Second Report Filed In Traffic Accident

A second and apparently conflicting accident report has been filed by the Booneville Police Department on an accident that occured last week involving a bicycle and a pickup truck.

The rider of the bicycle, six-year-old Consuela Pierce, received minor head injuries in the accident which occured Monday, June 28, on August Circle. James T. McKinney of Route 3, Booneville, was the reported driver of the truck involved.

The first report was filed by investigating officer Bob Jones of the Booneville Police Department on the day the accident occured. As reported in last week's paper, this report stated: "Vehicle No. 1 (the pickup) turned into a driveway into bicycle's path. Bicycle struck truck in side, throwing rider onto hood of truck."

However, a second accident report, filed four days later on July 2 by Police Chief John O. (Bobby) Lambert, appears to be in conflict with the one filed earlier by

Lambert's report states: "Truck was traveling south on August Circle. Bicycle came from off of the sidewalk and struck truck on the left front side between fender

Both reports list the cause of the accident as "inattention," but neither says whether the inattention was on the part of the driver of the truck or of the bicycle rider.

As of Tuesday morning, both reports remained on file at the police department. Chief Lambert is out of town this week on vacation and thus unavailable for clarification of the apparent conflict between the two

Some ADC Recipients Must Report Income

Starting in August, a small number of Aid to Dependent Children (ADC) recipients will have to make monthly reports on their income and circumstances to the Prentiss County Welfare Department. Monthly reporting is a federal requirement of the Omnibus Reconciliation Act of 1961.

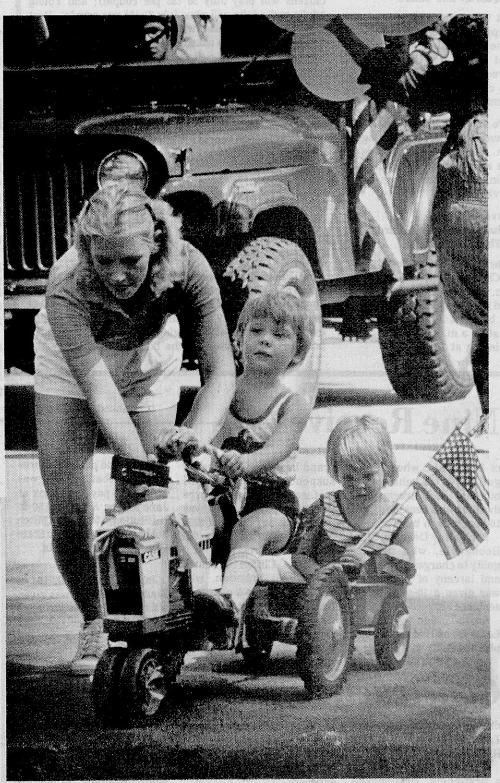

The Welfare Department will be asking ADC recipients identified as reporting cases to attend individual or group meetings during which the ADC worker will explain to the client how to fill out the monthly report. If the recipient cannot attend at the appointed time, he or she should notify the Welfare Department.

The information the recipient provides in the monthly report will determine if the family continues to be eligible for assistance and how much they should receive. In accordance with federal regulations, the ADC worker will close the case of recipients who fail to return the form by the due date.

Certain ADC recipients will receive a reporting form on the first of the month. If the form is not received by the fifth of the month, ADC workers will mail a letter to the recipient advising that the case will be closed and checks terminated if the form is not returned by the date shown on the letter.

Recipients will have to reapply for ADC benefits if the case is closed.

Two bids were submitted in response to the city's advertisement for a used back hoe. Murphy's International of Booneville had the low bid at $12,800, while Barton Equipment Co. of Tupelo bid $17,975. Aldermen took the bids under advisement until street commissioner Wade Lambert can check the specifications of the equipment.

A bid from Murphy's International was the only one received by the board for a used cutter (mower). The board agreed to accept Murphy's bid of $2,350.

