Death Originally Termed 'Natural Causes'

Confessed Murderer Claims Wife Poisoned Man Here 5 Years Ago

By ANGELA SMITH
And KEN CHRISTIAN

Local authorities are currently awaiting the results of an autopsy performed on the exhumed body of a Prentiss County man who, at the time of his death five years ago, was thought to have died of natural causes.

A former Prentiss County resident who has confessed to two murders in Tennessee has accused his ex-wife of poisoning the man whose body was exhumed here last week.

The bizarre story began to unfold in March of this year, according to Prentiss County Deputy Sheriff Carl Sartin.

"I received a telephone call from an investigator in the sheriff's department in Lexington, Tenn., who said that Richard Caldwell had confessed that his former wife, Lucille Morgan Caldwell, had poisoned Prentiss Countian Bynum Rogers in February of 1976," the deputy said.

Sartin said Caldwell is a native of Kentucky, but he and his wife and family lived in Prentiss County near New Site for about two years.

Caldwell, along with his 15-year-old son, is in jail in Lexington on a two-count murder charge.

Caldwell and his ex-wife are also wanted on a murder charge in West Virginia, Sartin said.

The deputy said Caldwell's ex-wife is currently out of jail on bond and is living in a women's home in Illinois. He said Caldwell could not at this time be extradited to West Virginia or elsewhere because law officials in Tennessee are asking that he be given the death penalty.

IN MAY OF this year, Caldwell told authorities that Rogers came to his house near New Site about noon on the day he died and the two men had several drinks together.

Caldwell said Rogers then went home to "sleep it off."

About 8 o'clock that night, Rogers reportedly returned to Caldwell's home and asked Caldwell to take him to the hospital because he felt sick. Caldwell said he told Rogers it was probably just a hangover and Rogers then asked him if he had a drink.

Caldwell said he told Rogers there was a bottle behind the couch on which he was sitting. Rogers reached behind the couch, got the bottle and turned it up to take a drink, Caldwell said.

As Rogers was drinking the whiskey, Mrs. Caldwell came through the kitchen door and saw him, Caldwell said. She screamed and ran back into the kitchen, he said.

Caldwell said he went into the kitchen to see what was wrong and that was when his wife told him the whiskey Rogers was drinking was poisoned.

Caldwell told officers his ex-wife said she had put strychnine poison in the whiskey, intending it for Walter Lewis, another acquaintance of her husband.

According to Caldwell, Lewis visited the Caldwell residence frequently. Caldwell said his wife didn't like Lewis because he and Caldwell ran around together.

CALDWELL SAID HE went back to where he had left Rogers. By this time Rogers was in such bad condition that he almost had to be carried to the car, Caldwell said.

Caldwell told the officers that, after getting Rogers into the car, he and his wife started toward the hospital with him. Mrs. Caldwell drove the car while he looked after Rogers, Caldwell said. Rogers died about seven miles from Booneville, he said.

When he told his wife that Rogers was dead, she suggested they bury him, Caldwell said. But Caldwell told authorities he refused, thinking the doctors might be able to revive Rogers at

At that time, Pace led the field of seven candidates with 128 votes followed by Jourdan with 111 votes.

The special election had been called by the board of supervisors to fill the post vacated when former Fifth District Constable John O. (Bobby) Lambert was sworn in as Booneville's Police Chief in July.

The previous election holders will also hold the run-off election, Circuit Clerk Travis Cox said this week.

Polls will be open from 7 a.m. until 6 p.m.

Booneville Schools Prepare To Open

By KEN CHRISTIAN
Editor

Administrative personnel have by no means been idle this summer at the Booneville schools. Each school has been involved in a clean-up-fix-up campaign to get the buildings ready for classes by Sept. 1, and some have been involved in major renovations.

City schools superintendent Robert Griffin says the Booneville schools have been basing their plans for the coming year on an estimate projected last spring of roughly 1,175 students for the district.

He said this is approximately the same number of students as last year, possibly a few less. He does not anticipate any crowding at any of the city schools, he said.

"Overall, we should have a good teacher-pupil ratio," he said. "We're looking forward to a good school year."

Griffin said there will be 71 professional personnel employed by the city school system this year.

AS DO ALL schools, Griffin expects the federal budget cuts of the Reagan administration to affect some programs at the city schools this year.

"I anticipate the biggest cuts in programs as a result of the federal cutbacks will be next year," he said, "but the cuts will affect some programs this year."

As a result of these cuts, the city's superintendent of schools says lunchroom service will change quite a bit this year. He says there are less funds available for free and reduced-price lunches and for reimbursement on the milk program.

Exactly what these changes will be is not yet known, he said last week.

"We are still studying the lunch program and are waiting on information from the State," he said. "But there will definitely be a price increase this year in the lunches."

LAST WEEK, GRIFFIN listed five major areas on which the city schools plan to concentrate this year:

- The city system plans to add gifted and talented classes at Booneville High School in the areas of science and English (language arts);
- Immediately after school starts, Griffin says the entire faculty and staff will begin working on the Accountability and Instructional Management (AIM) program;
- The schools plan to take a critical look at the reading programs in grades 1-6;
- All schools plan to correlate a career education program with their regular curriculum; and
- Griffin hopes the schools can organize and have an active parent-teachers organization in each school.

THE AIM PROGRAM on which the city schools plan to work this year has been mandated by the State Legislature for all schools. By law, the program must be in operation by 1984, Griffin said.

There will be three phases to the

Community Appearance Project Gets Underway

A group of citizens from various communities throughout Prentiss County recently met at the county Extension office in Booneville to discuss ideas that will be used to compile a countywide community appearance plan and campaign.

The formulation of this plan will be the last in a series of requirements centered around the Key Community Program which is being sponsored locally by the Prentiss County Development Association, according to PCDA executive director Doug Mansell.

The community appearance project is a joint venture between the Prentiss County Extension Service and PCDA. Mrs. Claire T. Ross, Extension home economist, is chairing the committee working on the project.

Mansell said anyone who is interested in expressing ideas on improving the appearance of the community will be welcome at the next committee meeting which will be held at 2 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 26, at the Extension office.

To Transfer From District

Students Need Releases

Prentiss County students who plan to attend school in a district other than the one in which they reside must obtain a release from their home district before they can enroll in classes, even if they obtained such a release last year.

Booneville Schools

Superintendent Robert Griffin pointed out last week that these student releases are only valid for a one-year period and must be renewed each year if the student continues to attend school outside the school district in which he lives.

In other words, those students who live inside the Booneville city limits must obtain a release from the city school district before they can attend a county school.

Likewise, a student who lives outside the city limits the hospital.

When they arrived in Booneville, they stopped at the Booneville Police Department because they did not know where the hospital was located, Caldwell said. A man whom Caldwell could identify only as "the chief of police" reportedly escorted them to the hospital.

Emergency room personnel at the Northeast Mississippi Hospital worked on Rogers for an hour or longer, but were unable to revive him, Caldwell said.

Caldwell told authorities that he told the doctor he was sorry he couldn't get Rogers to the hospital faster, but the doctor said he probably couldn't have saved Rogers even if he had been in the car with him.

DEPUTY SARTIN SAID

this week that Rogers, who was 60 years old, was known to have had a heart condition. He said Roger's death was attributed to natural causes at the time he died.

The deputy said Dr. W.H. (Pepper) Sutherland was the doctor who attended Rogers that night. Sutherland, a Booneville native, was at that time serving as an intern in Memphis and worked in the Booneville hospital's emergency room on weekends.

Caldwell said he had originally put the whiskey behind the couch because it was a brand which he did not like. He said he told his wife he was going to save it for Lewis.

Caldwell told officers the poison his wife had allegedly put in the whiskey was strychnine which he had been using in his barn to kill rats. He said he had purchased the strychnine from a Booneville drug store, but did not recall its name.

Caldwell told officers that he is not actually sure whether his wife meant the poison for Lewis or for himself. He said that has always been a question in his mind.

Lewis has since left Prentiss County and now resides in Arkansas, Deputy Sartin said.

IF THE AUTOPSY results

prove that Rogers died of strychnine poisoning, and if Caldwell does not receive the death penalty in Tennessee, then he could be extradited to Mississippi on charges of accessory after the fact, according to Sartin.

Caldwell's former wife could be charged with manslaughter, the deputy said.

Sartin said he expects the autopsy results to be returned in two or three weeks. Tissue samples were taken from Rogers' body and sent to New Jersey last week for analysis, he said.

Law enforcement officials are awaiting the autopsy results before questioning Caldwell's ex-wife, Sartin said.

AIM program, he said. They are:

- 1) Design: The schools will list what they plan to teach.
- 2) Objectives: The schools will list what the child is expected to learn.
- 3) Evaluation: The schools will evaluate the students to see if they learned the material and to what degree.

The schools will eventually set a prospective level of skill as a goal. Students who do not come up to this level will receive additional instruction in the particular subject area in which they are having difficulty, Griffin said.

