Passing Lanes: A Possibility, But...

By KEN CHRISTIAN
Editor

Although the chief engineer of the State Highway Department says the department is looking into the possibility of construction passing lanes between Corinth and Tupelo on Highway 45, his remarks were not very encouraging last Thursday at the annual membership meeting of the Northeast Development Association (N.E.D.A.) at Northeast Mississippi Junior College.

Chief engineer Jim Quinn was one of five speakers to address more than 100 representatives of the 13 counties that are members of N.E.D.A.

"When we talk about passing lanes, we talk about climbing lanes for trucks," Quinn said.

"Passing lanes are just like anything else, they have to be properly designed,"

he said, "and if they are not properly designed, they can create more problems than they solve."

Quinn said that, in addition to looking into passing lanes, the Highway Department is also looking into the possibility of eventually 4-laning - paralleling - Highway 45.

"Passing lanes are expensive," he said. "Even at minimum, they would probably cost in the neighborhood of $100,000 for each one, each side. We feel like it would be unwise to spend money like that now."

However, he added, "It might be that we could incorporate a passing lane into a future development for 4-laning the existing road. By working it all together, I think we would use this money to better advantage."

Referring to other speakers on the program, Quinn said, "Everything you've heard here today has been discussions of shortages of funds by all agencies. Funds are short, and I can assure you it is the same way with the Highway Department, both federal and state funds."

SPEAKING ON EDUCATION, another of N.E.D.A.'s top priorities, Tupelo businessman Jack Reed said Thursday that the way to obtain a better future for the state of Mississippi is through education.

He listed two top priorities in the field of education: public kindergartens and mandatory attendance.

"The most urgent need in education in the state of Mississippi is for kindergartens," Reed said. "We're offering 12 grades of education and the rest of the

Goodfellows Reach $3,000 Goal

Saturday night's 32nd annual Goodfellow Program exceeded its goal of $3,000, Mayor Charles Crabb said Monday.

The radiothon began at 7 p.m. and the goal was reached by 10:30 p.m. The program closed at 11 p.m. and a little over $3,000 was raised, the mayor said.

The program, broadcast from the American Legion

Building over radio station WBIP, asked listeners to phone in pledges of money to go into the Goodfellows' fund. Among other things this fund is used to purchase food baskets for the needy at Christmas time.

About 300 Christmas boxes will be prepared this year, Mayor Crabb said.

The mayor said the local Welfare Department will screen the people how get the Christmas boxes to insure that they go where they are most needed.

He said the Booneville Fire Department will package and deliver the boxes, probably Dec. 21-23. Mayor Crabb noted people have been calling the fire department requesting Christmas boxes.

"The fire department just packs the boxes. The Welfare Department selects the people who receives them. We would appreciate it if people didn't call the fire department about the boxes," he said.

Mayor Crabb said a Christmas box consists of about two dozen apples, two dozen oranges, a 1-lb. fruitcake, 1-lb. of chocolate candy, 1-lb. of orange slices, 1 lb. of pecans and a jar of peanuts. He said in addition to the Christmas boxes, that about 100 bags of fruit are also given to the needy.

Last year the Goodfellows also set a goal of $3,000. "We're trying to fill the same number of boxes as we did last year but the price of fruit and candy have increased and we would be happy to have additional donations."

"I'd like to express my appreciation to the American Legion, the auxiliary, to each civic club

Tuscumbia Couple Marks 71st Anniversary

By ANGELA SMITH
Staff Reporter

Mr. and Mrs. Clovis Fraser of the Tuscumbia community say Saturday will be just another day for them.

However, Saturday, Dec. 12, marks their wedding anniversary-their 71st wedding anniversary.

Mr. Fraser, 88, said, "Somebody was talking about our anniversary last year and he said to me, 'I don't see how you ever lived with one woman that long.' I told him that hadn't been a problem."

"She don't bother me and I don't bother her. I told him she did things her way and I did things mine and we'd still been together all these many years."

Mrs. Fraser, 90, said sometimes they did fight but that "we both win. There ain't much bossing around here."

Mr. Fraser added, "We just separate and shut-up, and one goes one way and one the other."

"I can tell you something else that's hard to believe, even to me," said Mr. Fraser. "But we have about never seen things alike. If I say 'giddy-up' she wants 'whoa' and if I say 'whoa' she wants 'giddy-up.'"

"I don't know how we've done it. We're about as opposite on ideas and things as any two people you ever saw. But it's worked out a long time."

Mr. Fraser was born in the Tuscumbia community. Mrs. Fraser (nee Willie Massey) was born in the Martin Hill community. They have lived most of their married life in Tuscumbia.

However, in 1923 the couple moved to Arkansas and lived there for about 14 years.

During that time Mr. Fraser pulled piling out of the St. Francis River. The piling was cypress that was peeled and cut-up to be used for telephone and telegraph poles.

"I had a good job. Back then you could hire anybody to work for 50 cents on to nearly nothing. Because anybody had rather work as do without something to eat. So help me, as for hard times, being broke financially and so on, I never did know we had a Depression."

When the Frasers moved to Arkansas, they made the trip in a covered wagon. Mrs. Fraser who was 7½ months pregnant when the trip was made, said she was in good health at the time and enjoyed the trip.

"I'll never forget the Sunday the baby was born," Mr. Fraser said. "At that time we were in Nettleton, a little town just the other side of Marktree, Ark., staying in the wagon in a bunch of woods across the road from a church. When the baby came I knew a doctor was over there so I had to interrupt the church services and get the doctor."

In 1926 the Fraser's son died of malaria. Mr. Fraser, too, had malaria fever at the same time. Mr. Fraser (who earned the nickname "coonskin" while he lived in Arkansas due to his love for raccoon hunting) said after he recovered from his bout with malaria his doctor told people, "If old Coonskin hadn't been a regular old bull, he would have been a dead dog!"

The Frasers are the parents of seven children, four of whom are still living. They are, W.C. Fraser of Louisville, Ky., Marie Boren of Memphis, Ella Griffin of Truman, Ark., and Opal Pitts of Booneville. The Frasers are also great-great-grandparents.

When the Frasers returned from Arkansas they made the trip home in a car instead of a wagon.

"I bought one of the first T-models that was ever put out. It had an old top you could let down and two seats. Of course it wasn't no count, but it didn't cost nothing. I think it cost about $400. I kept it for a year or two and swapped it for an A-model.

Mr. Fraser, is a retired farmer and also did quite a bit of carpentry work, he said. Mrs. Fraser milked cows and worked hard all her life, she said.

They still take care of two cows, chickens and cats, and have a garden. Mrs. Fraser has shelves of vegetables she's canned and frozen this summer. ("She's an extra good cook," he said.) She also has a variety of houseplants she tends to.

Mrs. Fraser, who was recently in the hospital, didn't do much talking the day we visited. When asked if Mr. Fraser ever let her talk, she laughed and said, "A lot of times he does. If he doesn't, I get up and leave. And if I get tired of listening at him, I just get up and walk off."

Mr. Fraser met his future wife when his older sister started giving her organ lessons. Later Fraser's sister married Miss Massey's widowed father, Rob Massey.

They both said they couldn't remember too much about their wedding ceremony 71 years ago. "We got married in a preacher's home in Booneville. I've tried to think where that was and I can't remember. I've let the memory go too long 'til I can't remember who he was."

"When we married I had a five-dollar gold piece...all the money I had in the world. I gave the preacher a dollar and he wanted me to give him the whole thing. The preacher said, 'Do you wish to contribute this?' and I said, 'Oh, no, no...just a dollar of it.' " "I don't believe there was much to the wedding ceremony. My older brother, Fred, and the preacher's wife, witnessed it. I must have passed out when we got married because I don't remember nothing else," Mr. Fraser said.

He did remember that it was a pretty day, because "we were in a buggy that didn't have a top on it and my brother just stood on the back axle of the buggy and rode to and from the ceremony."

The morning after he was married, Mr. Fraser said he began building a fence to keep his father's cattle in.

"I was helping my father fix that fence up the next day and my father sent me to a neighbor to borrow post hole diggers. The lady I borrowed the post hole diggers from said, 'Why, Clovis, here you are just got married and here you are borrowing post hole diggers!' I never will forget that," he chuckled.

When asked the secret to their successful long marriage, Mrs. Fraser said, "When we told the preacher 'I do' we meant it. We didn't intend to separate and we never did. People need to realize when they separate it's the children who suffer."

During the Fraser's marriage, fires destroyed two of the homes they lived in. And a fire also destroyed Mrs. Fraser's homeplace at Martin Hill.

But, after all, Mr. Fraser said, "We've been the luckiest two people in the world. We managed to have pretty plenty all of our lives ever since we married."

And they both agreed if it was all to be done again, they wouldn't change a thing.

Practice Fire Safety During Christmas Holiday

This Christmas make sure Santa and his reindeer, not the men from the fire department, are the only ones on your rooftop!

The very things which make Christmas a favorite holiday can reduce the season to a time of tragedy if fire safety precautions are not observed, says Booneville Fire Chief Frank Fleming.

During the busy holiday season it's especially important that children are never left alone or without proper supervision, even for a short time, and that each family have a well-rehearsed escape plan for use in case of a fire emergency.

Chief Fleming offered some guidelines to remember during the Christmas season.

Chief Fleming said when selecting a live Christmas tree, the tree should be fresh-looking and firm-needed. Saw off the butt an inch above the original cut, stand the tree in water, and keep it in water until the tree is disposed of, soon after Christmas Day.

The tree should be set up away from heat and where it won't block doorways or stairs. With metal trees, use only indirect lighting to avoid the possibility of electric shock, Chief Fleming said.

Check lighting strings for frayed wires, loose connections, and broken sockets. Replace only with Underwriters' Laboratories (UL) labeled sets. Never overload an extension cord and don't run wiring under carpet. Keep cords away from heat and don't hook cords over nails.