BIBLE QUESTION BOX

QUESTION: Mr. Hogland, under the law of Moses did God allow people to be killed by other people?

WARD HOGLAND

ANSWER: Yes, it is very true that God allowed and even commanded that certain people be killed under the Law of Moses. I will give you some examples: 1. Sabbath breaking (Exo. 31:14). 2. Witchcraft (Exo. 22:18). 3. Striking or reviling a parent (Ex. 21:15-17). 4. Blasphemy (Lev. 24:14). 5. Adultery (Lev. 20:10). 6. Rape (Deut. 22:25). 7. Incestuous connections (Ex. 22:19). 8. Idolatry (Lev. 20:2). 9. False witness (Deut. 19:16). In answering your question may I say there were others things for which God commanded the death penalty. It is true under God's law today we are not to take vengeance on our fellow man because the Bible teaches that God will do this (Rom. 12:17). However, you must keep in mind that civil government is ordained of God for the punishment of evil doers. Rom. 13, tells us that "Beareth not the sword in vain." It is God's plan that the government, rather than God's people punish evil doers. Under the Old Law God's people had to execute the punishment.

Street Opinion

QUESTION: Do you think the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA) should have been ratified?

BONNIE WHEELER of August Circle, Booneville: "I'm not totally in favor of the ERA. I don't think women should be drafted. However, I do see one good point about it - for the same quality of work, women should receive the same pay as men receive."

E.M. HAMBLIN of Route 1, Booneville: "Yes, I do. It would strengthen the Constitution. The laws we have now are for equality they just aren't being applied. They only apply the laws they want."

SHEILA BURCHAM of Route 6, Booneville: "No. I feel like the woman's place is in the home taking care of the children and her husband. I'll agree with them that if the woman is doing an equal job just like a man is she deserves equal pay. But they're also wanting women in a lot of jobs that I don't feel they belong -- such as policement or President of the United States.

JUDITH WIGGINTON of Bridge Street, Booneville: "I don't think it would have made much difference whether it passed or not. I think women have equal rights now. I feel like women have as much freedom as they can expect. There are still instances where there isn't equal pay but I don't think the ERA would help very much in that area.'

DELANNA MAYO of Route 2, Booneville: "To a certain extent. I think if a woman does an equal job as compared to a man she should be paid equally. But I disagree with putting a woman in every specific job. There's some jobs a woman wouldn't be qualified for."

210 Main St.

VARD MOORMAN Of Route 1, Booneville: "No, I don't think it should. It would cause women to have to be in the service and I don't think they should have to go.'

YOU JUST CAN'T be too careful. In today's world you never know what may happen.

A few short years ago, most serious crimes were rarities in Prentiss County. Now it seems as if there is some type of major crime reported practically every Break-ins have become so commonplace in some communities that some of the victims no longer report them to law enforcement agencies. And a number of others don't report them for fear of reprisals from those who committed the break-in in the first place.

A month ago, a number of residents of one community in Booneville met with the city's board of aldermen to ask for help in solving problems the community was having with some juvenile boys. These youngsters were stealing things from residents, vandalizing private property and using abusive language. "It has got to where women and girls are afraid to walk on the streets in our neighborhood," the aldermen were told by the

One example given involved a resident who had a number of chickens. He noticed one of the boys shooting his chickens with a BB gun. When he went outside and told the boy to stop, the boy promptly turned around and shot him instead!

UNFORTUNATELY, THOSE RESIDENTS are not the only ones with such problems. Just this week a resident of another local community told me of an incident involving her elderly mother, a semi-invalid.

She said her mother was alone at home recently when two young men, both apparently in their mid-teens, came to the door. When the elderly woman answered the door, they asked if there was any work they could do for her. She told them that she didn't have any work for them and that she was ill and had to get back to bed.

