Unemployment Rate Down Again

The rate of unemployment in Prentiss County continued to decline for the fifth straight month. This was the lowest rate since October, 1982, according to Charles Smith, Manager of the Mississippi State Employment Service.

At mid-November, the rate was estimated to be 10.5 percent of the civilian labor force, or 1,130. This compares to 11.5 percent in October and 10.6 percent in November, 1982.

The county's labor force at 10,800 also experienced losses over the month and year of 260 and 250 respectively. The number of Prentiss County residents employed stood at 9,670, 120 below the previous estimate and 210 below the figure for one year ago.

Manufacturing employment in the county registered at 2,920, slightly above the previous estimate of 2,890 but 100 above the estimate of 2,820 for October, one year ago.

Nonmanufacturing employment at 3,580, slipped slightly below the previous estimate and that of one year ago.

State Population Nears 3 Million

Last June Mississippi's population topped the 2.7 million mark. Census estimates indicate the state will have more than 3 million people by 1990.

Mississippi's gains also parallel population increases in both the nation and the world. World population reached 4.7 billion in June, the largest 12-month gain ever reported.

The nation gained one percent more people in June with a reported population of 234.2 million people. India remains the fastest growing country with a 15.5 million increase in 1982, up 2.2 percent. The largest nation to lose population was West Germany, down 95,000 people.

Dr. Bob Chapin, coordinator of the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service Land Use Center, says U.S. Census Bureau now reveals that half the people on the globe live in five countries -- China, India, Soviet Union, the United States and Indonesia. He said one out of every four people live in China.

"Growth rates leveled off to 1.8 percent, but declining death rates increased the population base," Chapin said. "The result is that every year our agriculture must increase farmland by 27.3 million acres in order to feed, clothe, and shelter 82 million more people."

Snow, Ice, Bitter Cold Are Nature's Christmas Presents For 1983

By ED WOODWARD
Managing Editor

The weather has been the big news over the Christmas week. And, if the forecast can be believed, it may continue to be the big news going into the new year.

Booneville narrowly missed having a white Christmas after receiving a snowstorm Christmas week. North Mississippi was then plunged into a deep freeze that made many wonder if Santa had brought the North Pole with him as temperatures dipped below zero to hit record lows on Christmas Eve and Christmas Day, freezing water pipes and causing area residents to seriously consider hibernation.

Then, for the icing on the icebox cake, early Tuesday morning we received a combination of snow and freezing rain that coated roads and streets with a glasslike slippery glaze and made driving treacherous, if not virtually impossible for most residents of this normally warmer climate.

According to William Dallison Jr., local observer for the National Weather Service, Booneville's coldest temperature, minus one degree, was recorded early Christmas morning. Dallison measured last week's snow accumulation at two-and-one-half inches.

Area law enforcement officers were kept busy investigating "fender-bender" accidents Tuesday, Dec. 27, as an arctic storm glazed thoroughfares with snow and freezing rain, making driving conditions extremely hazardous.

Baldwyn police were forced to call in an extra patrolman just to help with the rash of minor accidents, according to Mayor Merle Rowan, who said things had been "real quite" for the police department otherwise.

By Tuesday afternoon when the icy streets began thawing, the Prentiss

County Sheriff's Department had logged no accidents outside municipalities.

Booneville Police Chief Bobby Lambert said his officers had been called out on only two actual accidents Tuesday morning. "We were lucky. There were several who went off the road. But there were only two accidents with damage. There were a lot of cars stalled, and off the road. But as far as damage, we had very little, and no injuries," he said.

Neither department reported any deaths related to the sub-zero temperatures experienced over the weekend.

"Everything came off really smooth this Christmas," Chief Lambert said. "I'm proud that things have gone as smooth as they have."

In the meantime, weather forecasters were predicting another dip into single-digit temperatures for today.

The Year In Review

Elections And Lawsuits Abounded

It was a year of lawsuits and elections in Prentiss County.

During 1983, four separate lawsuits were filed against Prentiss County Sheriff John McCauley and his deputies. Also, under the guidance of county schools' superintendent Lex Cain, the Prentiss County Board of Education continued its unsuccessful effort to sue Prentiss County Tax Assessor-Collector Danny Childers.

During 1983, Prentiss County voters decided they wanted a new sheriff and a new superintendent of education. These same voters also defeated a liquor referendum and, shortly thereafter, city voters defeated a beer and wine referendum.

City voters also rejected a second school bond issue during 1983, thereby postponing a plan to construct a new high school in Booneville.

The following is a month-by-month look at news highlights of 1983 as compiled from the pages of The Banner-Independent:

January 1983

The Prentiss County Board of Education filed a lawsuit, for the third time, against Tax Assessor-Collector Danny Childers, claiming that in 1980 he failed to collect $137,408 in taxes which should have gone to the county school system. Both of the earlier suits were dismissed.

Prentiss County Sheriff John McCauley changed his mind about seeking reelection and became the third candidate to qualify to run as sheriff of Prentiss County on Jan. 3. In March 1981 McCauley said he would not seek a second term.

The amount of damage to crop land, channel banks, and roads and bridges in Prentiss County following heavy rains during the holidays amounted to about $765,000.

February 1983

Two Prentiss County Deputies, Hubert Kitchens and Joe Shackelford, were fired by Prentiss County Sheriff John McCauley after they were given the choice of resigning or being fired at the end of January because of their candidacy for sheriff.

After three decades of coaching, Bill Ward stepped down as head coach of the Northeast Junior College Tigers.

