CALVERT
County Executive Director

ASCS Issues Results OF ACP Study

The results of an Agricultural Conservation Program study were issued recently by USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. The report is the first comprehensive evaluation of the history of the 47-year-old ACP.

Primarily focusing on identifying ways to increase the amount of soil and water saved through the program, phase I of the survey included 61,000 ACP practices in 171 counties and 46 States. Many cost-shared erosion control practices were found to be installed on lands suffering relatively low rates of erosion, according to the report. More than 52 percent of the sample practices were installed on lands eroding at rates of less than five tons per acre annually.

Effective targeting of erosion control funds according to the potential for erosion reduction could more than triple the amount of soil saved through the program. Achieving these improvements hinges on the willingness of farmers with severe erosion problems to participate in the program.

The report recommended that assistance for water conservation practices be targeted at irrigated lands where the potential for conserving water is greatest. ASCS found that the majority of the water conservation practices analyzed were installed on lands receiving low rates of water application prior to assistance.

The study showed that assistance for water impoundment reservoirs should be tailored to fit the particular type and extent of problems to be solved.

Results of the study also revealed that over 65 percent of all cost-shared practices were installed on farms of 300 acres or less. Livestock operators or combination livestock and grain farms accounted for more than 67 percent of all farms in the study.

Although cost-share levels on practices ranged from nearly zero to more than 90 percent, the majority fell within the 40-50 percent range. Almost 70 percent of all practices studied involved cost-sharing at levels of 50 percent or less, and nearly 99 percent were cost-shared at levels of less than 80 percent of their installation costs.

ASCS Offers
Pre-Measurement Service
Pre-measurement and other producer services are available from the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service to help farmers obtain accurate crop and land use acreages.

At the request of the producer, ASCS will stake and measure acreages before crop planting time. To be certain of compliance, farmers are required to plant within the stakes that are placed when the land is measured. After planting, they are required to report their crop acreages to ASCS. We will accept measurement service requests at any time. The service is offered for a nominal fee by ASCS and includes measuring, referencing and marking out fields with stakes prior to planting.

ASCS producer services include measuring total cropland, field or sub-divisions to be planted and land areas for other purposes. Fees vary, based on the type of service rendered.

The importance of accurate certification cannot be over emphasized. The measured acreage is guaranteed and producers who take advantage of the service will avoid unnecessary worry about the loss of 1981 farm program benefits.

To request measurement services or to get additional information on these services, call or visit the local ASCS office at 105 College Street, or Telephone 728-3541.

Members of the Atlanta Fund Raising Committee met with Miss Shelia Hastings in her home last Wednesday night, March 11, to discuss further plans for the fund raising campaign. As a result of the meeting, Sunday, March 22, has been designated the deadline for this particular project and as a final big effort the committee agreed to sponsor a dinner Saturday evening, March 21, at the East Side Community Center at 6 p.m.

The Rev. James L. Triplett is scheduled to speak from the theme: "The Child You Save May Be Your Own." Those present for this meeting were: Mrs. Sally Gardner, The Rev. Lewis Ragins, Mrs. Luzene Triplett, Mary Betts, Kathy Triplett, John L. Hooper Jr. and Edgar L. Gardner.

We welcome home once again from the state of Alaska, Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy (Pete) Gardner who arrived in the community last Thursday. They are visiting in the home of his mother, Mrs. Lugene Gardner.

Freedom from school for the spring holidays was enjoyed by the area youngsters in various ways this past week mostly kite flying, riding bikes and basketball. But there were quite a few gardening, working in the yards and some washing windows. Deidra Calomese spent the week in Illinois visiting with relatives there. Mrs. Earlene Pams and her family visited with her parents in Meridian, Miss. Both returned on Sunday.

Plans for the Easter services are underway at Spring Hill and Miss Cassandra Gardner is once again in charge of programs and activities. Your continued support and cooperation is requested.

The first seminar of the year sponsored by the Planning Board of area churches will be held at Spring Hill M.B. Church on Saturday morning, March 28, at 10 a.m. The public is invited to attend.