She turned her back on them and went back into her bedroom. When she turned around, one of the young men had entered the house -- uninvited -- and was sitting on

Luckily, when she told him again that she didn't have any work for him and that he had better leave, he left without any trouble. The woman was highly upset over the incident -- and rightly so. There is no telling what could have happened if the young man had not left voluntarily.

THANKFULLY, THESE ARE isolated incidents. But thay do point out one thing rather clearly: we can no longer take the security of our communities for granted.

When hearing about such situations, local residents shouldn't panic and think that every unfamiliar face they see is that of a criminal. But, it wouldn't hurt to use a little common sense and caution before opening a door to a stranger.

Eyes On Mississippi

Do We Now Call The W 'Unisex U'?

By BILL MINOR Columnist

JACKSON, Miss. ---Incredible. The day after the Great Threat (The Equal Rights Amendment, of course) was over, two such historic things concerning women should happen in Mississippi as:

Gov. William Winter putting the first woman on the State Supreme Court in the 175 years history of this state; the United States Supreme Court declaring that Mississippi can no longer operate a "for women only" state institution of higher learning.

Of course, the Great Threat - the ERA - was never really a threat in the Mississippi Legislature. There men are men, and place, and every beauty queen from Chunky to Hot Coffee is extolled as God's gift to mankind, that is, unless they grow up and try to run for the legislature.

In all the 11 years the Mississippi Legislature had a crack at ratifying the ERA, it never did vote on it. up or down, although each year since 1972, when the proposed 27th Amendment to the federal constitution was sent down from Congress, ratification resoultions were dutifully introduced in the legislature.

Characteristically, the Mississippi lawmakers ducked the issue by leaving the resolution, year after year, to die in committee. It used to be whispered around the legislative halls that "if that darn thing ever reached the floor, it might pass."

Perhaps the height of inaneness occurred in the legislative session earlier this year when the House, just 62 years late, voted to ratify the 19th Amendment, giving women the right to vote. Of course, it was safely tucked back into oblivion women are kept in their when it reached the Senate.

> Now Gov. Winter, for all the so-called liberalism he was accused of having back a few yeaers ago, had done little since he became governor about giving women a bigger chunk of the say-so in running the government. The feminists didn't classify him as a "Chauvinist Pig," (at least they left off the pig part), but there had been a lot of grumbling about his appointment of almost a steady stream of men.

Credit must be given here to one of my journalistic colleagues, Ms. Norma Fields of the Daily Journal, Tupelo, for making Winter painfully aware of the absence of females when he trotted out his appointees at press conferences.

Lo, and behold, the other day, when the grand moment arrived for Winter to fill the first vacancy on the State Supreme Court since he became governor, he reached down into his bag of nominees and came up with the name of Lenore Prather, already a state chancery judge at Colum-

In one fell swoop, Winter probably made amends for all of the sins of omission of women from the governance heretofore, being as a justiceship on the Supreme Court is something far more permanent and meaningful than serving on some lay state board.

But the end of Mississippi

University for Women as an MSCW was created, is also educational sanctuary solely for females by order of the highest court in the land is quite something else.

What used to be Mississippi State College For Women, or MSCW, or the "W," and then became overnight in 1973 along with all other state institutions of higher learning, a university, known since as Mississippi University for Women.

The idea of a state college for women must have grown out of the state legislative concept of isolating those for whom the lawmakers want to appear to have special concern. It so happens that 1920, the year the same year the womens' suffrage amendment was defeated in Mississippi, but ratified in the nation.

Still, what are we going to do about no longer being able to exclude males from the Columbus institution? A name change may be in

The Procter & Gamble Company is in the news again. P&G is taking legal action to stop the spread of rumors associating the company with satanism or devil worship.

The company recently filed suits in Atlanta, Ga., and Pensacola, Fla., against several individuals who are charged with "libeling the character" of Procter & Gamble by circulating "false and malicious" statements about the company and by calling for a boycott of its products.