Entwined with, but also separate from the AIM program, Griffin says he wants to take a look at the reading programs in grades 1-6.

He says he has already obtained some professional help in evaluating the reading programs. Dr. Evelyn Califf of Tupelo, formerly with The Mississippi University for Women, will be testing the students and looking at the materials and supplemental materials used to see if she recognizes any changes that are needed to improve the reading level of the students, Griffin said.

"If a student can't read well," he said, "as he moves along from grade to grade sooner or later he gets lost."

AS FOR A long-range building plan for the city school system, Griffin says there has not been much discussion in that area.

He said he would personally like to see input from various sectors of the community as to what the people think the schools need.

Griffin said there has also been no discussion by the school board on the possible cut off of the use of Northeast Junior College's football field for Booneville High School games.

Some Junior college board members have proposed that the use of the field be discontinued for local high school football games after 1983.

The city currently has no plans to build a stadium for the high school, Griffin said.

"It will take some study," he added.

class" for area piano students on the afternoon of the concert.

At 8 p.m. on Tuesday, Oct. 27, a woodwind quintet from the Tupelo Symphony will perform in concert in the Hines Hall Auditorium.

The final program will be at 3 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 13, when the full Tupelo Symphony Orchestra, the Tupelo Symphony Chorus, and an as yet un-named guest artist will perform the Christmas portions of Handel's "The Messiah."

To accomodate the larger crowds expected for this performance, the program will be held in the Seth Pounds Auditorium at Northeast.

According to Doug Mansell, executive director of PCDA, technical assistance from area legislators was instrumental in obtaining the $3,000 grant from the Mississippi Arts Commission.

This $3,000 will provide 50 percent of the funding for the program. An additional $3,000 must be raised locally, primarily through ticket sales, to pay for the three programs.

"The committee has been working with the Tupelo Symphony for several months and we feel very fortunate to be able to provide such a program in our area," said Sherry Bowen, chairman of the PCDA Cultural Committee..

A single $10 ticket is good for all three concerts.. Tickets are now on sale at the PCDA office, The Peoples Bank and Trust Company, and The Bank of Mississippi.

Members of PCDA are also talking to local civic clubs about obtaining their help in promoting and selling the tickets.

instructional facility for our physical education department."

Speaking on behalf of the board of trustees, he said, "We at Northeast have dreamed of the day we could secure this much needed addition for our campus, and today, because of the vision and extreme generosity of an exceptional family and their business associates, that dream will soon become a reality."

The Development Foundation, which was begun in 1969, is structured so that individuals may make contributions to a particular department or program, White said. These gifts, which can be made in the form of cash contributions, stocks, bonds, irrevocable trusts, bequests, paid-up life insurance policies and land, serve as tools to better assure continued quality of instruction and facilities.

Gifts to the Development Foundation have been used to provide programs and benefits for Northeast which are not fully provided by other sources, White said. Examples of these are scholarships, fellowships, research projects, academic awards and expansion funds.

GREEN LEAVES OF SUMMER—Prentiss County deputies Bob Glover (left) and Doug Hendricks are shown with several stalks of marijuana they discovered in a patch near the Hopewell Community, east of Wheeler. The deputies said they had found some in the same area last summer and decided to check again this year. They said they found the marijuana about five weeks ago and have been keeping an eye on it. However, they said they did not have enough time to stake it out properly so they decided to pull it up and bring it in.

BIBLE QUESTION BOX

QUESTION: Mr. Hogland, how can you be sure the Eunuch in Acts eight was immersed? Was it not a custom for some people to carry water in jugs? Could he (the preacher) not have poured or sprinkled water on the head of the Eunuch as they rode along in the chariot?

WARD HOGLAND

ANSWER: The context of Acts eight shows that such could not be so. Please note verse 36, "They came unto a certain water." The water was not with them in a container of some kind. Then verse 38, "They both went down into the water." It would be impossible for two men to get into a jug or container carried in a chariot. Please note the prepositions: "They came unto a certain water" then, "They went down into the water" and then "They came up out of the water." This tells us that baptism is an immersion and not sprinkling or pouring. The case of Phillip and the Eunuch tells us that a sinner heard the gospel, believed it, confessed with his mouth that Christ was the son of God and was immersed in water for the remission of sins (see Acts 2:38). This verse tells us that repentance and baptism are both for the remission of sins.

Down From July

Local Unemployment At 7.7 Percent

Statistics prepared by the Mississippi State Employment Service reveal a slight decline in unemployment in Prentiss County at mid-July.

According to Charles Smith, manager of the Employment Service, the rate of unemployment in the county registered as 7.7 percent of the civilian labor force. This compares to 8.2 percent last month and 9.4 percent in July 1980.

The civilian labor force at 10,570 climbed slightly from the previous estimate; however, it was somewhat below the figure for one year ago. The number of Prentiss County residents employed was estimated to be 9,760.

Manufacturing employment rose slightly to reach 2,840, while non-manufacturing at 3,660 experienced a slightly larger increase.

According to Smith, the civilian labor force for the four-county area of Alcorn, Prentiss, Tishomingo, and Tishomingo was estimated to be 46,480.

The number of persons unemployed decreased by 100 from last month while yearly comparisons revealed a loss of 300.

The current rate of unemployment for the area was estimated to be 8.8 percent of the civilian labor force. Area residents employed was estimated to be 42,370, down from last month and last year.

Overall establishment-based employment in the area remained relatively the same over the month. However, an increase was noted from one year ago. Manufacturing employment stood at 15,210, while non-manufacturing was registered at 20,370.

Extensive diagnostic and evaluative testing is done in this program to monitor student progress.

NEMJC Awarded Nursing Grant

The Northeast Mississippi Junior College has been awarded a capitation grant in the amount of $14,006 for its associate degree nursing program.

The announcement was made this week by President Harold T. White following notification by first district

Congressman Jamie Whitten.

Eligibility for the grant, which is provided under the Nursing Training Act of 1975, is based upon student enrollment in the freshman class since 1974.

Schools of nursing must be accredited by one of the accrediting bodies approved by the Secretary of Education and must maintain an annual enrollment of not less than 10 percent more students than enrolled in 1974.

Monies provided by this grant can be used for any purpose the school judges will most effectively advance its nursing educational program, White said.

Because the grant's purpose is to provide a general support base for the nursing program, these funds may be used for regular operating costs, to pay faculty salaries, for auxiliary and supportive services, such as cost of operation and maintenance related to the purposes of the grant and for library support including the purchase of books and periodicals.

On Aug. 14, a tractor-trailer brake locked and caught the brake drum on fire. The tractor-trailer, owned by Corinth Brick & Tile Co. was driven by Virgil Gurley. Damage was minor, Flemming said.

Firemen responded to a fire at the Keith Michael residence on North Road at 2:30 a.m. Aug. 16. The fire was reported by the Booneville Police Department.

Reflections

By Ken Christian

During the past two weeks, I have visited every public school in Prentiss County (with the exception of the Baldwin schools which I plan to visit later this week) and talked with the principals and other personnel at each of the schools.

Without exception, I have been greatly impressed at the positive attitude toward the coming school year—and the even more distant future—by each and every one of the school administrators to whom I talked.

Unfortunately, last summer, during the legal battle surrounding the separation of the city schools from the county school system, I feel the needs and the best interests of the students sometimes took a back seat in what apparently became a power struggle between two or more factions trying to gain control of the schools.

I am proud to say it appears this is no longer the case and both the city and the county school systems seem to be looking to the future, fully mindful of the needs of their students.

SOME OF THESE future plans will not necessarily be the most popular ones. No matter what either school district does now or in the future, there will be those who object, sometimes for legitimate reasons, sometimes for selfish reasons, and sometimes just because there are always those who resist change in any form.

But a change must come—it is inevitable. I think that was made very clear during last summer's legal battle over the schools. It is up to our school administrators—and the general public as well—to see that these changes are taken in the right direction.

Practically the entire state now recognizes that the section of the state with the most potential for future growth is Northeast Mississippi. If we are to be a part of that growth, we must be prepared to handle it education-wise. One of the first questions asked by industries looking at the area as a prospective location is most often about the educational system of the area.

I AM FIRMLY convinced that Supt. Lex Cain's recent proposal to consolidate all the county high schools into one centrally located high school is a major step in improving our educational system.

The community-based schools in the county have served well—and continue to do so. But they are rapidly being outgrown and, due to our changing economy, are also no longer financially feasible.

Be assured there will be opposition to this proposal—there will be opposition as to where the school is located, who will run it, and what it will offer.

But, hopefully, Supt. Cain and the county school board will be able to look past these objections, look far into the future of the county's educational system, and do what is best for the students as a whole, not just what is most desired by a few who complain the loudest.

It will take a lot of courage on the part of the superintendent and the board members to undertake this plan. Rest assured they will be putting their political futures on the line.