Always turn off tree and other indoor holiday lighting when leaving the house or retiring for the night. Use only UL-listed sets for outdoor lighting.

Noncombustible materials such as metal, glass and asbestos should be used for decorations as much as possible.

Natural evergreen decorations dry quickly, burn readily, and should be well removed from candles, the fireplace and other heat, he said. Don't use polystyrene foam for table or mantle decorations where there are lighted candles.

He said gift wrappings should be disposed of promptly and safely--not in the fireplace.

"Be especially careful during the Christmas season to keep matches and cigarette lighters out of the reach of children, and try to keep the youngsters from playing beneath or near the Christmas tree," he said.

BIBLE QUESTION BOX

QUESTION: Mr. Hogland, I am interested in the question of marriage. My wife and I could not get along so we divorced. What does the Bible say about this?

ANSWER: This question has plagued many people. The scriptures give only one exception for divorce and remarriage. It is for cation as found in Matt. 19:8,9 and Matt. 5:32. If there is ny other in the Bible I have failed to find it. It is true tha many people divorce and remarry but this does not mea that God approves such action. I might add that ignorance of the law does not excuse one (see Acts 17:30). The problem is that many people do not take marriage as serious as the Bible makes it. If people would take more time and scriptural consideration before going into marriage, it would stop many of the problems. I might add that death does free one to marry again. That is the death of a companion (Rom. 7:2). It is true if one repents God will forgive, but remember the Bible teaches one must bring forth fruit worthy of repentance. That is, one cannot continue to live in sin after repentance takes place. This is true of all sins including fornication.

From A Singing Petunia... ... To Dreams Of Broadway

Carla Bonds

A University of Mississippi student from Booneville, who started her singing career as a petunia in an onion patch, has blossomed into an entertainer with real showmanship.

Carla Bonds, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R.J. Bonds of Booneville, transferred to Ole Miss this fall from Northeast Mississippi Junior College. She has since become recognized as one of the most talented voice students on the Ole Miss Campus.

In her first semester at Ole Miss, Carla auditioned successfully to become a member of the song-and-dance team, the Connection as well as the Concert Singers and the Women's Glee Club. She also performs with the Tupelo Community Choir, which will perform a Christmas in concert with the Tupelo Symphony Orchestra at 2 p.m. this Sunday afternoon in the Seth Pounds auditorium at Northeast Junior College.

CARLA'S SUCCESS

may be attributed to her early start—she was singing as soon as she could talk, often performing with the radio disc jockey by singing along during his morning jingle.

She made her public debut as a first grader, singing "I'm a Lonely Little Petunia in an Onion Patch" before the school PTA. In later years, she sang solos and Christmas songs in church.

Now Carla is a junior in music education at Ole Miss, studying voice with Cynthia Linton, assistant professor of music.

"I was very impressed with Carla when she auditioned," Ms. Linton said. "She seemed very uninhibited and very communicative. When Carla gets in front of an audience, she comes alive."

"Performing is more than a beautiful voice—it's also eyes, face and emotion," Ms. Linton said. "Singers have to communicate with the audience. They can have glorious voices but if their faces are dead, then it leaves audiences cold."

FOR CARLA, being a performer means practicing, often from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. After years of vocal exercises and development, her voice ranges from a second alto, the lowest female voice, to a high first soprano.

Practicing includes breathing exercises and constant improvement on tone and quality. Also, she spends many hours in the music library, listening to translations of songs in foreign languages to learn the words and to help with expressing the music.

Carla's dream is to follow in the footsteps of her idol, Beverly Sills, by performing on Broadway or with the Metropolitan Opera.

"I wouldn't mind teaching when I'm older," she said, "but first I'd love to hit Broadway. I want to perform, but the breaks are few and far between. My best will take me as far as I can go."

Construction Changes Approved On Dorms

At their regular monthly meeting Tuesday afternoon, the Northeast Mississippi Junior College Board of Trustees voted for four changes concerning the two dormitories under construction on the NE campus.

"These additional four changes will bring back into the program some of the quality that we omitted in our efforts to try to get within the bids. At the beginning we didn't include a lot of quality items we wanted added and now we can afford them," NE President Harold T. White said.

The changes call for fiberglass tub-shower combinations to be constructed in the women's dorm instead of only showers; the concrete blocks in the men's dorm will be plastered over instead of being left bare; concrete blocks at the stairwells of the women's dorm will also be plastered over; and the parking spaces at both dorms will be concrete. The total cost of the change order will be $47,753.

In other business, the board ratified bids received at the November board meeting for office supplies, and building supplies for the Manpower Center and Yellow Creek.

The board also accepted and approved bids for the printing of the alumni newsletter, supplies for Yellow Creek, Audio-Visual Equipment, welding supplies, audio tape players, steel I-beam, and propane gas for the Manpower Center.

The board also voted for a change in class attendance policy, revisions in curriculum, and adjustment of student fees.

The board also voted to advertise for bids for new college catalogs, college stationery, college name tags and cosmetology and electronic supplies.

The board also accepted the resignation of Mrs. Donna Strickland, an instructor in the associate nursing degree program.

country is offering 13 grades of education."

Reed said opposition to establishing public kindergartens during the legislative session last year came from two major sources.

One is "fundamental church groups who said you're taking the child out of the home and making him a ward of the state," he said. "They were ignoring the fact that the kindergarten that is proposed is a voluntary matter; it is not mandatory."

"The other opposition came from many superintendents of education who did not think they had enough money to run the 12 grades they've got and they didn't want another one," Reed said. "Kindergartens must be funded adequately so that it is not a burden on these people."

Reed said Mississippi has a dropout rate of 59 per 100 students. "Twenty-two percent of our people are below the poverty level; 10 percent are below the national average. By almost any professional judgement in education, we rank last -- and we're slipping further behind."

"If we don't give a damn about improving the quality of public education in the state of Mississippi, we will never know what it is to enjoy the basic economic benefits of every other state in the union," Reed said.

OTHER SPEAKERS ON Thursday's program included Eddie Washington of the Department of Economic Development; Larry Otis, incoming director of the Tombigbee River Valley Water Management District; and keynote speaker Judge Niles McNeel of the Fifth Circuit Court.

Speaking on the state's Key Community Program, Washington said 51 communities in the state have applied for the program. "Twelve have been awarded Key Community status," he said.

Washington said his department has helped locate 55 new manufacturing plants in the state this year and helped 55 others expand. He said this has added several thousand jobs to the state's payroll.

Otis indicated that many state and local agencies will have to tighten their belts this year. The state's share of federal funds will be cut by some $450 million he said. That amounts to almost one-fourth of the state's budget, he added.

Judge McNeel said that the prevailing mistrust of public officials by the people results from people feeling that they have lost control of the events that affect them.

To attack the problems the nation and the state face today, he said, people need to return to the principle that has worked before: self-sacrifice for the common good instead of for self-interest.

DURING THE MEETING, N.E.D.A. president Stewart Vail asked those present to fill out forms indicating on which of the four N.E.D.A. committees they would be willing to serve.

A tabulation of those forms indicated that 37 percent would serve on the education committee, 32 percent on the industrial development committee, 21 percent on the state and federal programs committee, and 11 percent on the transportation committee, Vail said.

State Health Officer Speaks To Rotary

Dr. Alton Cobb, state health officer, was the guest speaker at the regular weekly meeting of the Booneville Rotary Club held in the Frank Haney Union Tuesday.

Dr. Cobb told the Rotarians that Mississippi was one of the first states to form a state health department.

He said Mississippi was fortunate not to have a high turnover of employees at the State Board of Health. Dr. Cobb is only the fourth public health officer for Mississippi.

"We have a stable board of health situation. Gov. Winter recommended the board be re-organized to include physicians and people from public life. So it was reorganized and I've enjoyed working with the reorganized board," Dr. Cobb said.

He noted that Mississippi was the first state to organize health departments in each county.

He said there are 1,800 employees statewide, which include county and district health programs.

Some of the new problems faced by the State Board of Health include cancer, stroke, and accidents. He said chronic diseases and accidents are the leading causes of death.

He also said, "The increase of suicide and homicide rates of young adults is alarming."

Dr. Cobb also spoke briefly on the immunization program.

He said since the legislature passed the child immunization act three years ago, over 98 percent of kindergarten children through age 12 are immunized; over 90 percent of day-care children are immunized; and 58 percent of two-year-old children are fully immunized.

"Our county health departments represent a mainstay in health maintenance. Over 400,000 immunizations were given last year," Dr. Cobb said.

Rotarians were told that Mississippi has the highest new case rate for tuberculosis. Although the sanitarium in McGee was closed, Tupelo cares for TB patients, Dr. Cobb said.

"We save about $1 million a year by not using the state institution. Patients get quality care and it's less expensive by using area hospitals."

Dr. Cobb also said that about 300,000 Mississippians have hypertension.

"The cheapest thing we could be doing to prevent strokes is to treat people with hypertension. An early preventive effort will save lives and money," he said.

Dr. Cobb said that across the country, the proportion of a dollar is spent this way—98 cents goes to treatment of the disease and only 2 cents is used for both private and public prevention.

He said that although childhood diseases have been controlled, lung cancer continues to rise and also cirrhosis of the liver.

He said there are four things that determine health status: genes, environment, life style, and health services—either private or public.

Concerning the budget cuts, Dr. Cobb said, "We can't expect tax funds to pay for everything. The county health departments charged for flu shots this year and they ran out of the vaccine."

"A man told me the flu shot seemed to do better this year because he paid for it," he said.

'Talk O' The Town'

Street Opinion Poll

QUESTION: Since it appears unlikely that U.S. 45 between Corinth and Tupelo will be 4-laned any time soon, are you in favor of the Highway Department building passing lanes there, even if the expense any further delay the eventual 4-laning?