Suits were filed against Mike Campbell in Atlanta and against Mr. and Mrs. William J. Moore Jr. in Pensacola. In the suits, P&G charges that each individual made statements or distributed literature which stated that P&G supported satan and that its trademark of the moon and stars was a stanic symbol.

They also encouraged others to stop buying P&G products, the company claimed. P&G is asking the courts to stop the individuals from further activity and for compensatory and punitive damages.

According to P&G, the rumors have been around for more than two years that a P&G executive discussed satanism on a nationally televised talk show.

However, producers of each of the programs mentioned in the stories have confirmed that no one from P&G has appeared on their program.

In recent months the problem has escalated and P&G now is receiving more than 12,000 calls each month about the rumor and has picked up copies of materials being handed out at stores and churches encouraging a boycott of P&G products.

P&G said it has not been able to track down how the rumor originated, but it has received reports of the story

The P&G trademark is a circular design featuring a man-in-the-moon figure looking out over a field of thirteen stars. It has been used since 1850 and was officially registered in 1882. The symbol started as simple markings on crates of Star Candles, an early P&G product, and evolved over the years to a formal design showing a man-in-the-moon, a popular figure of the 1800's, and thirteen stars representing the original

An Update On Mark

Carolyn Wildmon, Mark Fletcher's mother, called Monday to say Mark continues to be doing well after his surgery last month in New York for removal of an Arteriovenous Malformation.

Mrs. Wildmon mentioned how well she and Mark were treated by the doctors and nurses at the Neurological Institute. She said they made a lot of friends during those 13 days in the hospital. Some of the friends included pigeons, she said, because Mark couldn't resist feeding them bread crumbs!

Although they did not have time to visit the Empire State Building, they saw it twice from a distance, she

During the 4th of July holiday weekend, Mark went swimming. "He's 100 percent better to me," Mrs. Wildmon said. "Prayers do get answered. Ours did."

In cheering other people's ways, In doing just the best you

With every task and every plan, It's silence when your speech would hurt, Politeness when your neighbor's curt,

It's deafness when the scandal flows, And sympathy with other's woes,

It's loyalty when duty calls, It's courage when disaster falls,

It's patience when the hours are long. It's found in laughter and

It's in the silent time of prayers, In happiness and in

LITTLE LEAGUE

In Little League action Tuesday of last week, the first game matched Cox's Best Way against Kellwood. Eric Morrow was on the mound for Kellwood, who was looking for a second win this season.

Kellwood's efforts were to no avail as Cox's won the game, 20-6. Marty Michaels got the pitching win for Cox's Best Way. This game leaves Cox's with a 4-3

In the night's second game, Sonic defeated People's Bank, 14-6. Stacy Fugitt won for Sonic as Mike Coats picked up the loss. Sonic is staying close behind Brown Shoe with a 6-2 record.

Brown Shoe remains undefeated in league action as of Monday night. Their only loss came in a scrimmage game with Schweiger, a Bypass team. However, that game does not count on Brown Shoe's official record in the league.

Brown Shoe was in action Thursday night against Kentucky Fried Chicken in a game that lasted only three innings because of rain. Brown Shoe picked up their seventh straight win by a close score of 4-2 in that Kentucky Fried Chicken coach Scott McKinney was sorry to see the rain because he though his team "might have had a chance." Kentucky Fried Chicken is now 0-7 on the year.

Gospel Concert Set

At West Side Park

The Booneville City Park will present an open air gospel concert Saturday, July 17, at the West Side Park baseball field.

The concert will begin at 7:30 p.m. and will feature The Praisemen of Germantown, Tenn., The Rising Generation of Nettleton, and The Singing Hills and Exodus, both of Booneville.

Tickets for the concert are $2 each and are available at The Book Gallery, Sound Stage, The Sportin' Goods Store, or by calling 728-5667.