New Problems Present In Redistricting Effort

By BILL MINOR
Columnist

JACKSON, Miss.—When the legislature meets here Aug. 25 to redraw Congressional district lines as a result of population shifts reflected in the 1980 census, it will be the first time lawmakers have taken a scientific approach to congressional redistricting. Even then, everybody is far from satisfied.

Going back to 1952, when the state lost a Congressional seat, and in 1962, when it lost another, and in 1966 and 1972, after the legislature began taking the "one man, one vote" doctrine seriously, what the state's lawmakers have produced in the form of Congressional districts has been done by power plays and hastily constructed behind the scenes deals in the midst of heated legislative sessions.

At least things are present now that haven't been in the past:

1) This will mark the first time Congressional redistricting has ever been done in a special session specifically called for that purpose, free of other legislative stresses.

2) It is the first time in history that public comment has been sought all over the state by the lawmakers in advance of drafting a redistricting plan.

3) It is also the first time there has been any significant representation of blacks in the legislative process when Congressional district lines have been redrawn.

Hence, because of the larger black presence in the legislature, the pressure to construct a district which would virtually guarantee election of a black congressman—something that hasn't happened since Reconstruction—has been greater than before.

But the nostalgia of putting back together a "Delta" district, the area with the heaviest concentration of blacks, is made impractical by the fact that those are the counties where there has been the heaviest decline in population in the past several censuses, plus the fact that blacks believe they must have a 65 percent majority to give them a good shot at winning.

The breakup of the historic Delta district came in 1962 when a combination of White Citizens' Council and Ross Barnett loyalists in the legislature angry at then-Delta Cong. Frank Smith because of his 1960 support of John F. Kennedy for president, staged an overnight coup to gerrymander him out of office. They combined his district with Cong. Jamie Whitten's part-Delta, part-Hills district into a monstrous 24-county district.

There were elements of old animosities left over from a 1952 redistricting evidenced in that 1962 maneuver to sacrifice the old Delta district. Northeast Mississippi lawmakers, remembering how the Delta legislators helped to slice up John Rankin's old district in 1952, helped retaliate a decade later.

It got the desired results from the standpoint of the Council-Barnett coalition, since Smith's large black constituency couldn't vote, and Whitten's heavier white population could, so Whitten won handily in the eventual face-off between the two.

But four years after the gerrymander to get rid of Smith, the legislature had to face up to the new "one man, one vote" doctrine and cut the outsize Whitten district back to a reasonable size.

In that 1966 session of the legislature the lawmakers remained deadlocked for 13 weeks over how to redraw the districts, finally in an all-night session hammering out a plan cutting the Delta into two layers, ostensibly creating one district (the Second) with a slight black majority.

For those days, the plan was hailed as a model of racial and population equity, and even withstood the first testing of a congressional plan by the federal courts. But, in practice, the population ratios of 1960 were already outdated, and by 1966 blacks had neither a population edge in the Second District nor a voting edge, since black voter registration was still in its infancy.

The 1972 redrawing of congressional lines was again a rather comical event. Out of it came the famous "dying duck" design of the present Third District, which reaches to the state's border on the east, west and south.

It was so-named by then-Sen. Ebb Horton of Louisville, who said it "looks like an old duck with his feet turned backwards, which would run all the way from Noxubee County down to Washington Parish, Louisiana."

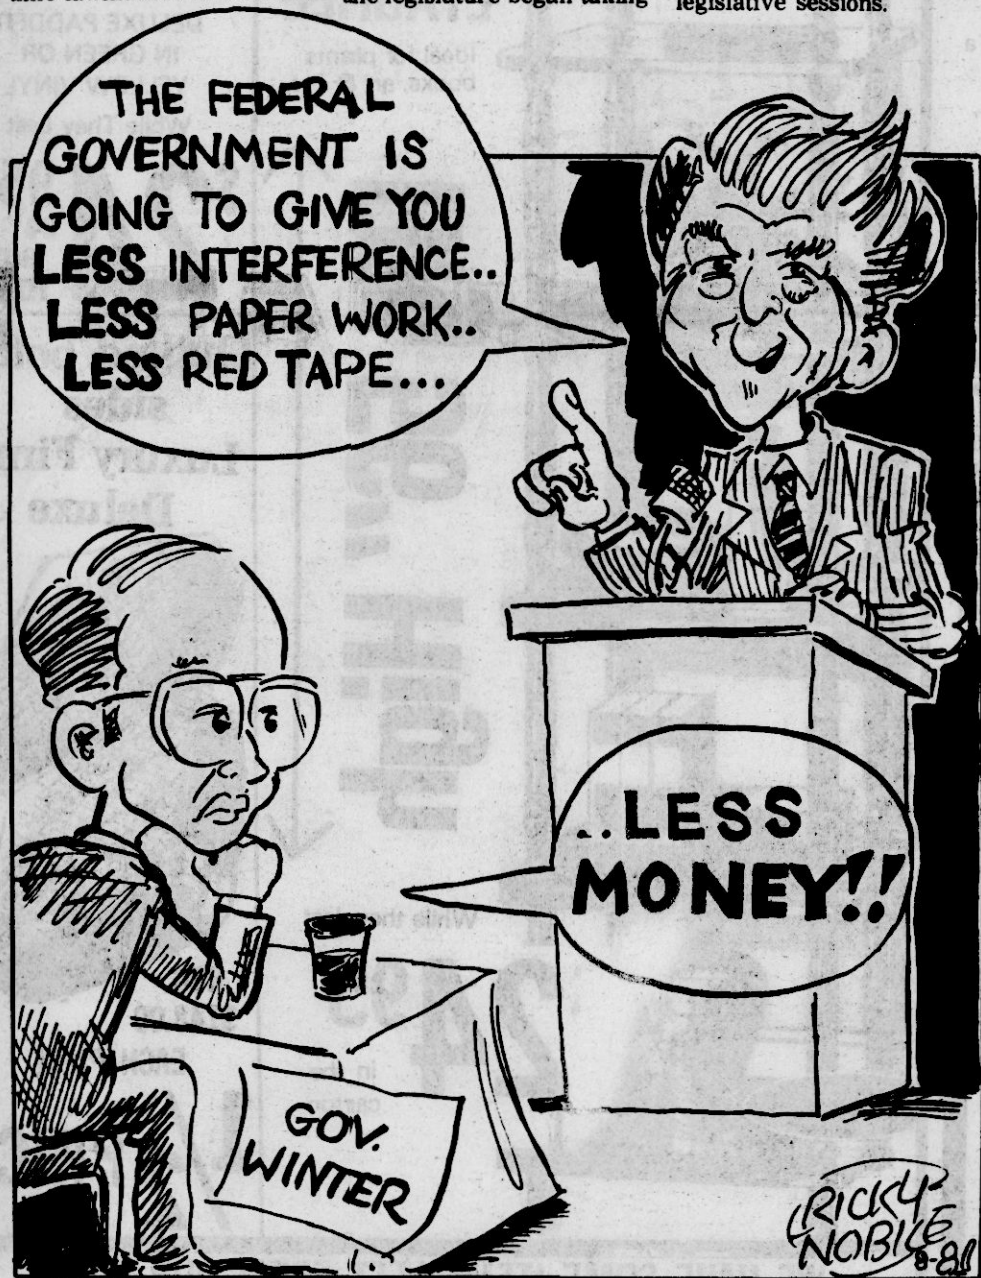

One of the key moves in pulling off the plan was by Rep. Stone Barefield of Forrest County, who was credited with knocking Marion County off the Fifth (coastal) District to get rid of a strong potential foe for the seat then being vacated by Cong. Bill Colmer. As it turned out, Barefield did run for the seat, but was put on the sidelines in a race eventually won by present Republican Cong. Trent Lott of Pascagoula.

Ironically, some rumbling has been heard out of Lott's camp over the newly adopted redistricting plan produced by Rep. Tommy Campbell's special legislative committee which puts Marion County back into the Fifth. Marion is the home of well-known state political figure Maurice Dantin, who was originally supposed to be the heir-apparent to Colmer back in 1972 when his county was cut out of the district.

How long the upcoming special session is going to take is one matter of prime concern, since the state is now under tight fiscal constraints and a special session costing more than just a few days can be costly.

One bad omen is that Jackson's motels and hotels are offering the lawmakers cut rates for their rooms during the session, and another is the football season will kick off Sept. 7 with Mississippi State and Memphis State in the stadium. Those two items could tempt the legislature to stick around more than the "two or three days" Gov. William Winter has predicted.

Vietnam Memorial Is Tribute To Those Who Served

By COL. DON E. SCHAEET
Executive Director
Vietnam Veterans Memorial Fund

A recent article in this newspaper by Gary Schmitt criticized the planned Vietnam Veterans Memorial in Washington, D.C. While Schmitt is entitled to his own opinion, many of his statements were inaccurate. Therefore, there needs to be some clarification on the matter.

The Vietnam Veterans Memorial Fund (VVMF) is a non-profit organization authorized by Congress to establish a national memorial to Vietnam veterans. Its purpose is to honor and recognize all Americans who served in the armed forces in Vietnam, especially those who gave their lives.