A murder case involving Harold Lloyd Brinkley was retired to the court files. Brinkley was indicted in October 1981 on a murder charge in connection with the Nov. 10, 1980 shooting of his wife, Margaret. One of the reasons the case was retired to the files was the "extreme reluctance" of one of the prosecution's key witnesses to return to the state to testify, Assistant Richard Bowen said.

More than a year after the investigation began, the District Attorney's office presented to the Prentiss County Grand Jury a case involving Booneville police officers alleged to have illegally taken property from a variety store in downtown Booneville. However, the Grand Jury concluded that the evidence presented did not warrant indictments on felony charges and ordered that the evidence be turned over to the city prosecutor for consideration of possible misdemeanor charges.

March 1983

After almost two years of delays due to federal budget cutbacks, the go ahead was given for construction of a new Post Office in Booneville. Advertisements were taken for a location for the new building.

An anonymous letter containing pages from a state audit conducted at the Northeast Junior College in 1981 prompted a federal audit of the Northeast Mississippi Planning and Development District in Booneville, which has uncovered some $54,514 that may have been misused by the District, according to officials of the Appalachian Regional Commission.

The Booneville Board of Mayor and Aldermen voted to authorize city attorney Eugene Gifford to secure the services of a special prosecutor to make additional investigations into the alleged theft of merchandise by city policemen from Win-Way in November 1979. Talmadge Littlejohn, a New Albany attorney, was hired to serve as the special prosecutor.

A former Booneville attorney, Jack Dubard, was one of five men who were arrested in connection with the laundering of illegal drug money through a Las Vegas casino.

City voters rejected a $2,225,000 school bond issue. A similar bond issued was also rejected by city voters when it was proposed in December. Some 731 voted against the bond issue and 664 voted for it.

Arson was blamed for a fire which destroyed a grocery store in Jumbertown owned by Vera Ann Padgett and Jimmy Prentiss.

Nelwyn Murphy was named Prentiss County's Outstanding Citizen for 1983 at the Junior Auxiliary's annual fundraiser.

Two teachers in the Prentiss County School System were not rehired for the 1983-84 term due to cutbacks in funds and a decrease in the number of students in the school system.

Federal regulators took over a financially troubled savings and loan organization based in Oxford with a branch in Booneville. The North Mississippi Savings and Loan Association, with assets of approximately $150 million, was placed under receivership April 11. The action was taken after the Mississippi commissioner of savings and loans asked a state court to appoint a receiver for the failing institution.

In April it was announced that Booneville would receive a Community Development Block Grant for $176,262 to be used in building a new water treatment facility for the city.

The board of trustees of the Booneville Municipal Separate School District decided to close the building on South Bryant Street which housed Booneville Elementary School classes. It was agreed that grades 1-4 would attend classes at the Middle School and grades 5-7 would be moved to Anderson Junior High. Grade 8 would be moved to the high school in the fall.

Prentiss County's redistricting plan, passed by the supervisors last September, was approved by the U.S. Justice Department in Washington. As a result of redistricting, some people now live in a different supervisor's district even though they may not have moved. This is because the district lines themselves have changed.

A 17-year-old Dennis youth, Ralph Jeffery Moore, died when a pickup he was a passenger in left the road and plunged into Little Brown Creek. Two other youths in the vehicle were also hospitalized.

Booneville Postmaster Jack Wright said that the number one site being considered for the new Booneville Post Office was located on the vacant lot north of Kentucky Fried Chicken on Highway 45.

The Win-Way Store in downtown Booneville, one of the city's long established businesses, was destroyed by fire. No evidence of arson was found.

June 1983

A candidate for 5th district constable in Prentiss County, Leon Moss, was charged with murder after a motorist discovered a body lying in the middle of Highway 365. The body of Gordon R. Buchanan, 24, of Route 6, Booneville, was discovered in the middle of the highway, south of Cairo, about 2.7 miles from the county line. An autopsy revealed only that Buchanan died as the result of severe trauma to the head. Buchanan was reportedly employed by Moss.

Booneville pharmacist L.C. Wright met with the city's board of mayor and aldermen and presented a packet which he said contained 35-40 letters from people opposed to locating the post office outside the downtown area on U.S. 45, adjacent to Kentucky Fried Chicken.

When the deadline to qualify for a political office came Friday, June 3, a total of 91 candidates had qualified to seek election to various offices in Prentiss County. Some 17 candidates qualified for the sheriff's race, which was believed to be the highest number of candidates to ever seek that office in the county.

July 1983

Because of the concern of local residents, particularly downtown businessmen and women, the postal service advertised for more bids concerning the site of the new Booneville Post Office. The tentative site selected was adjacent to Kentucky Fried Chicken on Highway 45, a site which a number of downtown businessmen and women opposed.

Prentiss County's newest industry, owned by the Ethridge family of Booneville, delivered its first shipment of goods to the customer in July. Easy Manufacturing Inc. is Prentiss County's first muffler manufacturing plant.

A chancery court judge dismissed a third lawsuit brought by the Prentiss County Board of Education and Supt. Lex Cain against Prentiss County Tax Assessor-Collector Danny Childers. The school board claimed that in 1980 Childers failed to collect a portion of taxes for the county school system. This was the third time the suit was dismissed.

A special prosecutor, Talmadge Littlejohn of New Albany, hired to look into allegations against four Booneville police officers, placed the investigation back into the lap of the Prentiss County Grand Jury. After more than four months of investigation, Littlejohn reported to the board that the former owner of the store, S.Q. Whitehead, had refused to sign an affidavit in the case. Littlejohn recommended the case be closed. The four Booneville police officers involved in the case had been accused of burglarizing the Win-Way store in downtown Booneville in November 1979.