All proceeds from the benefit will go to the city park athletic program. Park program director Ricky Gillentine said the money will be used in the future to help upgrade the lighting system on the ball fields, to help pay for additional fencing, and for other needed improvements which have not been included in the city's budget for the park program.

In case of rain, the gospel concert will be moved indoors to the West Side Community Center.

Sportsmanship Is First With Little League Coach

A MAN OF RECORDS - Howard Barry, coach of some 20 Brown Shoe teams over the years, has score books and records dating back to his first teams. With a 7-0 record, Barry's present Brown Shoe team holds first place in the Little League standings.

"I know from experience that I'm doing business with the best bank in North Mississippi."

WHILE WRITING MY weekly article on West Side Little League baseball the other day, I noticed the top spot was held by Brown Shoe Company, with an undefeated record.

The first thing that came to mind was my years as a first baseman for Brown Shoe. What I remembered mostly was that "Brown Shoe isn't supposed to win."

I'm justified in saying that because Brown Shoe has never had a winning record before this year. In fact, during my three years, our overall record was 10-35. That is awful! Right?

Not necessarily. It was a very rewarding experience for me. How can I appreciate playing for a team that only won about three out of 15 games a year? I attribute my satisfaction to one man: my former coach, Howard Barry.

BECAUSE HE HAS done so well with his present team and has been coaching ever since I can remember, I feel he deserves some recognition.

In a recent talk with Coach Barry, my first question was how long has he been coaching. The astounding answer was

"20 years" (longer than I can remember!). I began to figure the statistics on his coaching career at

Using estimated averages, I figure that he has coached in about 300 baseball games. He has put in at least 1,200 hours with his players (one hour per week during games and four hours of practice). He has coached over 260 boys in the past, leaving a positive attitude in every one, I'm sure.

My point is proven in Coach Barry's philosophy of coaching. He gave me the answer I knew I would get: "I try to teach the kids sportsmanship and that winning is not the only thing to play for. . . also to always put Christ first in

He vividly practices this philosophy. One example is how

He never outwardly expresses disagreement with an umpire's call, but, of course, the players always have something to say when called "out." Coach Barry handles this by always asking the same question and then giving the same reply to the upset player.

"Were you out?" he asks. When the player answers "Yes" or "No," he will reply: "That's all I wanted to know."

According to Coach Barry, if a player is satisfied he was safe, then he was. It was funny, though, that when we learned to stop and think about it, the umpire was usually

WHY DID COACH Barry have such bad luck for 20 years? It wasn't bad luck at all. It was sportsmanship. If my former coach were "win-crazy," he could do a few things differently and would have a chance at winning a few more

He could bench his younger players and those with less ability. Or maybe he could instruct a batter to stand at the plate and not swing at any pitch so he might get walked.

I've seen other coaches do these things, but Coach Barry will never work that way. He teaches self-confidence and participation by all.

When asked about the park system, he said, "Well, I'll start at the beginning. My first team had 18 players, ages 7-12. We would start playing on the same field we use now, but, since it had no lights, we moved up to the big field when it

He went on to say that, over the years the park has done steadily better. Speaking about the Little League program, he said: "Joe Taylor got this program started on the right foot. Ricky Gillentine has stepped in where Joe left off and has done a great job."

As for future improvements, Coach Barry stressed better lighting on the Little League field.

COACH BARRY SAID he has learned over the years that parents are concerned for their young people. And as long as they continue showing concern, they don't have to worry about their kids when they leave home, he said.

Coach Barry's leadership has not gone unnoticed. Ricky Gillentine, park program director, recently expressed to me

Howard Barry and all the other coaches deserve great appreciation for all they have done for the park and the community. Coach Barry has done a great job. . . and will continue to do the same.

Of course, I had to ask him when he would give up summer-time coaching. All I could get was a big laugh and, "Gosh, I don't know!"

For Handicapped Children

New Identification Program Started

use a new process for identification of handicapped children beginning July 1, according to Dr. Charles Holladay, state superintendent of education.