The memorial will make no political statement about the war, a point Schmitt's article criticized. As far as VVMF is concerned, the issue is not whether the Vietnam war was good or bad, right or wrong, moral or immoral, won or lost. The issue at hand is whether or not the people of this country should pay tribute to their sons and daughters who serve in uniform when called. As a people, we have always done so in the past. VVMF believes we should do so now, for the 2.7 million who served in Vietnam, the 57,692 killed, the 300,000 wounded, the 75,000 disabled, and the 2,500 still missing.

VVMF is not a membership organization. It has a small staff and is supported by a large group of volunteers, located not only in Washington but in almost every state. When the project is complete, VVMF will dissolve, and the memorial will be taken over by the National Park Service.

Congress unanimously passed a bill allocating two acres of land next to the Lincoln Memorial for the memorial. This bill was co-sponsored by 100 senators and 196 representatives. It was signed into law during a ceremony in the Rose Garden on July 1, 1980. During the ceremony, former President Carter commented, "Perhaps even more than those who served, our Nation needs this memorial..."

Among the most glaring distortions in the Schmitt article are those having to do with the memorial design. For the record, the design was selected through a competition that was open to all American 18 years old and over. Some 3,800 people participated, making it the largest design competition of its type ever held. Included were the nation's top design firms as well as rank amateurs. Many were veterans. The winner was selected by a jury of internationally known sculptors, architects, and landscape architects. One member was a writer in the field.

The jury was screened and selected on the basis of their expertise and sensitivity to the needs of the American public for the memorial.

The overwhelming consensus of art critics about the winning design is that it will result in a magnificent memorial. It will be an open chevron recessed into the ground and located near the Lincoln Memorial. The lush green lawn, gently sloping down to its 10-foot depth will contrast with the highly polished black granite facade on which the names of the 57,692 dead or unaccounted for will be inscribed.

Surrounded by more lawns, modest landscaping, stately trees and pleasant walkways, one will not have to stumble upon it as Schmitt says. In fact, it will be almost as long as the Washington Monument is tall, some 400 feet. One hardly stumbles on something one-third longer than a football field.

Reference was made to its color as if it were too somber. It will be black. Other than the sheer beauty of gleaming black, no other meaning is intended by the color. I suspect the same could be said for the massive base of the Marines Memorial (Two Jima flag raising) and entire Seabees Memorial in Washington—both are black.

Had Schmitt contacted our office, he would have learned several other features of the design which are being detailed in the project's current design development and approval phase. It will be clearly identified as the Vietnam Veterans Memorial, giving context to the names on it. It will be fully accessible to the handicapped and it will be well drained.

The schedule calls for the memorial to be dedicated in November 1982. That depends upon raising the money, however. Most likely, the money for the memorial could have been obtained from Congress, but the VVMF decided to raise the funds from the private sector—individuals, corporations, unions, veterans groups, civic organizations and the like. In this way, it will be more meaningful: a gift from the American people—not from a governing body—to finally say thank you for having served. Thus, except for the land, the cost of the memorial will be paid for by private donations.

The public should know that, while a number of Vietnam veterans are facing serious problems, most now are productive citizens making up a solid portion of the work force and rising into leadership positions in industry, business and government. These people are a national resource, not victims, as Schmitt claims.

One last point. The VVMF was formed by, is directed by, and is largely staffed with Vietnam veterans. Our purpose is to honor those who served. We will do no less.

People may contribute to the memorial fund by sending tax-deductible donations to Vietnam Veterans Memorial Fund, Box 37240, Washington, D.C. 20013.

Library Notes

By LEE DAVIS
Librarian
George E. Allen Library

Twenty-three boys and girls recently sat listening and looking as Mrs. Cheryl Perry entertained and taught them through stories, posters, and games.

The subject for this storytime was safety—things to watch for and habits that help boys and girls take care of themselves and feel secure. They had a happy time together.

We will miss the older boys and girls after school begins, but will continue the Wednesday, 10 a.m. storytime for preschool children. Sometimes a guest will conduct the activities and sometimes a member of the staff. We are all anticipating each one with pleasure.

A very beautiful display is featured in the glass case this month. One contains Heinrich porcelain plates inspired by the Flower Fairies paintings and poems of English artist, Cicely Mary Barker. Their delicacy of line and color is well worth a special trip to the library to see them.

The other case holds a series of 10 plates with Confederate scenes surrounded by an elaborate gold border. The Trustees of the White House of the Confederacy and the Lenox Company brought out this limited edition for the purpose of restoring the house purchased by the city of Richmond originally intended as an executive mansion for Jefferson Davis.

Noted historian, Bruce Cotton, served as co-chairman with Virginius Dobney of a committee which included Mrs. Dwight Eisenhower, Mrs. Lyndon Johnson, Gov. Ronald Reagan and Senator John Stennis.

Both exhibits are from the collection of Dan Wybil. We invite you to enjoy them.

Thought for the Week:

How Much Is A Teenager Worth?

To some people, not very much!

To the insurance company, he's a bad risk!

To the patrolman, he's a hot-rod-din' kid with too much time and speed on his hands!

To City Hall, he's a future taxpayer!

To the school principal, he's a spit-baller!

To Mom and Dad, he's a tax deduction, and he may either make or break the family!

But...to the church, he's the gauge of what the church will be like. He's a weekly challenge and inspiration to have in the service!

To the Sunday School teacher he's a burden to pray for and to win for Christ!

To the Lord, he's worth the whole world, for He gave Himself for the sins of every teenager!

INSIGHT INTO EYESIGHT

from the office of:
JOHN R. WHITE, O.D.
Detecting Baby's Vision Problem

There isn't much a baby can see clearly when he's first born. He doesn't have the ability yet to focus quickly or accurately. It takes a while before he learns how to use both eyes to see well. In the beginning each eye acts independently on the other.

As time goes on, if baby still doesn't seem to be seeing well, he should have an eye examination. There are certain telltale signs a parent can watch for. Does your child find it difficult to pick up small objects? When he reaches for a toy, does he miss it completely? And when he starts to walk and hustle around the house, do you often see him stumbling over things that he should have seen and avoided?

There are other signs to look for. Check to see if he is using both eyes to focus on an object. If he tilts his head to look at something, or squints or closes one eye to look closely at something, there may be a vision problem. An eye examination is the only way you can be sure.

For answers to your specific questions regarding vision, Dr. White invites you to call his Booneville office under the age of 21 in order to offer a free appropriate education to these children. Handicapped children include those with physical, mental or emotional handicaps, specific learning disabilities, mental retardation, speech or hearing problems, and developmental delays.

Any parent or other person or agency having knowledge of a handicapped child living within the city limits of Booneville should contact Martha Weatherford if the child is not presently receiving educational services.

Mrs. Weatherford can be reached at: Project Child Find, Central Office, Booneville Municipal Separate Schools, P.O. Box 387, Booneville, MS 38829, or phone 728-6863.

A follow-up will be made on any referral to determine the educational needs of the child. Following this evaluation, if necessary, the child will be placed in an appropriate special program.

All records on the children are confidential and will be maintained at the appropriate school office. Parents or guardians have the right to inspect all data collected on their handicapped children, and, if they so desire, to appeal its accuracy.

"The Booneville School System requests and appreciates your help in locating handicapped children," a school spokesman said.

Stop For School Buses

The new school year gets underway in Mississippi soon which means 5,400 public school buses will traverse the state's roads, highways and city streets twice daily transporting nearly 368,000 students, according to the State Department of Safety.

Figures show that the buses travel nearly 40 million miles each year.

Donald Butler, Chief of the Mississippi Highway Safety Patrol, reminds motorists that when a school bus displays a stop signal for loading or unloading children, Mississippi law requires all motorists traveling in the same direction, as well as those direction, to stop.

Mississippi's school buses have signal lights both front and rear to warn other drivers. Yellow flashing lights indicate slowing down and red flashing lights with the stop arm extended from the bus is the signal for other vehicles to stop while the children load or unload.

The patrol chief said that school buses are required to stop at railroad crossings and motorists should use caution when following a bus approaching crossings.

All public school bus drivers and substitute drivers have been professionally trained and are certified by the State Department of Education, he said.

Next—"Who Are The Alcoholic People?"

Alcoholism is sometimes referred to as "alcohol dependence." This term is similar to those used for illnesses related to the abuse of drugs such as barbiturates and narcotics. ALCOHOL IS A DRUG, and it can create physical and psychological addiction similar to that caused by other drugs.

In the most advanced stages of the illness, the alcoholic person cannot function at all as a member of society. He is totally involved in getting drunk, staying drunk, or sobering up.

The alcoholic individual may start neglecting his diet, health and personal appearance. Family, job, and social troubles may multiply. Withdrawal symptoms may also worsen. Now, whenever he stops drinking—morning, noon or night—he may perspire profusely and become shaky, nauseated, confused, and frightened.