August 1983

The Aug. 2 primary guaranteed that Prentiss County would have a new sheriff. W.V. Horn and Wallace Davis led the field of 17 candidates for sheriff. In the second primary on Aug. 23, Horn, a former Prentiss County supervisor, was victorious.

Groundbreaking ceremonies were held in August for the multi-million dollar construction and renovation project at Baptist Memorial Hospital in Booneville. The ceremony marked the beginning of a 2½-3 year project which will eventually result in an almost completely new hospital for Booneville and Prentiss County.

A Prentiss County man, Walter Lee Lewis of New Site, was charged with murder following the shooting death of his brother, Jerry Wayne Lewis, on Aug. 4.

A number of incumbents - including the county superintendent of education, two justice court judges, and three constables - were defeated in the second Democratic primary.

September 1983

A half-million-dollar lawsuit was filed against Prentiss County Sheriff John McCauley in the local circuit court by the family of Jerry Wayne Lewis. Lewis was shot and killed during a family argument on Aug. 4. The suit claimed Lewis' death was caused or contributed to by "the negligent acts and omissions of the defendant and his employees for failing to fulfill the duties of his office as Sheriff of Prentiss County."

Children aged 6 and 7 in Prentiss County, as well as the entire state, were required to attend school in the fall under the state's new Compulsory Attendance Law. Editor Ken Christian was named the publisher of The Banner-Independent. Former publisher Paul Miller was named publisher of The State Gazette, a five-day-per-week newspaper in Dyersburg, Tenn.

A $75,000 lawsuit was filed against Prentiss County Sheriff John McCauley in federal court in Aberdeen by a former prisoner, Terry Shannon, who is now serving a prison sentence in Parchman. Shannon claimed he denied medical attention which incarcerated in the county jail.

A $100,000 lawsuit was filed against Sheriff McCauley, his bonding company, and his ex-deputy, Hubert Kitchens, in Federal Court in Aberdeen by a former prisoner, Larry Carpenter. This lawsuit claimed that the deputy beat Carpenter and that he was denied medical attention while in jail.

The people gathering reappraisal information began canvassing the county in September to gather information on residential property.

A petition requesting a referendum on the question of beer and wine sales within the Booneville corporate limits was submitted to the city's board of aldermen Sept. 6.

The Prentiss County Board of Supervisors approved a budget totaling $3.1 million for the coming fiscal year.

Booneville Headstart began meeting in the building formerly occupied by Booneville Elementary School on South Bryant Street.

October 1983

The Booneville Board of Aldermen approved a $1.15 million budget for 1983-84.

A United Dries Organization was formed to organize their opposition to the sale of alcoholic beverages in the county.

A fourth lawsuit was filed against Sheriff John McCauley. A Jumbertown couple, Jerry L. and Barbara J. Shook, filed a $750,000 lawsuit in federal court against former deputy Joe Shackelford, McCauley, their bonding company, the Prentiss County Board of Supervisors and Junior Gray. The suit claimed that Shackelford used excessive force when he arrested Shook Oct. 8, 1982.

BIBLE QUESTION BOX

QUESTION: Mr. Hogland, could you explain the love feasts mentioned in Jude 12?

WARD HOGLAND

ANSWER: Actually, I can't tell you too much about the "agape" or love feasts. According to Acts 2:46 it seems that early Christians got together to eat their meals. In this text it is said, "Continuing steadfastly with one accord in the temple, and breaking bread at home, they took their food with gladness and singleness of heart." Some commentaries try to establish the "love feasts" in connection with the Lord's Supper. This is the very thing Paul condemned in 1 Cor. 11:17-23. Paul told the brethren they had their own houses to eat and drink in. We may not know too much about the "love feasts" in Paul's day but one thing we can know for certain is they did not use money out of the church treasury for kitchens and dining halls. It is still good for brethren to get together and enjoy a meal on a private basis. One is weighed in the balances and found wanting when he tries to justify a church kitchen on the mention of "love feasts." The Bible does not authorize such things as fellowship halls, aerobic exercises, ski retreats, puppet ministry and such like out of the church treasury. Such things are to be supported on an individual basis and not shoved off on the church.

Toys For Tots Campaign More Successful Than Anticipated

TOYS FOR TOTS - Toys collected by Heritage Cablevision for the local Toys For Tots campaign are stacked around the Christmas tree at the Heritage office awaiting new homes with area needy children. The cable company, cooperating with Booneville First Baptist Church and the Ladies' Junior Auxilliary, offered a reduction in installation charges to anyone donating a toy to the campaign. (Photo by Ed Woodward)

The 1983 Toys For Tots campaign for the Booneville area was even more successful than anticipated, according to Barney Bramlett, marketing manager for Heritage Cablevision.

Toys For Tots is a campaign sponsored annually by the U.S. Marine Corps to provide toys for needy children. In areas with no Marine detachment nearby, the program is coordinated by local civic and charitable organizations.

The Booneville program was co-sponsored this year by the Booneville First Baptist Church and the Ladies' Junior Auxilliary, Bramlett said.

Heritage cooperated in the campaign by offering a reduction on installation charges to anyone who donated a new or used toy to Toys For Tots.

"We even had four people come in with donations who did not want the installation," Bramlett said. He said such donations were made by Patti Carter, L.C. Wroten, Lionel Heavener and Sheila Burns.

Bramlett said most toys donated were new, and would need no repairs. In areas with Marine detachments, repairs are made by the Marines on donated used toys. The toys are then given to children of needy families.

"We want to thank the people of Booneville and the surrounding area for participating in the promotion," Bramlett said. "We think this is a worthy cause, and we plan to do it every year from now on."