In response to an invitation from the pastor, the Rev. Lewis Ragins, and members of the Pleasant Grove M.B. Church of New Albany, the pastor of Spring Hill and senior choir members will worship with them there Sunday afternoon, March 22, in a special program. This invitation is also extended to community members who wish to attend.

Our prayers continue for the sick and the shutin, especially for Mrs. Jewel Hatfield who is a patient in the local hospital's CC Unit and reported to be in critical condition. Mrs. Hatfield is an LPN on staff at the hospital. She is a very capable OB nurse, a wonderful person and a dear friend. Our prayers are as one with the family for her complete recovery.

Also, for Jody Miller and Troy McGaha who are also patients of the hospital, but reported to be greatly improved. We are happy to report that Mrs. Glenda Williams and Alfred Pierce spent only a brief period as patients. We are thankful that they are home and much improved.

Mrs. Myrtle Crockett is also home from the Tupelo hospital and reported to be in good condition.

PEGGY LINDA SHINAULT

Peggy is one of nine children born to the Rev. Willie Shinault and the late Mrs. Ida Shinault. She is 28 years of age and truly one of God's special and beautiful people.

We could endlessly extoll her many virtues and the qualities of character that make her the lovely person that she is, but we would still fail to acquaint you with the real Peggy, for in every sense of the word she is a unique individual. And yet for all of her many and varied assets there is something missing.

In all of her 28 years, Peggy has only learned to speak five words. They are: "Mama," "Papa," "Martha," "Hi," and "Bye." She has been labeled by many people as a "deaf-mute," but, by her own intelligence and wit, she has proven this to be untrue.

As a child she learned the words "Mama," "Papa" and "Martha." There seemed to always be a special bond between Martha and Peggy; a closeness that could be clearly seen when they were youngsters. Peggy attended the local school until her ninth year and was a better than average student. Her inability to speak did in no way limit her ability to communicate with others or restrict her involvement in school activities.

During her ninth year, the schools were integrated and Peggy was placed in a special education class but was later dismissed from the class when tests determined that her intelligence was above the level required for students in that particular class.

She was not daunted by this turn of events, for she later enrolled in the Fosters' School of Cosmetology at Ripley, Miss. and emerged from there a competent, licensed beautician with a bevy of customers just waiting for her to set up shop. She enrolled in a speech therapy class at the Rehabilitation Center in Tupelo and was making great progress, but this was interrupted when her speech therapist was transferred to another state. "Hi" and "Bye" became her two favorite words at this time.

She leads a full, happy life. She has a great love for people and for children and it is returned to her in full measure by all who know her. Her faith in God has never been publicly declared, but we know that she is a deeply religious person by her activities within the church. When asked to perform a particular duty she immediately responds. On several occasions she has served as usher during special programs at Spring Hill.

She collects salt and pepper shakers as a hobby and at last count she owns a total of 210 different sets. She also has her own greenhouse with a variety of plants. This hobby alone has drawn the attention of many and won for her the admiration and great respect of her family and friends for her creative ability and determination to have a happy normal life.

She is also an employee of Blue Bell Inc. here in the city, a position that she has held for seven years. Because of her handicap, many doors have been closed to her, but she has not allowed this to in any way hinder her pursuit of a happy life.

If she would speak, I feel she too would say, "when one door of happiness closes, another opens. I do not spend my time in self-pity, longing and looking at the closed door, but instead I remain alert and ready for the next one that has been opened for me."

Thought for today: The Lord Is My Shepherd; I Shall Not Want, Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord forever. Till Next Week..

County Agent's Report

By W.H. HADEN

Selling Vs. Marketing

Do you sell or market your crops?

When you sell, you simple receive a price for whatever quality of crop that you can most easily produce, at whatever time it is ready for delivery and at whatever place is convenient. And, you receive whatever price is offered, which is usually lowest at harvest.

On the other hand, when you market you sell for the highest profit potential at the most profitable location. Marketing gives you some control over prices and profits.