In this stage, if the alcoholic individual goes without a drink for several days and the body burns up its supply of alcohol, delirium tremens, or the "DT's," may become part of the withdrawal experience. The alcoholic person may complain of extreme thirst, run a fever, hear and see terrifying voices and sights that do not exist, panic, become delirious, thrash about violently, or go into convulsions. Delirium tremens is a potentially fatal condition that requires immediate medical care.

The alcoholic individual may start neglecting his diet, health and personal appearance. Family, job, and social troubles may multiply. Withdrawal symptoms may also worsen. Now, whenever he stops drinking—morning, noon or night—he may perspire profusely and become shaky, nauseated, confused, and frightened.

As the illness deepens, the common "hangover" that often results from an evening's drinking may be replaced by the more serious and painful symptoms of "withdrawal." These may include extreme nervousness, anxiety, sweating, nausea, trembling or the "shakes."

They show that the body has become so accustomed to alcohol, it has trouble managing without this drug. That is why an alcoholic individual may feel compelled to take a drink in the morning. Once he gets the drug back into his bloodstream, the trembling and other uncomfortable sensations are relieved. He can start to function again.

The alcoholic individual may start neglecting his diet, health and personal appearance. Family, job, and social troubles may multiply. Withdrawal symptoms may also worsen. Now, whenever he stops drinking—morning, noon or night—he may perspire profusely and become shaky, nauseated, confused, and frightened.

Other familiar indications of alcoholism include gulping drinks, drinking alone, drinking in the morning or drinking before facing stressful situations that bring on feelings of nervousness and unhappiness.

The alcoholic person tends to spend a lot of time thinking about drinking and planning where and when he is going to get his next drink. He may keep bottles hidden at home, in the car, or at work for quick pick-me-ups. Sometimes he starts drinking without consciously planning it and then he may not even be aware of how much alcohol he has consumed. He may deny quite forcefully that he has been drinking at all.

Persons suffering from alcoholism can hide the illness from others, or even from themselves, for a long time. Women who do not hold jobs outside the home may find it easier to conceal their illness from all but their family because they can drink in the privacy of their home.

Each individual is different. Frequently, however, a first clue that alcoholism may be developing is when a person finds that a few drinks no longer have the effects on mood and sensation that he set out to obtain. So, he drinks more and more for the same effect. He may drink to relieve tensions or to escape problems. He makes promises to quit, but breaks them. He has trouble stopping drinking once he starts.

While the search for exact causes of alcoholism goes on, three things appear certain:

-Most people who drink alcoholic beverages do not develop alcoholism.

-Although one cannot develop alcoholism without drinking alcohol, the beverage by itself is not enough to cause the illness.

-The types of people afflicted by alcoholism are as varied as life itself.

Since alcoholism usually develops over a period of years, there are repeated opportunities for the drinker and those close to him to spot and heed the warning signals before the illness is well underway.

Alcoholism has disabled people in many lands for thousands of years, but no one yet knows for certain what causes it. The illness probably has no single cause. Rather, there seem to be a number of physical, psychological, and social factors that determine the onset and progress of the illness. The combination of these factors differs from person to person.

West Side Community Center Making Come Back

A FRIENDLY GAME—This group of ladies has been meeting for a friendly game of cards at the Booneville West Side Community Center one day each week for sometime now. Mrs. Vivian Bigsby, manager of the center, says the playrooms are only one of the center's attractions.

The use of Booneville's West Side Community Center for family gatherings, club meetings and other socials has declined somewhat during the past few years, but Mrs. Vivian Bigsby, manager of the center, says the center is making a come back.

Mrs. Bigsby blames the behavior of some of those who used to hang out in the park for the decline in use of the center.

"It got so bad women were afraid to come into the park," she said last week.

The hiring of a full-time park ranger has greatly improved conditions, Mrs. Bigsby said.

Working with the Booneville Police Department, the park ranger, who is on duty six nights a week, has "cleaned up" the park, she said, and more people are once again beginning to use the community center.

Although the community center is not available for commercial enterprises, Mrs. Bigsby says that all civic clubs, church groups, or classes that are open to the public are welcome.

There is a small fee for maintenance, she said, and the group using the center must assume all responsibilities for any damages to the building.

The center is available only to Prentiss County residents, she said, or for programs aimed at Prentiss County people.

The community center has a kitchen, two play rooms (each with five card tables with chairs), and the main activity room which contains a stage, pool tables and various games.

The center is also available for family gatherings and Mrs. Bigsby says bookings are already coming in for Christmas gatherings.

She said every Sunday from May to October of this year has been booked with reservations for family reunions.

For more information about the community center, or to book reservations, contact Mrs. Bigsby at 728-9976. She is at the center from 3-5 p.m. and from 7-9 p.m. every day except Thursdays and Sunday nights.

NE To Offer New Cable TV Course

The Vocational-Technical Division of Northeast Junior College will offer a new course in cable television technology when school begins this week, according to Hale Aust, director of vocational education.

Aust said the program will be the first specialized electronics program in the state and is possibly the only two-year associate degree cable television program in the nation.

The program, which was developed over an 18-month period, is designed to train technicians to enter the work field to meet the demands of the growing cable systems.

Because of the expected future growth of cable systems nationwide, students who complete the program should find unlimited job opportunities as installers, repairmen and technical managers of cable systems, Aust said. The cable industry today has been compared to the level of rural electrification in the 1930's.

In addition to the electronic and general education courses, the cable television curriculum will expand on the development, trends and future growth of the cable systems, maintenance and servicing, its legal aspects, communications, equipment and programming, and standards and specifications.

For additional information, contact Aust at 728-7751, ext. 245.

Unemployment Drops

Mississippi's unemployment rate dropped to 8.2 percent in July, a decrease of 0.4 percent compared to June's 8.6 percent jobless rate, according to Mississippi Employment Security Commission Executive Director O.H. Simmons.

Last year's July unemployment rate was 8.8 percent.

The 8.2 percent unemployment rate for the state was higher than the 7.3 percent national rate for July. MESC figures showed 83,700 unemployed and 934,900 employed out of a civilian labor force of 1,018,600. The initial Unemployment Insurance claims totalled 18,111 for July.

The counties having the highest unemployment rates in July were Greene, with a rate of 16.8 percent; Jefferson, with a rate of 14.8 percent; and Perry, with an unemployment rate of 14.4 percent.

Rankin, Yalobusha, and Oktibbeha counties had the lowest jobless rates in July. Rankin had a rate of 4.6 percent, Yalobusha had a rate of 5.0 percent, and Oktibbeha had an unemployment rate of 5.2 percent.

Sixty-one of the state's 82 counties showed an increase in their unemployment rates for July, while 20 reported decreases. The jobless rate in one county remained the same.

(Letter from Pigskin Pete to Lee Gentry. Postmark: Hollywood, Cal.)

Dear Lee,

I am, as you well know, anxiously awaiting the upcoming football season, and am even more eagerly anticipating seeing you and Publisher Miller so that I can tell you "I told you so!"

You should have known that my many hot-blooded fans there in Prentiss County would raise Cain when you canceled my contract last year. Your foresightedness caused by the home computer influx left me high and dry with no job for this compu-chimp, however, I was undaunted and landed me a sports-prediction job here in Hollywood with the Star Seeker. This "rag" has since elevated me to the publisher's position, and is willing to take Paul Miller on a trade when I return next week to Booneville.

The fact is not so much that the offer at the Banner is much more lucrative, but that the Mediterranean Fruit Fly is absolutely devastating my bananas, leaving me without sustenance and making my banana brew undrinkable. You probably remember how much I rely on the brew to aid me in making my stunningly accurate prognostications. At this very moment there are hundreds of those blasted fruit flies hungrily circling my last remaining stalk of bananas.

Now matters closer at hand. I understand a number of changes have taken place in Prentiss County, including some major upheavals in the sports sector. I regret that Coach Curlee gave up his coaching position, but was pleased to learn that Doc Gullet has replaced him. I foresee some remarkable things happening with Doc as Coach and wish him the best, but he mustn't think that I'll give him a break in my predictions.

Let me retrogress for a while and tell you what's been going on since I began here.

Shortly after my arrival in Hollywood, I became barraged by hundreds of phone calls asking me for dates. The first one I accepted was from one of the biggest female stars in Hollywood. She wore the finest clothes, was driven in a huge black limousine, took me to the finest restaurants, including the Brown Derby, bought me thousands of dollars worth of jewelry and invited me to spend the night at her place. But, alas, she and I were not exactly suited for each other since I was so much more intelligent, and I never went out with Miss Piggy again. (I guess it was really her freaky friends, like that blasted frog, that blew the whole affair).

After my first Prognosticating column in which I predicted the 26 pro games flawlessly, I received a call from Barbara Streisand and went out with her. Even though our noses got in the way at times, we hit it off well, and have been dating each other for quite some time. But Iza Linelli is my steady, even though we don't go out to public. She absolutely satisfies my every desire and we have much in common. I happened across her one evening during a mud wrestling match on the outskirts of the city. I got so involved that I jumped into the mud ring and have had non-convivial bliss ever since.