"We're really enthusiastic about this. And we look forward to doing it next year with an even bigger tree to place the toys around, and a bigger staff to handle things," he said.

IRMA ROBINSON RETIRES - Mrs. Irma Robinson, who has served as deputy chancery clerk for 30 years, will retire tomorrow, Dec. 30. During the annual Christmas dinner at the Prentiss County Courthouse last Thursday Mrs. Robinson received recognition from Chancery Clerk Phillip Cole, Circuit Clerk Travis Cox, the Prentiss County Board of Supervisors and the Prentiss County Bar Association. Board of Supervisors President J.P. Davis is shown presenting Mrs. Robinson a plaque in honor of her retirement.

Sheriff-Elect Completes Law Course For Certification

Prentiss County Sheriff-elect William V. Horn has completed a special training course that certifies him to be sworn into office in January.

The three-week course, held at the Mississippi Law Enforcement Officers' Training Academy in Rankin County, was designed to provide newly elected Mississippi sheriffs basic training in law enforcement and administration.

The certification course is required by a state law passed in 1968. The course began Nov. 28 and ended Dec. 16, and included both classroom instruction and practical exercises.

Topics covered were management, budgeting, criminal and constitutional law, sheriff's statutes, juvenile law, criminal investigations, narcotics, accident investigation, officer survival, arrest techniques, pursuit driving, and firearms training.

COLD VIGIL - Youth and their leaders at East Booneville Baptist Church braved sub-freezing temperatures last week to stage a 'Living Nativity' adjacent to the church sanctuary.

Church pastor Wayne Foropoulos said the church plans to continue the tradition next year, and have plans to include a live camel to add even more authenticity to the setting.

BROKEN POLES - According to Booneville Police Chief John O. Lambert, Joseph W. Bridges, 41, of 211 Marietta St., was charged with DUI, reckless driving, and possession of beer and whiskey after the pickup he was driving left the road and hit two power poles at the intersection of U.S. 45 and Old Highway 45. The accident occurred Dec. 22 and caused brief power outages in the area as Prentiss County Electric Power Association workmen repaired the damage.

POINT OF LAW

Mississippi State Bar

(Prepared by the Mississippi State Bar. Some legal rights may vary from locality to locality. Always consult an attorney when in doubt about your rights.)

Q: I have been living with my boyfriend for two years. We consider ourselves husband and wife and tell everyone we are married, but as far as tax reports are concerned, should partners of a common-law marriage be filing as married or single?

A: In Mississippi, common-law marriages are not recognized, and have not been recognized by law since 1956. Under Mississippi law, each of you is considered a single person.

Q: Several years ago I opened a small gift shop in my home town. Business was good for a while but now I am in financial trouble. I do not want to declare personal bankruptcy if I can keep from it. Can I declare bankruptcy on the business only?

A: If your business is a sole proprietorship, you are personally liable for all debts of the business, and therefore, you cannot avoid personal bankruptcy. If, however, your business is incorporated, you may declare bankruptcy on the business without declaring personal bankruptcy.

Q: There is a company which owes my company money and they are declaring bankruptcy. Is there any way I can get my money back? Do I need to get on a list?

A: If you have a claim secured with collateral, you will either get the return of the collateral or your money back at least the extent of the value of the collateral. If you have an unsecured claim, it will be dependent on the type of bankruptcy which is filed. You will be notified of the bankruptcy by communication from the bankruptcy court. At that time you can contact the bankruptcy trustee, or the debtor in possession as listed on the notice from the bankruptcy court. You may be required to file a proof of claim to collect your money.

Q: I have had to go to court or contact a lawyer for back child support four times in the last three or four years. My ex-husband says he does not have to pay because our daughter spent most of the summer with our relatives. He is now three months behind in payments. Can he get away with this?

A: Unless the support order makes a specific provision for suspending the child support payments when the child is not in your physical custody, your ex-husband must make the support payments even when your daughter was staying with relatives.

Ponderings

I don't like ice unless it's in my tea. Wednesday morning there was ice on my gravel road. I don't mean a little ice - I'm talking solid sheets of ice.

I'm not much of a driver even when it's a warm and sunny day so you can imagine my predicament when the road is icy. I could just imagine my neighbors rushing to their windows to watch me as my car slid up and down the road.

My fear of icy roads goes back several years. There was one winter when the weather was icy and the roads froze. When the roads thawed out, they also became just about impassable.

One day I was almost home when my car got stuck in the middle of the road. It was an awful feeling to be almost home and get stuck. But on the other hand if a person is going to get stuck in the road, being close to home is an asset because I had a good neighbor who pulled my car out of the mud.

But then another neighbor came by and he got stuck in the same spot. That was a bad winter. But that was the winter when a lot of Prentiss Countians encountered the same problems with their roads.

I think that when the weather turns to icy conditions that I should be allowed to stay home and not have to come to work. After all, these people at the Banner are always telling me I don't work anyway so I didn't think they would care if I didn't come in to work Tuesday because of the icy roads.

But I (and Kay and Sue) wound up at work anyway Tuesday thanks to the Banner's chauffeur.

I'm not fond of this extremely cold weather. We just aren't equipped for it in Mississippi.

I wasn't supposed to tell this, but I know none of you will repeat it. The weather was so cold last weekend that Kay had to wrap her water pipes that were in the well-house.

While she was wrapping the pipes, the well-house door slammed shut, locking her in. Luckily, she finally managed to get the door open. Let this be a lesson to everyone - be careful when you're outside, especially when it's cold - otherwise you might freeze to death.

Although I was at work Tuesday I didn't conduct this week's street opinion. I don't like it when we don't have street opinion but I felt like everyone would understand the circumstances.