"Most children will not be evaluated to determine eligibility for special education until at least one instructional intervention has been made by a regular classroom teacher and reported to a local survey (child study) committee,' he said. "Also, the order of some of the assessments has been changed to give added insurance against prejudicing any decision to be made. The key role of the parent will continue to be emphasized in the new process."

Dr. Walter Moore, assistant director of instruction in charge of special education, says the new referral-to-placement process should work strongly to a child's benefit.

"It formalizes good practices that have been individually applied in may of Mississippi's school districts, and it changes the order of steps in the study of a child in a way that will eliminate the possibility of pre-judging a student based on one type of test or on one type of instruction," he said. 'It emphasizes the important role of the regular classroom teacher as an educational strategist, observer, and recorder of a student's progress and problems," he said. "The key to an referral for special education will be the teacher's report of observations and records of the child's functioning in the regular program and of the child's response to some teaching method or material that the teacher has tried with the child. He or she will have selected this intervention, on the basis that it is different from anything previously tried and that it has some possibility of helping the child succeed in the regular classroom."

Careful testing is done following acceptance of any referral. The system provides for tests or observations in all areas that may affect the child's learning, and for study and decision-making by multidisciplinary teams of professionals.

"The new process gives opportunities all along the way for a decision to leave the child in the regular classroom, with information that will enable his teacher to work successfully with him there, or to get additional testing in order to clear up any question as to the child's eligibility for special education," Moore

He says the State Department of Education Resources System personnel has held 25 workshops on the new process.

"More than 700 trainers, program developers, school administrators, examiners, screening team members, state and local educators, personnel from universities, private schools, and state agencies have been trained in the past six months," he administrators, regional coordinated the development of training materials by state and local consultants. Nationally-known experts, local school teachers and

A Neighborhood Celebrates The 4th

Getting Underway On Seventh Street

It's More Fun To Ride...

Judy George

It's Become A Neighborhood Tradition

It began eight years ago when four neighborhood children decided they wanted Booneville to have its own 4th of July parade. Since then, the parade has become an annual tradition in their West Booneville neighborhood. Friends, relatives and acquaintances from other sections of town—and even from other towns and other states—have joined in the celebration.

All Tuckered Out!

Marching Into Foster Park

For the first few years, the number of participants in the parade increased dramatically each year. However, it has stablized at about 100 participants during each of the past two or three years.

Participation in the parade is strictly informal. There is no preregistering, no rules. Participants dress in attire ranging from the outrageous to more conventional street clothes. 'Anyone who wants to show their patriotic spirit' is always welcome.

This year, for the first time, the parade had a grand marshall, Mrs. Sallie Kate Chase, a retired teacher who lives in the neighborhood. She was given a place of honor in a car at the front of the parade.

Also new this year was TV coverage. A cameraman from the Tupelo television station taped highlights of the Saturday morning parade for presentation on the 10 p.m.

Saturday morning parade for presentation on the 10 p.m. news Sunday night.

Each year the parade has some new faces -- and some of the familiar ones from years past are gone. But, as long as the patriotic spirit prevails in this West Booneville neighborhood, the annual neighborhood 4th of July parade will

When in the course of human events, Congress knocks 10% off your taxes, you'd better salt it away.

They may take it back next year.

As of July 1st, your paycheck is going to be a little bit fatter. Because less is going to be deducted for taxes. It's almost like getting a raise. Let's face it, you've managed to get along without that extra money, so why not salt it away where it can do you the most good.

Shelter it from taxes now.

You can stash it away in a First Bank IRA Tax Shelter account. You can deduct every penny of that money from your Federal income taxes. And you'll earn high interest so that by the time you retire, you'll have accumulated quite a nest egg.

In fact, if you start putting in the maximum of $2,000 a year when you're 29, and it earns an average of 12% interest a year, you'll have somewhere around a million dollars when you're 65.