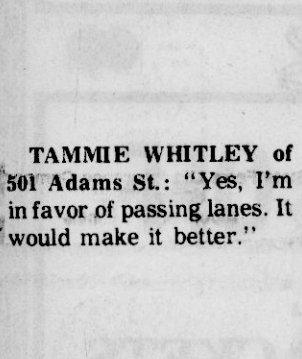

GEORGE BRIMINGHAM of Route 6, Booneville: "I think passing lanes would be good. A lot of people take chances passing in a dangerous place. It would be safer with passing lanes."

NELL DAVIS of Route 2, Booneville: "I just moved back from California and I don't know too much about the roads. But the way it is now is very dangerous. I think passing lanes would save lives. But I think the highway should be 4-laned. There is a lot of traffic on the road and it's dangerous."

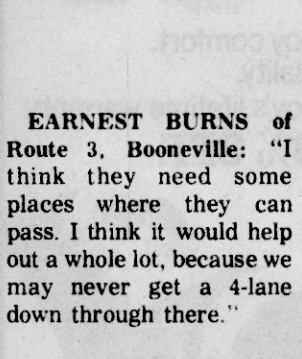

SHIRLEY HARE of Route 5, Booneville: "No. I think it would be better to wait and 4-lane it. We don't need to delay 4-laning any longer than necessary."

TAMMIE WHITLEY of 501 Adams St.: "Yes, I'm in favor of passing lanes. It would make it better."

JAY CALTON of South Lake Street, Booneville: "Yes. Sure I'm for passing lanes. Expense is no object because we waste more than that picking up garbage. I can't see what's taking them so long to decide this. It should have already been done. We should have had passing lanes years ago."

EARNEST BURNS of Route 3, Booneville: "I think they need some places where they can pass. I think it would help out a whole lot, because we may never get a 4-lane down through there."

(Editor's note: "Talk O' The Town" is not intended as a scientific poll of public opinion. Rather, it is simply intended to give Prentiss Countians an opportunity to voice their opinions on particular issues and topics. Maybe we'll ask you next!)

Reflections By Ken Christian

It was one year ago this week that former Beatle John Lennon was gunned down in front of his New York City apartment house.

Only a few weeks ago Egyptian president Anwar Sadat was slain on an Egyptian street.

And, in office for less than a year, President Reagan has already been shot once and is currently thought to be the target of a Libyan assassination squad.

Unfortunately for the average citizen, violent crimes are not limited to the well-known members of our society.

At no time in the nation's recent history have Americans been more concerned about crime and violence than they are today. A Lou Harris poll conducted in February 1981 indicated that a 68-percent majority of Americans believe there is more crime in their community today than there was a year ago.

In a survey conducted on March 23, Newsweek magazine found that three out of four Americans feel that criminals are much more violent today than they were five years ago.

A survey conducted by George Gallup on April 6 indicates that fear of crime has steadily grown to the point where nearly half of all Americans are now afraid to walk alone at night near their homes -- and as many as one in six admit to being fearful even when at home.

Traditionally, crime is cited as the major reason residents of large cities flee to suburbia. However, the growth in fear of crime is also pronounced in smaller towns and rural areas, where today one out of every three residents is afraid to venture out alone after dark in his or her own neighborhood.

A national survey by the Los Angeles Times, conducted Feb. 2, 1981, showed that three out of 10 Americans worry "very frequently" about someone in their family being sexually assaulted or mugged, and one of every four have found that crime and violence make it "very difficult" for them to get any "satisfaction out of life."

WHAT ARE THE causes of this rising crime rate and what can be done about it?

The Harris poll conducted on Feb. 23 found that 83 percent of the public believes the criminal justice system deals with offenders too lightly. Similarly, the Gallup poll conducted in April reported that a large majority of Americans believe the nation's legal system should come down much harder on criminals, especially those with guns.

Even before the shooting of President Reagan, 67 percent of the public indicated they favor stricter control on the sale of handguns, although a majority still balk at an outright ban.

On March 1, Gallup conducted a poll which found public support for the death penalty to be at its greatest level in 28 years. Sixty-seven percent of Americans now favor capital punishment, he reported, up from 49 percent in 1978 and 42 percent in 1966.

In their survey on Feb. 2, the Los Angeles Times found that one of every three Americans now favor the sterilization of habitual criminals. The Times also reported that an overwhelming majority of the public would like their local governments to hire more police, and that 46 percent of the nation's residents believe more police should be hired -- even if it means higher taxes.

Eyes On Mississippi

Auditor's Job Is 'Closed Position'

By BILL MINOR
Columnist

JACKSON, Miss.-- State Auditor Hamp King, who will be 74 before his term ends in January 1984, has finally decided not to seek re-election next time, a move many around state government expected him to make in the last state election two years ago when one of his old colleagues among state elected officials, Heber Ladner, stepped out as Secretary of State.

What may come as a surprise to the state electorate is that King's successor as State Auditor may have already been selected by a small group in the Auditor's office, with King's blessing. Unless tradition is broken, then the state's voters who go to the polls in 1983 will merely be ratifying the choice for State Auditor handed down through a unique self-perpetuating system that has been going on the last 40 years.

If no other office in Mississippi state government has the hand-me-down system worked as successfully as it has in the State Auditor's job. Actually, however, the system hasn't been really tested since 1963 when King was first elected to the post. Ever since, King has been re-elected without opposition.

But with King stepping down, the machinery has been cranked up again and the heir apparent has been picked by a "committee" within the department as to which present member of the Auditor's staff will be the in-house candidate.

It's not at all surprising that the nod was given to Mason Shelby, the longtime deputy under King, who has been ambitions for years to move up to the top job. Shelby stoically stood aside back in 1979 when King changed signals and decided to put his name on the ballot just one more time.

Shelby is already out around the state making appearances for King in meetings and conferences with county supervisors and other county officials, and letting it drop that he will be running for State Auditor next time.

Moreso, Shelby is said to also be showing up when field auditors are making their annual audits of county governing officials at the county courthouse, letting the local officials know their support of his candidacy will be appreciated next time.

While most persons around state government find Shelby a likeable, easy-going fellow, those who deal with matters relating to corruption in county government are concerned that he has been to much of a Good Ole Boy with the county officials.

There's some criticism that he has been something of a Mr. Fixit when he learns of minor irregularities by county officials who have failed to follow procedures prescribed by law for purchasing or bidding. The word is that Shelby frequently steps in and tells the officials how they can go back and correct their records or the board minutes in order to pass muster with the field audit.

While the State Auditor's office and the State Department of Audit have been caught in no scandals other than the recent disclosures of field auditors taking steaks for Jackson County Supervisor Eddie Khayat, the impression (Continued on Page 14)

Why Locks And Alarms?

Dear Editor,

Deputy Sartin's statement (in a story in last week's paper), "there is...no method you can use to burglar-proof your house..." while correct in absolute terms, is nevertheless misleading in practical terms.

The purpose of locks and alarms is to slow down burglars and increase their risk of detection.

Burglars want to go in and out as quickly and quietly as possible, especially in populated residential areas. Since burglaries are completed in less than 5 minutes, time is definitely a major factor in crime prevention.

If it takes too long, or if the chance of getting caught is too great, most burglars would go somewhere else.

Locks and alarms offer practical security; they were never intended to provide absolute security. Given the right tools, enough time and determination, it would be possible for anyone to break into anything. My job is to make the possibility less practical. Remember, even Fort Knox is not burglar-proof, only burglar-resistant.

Ponderings By Angela Smith

A BLUE CHRISTMAS

The people I talked to this weekend all seemed to be concerned about one thing...the high number of break-ins that have been occurring recently in Prentiss County.

The number of break-ins occurring in the county is a hot topic of discussion because people are worried they will be the next victim. And since no section of the county has remained free from thieves, it seems to be a legitimate worry.

I heard people say they are afraid to leave their homes for fear of their homes being broken into. And they said, if they do leave home, they are afraid to return to what they might or might not find.

And the people I spoke with are afraid to leave Christmas presents under the Christmas tree, because a thief might steal them. Instead, some have decided to wrap empty boxes and place them under the tree, so as not to risk the loss of gifts.

I also heard a person say that if the press didn't write so many stories about the break-ins, the problem might decrease. Or as he said, "The newspaper just tells them how to go about breaking into homes."

I don't believe that. I believe it is the duty of the press to report break-ins occurring. And with the high number of break-ins occurring lately, it would seem as if thieves are too busy to read.

We all know law enforcement officers can't patrol the entire county at once.

Therefore, as a deputy suggested last week, people need to participate in a neighborhood watch. It all boils down to this--we must all band together...watch our neighbors' homes when they are away and report anything suspicious to law authorities.

Changing The Subject

On a happier note, I saw some beautiful Christmas decorations on Jacinto road (above Tusculumbia Church) Monday night.

Mr. and Mrs. O.D. Stites have their yard covered in beautiful lights (as they did last year). In the yard are two trees decorated with lights, a snowman, two sets of Mary, Joseph and baby Jesus, Santa Claus, and a drummer boy. Lights are also on the windows and sides of the house.

Mrs. Stites said her husband, and the Mormon missionaries began putting the Christmas decorations up Thanksgiving Day.

F.L. Cosby, who lives across the road from the Stites', also has a beautiful yard, as he had last year.

In his yard sits Santa Claus in a sleigh pulled by seven reindeer, including Rudolph, complete with red nose. Mr. Cosby constructed the reindeer, Santa, and sleigh himself--without a pattern, he said.

He said next year he hopes to have a new set of reindeer that will be even more realistic looking.

Mr. Cosby told me his son, Larry Joe, brought back the horns for the reindeer after a hunting trip in Colorado.

The toys in the sleigh are the only thing Mr. Cosby and his family did not construct. The toys belong to his grandchildren.

He said a Sunday school class from Tennessee had even called inquiring when he would have the reindeer-Santa scene set up.

There are also other houses on the Jacinto Road that are decorated for Christmas. If you enjoy looking at Christmas decorations, you'll want to drive through Tusculumbia.