Marketing can't guarantee that you will always get the price you want or even that you will always make a profit. But by using the futures market, with soybeans for example, you can choose from a wide range of prices over a long period rather than simply take whatever cash price you can get.

Marketing takes more planning than selling. You will need to develop a marketing plan to reach your objectives. If your marketing goal is to reduce risk by locking in an acceptable price, then your chances of success are very good.

Conserve Moisture

The next couple of months are usually a period of fairly high rainfall and low soil moisture loss. We're going to need all the moisture we can get to have the soil completely charged by planting.

I keep hearing that we're in for another dry summer. I don't know if this is going to happen or not, but we almost always lose moisture faster than we get it from May through October.

Our production programs should allow maximum moisture intake until the soil is fully charged. This means shallow seedbed preparation, good stands, and crops free of weeds, insect and disease. Cultivate shallowly and only when needed to control weeds and break crusts.

Let's emphasize saving moisture this spring so our crops will have a better chance to have moisture when they really need it this summer.

Performs With Honor Band

Liz Ferrell of Booneville recently took part in a concert at Delta State University of the Mississippi Honor Band and Choir, which are composed of top high school musicians and singers from throughout the state.

The members of the honor groups were selected by the DSU music faculty and rehearsed for three days on the campus under nationally known clinicians.

Dr. B.R. Henson, choral director at Sam Houston State University in Huntsville, Texas, rehearsed and conducted the Honor Choir.

Dr. W. Francis McBeth rehearsed and conducted the Honor Band. He is the resident composer and chairman of the Theory-Composition Department at Ouachita University in Arkansas.

The Honor Band and Choir Program is made possible through assistance from the Mississippi Arts Commission and the National Endowment for the Arts in Washington, D.C.

Mississippi ETV Wins Broadcast Award

The Mississippi Center for Educational Television was one of 12 recipients of the 1979-80 Alfred I. duPont-Columbia University Awards in Broadcast Journalism for its production, "William Faulkner: A Life on Paper."

The award was presented recently in a nationally televised program with Walter Cronkite, Hugh Downs, Jessica Savitch, Jim Lehrer and George Plimpton as presenters.

Mississippi ETV was cited by the duPont jurors: "To capture the intensely private life of a great writer is a task that filmmakers have frequently set themselves and rarely accomplished. An outstanding exception was 'William Faulkner: A Life on Paper.'"

The duPont award-winners were selected from more than 1,000 submissions by radio and television stations across the nation by Columbia's Graduate School of Journalism, sponsors of the award. The school also administers the Pulitzer Prizes and the National Magazine Awards.

Among the other winners of the duPont Awards were ABC-TV for "The Iran Crisis: America Held Hostage-Nightline"; Ed Bradley and CBS-TV for "CBS Reports: Blacks in America: With All Deliberate Speed?"; Roger Mudd and CBS-TV for "CBS Reports: Teddy"; and Reuben Frank and NBC-TV for "NBC White Paper: If Japan Can...Why Can't We?"

In addition to the 12 awards, 12 citations also were presented during the ceremonies. Mississippi ETV will air the awards program in April.

Since its premiere on public television in 1979,

"William Faulkner: A Life on Paper," narrated by Raymond Burr, has garnered a number of awards: the Corporation for Public Broadcasting award for the best cultural documentary of the year; a gold award from the International Film and TV Festival of New York; a gold plaque from the Chicago International Film Festival; a silver award from the Houston International Film Festival.

MAINTAINING YOUR MENTAL HEALTH

What Is Marriage Counseling?

From
TIMBER HILLS MENTAL HEALTH CENTER

A few years ago a national magazine did an article on quack marriage counselors. These quacks turned out to be an odd assortment of types. Some were obvious phonies, operating out of shabby store fronts, and wearing green turbans or purple Ben Casey smocks. Still others looked perfectly respectable. They had their offices in the best sections of town. They talked to their clients without the aid of whirling, flashing machines, crystal balls or incense burners.

But whatever their appearance or methods, the quacks had several things in common: which distinguished them from trained, qualified marriage counselors.