Almost everybody's eligible, even if you have a company retirement plan. And working couples can put away up to $4,000 a year. For couples with one spouse working, it's $2,250. For individuals, it's $2,000.

Put your tax cut away every payday.

At First Bank, you can put a little in your IRA Tax Shelter every payday or every month. $20, $30 or any amount. To get the maximum deduction, you only need to put away $166 a month. For working couples, it's $333 a month. And one paycheck couples, only $187.

To make it easy and convenient, we can automatically transfer your monthly IRA deposit from your First Bank checking account.

Make more money for your money.

Even if our IRA Tax Shelter isn't for you, you can still salt your tax cut away every payday in our First Savers account. It's a savings plan that automatically transfers the amount you want to save from your checking account—weekly, biweekly, or monthly.

Then, when you've built up enough to meet the minimum deposit required, we can invest some of your money in one of our high rate money market certificates if you want, or some other investment.

Right now is the time to turn your tax cut into a tax shelter with a First Bank IRA. Or, make your money make more money in one of our savings plans. Either way, you'll be money ahead if Congress turns out to be an Indian giver.

Maintaining Your Mental Health

'Smother Love'

From TIMBER HILLS MENTAL HEALTH SERVICES

Susan is a 35-year-old married woman with two children. Her husband makes an adequate income, but she does have to watch the budget. Susan's mother, however, seems to think that her daughter is deprived. So she comes to the house regularly, bringing new curtains for the living room, another dress for her favorite granddaughter, and a cashmere sweater for Susan ("I never did like that cheap Orlon!")

Joe is a 29-year-old executive in a large, wellestablished company. He has his own apartment with a part-time cleaning woman. Joe's mother appears regularly at his doorstep to inspect the apartment for dust and make sure he has "a good meal." She is convinced that the cleaning woman really isn't doing a good job, and that she has to get out the vacuum and dust cloth

Since Joe lives on the third floor and his mother has a heart condition that causes Joe to feel worried and guilty about the situation. Lately his mother has been hinting that everything would be so much easier for everybody if Joe just moved back home.

Susan and Joe are both suffering from "smother love," a condition that sometimes comes to the attention of the counselors at Timber Hills Mental Health Center. There's a difference between the smothering mother and the domineering one. A domineering mother will tell her child what to do and what not to do in no uncertain terms. A smothering mother will simply take on the tasks herself and not permit her child to do anything by himself...and thus keep him from growing into a mature, independent human being.

For instance, when Susan was still in high school many of her friends considered her very lucky. Her mother would never let her clean up her own room or iron her own dress. Susan was allowed (indeed, encouraged) to leave her room in a mess and to dump her laundery in her mother's hamper. ("After all, she's only young once...she will have responsibilities soon enough.") Actually, as it turned out Susan was not so lucky. When she got married she couldn't boil an egg. If her husband had not put a stop to it, Susan's mother would have come over regularly to do the house work and care for the Joe's mother tended to do his homework for him. ("They really expect too much from youngsters these days. It's unhealthy to work all the time.") When he went off to college, Joe still called his mother to get advice about his course work, his friends, and every aspect of his life.

In away Susan and Joe learned to enjoy and depend on all this extra care and attention that was lavished on them. But in other ways it caused them serious problems. They found that making independent moves and decisions was extremely difficult. Also, it became increasingly hard to say "no" to a mother who had devoted so much of her life to keeping them wrapped up in cotton-batting and saving them from hard knocks.

Counselors who work with the Susans and Joes of this world often find it harder to get victims of smother love to throw off their bonds than it is to get someone to free himself from a parent who is just plain domineering. For information about about services available at Timber Hills Mental Health Services, phone 728-3174 or visit the offices on the Highway 30 Bypass in Booneville. After-hours and on week-ends phone 1-286-9209 toll-free for emergency counseling services.