If there had been a street opinion question this week it would have been "What are your New Year's Resolutions?"

My resolution is to stay home from now on when the roads are icy.

Eyes On Mississippi

House 'Plantation System' Challenged

By BILL MINOR
Syndicated Columnist
JACKSON, Miss. - The

movement launched by some mostly young members, and members-elect of the Mississippi House to change the rules under which that body operates is, in reality, a challenge to the plantation system that has long dominated the House.

It is certainly much more than a tempest in a teapot started by some petulant young men. Even if they are not successful in their initial attempt, the House reformers very likely have started an historic shift of power away from the feudal barons who have run the House for almost a century.

There's been only one challenge to the power clique of the House in the last 50 years, that coming in 1956 when Gov. J.P. Coleman extracted a few rules changes in an attempt to keep his legislation from being bottled up in the powerful committee system of the House.

But he backed away from a confrontation with the man who ran the system in the House, then Speaker Walter Sillers, and declined to push young Grenada County Rep. William Winter in his bid to unseat Sillers.

Winter made the race anyway against Sillers, losing of course, but getting some 42 votes from fellow House members who wanted to see some democracy brought to the way the House was run.

Before Coleman's term was over, he was overrun by the Delta-based forces of Sillers who showed their muscle in blocking a monumental attempt by Coleman to rewrite the State Constitution.

That constitution perhaps sits at the heart of the feudal mentality which has controlled the Mississippi House so many years, diminished only slightly by the input of reapportionment which started 15 years ago.

Under the post-Reconstruction constitution, the Delta was given inordinate power in the Mississippi lower chamber under an apportionment plan that divided the state in three "grand divisions" between the Delta, Northeast Mississippi and the Piney Woods.

The gentleman-planters from the Delta gravitated into the positions of power in the House because they were routinely re-elected to their seats while the hill country and piney woods lawmakers were regularly being turned over.

Sillers, the courtly Rosedale lawyer-planter who spent an unprecedented 50 years in the House, the last 24 of them as speaker, became the consummate master of the plantation system by which he ran the legislative body. He did his work through his straw bosses who were given the choice committee assignments in the House. He passed out crumbs to those who were eager to get a seat at his table.

For the rest of the hands, it meant laboring in the cotton field with no recognition, no power to bring about change, but you darn sure better not step out of line.

Sillers had taught his political feudalism well to his handful of dedicated lieutenants. One of them, Buddie Newman, now holds the mantle of the Sillers power, and he has done well in perpetuating the plantation system.

No longer is the ruling clique of the House solely in the Delta, because the inroads of reapportionment have taken a good number of seats away from the area. Yet, both the Speaker, Newman, and his top lieutenant, Rep. H.L. Sonny Merideth significantly come from the Delta. Newman, however, has cleverly been able to teach the plantation system to his set of straw bosses that he has recruited from other areas of the state, and Sillers would be proud of the job his disciple has done.

It was evident when the Class of 1980 arrived in the House four years ago, that it contained some of the brightest, most independent bunch to come into the Legislature in years. But it became apparent before long that many of them were frustrated by the system in the House which stifled opportunity to use their brains and talents.

This group of 1980 freshmen provided the nucleus for reform that the bulk of the newcomers elected in 1983 seem to represent. For the first time in memory, some new House members were elected after campaigning openly for change in the House leadership.

There is a recognition that Newman cannot be unseated as Speaker, but the insurgent group of lawmakers believe the time has come to change the system that concentrates so much power in the hands of the Speaker and his close-knit cadre of committee chairman who can arbitrarily decide which bills will live or die.

One of the key changes being sought is to let a majority of the members of a committee call up a bill for a vote, rather than give the chairman the sole power of determining which bills will be acted upon.

Significantly, when the Eagleton Institute at Rutgers University produced a set of recommendations for the Mississippi Legislature back in 1969 when annual limited sessions were inaugurated, one of the specific proposals made was to give the membership of a committee the right by a majority vote to call up bills after they had been in committee for seven days.

Those in control of the power in the House have carefully ignored that recommendation for years, as well as any other that would let very many of the members of that body share in the power.

Wanted: Hillside Woodlands

By ED BLAKE
Mississippi
Farm Bureau
Federation

With five percent of Mississippi's present cropland so steep that it creates 40 percent of this state's field erosion, a challenge is out for landowners and farmers to clean up their managerial act and tie down and enhance steep land slopes with woodlands.

Paul Dillard, staff forester for the USDA Soil Conservation Service, reports that new technology and a bright economic picture for forestry should make every landowner reassess his present land use practices in the light of profitability.

Dillard is optimistic that landowners can have their forestry cake and eat it too by conforming to multiple use concepts which already have proven highly successful on government lands, but which have been an elusive opportunity for private landowners, mostly because of occasional misunderstandings of some basic forestry principles and new practices.

Today, Dillard reports, forestry technology has been adapted to this state's tree resources with a high degree of efficiency - replacing a formerly less advantageous philosophy of adapting resources to technology. The forester refers in part to the invention and availability within the industry of machines which utilize virtually all of the wood products now rapidly growing in popularity on the market.

"Gone are the days," Dillard says, "when we only cut straight logs of minimum diameters from the best trees in the forest. Now we can go after the seconds and culls, or less desirable species, and create plywood and particle boards that are major items in the modern building industry."

He indicated that today's technology permits layering of softwood and hardwood fibers to create wooden panels with highly desirable characteristics for the construction trade.

This is good news for landowners who once found a market only for their choicest trees, and whose woodlands suffered as woodcutters often cut the best trees and left the worst still living on the site.