In the first place they considered themselves arbitrators between the warring couple. Like a referee in a ball game they decided who was right and who was wrong and advised their "clients" accordingly.

They also guaranteed speedy results after a certain number of sessions or after a certain sum of money was paid. Unlike dancing, golf or bridge lessons, however, the steps to a happy marriage cannot be taught in a ten-lesson course. The relationship between two people is much too complicated for that. You can teach a couple how to tango...but it's much harder and much more complex to help them to live together.

Many of these quacks did a booming business, because, strangely enough, they lived up to the image that the average person has of a marriage counselor. The word "counselor" itself conjures up the picture of a person who has somehow acquired the wisdom to tell others how to conduct their lives.

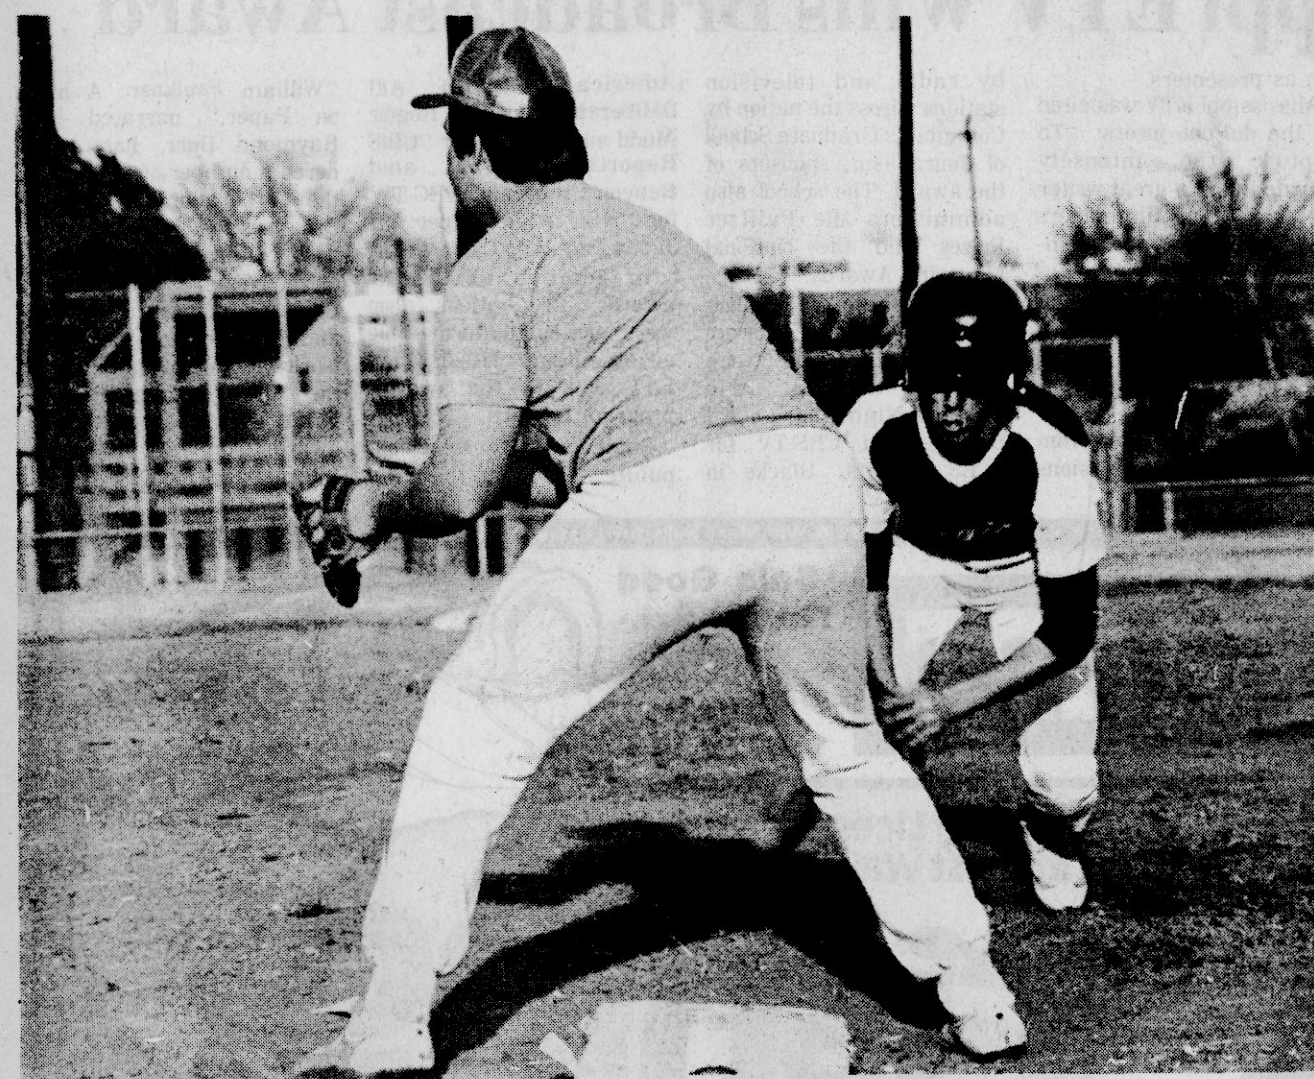

Couples who come to the mental health center often expect to hear an accurate assessment of their troubles, combined with specific advice on what to do to change the situation. They are usually surprised to find that the counselor will not be able to tell them who (if anyone) is to blame, what pat remedies are needed to make the marriage happier, and how long all this will take.

Trained, experienced marriage counselors know that people can follow even the best advice to the letter, and still have the same old problem in their marriage. They know that an artificial change in behavior won't last in the long run...the change must come from spontaneous feelings. Rules and regulations may even backfire, because the irritations and frustrations are still present.