Until this rotten fruit fly business came up. So you see, if it were not for the fruit flies, I would not be returning to Booneville this year. However, I could not refuse you when you offered me your car, your salary, all your illegitimate children and your cap.

I certainly look forward to seeing the new Northeast Stadium and am excited that the fans there can see me again or at least have the opportunity of reading my column. I understand from my sources in the Booneville area that a large number of players are on the roster for both Booneville and Northeast, and I sense a re-birth of the old football spirit in Prentiss County and the surrounding area. I'll make no predictions in this writing, but I will say that I expect Booneville and Ripley to provide the power in the Tombigbee this year, with Coach Larry Cole's squad as mean as ever. Coach Ward, I assume, will do another tremendous job at the helm of the Tigers and I'm looking forward to them bettering last year's record, which will take much dedication, teamwork and perseverance.

For all the secretaries at the Banner and in Booneville, I'll close with this little poem that hangs above my secretary's desk:

"Now my notebook I close,
My day is done, I seek repose.
If, Lord, I die tonight, of course,
I'll find my boss with dire remorse.
Please brace him up so he won't say,
'SHE WOULD DIE ON A BUSY DAY' "

Lee, I'll see you on the 11:45 p.m. refrigerated boxcar on the ICG through Booneville next Monday.

Sincerely,
PIGSKIN PETE
The Master Prognosticator

Tigers Prepare For 81 Football Opener

A squad of some 75 footballers that arrived on the Northeast campus has been cut for various reason to some 65 players according to Northeast head coach Bill Ward.

Ward, along with assistants Billy Southward, David Carnell, James Williams, and Brad White, have worked and conditioned the players hard for the first few days of practice as the Tigers prepare for the opening game of the 1981 football campaign when they travel to Copiah Lincoln.

"This is the time we see what our players are made of," Ward said. "We start out by having the players run a mile in an allotted amount of time. Some of them just couldn't cut it and some are still trying. We believe a player should at least run a mile in around seven minutes and we expect the players to do this."

The Tiger head coach said they have a lot of work to do before that opening game. Northeast lost a host of key experienced players off last year's 9-2 ballclub and the Tiger positions are going to be filled with a host of incoming freshman.

Some 30 players, all key performers, graduated from last year's ballclub and the new freshmen will have to fill in some key spots.

For the past several years Northeast had always been deep in quarterbacks but this year it seems that some new ones will have to be chosen. Top signal caller Buddy Hall is back and is in full form but last year's co-quarterback Mike Steenson is no longer on the Tiger roster. He has transferred to the University Of North Alabama where he hopes to play football.

Ward said he is still looking for backups in this position.

The Tigers have one of the best practice drills of anywhere around. Starting with the basic stretching exercises to the vigorous routines with dummies, sleds, chinups, etc.

After the exercises and drills the players are then divided into their speciality groups, offense goes to Southward and White, line goes to Ward, defense to Carnell and Jackson etc.

After this the players are then divided into their defensive and offensive groups and scrimmages against each other to see which one has the better potential.

"It will take us a while to determine who we want to start at a particular position," Ward said. "We still have several players fighting for positions and we won't know for a while just who will get those positions."

The Tiger boss said at presstime the positions needing the most work would be in the offensive line and on the receiving end. These are just two he said but he added that they staff has some two more weeks to work on this."

The Northeast mentor said they plan to work the troop hard for the remaining time to prepare for tht all important opening game.

STRAINS—Northeast Tiger Joe Carter strains here during exercise drills at the NE practice sessions. The Tigers run through a series of loosen up drills before they start practice.

Wheeler Looks For Coach

Wheeler High School principal W.F. Frasier announced this week that the school is now in search of a football coach for grades 6-8.

The Prentiss County school system has officially established a football program for some of the schools.

Frasier said the new coach would be required to teach social science and physical education.

Nesler Coaching At NE Louisiana

MONROE, La.—Larry Nesler, former Booneville High School and Northeast

Mississippi Junior College grid star, has been appointed a graduate assistant coach on the football staff at Northeast Louisiana University here.

Nesler, 24, will assist the staff of new NLU head coach Pat Collins by helping coach offensive backs and tight ends. Collins announced the appointment of five graduate assistants recently.

Nesler was a quarterback and safety at Northeast J. and at Delta State in Cleveland, Miss. He received a bachelor's degree in physical education in 1980 from the University of Mississippi.

Nesler, who was born in Baldwyn, Miss., is working toward a master's degree in health and physical education here. He was the graduate assistant coach with last spring's golf team.

He will assist in a variety of other functions, including the coordination of game films and visitations by NLU recruits. He will also help oversee player dormitory supervision and meal check and the visitors' dressing room at NLU's Malone Stadium.

Northeast Louisiana University, with an enrollment of 10,037, opens its 1981 season Sept. 5 here against Indian State. Last year, the Indians ended with a 7-4 record, appeared on ABC television and ranked No. 8 nationally in passing offense.

Collins, a two-year Northeast assistant, assumed the head job late last year after former Heisman Trophy winner John David Crow resigned to enter private business.

with a first place finish in the Blackland Tourney.

The local troop took top Blackland honors with a 17-4 win over Cedar Hill and also beat Mid South 19-6; Different Strokes of Tupelo 10-3; and Blair Community 12-7.

The squad has captured first place in the last four tourneys and this year has won or placed in 12 of 115 tournaments this season.

The overall record of the 1981 Farm Bureau squad is 71 wins against only 19 losses.

Deer Hunting: State's Most Popular Sport

JACKSON—Last year Mississippi deer hunters took more than twice the number of whitetailed deer than they did during the hunting season five years earlier, making deer hunting the most popular shooting sport in the state, according to a recent survey by the Department of Wildlife Conservation.

The total harvest of deer reached some 202,000 last year, the survey showed, compared to the 94,000 deer taken during the fall and winter hunting periods five years before.

The survey, which was mailed in March to over 11,000 licensed, resident hunters gathered information on trends in hunting harvest, hunter success, as well as opinions on issues pertaining to hunting in Mississippi.

"It was interesting that the analysis showed that on the average it took gun hunters some 12 days to kill a deer, while it took archery hunters over 22 days and primitive firearms hunters nearly 12 days to kill their deer," commented biologist Dave Steffen of Clinton.

"Now, the overall success per hunter is better," Steffen said, "since a greater percentage of the hunters are harvesting deer and taking less days to do it."

Officials say that there are a number of factors contributing to the increase in deer harvest in the state. Due to improved equipment and the number of days allowed for hunting, our deer herds are being heavily harvested in some cases.

Experts see the increase in the number of deer harvested—brought on in part by the growing number of deer hunters—as putting increased emphasis on management of the resource. Management, they say, is the key to preventing an overexploitation of any wildlife species.

Currently the Department furnishes technical guidance to individual landowners or organized groups that want the deer herd better managed in their area.

According to Steffen, the survey indicated that last year hunters of all types harvested some 158,000 buck deer and some 44,000 antlerless deer in all areas open to deer hunting. Hunters spent some 2.4 million man-days hunting deer during the open season, making it the most popular shooting sport in the state.

"Our analysis shows that we have more deer hunters—about 169,000 gun hunters now compared to 146,000 indicated in an earlier survey.

Runs From One Meet To Another

Bill Loden Has Busy Summer

By LEE GENTRY
Sports Editor

When you're a student, what do most think of when summertime rolls around. Rest, fun and relaxation.

Well, Bill Loden, son of Mr. and Mrs. Quitman Loden of Booneville, does quite the opposite.

Loden, who is a sophomore this year at Northeast, just spent his entire summer vacation on the road at numerous running events across the Mid-South.

The Booneville lad has competed in several in adjoining town runs and competed in both 3 and 6 mile events and just two weeks ago competed in a battle of the fittest in a triathlon at the Neshoba County Fair. The run is very demanding on an athlete in not on a run (seven miles) but a one half mile swim and a 27 mile bike ride all in a row.

Bill's added time on all three events was two hours and 40 minutes and when it was over he finished 142nd out of 315 qualifiers which is quite a feat for the Booneville athlete. Runners from nine states participated.

Loden has been at runs almost every consecutive week in one stage or another. "I really enjoy running," he said. "It's beginning to get a little expensive now though. When I go off to a run I normally spend either a night or the weekend."

Bill has run in meets this year at Booneville, Corinth, Itawamba, Salt-tillo, Jumpertown, Tupelo, Tusculumbia Alabama just to name a few.

He said his best time in one of the three mile events came in the Hill Country Run in Booneville when he finished fifth in a field of 100 plus runners with a 17:53 clocking.

His best overall time in a six mile event was at 40:53 but Loden said he could push himself to beat that.

The Booneville speedster, who to some amazement is only in his second year on the runners field, says he really enjoys the meets. "I do it mainly because I just like to run," he said. "I guess I'm addicted to it. When I don't get a chance to run I don't feel very well. "To me running is like some kind of a release."