A Tusculumbia Couple

Although this is beginning to sound more like "Tusculumbia News" than my column (Ramblings) as I heard it described this week! I have to mention how much I enjoyed meeting Mr. and Mrs. Clovis Fraser of the Tusculumbia Community.

When Mr. Fraser told me he and his wife, Willie, would celebrate their 71st wedding anniversary Saturday, I couldn't believe it. But then I even found it hard to believe him when he told me his age--88.

He and his wife both have a wonderful sense of humor or "giddalong" as he calls it. "Laughing is what makes me get a long," he said.

I wish them a happy 71st wedding anniversary and many more.

Collecting Cans Nets $875 To Fight CP

By PAUL MILLER
Publisher

Question: When is an empty can more than an empty can?

Answer: When it is made of aluminum and is given to Mr. and Mrs. Billy Bonds of Booneville.

It then becomes a cash contribution to a program that touches more than a hundred Prentiss County families, plus another 10,000 families from 28 counties in four states.

The Bonds collect and sell scrap aluminum and donate the proceeds to the Regional Rehabilitation Center in Tupelo.

They started the drive in February of this year as a memorial to their daughter, Kathy, a cerebral palsy victim who died Dec. 7, 1980, the date of the annual CP radio-thon.

Since February, the Bonds have collected more than 62,000 cans which weighed a total of 2,696 pounds and netted $825 in cash. A check for the amount was presented to John (Red) Rasberry, executive director of the Center, during the radio-thon Sunday.

"We've had so much help from the people of Booneville and Prentiss County in collecting the cans," Mrs. Bonds said. "Friends, neighbors and people we don't even know save cans and bring them to our home. Many businesses and local plants help us by saving cans. And sometimes people leave bags full when we aren't at home, and we never know who it was."

"Gasoline is too expensive to drive just to pick up cans on the side of the road," Bonds said. "But we seldom make a trip anywhere that we don't stop from time to time to pick up cans. In fact, we often take the long way around just to travel a road where we haven't picked up cans recently."

The Regional Rehabilitation Center depends on the money raised during its annual radio-thon to supplement its governmental appropriations and meet its annual budget. Sunday's radio-thon brought in $35,258, which is $3,742 short of the goal. But the Bonds family did its part in raising the $5,700 that come from Prentiss County.

"We hope to do better next year," Bonds said. "We want everybody to know how much we need and appreciate their help. And we want them to know we will continue collecting and selling cans this year, and every year, to help what we know is a worthy cause. There wasn't much the Center could do for our Kathy, but we have seen so many other people they have helped so much."

In 1981, more than 100 Prentiss Countians received speech, physical and occupational therapy at the Tupelo Center. They were a part of the 10,247 patients from 25 counties in Mississippi, three in Alabama, one in Tennessee and one in Utah.

"We hope everybody will continue to help," Bonds said. "They can bring the cans to our home at 502 S. Lake Street, or it they want us to pick them up, they can call us at 728-7860."

The Bonds have opened a special bank account for the money and will let the funds accumulate until the next radio-thon in December 1982.

FIGHTING CEREBRAL PALSY—Mr. and Mrs. Billy Bonds of Booneville present a check for $875 to Red Rasberry (right) of the Regional Rehabilitation Center in Tupelo. The money was presented in memory of the Bonds' daughter, Kathy, a CP victim who died in December, 1980. The Bonds raised the money by collecting and selling aluminum cans.

No Albert Schweitzers, But

Missionaries Share Their Beliefs

To some the word "missionary" conjures up visions of an elderly Albert Schweitzer plying his medical skills in the jungles of darkest Africa. But to those who have met a Mormon missionary, the vision is often decidedly different.

Take for example two young Mormon missionaries currently serving in Prentiss County - Elder Rollin Gardner, 20, of Afton, Wym., and Elder Jefferey Hybarger, 19, of Las Vegas, Nev.

These young men are no Schweitzers but they are among some 30,000 college men and women who travel about the country in pairs from town to town and door to door to share their religion.

These young "elders" and "sisters" take time out from their education or vocational pursuits to "serve a mission" for two years at their own or their families' expense.

The missionaries ride bicycles. They ride buses. A fortunate few - such as Elders Gardner and Hybarger - travel by automobile. But, mostly they walk. Two by two, they weather the elements, parry barking dogs and, when invited into a home, "preach the gospel of Jesus Christ."

In generally spartan living quarters, they rise early and retire early ending the day with prayer and scripture study. They are required to abstain from dating and forego such back-home activities as swimming, skiing, surfing, dancing, and rock music. But they do take a day off once a week to catch up on laundry, writing letters home, and acceptable recreation.

While the primary purpose of Mormon missionary efforts is to help other people change their lives for the better, the missionary himself benefits personally from the experience. Being exposed to varied cultures, learning to interact with different kinds of people on a daily basis and, in some cases, mastering a second language often enhance later success in various professional endeavors.

Prentiss County is the first missionary assignment for Elder Hybarger. He has been here for about 1½ months. Elder Gardner just arrived in Booneville last week, but has spent the past year as a missionary in various communities in Arkansas.

Once they have completed their two years of missionary work, both Gardner and Hybarger plan to attend college.

Gardner plans to attend the University of Wyoming, majoring in Agriculture. He plans to go into dairy farming and help out with the family dairy.

Hybarger said his future plans are not definite yet, but he definitely plans to attend college - probably Brigham Young University or Rick's College. He said he may enter the engineering field.

Both young men said they have been favorably impressed with Mississippi and Mississippians. "We like the people down here," Elder Gardner said. "They're really nice."

Anyone who would like to talk to Elder Gardner or Elder Hybarger about their missionary work, can contact them at 728-8248 before 8:30 a.m. or after 9 p.m. At any other time of day, they are most apt to be out on the streets of Booneville and Prentiss County, serving their mission.

Letters to Santa from elementary school classes are welcomed if any area teachers wish to have their students write Santa. However, these letters must also be in the Banner-Independent office by next Thursday to appear in the paper.

Correction On MSU Graduation Date

Due to incorrect information supplied by the university, it was incorrectly announced in last week's paper that graduation exercises will be held Dec. 15 for Mississippi State University students who are scheduled to graduate at the conclusion of the 1981 fall semester.

Commencement exercises for December 1981 and May 1982 will take place May 14 in Humphrey Coliseum.

Miss Godkin And Mr. Beck Wed

Karen Godkin and Anthony Beck were married Aug. 29 at the East Pleasant Ridge Baptist Church in Wheeler. The Rev. Jimmy Wallis officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Skyner of Booneville and the groom is the son of Mrs. Carolyn Robinson of Booneville and Harold Beck of New Site.

The bride wore a gown of white satin, overlaid with old fashion lace on the bodice. The trim was repeated in ruffles around the scooped neckline and in cascades to the hem of the A-line gown.

The chapel-length veil completed the illusion of an "old fashioned" bride.

Judy Smith of Lyons, N.Y., served her neice as matron of honor. Pamela Godkin, sister of the bride, Michelle Downs, sister of the groom, and Regina Mackin of Iuka served as bridesmaids. All wore old-fashioned formal gowns of blue.

Jennifer Skyner, sister of the bride, served as flower girl.

Nathan Berryman of Memphis served as best man. Brian Johnson, Wesley Martin and Billy Downs served as groomsmen.

Several out of state guests attended the afternoon ceremony, including the bride's maternal grandmother, Mrs. Lucille E. Smith of Lyons, N.Y.

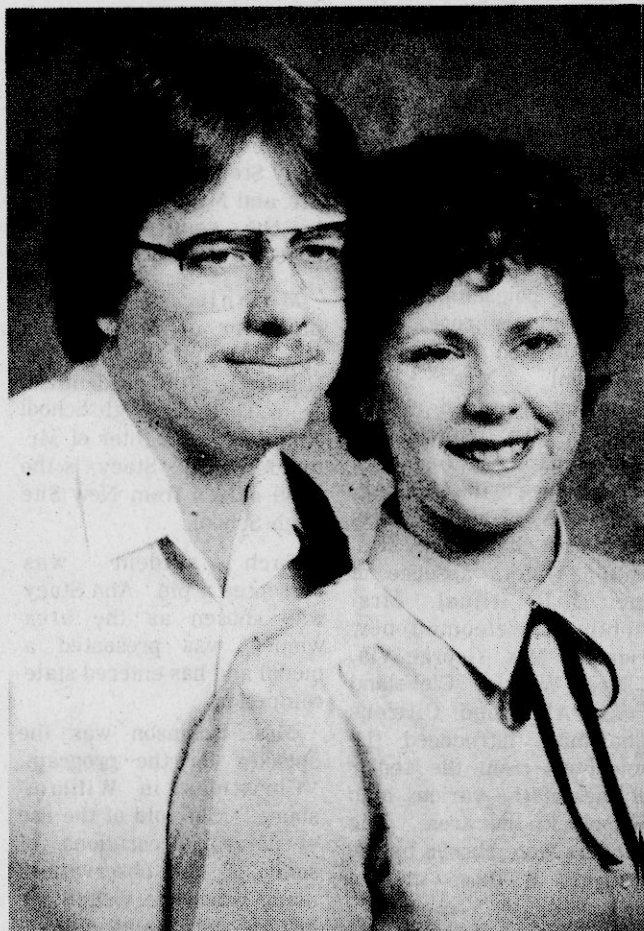

Following the wedding, a reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church. Another, more intimate reception was held later in the evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Skyner.

After a week-long honeymoon on the coast, the couple returned to make their home in Booneville where both are employed at McDonalds.

A photographic exhibit of Natchez children during the Victorian era is now on display at the State Historical Museum in Jackson.

The photographs are the work of Henry Norman, a professional photographer in Natchez from 1870 until his death in 1913. Now owned by Joan and Thomas Gandy of Natchez, the pictures will be on display until Jan. 31.