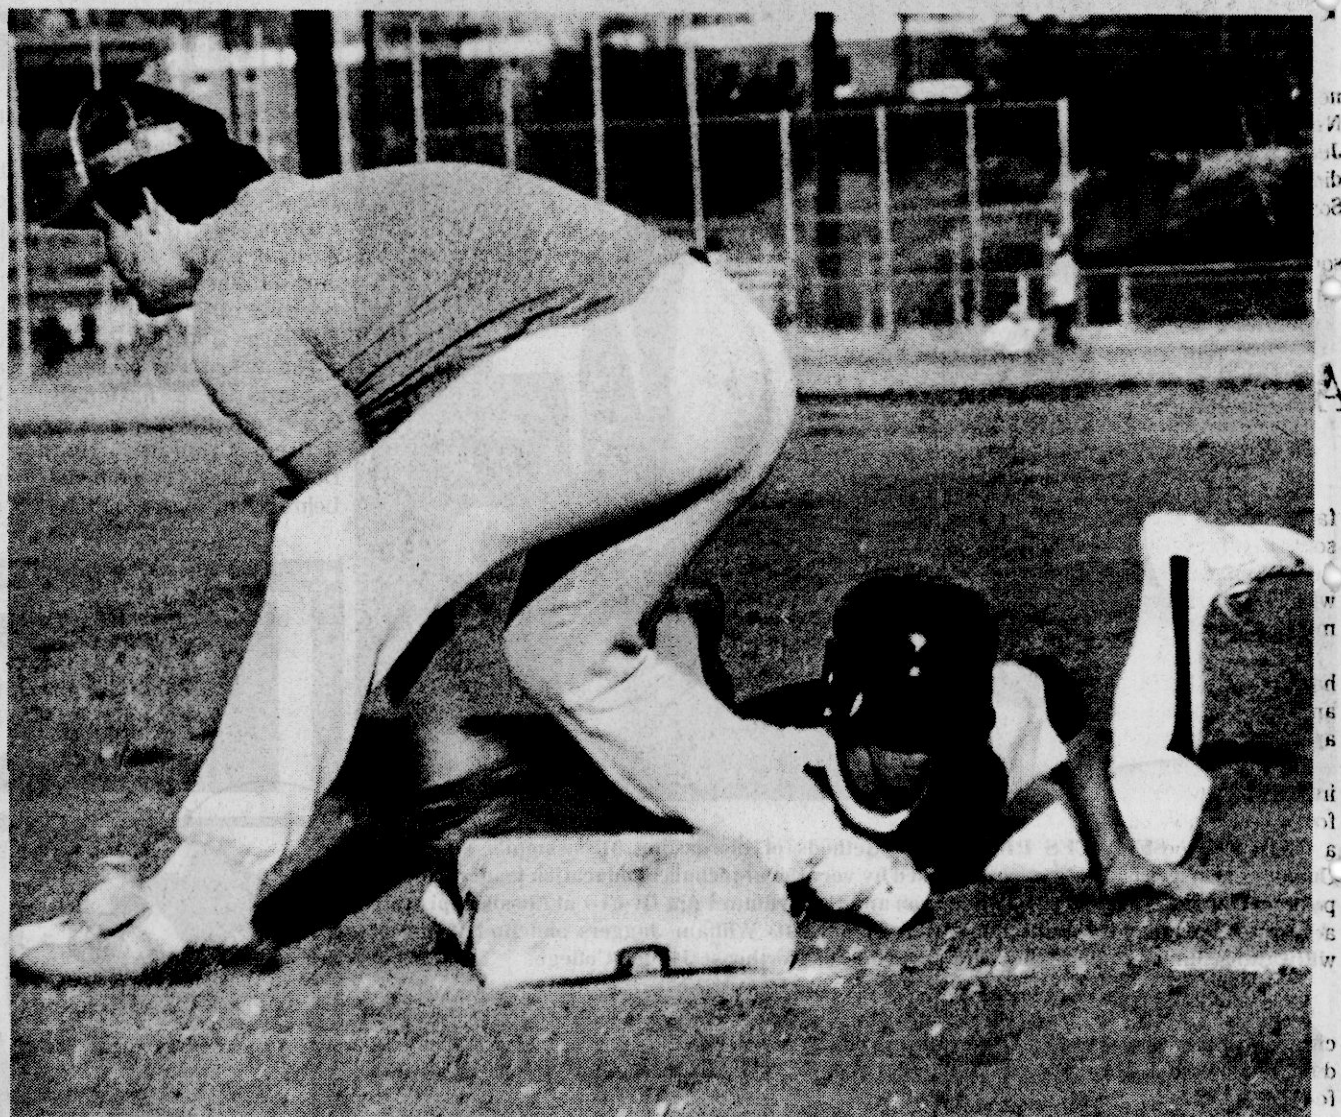

For instance, a wife who has been wildly extravagant can be told to be more economical. She might even put herself on a strict budget. But underneath she may feel deprived and unhappy enough to get back at her husband in other ways. She may start to nag him, or to refuse to keep house, or to overeat and get fat. The questions really is: why did she feel it necessary to spend all that money in the first place.

A husband who philanders or gambles can be told to cease and desist. Actually, he probably knew all along that gambling away the grocery money was wrong, and that carrying on with his wife's best friend was not the way to preserve a happy marriage. The real point is why was he doing these things? Does he really want to change, and if so, how can he go about it?

For information about services available at Timber Hills Mental Health Center phone 728-3174 or come by the offices on Highway 30 By-Pass in Booneville. After hours and on weekends phone 1-286-9209 toll free for emergency counseling services.

Noal Akins Named Tipoff Club Coach Of The Year

By LEE GENTRY
Sports Editor

Northeast Mississippi Junior College head basketball coach Noal Akins has been named Junior College Coach of the Year by the Babe McCarthy Tipoff Club at Mississippi State University and will be honored at the Annual Banquet set for April 7th.

The announcement was confirmed to the Banner-

Independent Monday by Larry Jones, president of the tipoff club.

Coach Akins, who just completed his second year as Northeast mentor, has an overall coaching record of 84 wins against 42 losses and at Northeast has compiled a 32-22 overall record.