Bill says he tries to stay as close to the recommended running weight as possible which is, according to him, is two pounds per inch in height.

"Of course this will indeed vary but I try to stay pretty close to this."

Loden said his time is somewhat limited now since he is attending Northeast and is also a member of the Northeast Tiger Band and says he still hopes to make a few of the Fall meets coming up.

The ones that he would like to enter include a 100 mile bike race at Lake Tiak O' Kata in Louisville; a short triathlon in Huntsville and hopefully the Huntsville Marathon set for the first of December which is 26 miles and 385 yards.

When asked if the Booneville sprinter plans to continue his running for a while, he said, "Oh yea I just like to be active and I'm really addicted to it."

Three Rebels Attend Southern Miss Camp

Three Thrasher High School basketballers recently attended the University of Southern Mississippi during the basketball camp season.

Local athletes, and the events they graduated from, include: Booneville: Gregory Pat Lauderdale, Rienzi: Roner M. Davis and George Leslie of Thrasher High School. All attended the Boys senior High Basketball Camp.

The University of Southern Mississippi School of Health, Physical Education and Recreation hosted top male and female athletes of all ages enrolled in one of six special athletic camps held on campus this summer.

The Golden Eagle staff instructed basketball, tennis and soccer players, and student trainers in athletic and medical theory, field practice, individual conditioning and development and sportsmanship.

University professors and coaches for the seminars included Coaches Bobby Collins and Jim Carmody hosting the USM Golden Eagle Football Camp; Coach M.K. Turk at the All-American Boys Basketball Camp for junior and senior high players; Louis Marciani, intramural recreational sports chairman, directing the Youth Soccer Camp, trainer-professor Jim Gallaspy conducting the advanced and beginner Student Trainer Seminars, and Dr. Larry Harrington instructing the Big Gold Tennis Camp.

Northeast Mississippi Junior College girls basketball coach Rickey Ford is without a single sophomore on the squad.

Three sophomore Tigerette performers have departed and as of presstime some 12 freshmen make up the squad.

Players who left include Debbie Brooks, Kim Coker and Ramona Patton all who played last year.

On the 1981 Tigerette roster now are, Brenda Mayes, Biggersville; Ann McBrayer, Baldwin; Lisa Stroope, Pine Grove; Tammy Lockhart, Pine Grove; Donna Rinehart, Booneville; Tina Garner, Booneville; Monte Hare, Thrasher; Debbie Oswalt, Thrasher; Janice Grizzard, Jumpertown; Regina Trussell, Tishomingo; Cathy Wright, Wheeler; and Mary McDowell, East Union.

Booneville Middle School

Problem Floor Replaced

At first it may seem a little bit odd for a principal to be so proud of a new floor.

But if you had put up with the problems that have plagued principal David Bolen in connection with the boys' restroom at the Booneville Middle School, you would probably be proud of that new floor, too.

For some time now, the tile on the restroom floor has been badly buckled and the fixtures, which were installed when the school was built 21 years ago, have needed replacing.

Bolen had planned to repair the restroom last summer with school funds he had been setting aside just for that purpose. But with the separation of the city schools from the Prentiss County school district and the financially uncertain times surrounding that separation, Bolen ended up using that money as operating capital.

This summer, the school is paying about $800 for the ceramic tile and its installation. The contractor is donating the labor and materials to tile an additional area of the entrance-way to the restroom, Bolen said.

At a cost to the school of about $91, three new toilet fixtures are replacing the old ones, he said. The original urinal will remain this year, but Bolen hopes to be able to replace it next summer.

The restroom has also received a new coat of enamel paint and the stalls are being repaired. New stall doors are being added for privacy, he said.

Bolen says the tile on the floor of the girls' restroom is also buckled, but not as bad as it was in the boys restroom. He plans to replace the tile in the girls' restroom next summer, he said.

In addition to the work in the restroom, every classroom in the school has been repainted this summer, Bolen said. The walls in the halls were repainted last summer, and they received a good cleaning this summer, he said.

THE BOONEVILLE Middle School serves grades 4, 5 and 6. This year there are to be four teachers for each grade, plus a gifted teacher, a special education teacher, a learning disability teacher, a remedial reading teacher and a physical education teacher, for a total of 17 teachers.

The Middle School is expanding its gifted program this year to include the 4th grade, Bolen said. Last year the program started with the 5th grade.

The gifted program is for students with an IQ of 120 and above. Students will be screened for the program shortly after school starts, Bolen said.

There were 305 students attending the Middle School last year. Bolen says he is hoping for 300 this year, but is realistically expecting 275-280.

"I sent Howard (Long, principal of Anderson Junior High) my biggest class last year and I'm picking up a smaller one this year," he said.

This year all grades at the Middle School will be in new, modern (published in 1979) language arts (English) and reading textbook, Bolen said.

"Textbook-wise, we're all up to date and in good shape," he said.

Extensive Work Is Being Done

Principal Mac Curlee admits it will be a race against the clock, but he says Booneville High School will be ready for the opening of school on Tuesday, Sept. 1—"even if we have to work through Monday night (Aug. 31)."

The work to which he was referring includes the re-carpeting of the floors of both the upstairs and the downstairs hallways; the re-painting of the walls in both hallways; and the replacement of the indoor-outdoor carpet in the school's entrance ways with new vinyl tile.

The upstairs classrooms have also been painted—"everything except the library and one or two classrooms which the teachers themselves painted last year," Curlee said.

The downstairs classrooms will be painted next summer, he said.

The principal's office has been moved from its familiar location to the left of the main entrance to a spot behind the school secretary's office, located across the hall from the old location.

The old principal's office has been converted into a teachers' lounge, giving the teachers better access to the main entrance. "We feel this will be more convenient for the teachers," Curlee said.

A partition separating the main entrance way from the downstairs hallway has also been removed this summer.

Principal Curlee says the floor in the gymnasium also needs repairing. He said he has talked to a contractor about sanding, re-stripping and re-finishing the floor, but he does not know whether or not the work can be done this year.

"It's kind of on the back burner right now," he said.

IN ADDITION TO the physical changes, there will also be some changes in the school's curriculum this year. New courses will be offered in economics, business math, shorthand, consumer skills, and parenting and child development, Curlee said.

For the first time, the school will go on a semester-based English program this year for grades 10, 11 and 12. Freshman English will remain unchanged.

Under the new system, students will be able to choose those English courses which will best suit their future needs. Each course will last for only one semester and will be worth 1/2 credit toward graduation.

Eight units of English (including Freshman English) will be required to graduate, Curlee said.

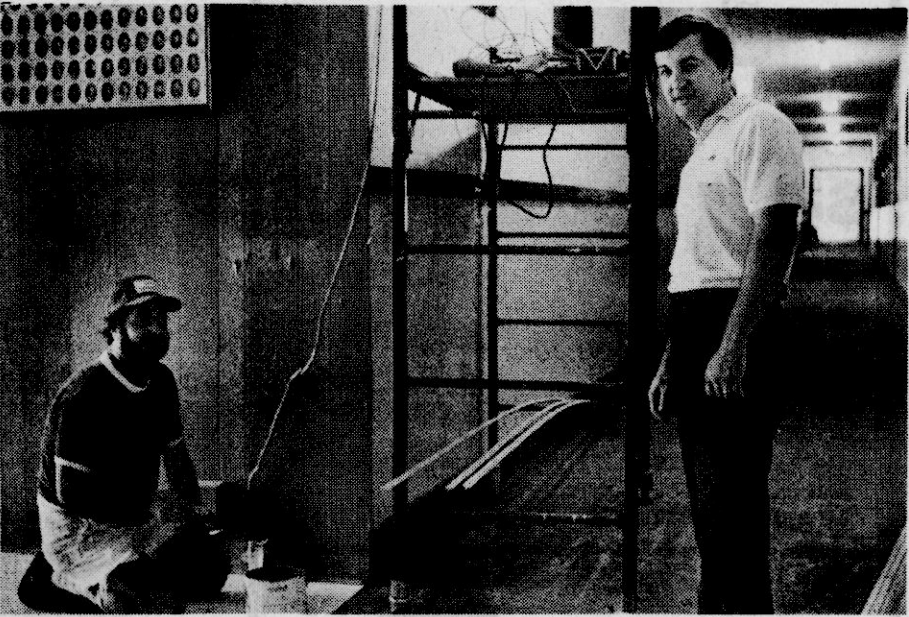

For the coming year, six semester-based English courses will be offered: Short Stories, Career English, Advanced Grammar, Intermediate Grammar, Practical Grammar, and Compositional Grammar. Additional choices are expected to be added next year.

Curlee praised Mrs. Norma Smith, chairman of the English department, for the work she has done in getting the new program started.

"We feel the semester-based program will better suit the instructional needs of our students," he said.