The forestry conservationist reports that one of the most efficient timber harvesting methods is clear cutting of flat or moderately sloped timberlands with utilization of virtually all of the wood fiber on the site. This practice results in a favorable replanting site for the establishment of a new crop of trees with a minimum cost for site preparation.

Some site preparation methods may create excessive erosion on steep land, and if this is a problem the conservationist recommends the use of drum chopping rather than shearing and windrowing. Modern drum chopping equipment is less expensive to operate in this situation than other systems, and leaves behind shredded twigs and other waste materials high in protein which serve as a deterrent to soil erosion and provide a source of nutrition for new tree seedlings.

On steep slopes shear-cutting, windrowing, and diskling for site preparation is a bad practice, and generally creates the greatest source of soil erosion in forestry regeneration.

Dillard sees considerable opportunities for landowners to make more profit from forestry through improved management practices. Like a savings account, owners should withdraw the interest and not the capital, and this is possible by harvesting only blocked out portions of the entire tract at any one time. In most cases that would be from three to eight years. Simultaneous replanting of the harvested blocks affords more uniform growth for higher quality production.

Dillard believes Mississippi landowners should cash in on this state's superior competitive advantages in forestry due to rainfall, a long growing season, and favorable soils. About 55 percent of the state is forested with ownership by individuals of 72 percent of the woodlands; companies, 18 percent; and government, 10 percent.

Naturally occurring hardwood forest acreage is the most prevalent over the state. However the value of hardwoods is less than southern pine softwoods. Good forestry management includes planting faster growing, premium lumber producing pines on upland sites, and maintaining good hardwood forests in bottomlands, the conservationist believes. He reports that good all-round management should include income from timber sales, development of game resources on the lands, recreational uses, and other objectives a landowner may have.

He hopes to see state landowners soon convert 350,000 acres of erosion-prone hilly cropland to forestry use as soon as possible as a benefit to themselves and improved land use.

That Yankee From Yonder

This Is The Sunny South?

By Ed Woodward

Managing Editor

The last Winter I spent up north, I was living in New York City when The Big Apple was coated by two blizzards within two weeks. Some of my more memorable memories of that time are of a solid line of stuck city busses stretching crosstown on 8th Street through Greenwich Village, of standing in line for 45 minutes at Corvette's to buy a pair of boots, and of watching a couple skiing on Fifth Avenue.

When I moved south it was my intention to leave such memories behind. But the snow and cold seem to have followed me. Or at least that has been true the last couple of years.

When I headed south I had endured 39 years of icy, snowey, bitter cold Winters (with the exception of the three years I spent in France, where the Winters are similar to a normal Southern Winter). I had seen all I wanted to see of one to two foot accumulations of snow with six and eight foot drifts. And I had felt all the sub-freezing temperatures I wanted to feel.

I find nothing glamorous about arriving at my walking destination with the bristles of my moustache so frosted and brittle they break.

There is nothing enjoyable about standing in a hip-deep snowdrift when the temperature is 15-below zero and a 40 mile-per-hour wind whistles around your already frostitbitten ears.

And I no longer am entertained by doing 180 degree circles with my car in heavy traffic.

But, least of all do I enjoy sharing streets and roads with other drivers who have no experience driving on ice and snow.

I came south because I was fed up to here (Use your imagination) with the cold Northern climate, and the resulting discomfort that goes with it. So, I promise you, I did not order this weather. I definitely had no nostalgic urge for it. In fact, I detest it, and wish it would return to Canada where it belongs.

I actually heard a weatherman on TV the other night say we were getting the weather Canada was supposed to be getting, and Canada was getting mild weather.

That sounds like the fiendish plot of a mad Canadian scientist in a James Bond movie or a Stan Lee comic book. Has the Jet Stream actually moved south? Are we really on the threshold of another ice age? Is this the result of "The Greenhouse Effect" or "The Icehouse Effect"?...the work of Ernst Blofeld or Dr. Octopus?

Whatever the cause, I want it to cease and desist. I moved to the Sunny South to get away from this; not to endure more of it. And it can go back to Canada where the huskies and the malamutes can enjoy it and frolic in it... right now.

USDA Prepares Housing Act Changes

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Farmers Home Administration is preparing new housing regulations to implement changes in the housing act passed by Congress and signed into law by President Ronald Reagan on Nov. 30.

Charles W. Shuman, administrator of Farmers Home Administration, said many of the new provisions will make it possible for the agency to help more of the most needy persons in rural areas to obtain safe, decent and adequate housing.

Shuman said amendments passed last month give the Farmers Home Administration several new authorities to make housing assistance available to low income borrowers, including:

- single family mortgages of up to 38 years - five years longer than current repayment periods;
- loans for manufactured housing units, including the lots on which they are located;
- A new program of housing preservation grants to eligible organizations and units of government to rehabilitate single and multi-family housing.

ASCS News

By C.E. CALVERT
County Executive Director

Secretary Block
Outlines
New Conservation
Initiatives

Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block announced new initiatives by the U.S. Department of Agriculture to encourage more farmers and ranchers to reduce soil erosion and improve natural resources.

Block combined the announcement with his introduction of the 1983 Yearbook of Agriculture, "Using our Natural Resources."

Block said he is making $20 million of Agricultural Conservation Program funds available for long-term conservation on highly erodible land in the 1984 acreage conservation reserve. To be eligible for consideration, farmers must be enrolled in a 1984 commodity program requiring an acreage reduction. The funds will be used to encourage the planting of grass or trees rather than crops on highly erodible land. The government's cost-share rate will be 90 percent.

"Our goal for this test program is to determine a producers' willingness to retire highly erodible land for five years if seeded to grass - and at least 10 years if planted to trees," Block said. "They can also be assured that acreage under the plan will be eligible for any acreage reduction plan through 1985."