His 1980-81 Tigers just completed an outstanding season this past year with an 18-9 overall mark and a first place finish in the North

Division while finishing second overall in the state.

The Tigers also earned a birth in this year's Region Seven Tournament at Paducah and was eliminated in semi-final action after winning their opening round action over Motlowe State.

Coach Akins has been around the winner's circle before. Prior to his coaching here at Northeast, the Tiger boss coached at Senatobia and then coached at Marshall Academy where he coached two undefeated championships.

Coach Akins said Monday that he was indeed honored to be selected Coach of the Year. "It's quite an honor," the Northeast mentor said. "The Banquet is an outstanding event held each year and I'm glad to be a part of it."

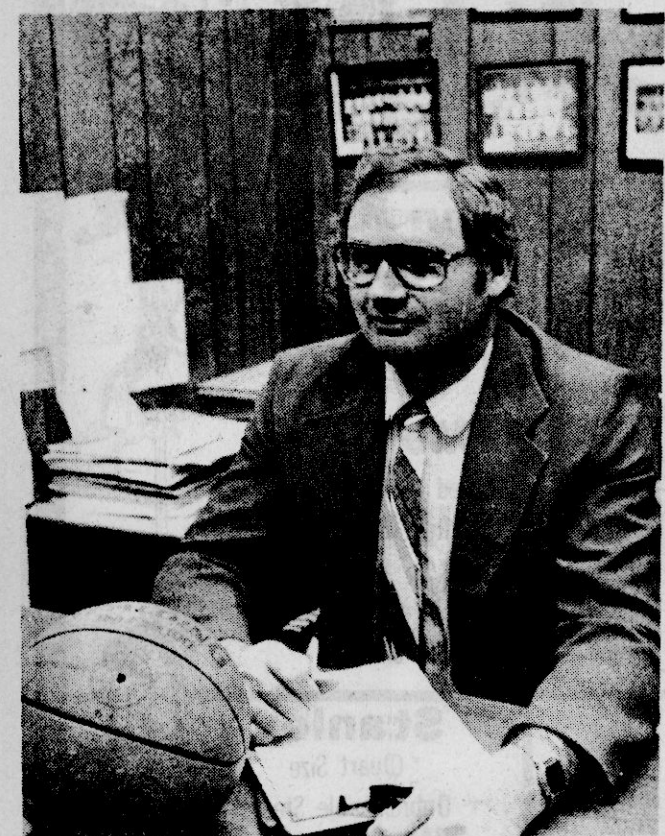

In other honors Steve Rives of Jackson Prep High School was named High School Coach of the Year while overall senior college honors goes to M.K. Turk, head coach at the University of Southern Mississippi.

Walter Mason, the All-Star performer for Northwest Junior College was selected the Junior College Player of the Year while high school honors goes to a host of players including, Kenny Gambrell, Jackson Jim Hill, James Williams, McGee; Jeff Norwood, Tupelo; Bubba McNail, Biloxi; Calvin Johnson, Gulfport; and Mark Coleman, Forest Hill.

One of the April 7th Banquet highlights will be guest speaker C.M. Newton, former coach at Alabama now with the SEC to be introduced by governor William Winter who plans to attend.

Mississippi State baseball coach Ron Polk will serve as Master of Ceremonies for the event.

Gamble Also Named To All-State List

In last week's Banner-Independent, Wheeler's Kennedy Gamble's name was omitted from the All-State list during the State Tournament in Jackson.

Gamble, who indeed had an outstanding season, was named to the list along with his teammates Tim Kesler, Terry Ballard, and Bubba Miller totaling four Eagles on the 1981 All-State squad.

We regret the error.

NEWell Represented In All-Star Game

Both coaches Noal Akins and Millard Lothenore will help coach the men's and women's North squad respectively. Akins will be aided by Itawamba coach Wayne Newsome while helping Lothenore will be Booneville native Buddy Walden, now coaching at Mississippi Delta.

The Tigers will also be helped on the court as well. Martha Ashmore will represent the Lady Tigers while Booneville's Dale Groves and Ingomar's Mark Bussick will represent the Tigers.