With his camera, Henry Norman recorded Natchez city life, the river, the surrounding countryside and the people. Much of his portrait work was done in his studio, where black, white, wealthy and poor came to have their pictures made.

The portraits on exhibit are a sampling of late 19th and early 20th century children with their favorite toys or animals and dressed in their finest garb.

In 1960 Thomas Gandy, a Natchez physician interested in history, purchased 70,000 negatives, as well as prints and cameras

Our sympathy is expressed to the Young family, whose brother recently passed away. We pray God's richest blessing on them and that the Lord will lead and guide them and take them through this hour of loss.

We're glad to know that Mrs. Patricia Williams and daughter, Dale, are at home from the hospital and recovering from their wreck during the Thanksgiving holidays.

Choir No. 2 had their choir day at Wolf Creek Sunday. The Rev. Eddie Jumper and his two choirs were guests for the afternoon. They really had good services.

Beckley Chapel also had a program Sunday, with Mrs. Ada Christian delivering the message of the hour. We know it was a very inspiring message and hate that we missed it.

Little Thomas Shelley III is back in the Tupelo hospital. We're praying that the Lord will touch him again and raise him up.

We also send our prayers out to David Williams, Will Peoples and all other sick and shut-ins.

On the third Sunday, Wolf Creek will have their Christmas program. Everyone is invited to come out and be with them.

Happy birthday wishes go to our mother of the church, Mother Julia Johnson. We pray God's richest blessings upon her.

The Lord has blessed her health. She's been through many trials and tribulations, many hardships, but the Lord has blessed her to be here with her great-grandchildren. We express our deepest love for her and pray that she will be here for many, many, more birthdays.

As Christmas approaches, 'Til next week...

we ask everyone to be careful, be considerate of others, and be prayerful. So many things happen during the holidays we're just asking people to be very, very careful.

We're glad that Mrs. Linda Edmond and Mrs. Geraldine Johnson are doing better and were able to come back to church on Sunday. Don't forget to carry your children to Sunday School Sunday.

Cathy Rhecko is back home after spending Thanksgiving with relatives in Illinois.

Gary Coats is home on leave for a week or more. He will be stationed at Fort Lee, Va. He will have the good wishes of his relatives and friends.

The Calvin Barbers are home. He was the speaker in a short meeting with the Lee Acres congregation. In his absence, lessons were presented by Larry Kennedy and Myron Coats. More and more men and boys are taking part in directing song service, scripture reading, prayer, and serving at the Lord's table.

Misty Dees was sick today, Dec. 6. Her daddy stayed home with her.

Mrs. Arthur Barnes was absent Sunday morning, being sick at home.

Mrs. Frances Hughes, mother of Kathryn Koon, is seriously ill in the North Mississippi Medical Center in Tupelo.

Mrs. Vester Coats kept her appointment with Dr. Shipp on Friday, Dec. 4. He said the pressure remained the same in her right eye, but her eyes are weaker.

Aunt Myrtie Harris has not felt any better the past few days. Neither has Brenda Dawson.

Belated birthday greetings to Steve Wilson, a grandson in Decatur, Ala., and to my sister, Mrs. Fay Mann, who lives in Sheffield, Ala.

Chuck Eldridge of Booneville is in the Northeast Mississippi Hospital, room 118. He is better.

Ann Wigginton, my niece, had surgery Friday, Dec. 4, at the local hospital. She's home now and hopes to be able to return to her job Monday.

The meeting got off to a good start today with Bro. Paul Murphy speaking. This morning, Dec. 6, he spoke on "The Power of the Gospel." He is accompanied by his wife and they will enjoy meals with various families.

Coming up soon will be the "Bible Bowl," conducted by the Liberty Church at Dennis, Miss. Hopefully, several of the teachers will carry pupils to compete.

Belated sympathy goes to the relatives of Mrs. Joyce Dains, sister of Senita Coats.

Also, sympathy is extended to Mrs. H.F. Billingsley, whose husband died last week.

In closing: "It is well to put off till tomorrow what you ought not to do at all."

THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK:

By C. D. Edge

100% Natural

Get back to nature, we are told. NATURAL FOODS - We plant home gardens and avoid food with too many added chemicals. NATURAL LIVING - We flock to campgrounds and parks. We try to stop pollution in our lakes so we can swim and fish. NATURAL BEHAVIOR - We tell each other to do what comes naturally and then get mad when people act differently.

We forget the most natural behavior of all - WORSHIPING GOD. Is worshiping God natural? Yes, there is a need in the heart of man to worship God. It is the natural need of God's love by all. Well, why do so many turn their backs on God? Because like natural foods and natural living and natural behavior, they have been polluted BY SIN. The result is plainly stated in Rom. 3:23 - ALL HAVE SINNED AND COME SHORT OF THE GLORY OF GOD.

Thank God there's a NATURAL WAY BACK to God. In Jesus Christ who died for us and now lives for us, we can again worship God. II Cor. 5:17 tells us - IF ANY MAN BE IN CHRIST, HE IS A NEW CREATURE. That new man can talk with God and walk with God naturally.

Let's get back to nature - our true 100 percent nature.
Let's get back to God!

Library Notes

By LEE DAVIS
Librarian
George E. Allen Library

For those few quiet moments you may be able to treasure during the Christmas holidays, have on hand a variety of reading matter and music to suit the many moods of Christmas.

The George E. Allen Library staff wishes you all the blessings of the season. In our collection are many things to add to your pleasure in it.

We invite you to enjoy the exhibits new being displayed at the library. Our tall standing case contains 10 plates with religious and Christ-Child themes produced in porcelains, allabaster and metals. Especially impressive are two with a central motif in stained glass, surrounded by a wide sterling silver band. One shows the Madonna and child alone, the other includes Joseph and the three wise men.

In the flat case are 10 porcelains, delicately painted to illustrate nursery rhymes, children's books and childhood activities. The plates are all from the collection of Dan Wylie.

The library will be closed Dec. 24-26, but we hope that many of you will find time in your busy vacation schedule to include a visit to the library on one of the other days.

around state government for years has been that the audit arm of the state government has been soft on the free-wheeling county supervisors.

Generally, that attitude of the Auditor has been highly satisfactory to the Mississippi Legislature, which also has a record of deference to the politically potent supervisors. The only clash the legislators have had with King in recent years came back in the mid-1970's when the legislature created the PEER Committee which looked at the time like an attempt to take away some of King's post-audit powers.

But since then, the Auditor has been allowed to go on his merry way, in fact, even getting authority from the legislature to increase his staff by some 40 persons the last couple of years.

The salary of the State Auditor has been kept so low by the legislature that there is considerable doubt any major independent candidate with the ability to really use the powers of the job to clean up state and local governments will come along and run for it.

Only once in the past four decades has the system of anointing somebody from the Auditor's office to be the candidate pushed by the agency broken down. That was when out-going Auditor Bill Neal back in 1955 picked outsider Boyd Golding as his successor. Golding upset the career workers around the office so much that ever since, they have determined no outsiders will be brought in, if they can help it.

Times have changed in politics so much in the last 20 years that nobody can be sure the rusty machinery for keeping a closed shop on the Auditor's job can still work. But evidently those in charge are going to try.

Regular library hours are 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Mondays through Fridays, and 9 to 5 on Saturdays.

For Outstanding Service

Mrs. Wold Presented Award

Easter Seals are thought by most to be merely research and development oriented. But not so, says Lanette Wold, chairman of the Prentiss County Easter Seals Society.

"Prentiss County Easter Seals stand ready and willing to serve the people of Prentiss County," she said. "All those dollars collected go to help our own Prentiss Countians."

"Our services are so wide and varied, few know just how and what we can do," she continued. "Wheelchairs, walkers, crutches, etc., aren't all Easter Seals have to offer. Individuals and their needs are different."

"We who work with Prentiss County Easter Seals, and the Business and Professional Women's Club which sponsors, the program, urge anyone who is in need of our help, or knows of anyone, to please contact Lanette Wold, Lillian Wright, Mary Blanche Hester or Blanche Carter," she said.

The local Easter Seal drive will begin shortly after the first of the year. The volunteers remind everyone that not only are donations tax deductible, but they may help a loved one or a neighbor.

"A little given from the pocketbooks of several can amount to joy in the hearts of many," Mrs. Wold said. "Some of the most rewarding moments have come from seeing a child who has been immobile for life find he can move about by himself in a new wheelchair...or the light in someone's eyes when we deliver equipment never before obtainable because of the cost of a certain illness."

The Mississippi Easter Seals has presented an award to Mrs. Wold for the outstanding work done here in Prentiss County, and she said she wants to thank all who have contributed.

"We're not doing this to win awards," she said, "but to fight for a better life for some of our fellow Prentiss Countians."

INSIGHT INTO EYESIGHT

from the office of:
JOHN R. WHITE, O. D.
HOW WE SEE

After centuries of wonder about how we are able to see science has come up with the answers. It also has answers for people who need help in seeing clearly.

What happens when we see? It all depends on light. Even a cat can't see when it's pitch black. Every object exposed to light emits light rays. These rays travel from the object to our eyes. They enter through the cornea, the transparent membrane in the center of the eye. The cornea bends the rays slightly inward on the way to the lens which narrows them even more.

In normal eyes the rays converge together in sharp focus when they reach the retina. This is the "back wall" of the eye that transmits the image to the brain.

What kind of image the brain receives depends on the sharpness of the picture. If it isn't in focus it will be blurred and that means the eyes need corrective glasses. Difficulty in focusing on objects at a distance or up close (like the newspaper) are common. These are some of the problems corrective glasses can solve.

For answers to your specific questions regarding vision, Dr. White invites you to call his Booneville office

Pevelettes Keep On Winning

Devils Hand Central First Loss

Booneville's Blue Devils and Pevelettes took a Saturday night twin-bill from Alcorn Central last Saturday night in local action at the BHS Gym.