ENROLLMENT AT THE high school is expected to be about the same as last year—approximately 400 students, according to Curlee. He said there will be 19 teachers on the staff, including a librarian, a guidance counselor, and other profession personnel.

Due to retirement, resignation or reassignment to another school, the high school has lost four teachers from last year. Only one has been added, and this one was due to a new gifted class in Freshman English, Curlee said.

Booneville Elementary School

Staff Worked To Improve Appearance Of Building

Lee Stuart Looks Over New Books

"I guess I'm blessed," says Booneville Elementary School principal Lee Stuart. "I have an excellent faculty and staff."

Some members of that staff have been working with Stuart this summer to improve the physical appearance of the elementary school building.

They have removed a sidewalk cover from one side of the building. It was becoming rotten and was a possible safety hazard, Stuart said.

All classroom windows at the school have been sealed with putty this summer, Stuart said. There has also been some landscaping behind the school in an attempt to improve the play area, he said.

Stuart said the school is trying to move all the classes from the auditorium so that it can once again be used for programs.

The library was moved from the auditorium last year and Stuart said he hopes to move the special education class that is still scheduled to meet there to a regular classroom sometime this year.

During the last school year and throughout this summer, a large portion of the school has been repainted. The school's PTO provided a lot of help, both physical and financial, with this project, Stuart said.

He said he hopes to be able to sandblast or paint the newer portion of the building in the near future.

LAST YEAR AT the elementary school, there were about 272 students enrolled, the principal said. He expects about the same number this year.

There will be 15 teachers on the staff this year, 10 classroom teachers and five in special services programs. There were 16 teachers at the school last year, Stuart said. One retired and has not yet been replaced, he said.

During the coming year, Stuart said the school plans to explore new teaching techniques and materials.

Anderson Junior High School

Most Work Routine Maintenance

Most of the work at Anderson Junior High School this summer has involved routine maintenance, but principal Howard Long and his staff have things sparkling.

Long says he is expecting about 215 students this year at the junior high school. This is down only slightly from the 220 students at the school last year.

Anderson School will offer students the four major subjects plus band, physical education for all students, homemaking for the girls, football and basketball for the boys, and basketball for the girls.

There will also be two special education classes and a gifted class, Long said.

Fourteen teachers will be serving on the staff, including the two special ed teachers, he said.

Long, who has served with the schools in Booneville for 13 years, says the junior high building is in good shape and will be ready for classes to begin on Sept. 1.

He said last week that some new books and materials have not yet come in, but he expects no problems in getting them in time.

"NERVES"

"It's just my nerves, I've always been this way." So many patients offer this complaint to their doctor, and receive sedation and tranquilizers for their complaints. So many have to lean on alcohol just to take the edge off. This is like putting out a fire with oil. In practically all cases the hidden cause is one specific pressure point at the base of the skull, in the neck. And when specifically corrected, these patients regain a new life. Just a word of encouragement to those of you whose sleep is not normal, who are tense, or irritable, who are envious of the relaxed or easy going individual. There is a definite cause for your condition and regardless of how you treat this condition until the cause is removed you still will have "Nerves."

NO-TILL PLANTERS—Various types of no-till planters are available to farmers, with each having advantages over the other. Shown here are two types of no-till planters presently being used by farmers in Prentiss County.

Cong. Whitten: Appropriations Committee Meets Budget Needs

Cong. Jamie Whitten, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, said last week in Washington that his Committee has, to date, met the difficult task of holding down federal spending while at the same time providing for needed programs.

The Mississippi Congressman said that of the eight Appropriations bills marked up by the Committee—including Interior, Energy and Water, Transportation, Treasury and Postal Service and Agriculture—the total is more than $1.2 billion below the President's budget request.

Whitten said that "despite being restricted by the overall budget ceiling imposed by the Congress, our Appropriations Committee has been able to meet some of our special problems."

Interior

"We provided $11 million to continue the construction of the Natchez Trace," Whitten said. "Payment in lieu of taxes, where no funds were recommended by the Office of Management and Budget, is expected to be added in Conference."

Energy And Water

"In addition to providing funds for the Mississippi River and its tributaries, the Committee provided funds for the flood prevention and maintenance on the four North Mississippi Reservoirs, the Pearl River Basin flood prevention study, planning in the Yazoo River Basin as well as for Horn Lake, Cowpen and Nonconah Creeks investigations," he said. "Funding was also provided for the Appalachian Regional Commission programs."

Transportation

Language was included that would keep alive, subject to authorizing legislation, the program that helps maintain air service by regional airlines such as Republic to small cities such as Tupelo.

Military Construction

The Committee noted that work has not been initiated on the armory at Corinth and the upgrading of training ranges at Camp McCain in Grenada and directs the go-ahead of these projects.

The Committee also recommended full funding for the $11 million in facilities proposed at the Naval Air Station in Millington, and in view of the sound record of the facility and the Committee's interest in keeping its present operation, it was directed that the Navy and Navy Reserve schedule in fiscal year 1983 military construction projects required to upgrade and maintain the Naval Air Station as a viable and major Navy Reserve training center.

By C.E. CALVERT
CED Prentiss County
ASCS Office

Farmers throughout the nation are becoming increasingly aware of the need to save the fertile layer of topsoil that produces an abundant supply of food and fiber.

To accomplish this, farmers are turning to minimum tillage and no-tillage farming methods.

A recent Agricultural and Conservation Program Evaluation Report gives the average cost per ton of erosion reduction through conservation tillage as $0.98 per ton compared to the average of $2.22 per ton for the nine conservation practices studied.

This illustrates that conservation tillage has more potential for preventing water and wind erosion at less cost than most of the other practices that are currently accepted.

In order to encourage farmers to try minimum and no-till farming practices, the Agricultural Conservation Program has cost-share assistance available thru the county ASCS committee with technical assistance provided by the county SCS office.

Components eligible for cost-share assistance under no-till are chemicals, planting, and seed for temporary cover. The cost-share rate per acre is 65 percent of cost, not to exceed $24 per acre.

Cost-sharing is not authorized where the farmer has been no-tilling for three years or more. Cost-sharing for this practice may be approved for no more than three years with the same person. Land involved must be protected by crop residue or temporary cover from harvest until the next crop is planted.

Cost-sharing for reduced tillage systems is not authorized where the farmer has already adopted a satisfactory conservation tillage system of farming.

Components eligible for cost-sharing include chemicals and seed for temporary cover. Cost-sharing is limited to 65 percent of cost not to exceed $19 per acre.

To perform no-till planting a farmer should plan well in advance in order for the crop no-tilled to produce a maximum yield. The first step is to buy or have access to a planter.

Two types of planters are shown with this article. There are several types on the market and each has some advantages over the other.

The next step involves making preparation in the fall, if soybeans are to follow wheat, for the bean crop by applying fertilizer for the beans at the time wheat is seeded. This has become a widely used practice and is recommended by farmers who have used no-till farming.

The third important factor of no-till farming involves land selection. Land that is heavily infested with weeds will be harder to no-till.

Also, land that is not subject to erosion loses some of its cost effectiveness when comparing conventional farming practices and no-till.

Information on the economics of no-till and minimum tillage is available and should be obtained from the Extension Service and the Soil Conservation Service.

We must conserve our soil if we expect to have productive farmland for future generations. It has been said that it takes nature 1,000 years to develop an inch of topsoil.

GIANT CANTALOUPE—Lee Waddle of Booneville displays a 12-pound cantaloupe grown by his father, L.L. Waddle. The giant cantaloupe was one of several from the family garden on Jacinto Road. Lee said a friend gave his father the seeds and he does not know what variety they are.

THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK:

By Charles L. Potts

'But—But . . . I Cannot Cry'

(Second Article Dealing With Personal Loss)

Sometimes the shock from loss is so great that we cannot cry. Yet we should not be afraid of this lack of tears in the early stages of grief. Sometimes at the funeral home we see the sorrowing wife and find that she is almost radiant as she greets those who have come to offer her sympathy. People say, "What faith she has!" We often equate faith with a stoic attitude...not with tears. Yet the truth of the matter may well be that this woman is experiencing a temporary anesthesia...and it's helping her until she is ready to move on to the next stage of grief. The pastor will know this...and will arrange to visit her after the funeral. For one day soon this strong exterior may break...and he will be there to help her face her true self.

You will recall...if you read the first article, that this writer recently lost a brother in death. That would be the incentive for these words for everyone must work through the grief. Grief work must be done...and the sooner...the better. To be sensitive and aware...to be near the person and available...say in the wife's case above...so that if everything breaks down and comes apart you, as a friend or pastor, can help. Help only...for there is value in each person "working through" for themselves. The doctor calls this "therapeutic" value. It takes time to "cry"...for every now and then one will say, "I just can't believe it has happened." In our minds...or intellectually we know it did happen...but to accept it emotionally is the big hurdle. It's slow...but the way back is sure...as we allow ourselves to "mourn" in the best sense of that word. "Blessed are they that mourn, for they shall be comforted." May God bless as we work through.