For Drugs

New Process Could Speed Acceptance

by years with a new process discovered by University of Mississippi scientists studying chemical changes that drugs undergo in the human body. Traditionally, researchers have used animal models to study the ways a drug is altered when it enters the human body. However, chemists in the Ole Miss School of Pharmacy are using fungi similar to common bread mold or shower mildew to produce the same chemical changes much cheaper and in greater quantities.

"Before a drug is marketed it is important to study what chemical changes or metabolites occur when it's in the human system, because some could be toxic," explained Dr. Hufford, professor of pharmacognosy. Dr. Hufford has been developing a microbial technique for studying metabolism for several years.

"The problem animal studies is that they only produce sufficient quantities of these metabolites over a period of time and they are also expensive to acquire and keep," he said. "Microbial cultures, on the other hand, are a one time investment and are acquired at a negligible cost. This could make the job of screening new drugs faster and more cost effective for pharmaceutical companies."

Conventional methods for studying drug metabolism are time consuming and can call for as many as 100 mice, replace the need for Dr. Huffard notes. In contrast, scientists exposing the drug under investigation to the cultured environment of of a drug that is absorbed the fungus can get results in into the bloodstream.

The marketing of new days, and have enough of the drugs could be speeded up metabolized porduct for a pharmacologist and pharmaceutical company to study almost simultaneously, he said.

Fungi are able to do this because their enzyme systems mimic those of mammals, according to Dr.

"For years the literature on metabolism indicated fungal and mammalian systems might metabolize drugs in the same way, but there was no conclusive evidence to that effect. I began tests on imipramine, a drug used in the treatment of depression for which the metabolism had been studied extensively. Sure enough, when the 'bug' I was using was exposed to the drug, it produced the metabolites humans did. This was very encouraging because it was the first significant study indicating 'bugs' could be useful."

Since the first study, Dr. Hufford and Dr. Alice M. with Clark, research assistant professor of pharmacognosy, have tested other drugs with the same results.

"The potential for studying drug metabolism with microorganisms is unlimited," Dr. Clark said. "Not only can they aid in evaluating total product safety and getting drugs on the market faster, but they also provide a standard for which analytical procedures can be improved."

Drs. Hufford and Clark point out that microorganisms will not research animals because only animals can give such information as the amount item at a comparable reduction in price. We reserve the right to limit quantities

THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

By Charles L. Potts

Fitness . . . Physical And Spiritual

Hebrews 12:1

America is on a "fitness kick" today...and this is good. It has almost become a new religion for a lot of people...and more of us ought to take up the torch. Early in the morning and late in the afternoon...and into the night hours...people are out on the highways and back roads - running, jogging, bicycling or walking. Book stores are filled with books on "How to"...and "How not to..." in all areas of fitness. It is hard to disagree with the fact that physical exercise is vital to our physical health. As with many other things in our lives...we are in agreement with the idea, but find it difficult to practice with any real consistency.

A good thought comes from all of this...for it makes us aware that our spiritual lives are a whole lot like that. We know that to develop spiritual well being, it is necessary to be involved in some kind of consistent spiritual exercise. We need exercise...both physical and spiritual. We are under the necessity to tone the muscles of faith, boost our spiritual stamina, breathe in the fresh air of God... just as we are to exercise the physical. The writer of Hebrews talked about "running a race"...and the necessity of preparing for it...compares with preparation for a physical race. Maybe you have already walked-jogged your two or three miles today...but have you also taken the time to do your "spiritual exercises?" These so-called "Holy Habits" of the spiritual life are of utmost importance and have to do with ones relationship to Almighty God. May we simply list some of these "Holy" exercises...so that together we check up on ourselves. We shall mention five: Set aside a time for prayer each day; read some in the Bible each day; worship God in His House with regularity; bring your gifts to God as a measure of your gratitude to Him; offer yourself in God's service. Well how are you doing? Let us begin today with a TOTAL exercise program....for a WHOLE Life... here and hereafter.