"This project will provide us with information on the impact of combining short-term commodity program objectives with long-term conservation objectives. It will give USDA and the Congress an opportunity to evaluate the landowners' willingness to make a long-term commitment to retire highly erodible land.

"A continuing conservation effort must be built into agriculture's future, both in the government and in the private sector. We all have a responsibility. Also, the subject must be addressed in the 1985 farm bill. We must seriously examine the extent to which commodity and credit programs contribute to poor conservation practices by encouraging production on highly erodible land."

Block said plans are also being developed for two national conferences in 1984. One will be a discussion with conservation and farm organizations on conservation strategy for the 1985 farm bill. The second will be on conservation tillage technology co-sponsored by several national groups.

Block asked USDA field employees today to participate in the special conservation effort. He said cooperation among USDA agencies on resource conservation must be a top priority for the coming year.

"This administration has organized the USDA agency leaders in every state and county into food and agriculture councils called FACs," Block said. "For the state and local FACs that are able to show distinguished achievements of major significance in this conservation campaign by next fall, I will reserve the highest honor that I as Secretary can bestow on our employees -- the distinguished service award."

USDA Continues
To Target
Conservation Programs
To Problem
Areas

Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block today said the U.S. Department of Agriculture will provide $45.3 million in "targeted" conservation program funds during fiscal 1984 as part of its national campaign to reduce critical U.S. soil erosion and water conservation problems.

Block said the targeted concept allows federal, state and local governments, and farmers to attack the most critical problems while maintaining conservation practices already established on other lands. The agricultural conservation program, administered by USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service through the farmer-elected committee system, is a joint effort by government and other groups to restore and protect basic land and water resources. The program will target $19 million for financial assistance in 43 states and Puerto Rico.

Block said USDA's Soil Conservation Service will target $26.3 million to 44 states and Puerto Rico to attack the same problems by providing additional conservation technical assistance.

"With both ASCS and SCS working together on these problems, we will be focusing conservation resources and expertise where the need is greater and we can get the most for our money," he said.

In allocating funds for the program, USDA will emphasize those measures that provide cost-effective solutions to resource problems and will encourage conservation tillage methods to reduce excessive erosion, Block said.

Block said both water conservation and erosion control measures will emphasize long term agreements covering installation of conservation practices over a period of several years.

Of the $19 million in agricultural conservation program cost-share assistance, $14.365 million is allocated for erosion control in 402 counties, $3.635 million is for water conservation in 120 counties and $1 million is being held in reserve at the national level.

Of the $26.3 million for conservation technical assistance, $22.15 million is allocated for erosion control in 639 counties, $3.85 million is for water conservation in 169 counties and $300,000 is being held in reserve at the national level.

The "targeted" funds are part of the USDA's continuing resolutions for these two programs for fiscal 1984, Block said.

Mississippi will receive $510,000 and Prentiss County will receive a portion of this.

Eating right and eating light is particularly important during the holiday season when many people overindulge in festive foods or even skip meals to keep up with busier schedules.

This is the height of the citrus season. Look for fruit that is firm and heavy for its size. Refrigerate until ready to use. The following varieties of citrus are now available.

Navel oranges are deep yellow color, extra large fruit. They peel and section easily. Best supply: November to January.

Hamlin is smooth surface and medium size. It's an excellent juice orange. Best supply: October to December.

Temple oranges are small with deep orange color. They peel easily. Best supply: January to March.

Tangelo is a large fruit. A cross between tangerine and grapefruit. Deep orange in color. Best supply: December to March.

Tangerine is small or medium fruit, easy to peel and deeply colored. It has a rich sweet flavor. Best supply: November to February.

Marsh seedless Grapefruit has smooth yellow skin and is medium size, usually flattened on each end. Contains less than eight seeds. Best supply: November to June.

Pink Seedless Grapefruit is similar to March Seedless Grapefruit except that the meat of the fruit has a pink or reddish tint. Best supply: October to May.

To keep energy up and weight down try these tricks: A half grapefruit is a quick snack that provides energy to carry you through an afternoon of shopping.

Adopt an either-or principle at the beginning of each meal. Choose between a drink or an appetizer, an appetizer or a dessert, a dessert or a slice of bread.

Use orange or grapefruit juice as the base for holiday punches. Four ounces of orange juice has approximately 60 calories, while four ounces of nonalcoholic eggnog has 170 calories.

When your favorite food is served at a meal, enjoy it first; it will be easier to stop eating.

Fresh oranges, tangerines, and grapefruit make a wonderfully light and refreshing dessert after a heavy holiday meal. Citrus is high in nutrients and has a sweet taste without many calories.

Sip orange juice and club soda while cooking. This is a good way to avoid nibbling and tasting before serving.

When your energy lags in the later afternoon, pick yourself up with a juicy orange or tangerine. Fruit contains three different natural sugars: sucrose and glucose which act quickly to raise the blood sugar, and 1 slower acting fructose. Together, these natural sugars make fruit an ideal energy-giving snack.

The refined sugar in hard candy or chocolate are effective, but temporary sources of quick energy. Refined sugar is rapidly absorbed into the body causing a surge of non-lasting energy. The level of blood sugar then declines just as rapidly producing an energy slump.

Fruit juices which are available at most snack counters are also a good source of energy. Take a break from holiday shopping to sample orange and grapefruit juices. Fruits and fruit juices are easily packed in a brown paper bag for a lunch or snack break during shopping.

Don't forget to include plenty of citrus for special gift baskets during the holidays.