Home Economist's Report

By CLAIRE T. ROSS

Machine Needle Size

Sewing on a variety of fabrics makes it necessary to use needles of different sizes. If you have problems keeping track of which size is on the machine, this simple idea may be helpful.

Make a little chart of colored papers about one inch square on which you list the kind of needles you use (9 ballpoint, 11 ballpoint, 14 regular, etc.). Tape this with clear tape along the top of your machine and then clip on a paper clip from the side so that the top of the clip indicates the size of needle on the machine.

Whenever you change the needle, change the clip to the corresponding number. When you have to stitch something in a hurry, you can tell at a glance if the machine is ready.

Keep The "Zip" In Zippers

Zippers can be kept in good running condition with a minimum of care. Close zippers before washing or dry cleaning a garment. When pressing, keep zippers closed and bring iron just to the edge.

Lubricate the coils or teeth of zippers which stick. Use a commercial zipper lubricant or a bar of soap.

When home sewing, choose a zipper with tape that matches or blends with fabric color. The background or dominant color should be a guide when working with prints or plaids.

Watch Your Garden Grow

Good garden soil is not made overnight. Good garden soils usually are built by the gardener.

New gardeners should not expect their first flower garden to be perfect. Adding organic matter and nutrients for a few years usually is necessary to improve soil fertility and drainage.

What a great feeling to see the fast growth and good color! The plants themselves will tell you when your soil is at peak productivity.

Soil Test

Have your soil tested. Come by the Extension Office on E. Church Street for a soil sample box. Also, pick up free information on gardens, houseplants, shrubbery, etc. Or call 728-5631.

Workshop

There will be a blazer workshop at Northeast Mississippi Junior College in Patterson Hall beginnings March 23 at 9:30 a.m. For more information and to register, call 728-5631.

You must pre-register and there will be a small materials fee.

Miles offshore a giant compressor station becomes an ecological refuge

It's an unusual sanctuary, a towering compressor station nearly 50 miles out in the Gulf of Mexico. Marine birds fly here by the hundreds, unafraid, because in this instance man has proved that complex machinery and the creatures of a marine environment can exist side by side—if someone cares enough.

This distant installation pumped more than 280 billion cubic feet of gas ashore in 1979. Much of this was consumed by the Gulf South economic base. That's important. But we think it's just as significant to prove that as the search for new gas reserves grows more intense, native ecology can be preserved and perhaps enhanced.

That's the way we do things at United Gas—where the search for new energy never stops.

THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK:
When Nelly 'Leaped Over A Wall'

For By Thee I Have Run Through A Troop; And By My God Have I Leaped Over A Wall. Psalms 18:29

By Henry G. Bosch
Adapted From 'Our Daily Bread'

When David speaks of jumping over a high wall, he is using symbolic language. He implies that by trusting the Lord he could surmount every obstacle and be triumphant in the most depressing circumstances. That's what he means when he says, "...by my God have I leaped over a wall."

My mother's sister Nellie was a woman who had a cheerful disposition and a deep faith in God. For 5 years her husband had been ill in bed, completely incapacitated. In all that time she cared for him night and day until his death. The bills had mounted up, and she had no money to pay them. Since his insurance had lapsed, the undertaker sympathetically agreed to wait for his fee. Through it all, Aunt Nellie was not depressed. When I visited her, she said, "God will supply my needs. I don't know how, but He will!" I marveled at her confidence in God's provision. A few days later she received some wonderful news. A piece of land in Texas purchased by her husband's father years before had produced a small amount of oil. Soon a letter arrived with a check for more than $5,000—her share of the earnings. It covered her expenses exactly—not a penny too little or a penny too much. What joy flooded her soul! When she saw me again, she exclaimed with a radiant face, "Henry, isn't Jesus wonderful! He helped me in an unexpected way. By my God I have 'leaped over a wall.'"

Christian, let your heart be strengthened by this true story. The Lord specializes in solving problems that men think impossible. Take a leap of faith!