The Lady Blue Devils, one of the hottest teams in North Mississippi, dropped the Lady Bears 61-32 while the Devils dropped the undefeated Bears 69-49 in the nightcap. In scoring, Kunshinge Sorrell led the BHS attack with 16 points followed by Vanessa Groves with 14 and Cynthia Sorrell with 11.

In boys action, Ronnie Elam paced the Devil brigade with a 24 point outburst followed by Jim Stubbs with 18 and Chris Williams with 12 points on the night.

The win was the first on the season for the Devils while the girls picked up their sixth victory against only one loss.

BOONEVILLE SPLITS WITH SALTILLO

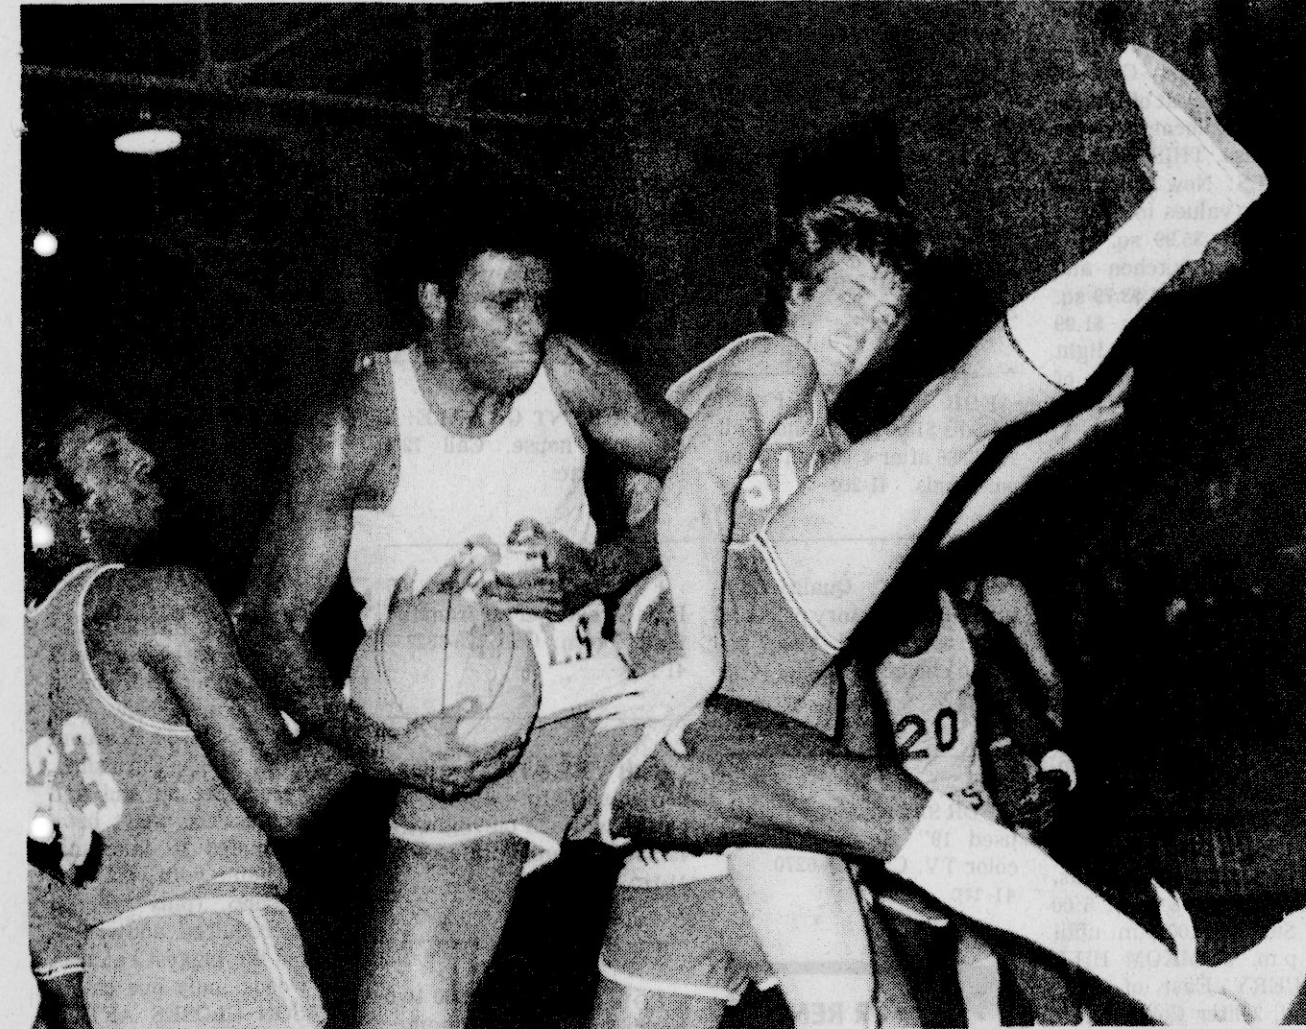

Booneville's Blue Devils and Pevelettes split a basketball two game stand with Saltillo in action last Thursday night at the Booneville High School Gym.

In the girls contest Booneville waltzed to a 75-25 victory while Saltillo gained a sweep in the night with a 73-65 win over the Devils.

Kushinge Sorrell had an outstanding night scoring 35 points while Vanessa Groves added 10.

In boys action, Ronnie Elam netted 20 points followed by Rickey Leach with 18 and Chris Williams with 17.

Glenn Posey had 22 and Mel Harris 18 for Saltillo.

SCRAMBLE FOR THE BALL — Booneville's Ronnie Elam (33) battles here with these Saltillo performers in last Thursday night's home battle. Elam netted 20 points on the night but Saltillo won the game 73-65.

Royals Win Tourney Crown

BELMONT—New Site's Royals took top honors Saturday night in the finals of the Belmont Round Robin Tournament.

In Saturday's finals the Royals, under the direction of coach Eddie Davis, dropped Tishomingo's Bulldogs 39-33.

New Site's Jeff Martin paced the Royal scoring brigade with 13 points on the night followed by Bob Whitley with 11.

The Royals earned wins on three different occasions. In Thursday's opening rounds the Royals had an easy time of it against Red Bay winning 50-43.

Mark Barnes led the Royal scoring brigade with 21 points on the night followed by teammate Bobby Whitley with 12 points.

The New Site squad has been one of the hottest high school teams in the area for the past few weeks and this fine showing in this tournament should indeed prove helpful for the Prentiss County squad.

The Royals took outright honors with three consecutive wins in the tournament and claimed the top spot for the tourney championship.

The New Site squad, under the direction of coach Davis, are now 10-8 on the season.

Coach Davis said he was extremely pleased with his team's performance in the Belmont event. "We're improving with age and we played a well balanced tournament at Belmont," he said.

New Site will battle Smithville Monday and then face Thrasher the following Friday in local action.

James Swinney Off To Fast Start

James Swinney, former Thrasher basketball player now playing with Delta State University has got off to a fast start on the 1981 Statesman roster.

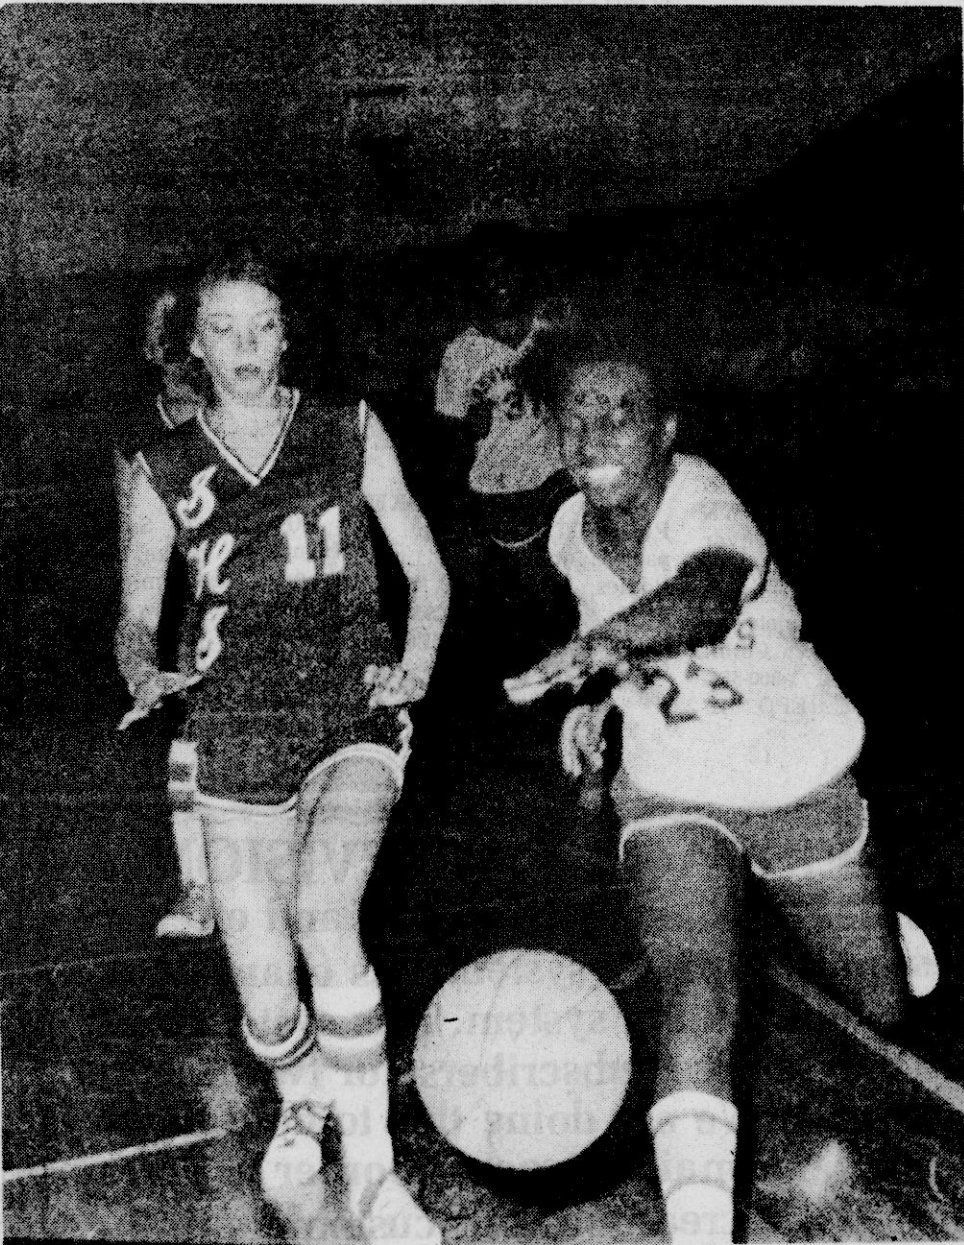

Swinney, the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Swinney of Booneville, leads the Delta State squad in free throw percentage with a remarkable 92 percent mark while in the scoring department, Swinney, in just his opening few games, ranks among the top with a 7.5 average in only four games.

The former Thrasher hot shooter has connected on 4-11 field goals, hit 22-24 free throws and has pulled down 18 rebounds for a 4.5 per game average.

According to all scouting reports, Swinney is expected to improve his average game by game against the extremely tough competition the Statesmen play this season.

The Statesmen currently (at presstime) post an unbeaten 4-0 record. The squad, under the direction of head coach Hankinson, are averaging 68.5 points per game and has allowed opponents just 53.8 points per outing.

Another local basketballer Mark Buskirk, formally of Northeast, is averaging scoring some three points per outing and has a 75 percent average from the line with three out of four attempts.

DIVES FOR IT—Devillette performer Sophie Anderson (23) battles this Saltillo Tigerette for the ball during last Thursday's battle at the Booneville High School Gym. Anderson paced the Devillette to a powerful 75-25 romp.

Strict 'Lee' Speaking

20 Point Win:
Amazing But True

BY LEE GENTRY
Sports Editor

If you can figure out the game of basketball then you're a better man than I am gungadin...

The way things are going here in the County, the basketball programs may end up being a toss up before the season is over.

Just about anything can happen when our local teams entwine against each other. If someone had told me Saturday that Booneville would have beat Caveness driven Alcorn Central 20 points I would probably bet my car, my house and my portion of Howard Hughes' will.

I had future commitments that night and didn't get a chance to see the game but without a doubt the Devils were indeed ready for their arch-rivals on the Saturday night occasion.

This just goes to show you what can happen in the game of basketball. Booneville had got off to a rather slow start on this '81 season and were winless going into the Saturday night encounter and turning the tide, Alcorn Central was undefeated going into the game.

Well folks throw em all away when these two meet cause it just don't matter. This rivalry has become similiar to the Wheeler-Thrasher battle in the County and you just throw the record books when the two meets.

There were several things riding on the game. For one newly named head coach for Booneville Randle Downs is a former player under Central mentor Gerald Caveness. The two men now play similiar games of basketball.

Another rivalry factor is that Caveness left Booneville and is now the head mentor of Central and this always creates interest.

The Booneville gym was indeed rocking last Saturday night and when the two teams meet again I'm sure you can expect some of the same.

FEATURE COMING SOON

As soon as I can gather all the information concerning the South Natchez coach Edwin (Wimp) Reid who is a Booneville native, I plan to do an extended feature.

Coach Reed and his South Natchez team just won the State AA championship and from all indications the team was somewhat awesome and went the entire season undefeated.

Hopefully I can get all the inofrmation this week and run the feature next week.

BOWL MATCHUPS

INTERESTING

If you've been reading the Commercial Appeal recently, I'm sure everyone is up to date concerning this year's pairings between Ohio State and somewhat underdogs Navy. A variety of Memphis and vicinity folks don't agree with this year's Liberty Bowl choices.

Most every sports editor who writes a column gives his opinion so I'll give mine. I tend to agree that the Liberty deserves a little better matchup than Navy and Ohio State. I may be wrong but I pick the Buckeyes by at least 18 points.

Till next time...

Anderson Drops Four Games To Baldwyn

Anderson Junior High School dropped a Monday night four game stand in local action played at the Anderson Gym.

In eight grade action, Marla Cartwright had 6 points while Cherie Walden, Rosemary Pharr and Marie Pike had two points each and Christy McCoy had one point.

CARDS OF THANKS

EXPRESSION OF APPRECIATION

One often fails to realize the value of friends until a special need arises. I would like to express my deep gratitude to those who responded in any way following the loss of my home to fire. The Booneville and Wheeler Fire Departments responded and stood by as long as there was a need.

To those who called, came by and offered their assistance, I will ever be grateful. One who has not experienced a destructive fire cannot know the complete sense of loss, nor can they know just how much friends mean at such a time. May God bless you for your thoughtfulness.

Arlis Wheeler & William Guy

The family of Clovis Pippin takes this method to thank each one who remembered us during the loss of our loved one. The flowers, food, cards and many other expressions of sympathy were greatly appreciated.

Special thanks to Dr. Madara, Dr. Johnson, nurses, aids, on B-wing, ambulance service, McMillan Funeral Home, and Bro. Koon, singers and piano player.

God Bless each of you.

Our hearts are sad because of our great loss, but our grief has been made easier by friends like you. May God bless each of you in our prayer.

The family of James O. (Ollie) Chase

The family of Essie Clarie Dennis would like to express our thanks and gratitude for the prayers, beautiful flowers and food and other expression of sympathy in the time of our bereavement in the death of our loved one.

Special thanks to Bro. Larry Hill for his comforting words, the singers, and Dr. and nurses from Jackson, Tenn. The Doctors, nurses, from the hospital in Tupelo and also McMillan Funeral Home services. May Gods richest blessings be with you all in our prayers.

Equitable Tax Formula Needed

By ED BLAKE
Mississippi Farm Bureau Federation

On the eve of Christmas and in the eveningtide of one of their most calamitous profit years since the Great Depression, Mississippi farmers are looking toward a new year with mounting hope that the state legislature next month will give them an equitable formula for land taxes.

At the 60th annual meeting of the Mississippi Farm Bureau Federation last week in Biloxi, farmers expressed greater concern over the need for legislation allowing for classification of assessment ratios for real property taxes than for any other issue before them.

It is no new policy, but an old one that presses them harder than ever in the unstable economy. They want to see a Constitutional Amendment bring the matter before the population of the state for a decision.

At stake are their farmlands and woodlands which, under present Constitutional interpretation by the Courts, would be taxed according to market value rather than productive value. And since farmers create income from the land by farming it rather than selling it as real estate, they see the present tax philosophy as impending doom for the state unless the legislature acts on the matter in 1982.

Most of Mississippi's leading farm commodities have experienced diminished profitability or outright losses due to the influences of inflation, high interest rates, surplus production and weak markets. Mississippi's 1981 net farm income increased 25 percent in 1981 over 1980 because of good yields, however 1980 income was only $271 million compared to $695 million in 1979.

The Farm Bureau convention delegates from each of Mississippi's counties declined by a large majority to advocate a specific formula for classification as they have done in previous years, but elected this year to support the classification principle in general which would give the organization more leeway when the legislature convenes. Their stance is expected to enable them to work better and in coordination with other groups of citizens to obtain a system of classification that will merit enactment without further delay.

In their advocacy of a constitutional amendment on the matter, the Farm Bureau delegates expressed disapproval of a statutory approach which would be subject to change by any subsequent session of the legislature. The farmers want the issue settled permanently.

In other policy recommendations, the Farm Bureau gathering recommended that another constitutional amendment be presented to the voters of Mississippi which would provide for fiscal sessions of the legislature to be held only in the year a governor takes office and in the third year of his term, with general sessions being held on alternate years. This would free every other session of the legislature from the annual hassles over funding matters.

The farm group also made plans to petition the legislature to require voters to exhibit drivers' licenses as a means of identification at the polls.

Concerning Mississippi's truck weight law for the state's highways, the group recommended that the present weight law be amended to relieve any inequities or undue hardship involved in the transportation of raw agricultural products.

It takes big dollars to serve business, industry and communities with natural gas, particularly since this fuel is being found further and further away from our traditional markets.

Our commitment to our customers is nowhere better illustrated than by our increased capital spending. In 1980, expenditures totaled $105 million for new onshore and offshore gas supply facilities, maintenance and reinforcement of the pipeline system, and joint venture gas supply projects.

For 1981, we are spending $170 million, primarily for gas supply projects and pipeline facilities. While the price of natural gas in the field is increasing, so is the cost of pipelines and other facilities necessary to bring it where it is needed.

Keeping Things Under Control

FROM TIMBER HILLS MENTAL HEALTH SERVICES

If you're planning a party during the holidays, and will be serving liquor there are some things you should remember for keeping things under control.

OFFER SOFT DRINKS. One third of the adult population chooses not to drink at all. And many others who drink socially sometimes prefer not to. So offer a choice. And when someone says "no thanks" ... don't push it. There are 9 million Americans for whom even one drink is too many.

GIVE MORE THAN A DRINK. Introduce two people who don't know each other. Get a conversation started. Give someone a compliment ... or a laugh. You have more to give than just drinks. A host or hostess is not just a bartender.

Remember, it is up to the host or hostess to establish the atmosphere they wish to prevail at their party.

DON'T RUSH REFILLS. Wait until the glass is empty before you offer another drink. And then don't be in a hurry ... especially if someone seems to be coming up empty too fast.

DON'T DOUBLE UP. A lot of people count their drinks. But if you serve doubles, they'll be drinking twice as much as they can handle. Doubling up isn't generous. It's rude.

CLOSE THE BAR. Decide in advance when you want your party to end. Then give appropriate cues by word and action that it's time to leave. A considerate way to close the drinking phase is to serve a substantial snack. It also provides some non-drinking time before your guests start to drive home.

DINNER IS SERVED. If you're going to serve dinner or an evening snack, do it before it's too late. If the "cocktail hour" goes on for hours, nobody will know what they have for dinner.

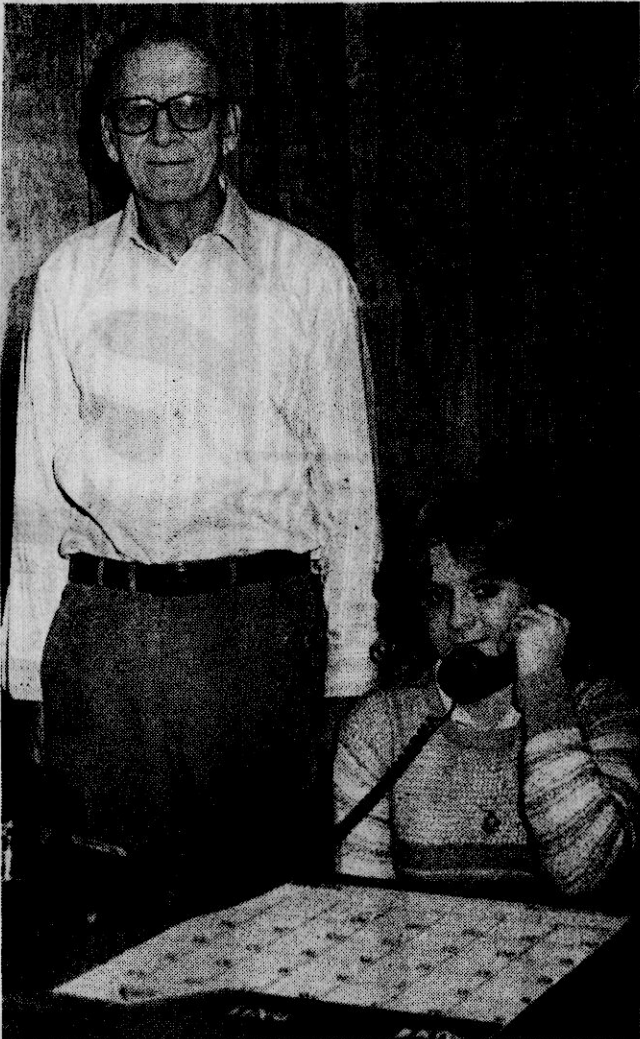

KEEP 'EM NIBBLING. Not just later on, but while your guests are drinking. That's important, because it slows down the rate at which people drink.

IF ... someone drinks too much at your house, you are responsible. That's what it means to be a host. See that he gets home safely, but don't let him drive. And don't think you can sober someone up in a short time with a cold shower or black coffee. Only time can sober him up. It will take about one hour for every drink he's had. So sometimes it's best to let the guest "sleep it off" instead of going home.

To obtain the booklet "Drinking Etiquette -- For Those Who Drink and Those Who Don't," as well as other hospitality materials including recipes for non-alcoholic foods and beverages, phone the Timber Hills office at 728-3174 and the information will be mailed to you, or visit the office on the Highway 30 by pass.

Woodworking Is Interesting, Challenging

By EDWARD L. McWHIRTER
Extension 4-H Youth Agent

SAFETY WITH WOOD
The 4-H Club offers many types of 4-H projects that range from cooking to woodworking. The 4-H wood science stresses safe handling of tools. Woodworking can be an interesting and challenging project for young people as they learn to create decorative and useful items, such as easy-to-do puzzles, games and furniture. They also learn to remodel rooms and assist in the construction of buildings.

But, whether you're nine or 90, safe use of wood-working power tools is extremely important. Boys and girls in the national 4-H wood science program conducted by the Cooperative Extension Service and supported by Weyerhaeuser Company Foundation, recommend the following safety tips when working with power tools:
-- Always wear tight-fitting, comfortable clothes. Loose or dangling clothing or long hair may get caught in the machine. Wear safety goggles to protect the eyes from sawdust or wood chips.

-- Do not operate power machines when you are tired or emotionally upset.
-- Keep proper guard and protective shields on all machines, and always make sure equipment is in good working condition and receives periodic maintenance care.
-- Stop the machine when the job is completed, or when an adjustment needs to be made.

-- Do not force a tool or machine - it is designed to work at a certain speed depending on the material and type of cut being made.
-- Be sure the machine is properly grounded or constructed to prevent electrical shock.
-- When operating a tool, give your undivided attention to the task at hand. Weyerhaeuser provides incentives and awards, arranged by the National 4-H Council, to youth who excel in the program. Medals of honor are presented to four members in each county; one 4-H'er from each state earns an expense-paid trip to the 60th National 4-H Congress, November 29-December 3, in Chicago, Illinois; and six national winners each receive $1,000 scholarships.

You can learn more about 4-H programs by contacting your county Extension office.

Rubik's Cube—America's Newest Pastime

From The University of Mississippi

"Buvos Kocka," "Hungarian Horror," "Migic Cube" -- a cube by any other name would be as infuriating.

No matter what you call it, Rubik's Cube, the American pseudonym for the baffling plastic puzzle developed by a Hungarian architecture professor in 1974, is cropping up all over the world driving people crazy.

With 45 million buyers last year in the United States alone of the Ideal Toy Corp. version of the plaything, "cubism" may classify as the latest American pastime obsession.

However new the concept, though, the obsession that has provoked everything from insomnia to rage is not uncommon, says a University of Mississippi psychology professor.

"Obsessions of this sort may happen because of the Zeigarnik Effect," said Dr. Ken McGraw, assistant professor of psychology at Ole Miss. "The Zeigarnik Effect is a widely observed, unexplained behavior; people are motivated to complete a task, and if they are forced to leave it they will come back to it the first chance they get. Think of the times we are compelled to finish a cross-word puzzle or to remember a name when telling a story. Even if the name isn't important to the story, we'll stop telling it until we remember."

Simple curiosity may be another factor that drives people to find at least one of the 43,252,003,274,498,856,000 solutions to the puzzle, Dr. McGraw said.

"There is a strong motivation for humans to do things without direct rewards, but we are not alone in this regard," he explained. "Many animals will perform activities that are clearly done only to satisfy their curiosity."

He cited an example of tests done with well-fed rats that crossed an electric grid to explore unknown territory. Even though they sensed physical danger, the animals risked getting shocked for the sake of curiosity.

Whatever the motivation, many cubists have amused themselves with the multi-colored widget until both their marriages and their thumbs are in danger.

A March issue of Scientific American reports that a woman from Manchester, England, twisted the cube until her thumb developed a severe case of tendonitis that had to be operated on. In West Germany a woman is sorely regretting buying her husband a cube last Christmas and is filing for divorce because, she says, he is exhausted by the time he comes to bed.

An interest in solving Rubik's Cube is a healthy outlet if it's not excessive, Dr. McGraw said.

"If we were just driven by our immediate tasks, there would be no creativity," he said.

For those poor souls who are tired of being creative, however, the Ideal Toy Corp. will send a solution to the cube for two dollars.

Plan Ahead—Test Soil For Fertility This Fall

By DAVID SUMMERS

Booneville Field Office

Although harvest is over and the holiday season is here, now is the time to analyze this year's crop yield field by field and make plans for next year.

Most of you already know how many bushels of soybeans or pounds of cotton it will take per acre to break even at a given price. However, there is one more analysis that needs to be made. And that is: Does this particular field or soil have the capability to produce a yield high enough to break even under normal conditions?

There are a few factors to look at in making this analysis. First, look at the yield history of a field. Does this field produce a profitable yield? If not, will it produce a profitable yield if a different crop is grown, such as wheat or forages, instead of soybeans or cotton?

The second factor to look at in analyzing a field for profitable yields is the amount of erosion that has already occurred on that field. If soil erosion has depleted the top soil, then crop yields will be low regardless of management practices. These fields will probably be more profitable producing forages than grain or fiber crops.

The third factor to look at in analyzing a field for profitability is, "what erosion control practices are needed to maintain productivity?" Look at such practices as minimum tillage, crop rotation and terrace systems. If the cost of installing conservation practices such as terraces, out weigh the yield benefits you may want to look at other crops that may not require terrace systems such as wheat or forages.

There are two major factors that determine farm profit. Yield per acre, not the number of acres you farm, and the selling price per unit. Even though you have little control over selling price, you do have some control over yields per acre.

A good place to begin increasing yields is by selecting soils that have the capability to produce a crop at a profitable level.

If you want to begin increasing your yield per acre based on soil capabilities, come by the Soil Conservation Service office in Booneville or give us a call at 728-3544.

During the holidays, most everyone wants to reach out and touch faraway friends and family with a long distance call. In fact, Christmas Day is one of the busiest days of the year for the telephone network -- so busy that calls sometimes can't get through.

Don't risk not being able to get through with your Christmas calls this year. Call early, before Christmas Day (which comes on Friday this year). Or call later, on the Saturday and Sunday after Christmas. That way, you'll be sure to make your holiday calls quickly and without inconvenient delays.

Don't forget, too, that rates are lowest when you dial long distance calls the "1+ way" all day on Saturdays, till 5 p.m. on Sundays, and every night from 11 p.m. till 8 a.m.

During the holidays and all year round take advantage of long distance discount periods. And save money.

Just in time for your holiday shopping convenience -- the Bell PhoneCenter Stores now accept VISA and MasterCard bank credit cards on any purchase of $10 or more. So you can use your credit card to buy pretty smart phone and phone service gifts.

There are so many Bell phone gifts to choose from, you may decide on convenient Bell Gift Certificates, starting at $20. They're good for phones, phone service, even for long distance calls. Visit us soon at the Bell PhoneCenter Store nearest you.

Low 1+ rates do not apply to 0+ dialed calls, operator-banded calls, coin telephone calls, or calls from a hotel or motel. Different discounts apply to Alaska and Hawaii.*