County Agent's Notes

By CLIFFORD J. HAMPTON
County Agent

Recent rains finished defoliating most deciduous trees. Fallen straw and leaves should be saved to mulch landscape plants. Mulching conserves moisture and prevents winter drying. Winter drying of evergreen foliage is the main cause of damaged foliage commonly called "winterkill." Thick layers of mulch also prevent root systems from freezing and killing the entire plant. Excess mulch can be stored and used in the compost pile.

In most areas of Mississippi, December is still a good month to transplant landscape trees and shrubs. However, January brings our coldest weather and transplanting should be avoided during January.

Soil preparation can continue during January if the soil is dry enough to cultivate (till). Avoid tilling or cultivating wet soil of high clay content. This is an ideal time to take soil samples. Lime and nutrients that might be needed can be incorporated during the soil preparation process prior to planting.

The transplanting season can resume in February for south and central Mississippi. North Mississippi should wait until late February to resume the planting season. All planting should be completed by mid-April.

Many gardeners like to begin their pruning operations during the Christmas holidays. This early winter pruning is fine in most areas of Mississippi since cold weather has induced dormancy by Christmastime.

For more detailed information on pruning, come by our office on 404 East Church Street, and ask for Information Sheet No. 204, "Pruning Landscape Plants", or call 728-5631, or 728-7092.

4-H Notes

By WAYNE LAND
Extension 4-H
Youth Agent

"Who's going to believe a teenager? They will just think I broke it."

Many teen-agers hesitate returning damaged merchandise to stores because they think they lack credibility. But youth enrolled in the 4-H Consumer Education project are learning how to get rid of the problems.

Beverly Riggs, Extension Service family economics and management specialist, has several suggestions for teenagers returning items.

If you bought it in a store, take the item, its original packing and receipt back to the store. Go to the department where you purchased the item. The clerks may take care of the problem there or they may send you to the customer service department.

Tell the store representative when you bought it and what the problem is. Then tell him if you want it repaired, replaced or your money back. Be confident and polite.

If the store will not cooperate or you cannot go to the store, try writing a complaint letter. Mail the item back to the store or company. Look for the address on the package, then send the item and letter to the customer service department.

Include the following things in the letter:

- the name of your purchase.
- the serial or model number.
- the date and locations of the purchase.
- an explanation of the problem you are having with the item.
- a brief history of the problem.
- a statement of what you want in return -- a replacement, a repair or your money back.
- copies of any receipts or letters.

Through the 4-H Consumer Education project, teen-agers are learning how to be more effective consumers.

Emergency Feed Program Extended

The sign-up for the Emergency Feed Assistance Program has been extended. It will be held December 27 through January 4.

Farmers suffering a loss in 1983 production of livestock feed due to disaster conditions are eligible to apply for assistance under this program. The cost to eligible farmers will be 75 percent of the current loan rate in the country where the corn is stored.

Transportation cost will be paid by the farmer.

Interested farmers should contact the ASCS office for program details and application for assistance filed by January 4.

director of education and research said, "Those cows which are Benchmark Dams represent the reference point of productivity by which all other cows can be compared. They have proven themselves to be efficient producers."

To qualify for the award, each cow must have had at least three calves, with weaning weights for all her calves, recorded in the APHA's Guide Lines Program. Her calves weaning herd, she must have had her first calf prior to turning 25 months old, and have had an average calving interval no longer than 365 days.

Soil Conservation Report

By ED CALVERT
Soil Conservation
Booneville
Field Office

Have you ever walked across your farm and seen gullies forming, washes across your bottomland or ponds filling in? How many of you have stands of dead timber or poor mixtures of grass in your pastures?

Most Prentiss County farmers could answer, "Yes, I do", to both to these questions, and then ask where do I start first to solve all these problems.

You first start with a soil and water conservation plan. This service is offered to farmers and landowners free of charge by the Soil Conservation Service (SCS) through the Prentiss County Soil and Water Conservation District (SWCD).

All you need to do to get your conservation plan is to come by the SCS office in Booneville and become a cooperator with the Prentiss County SWCD. After you become a cooperator, a member of the SCS staff will come out to your farm and discuss your conservation needs with you. SCS will work closely with you to develop a plan that will fit your farming needs and the needs of your land.

In implementing your plan, you should take it one step at a time. Do not try to do everything in one year. It may take two or three years to complete. The important thing is to work toward completing the whole plan.

For your conservation plan call the SCS in Booneville at 728-3544.

THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK:

Helping Her Cry

If We Love One Another, God Lives In Union With Us,
And His Love Is Made Perfect In Us.

-- 1 John 4:12

(Adapted From The Upper Room)

If God lives in us, love comes out of us. Showing love is more than a simple outward motion.

For example, one day a young girl returned quite late from her playmate's house. Her mother, waiting angrily at the door, asked, "Where have you been?"

"I was at Sally's house. She broke her doll."

"Well, what does that have to do with you being late? You certainly couldn't help fix it."

"But, mother, I had to stay and help her cry!"

Standing with those we care about, taking action because actions prove feelings we can't adequately express - it's called being a friend when we're needed, and not just when we want to be.

According To Trade Magazine Survey

Food Prices 'Cooled Down' In 1983

By ANN RUSHING
Marketing Specialist
Mississippi Cooperative
Extension Service

In their 36th annual Consumer Expenditures Study report, Supermarket Business appropriately refers to 1983 as "the year supermarket prices cooled off."

The cooling off of supermarket prices has continued for the nine months since the survey period, so it's possible that shoppers have relaxed some economy measures reflected in their 1982 buying profile.

The 4 percent increase in grocery store sales in 1983 was the smallest annual gain since 1976. The gain was unusual in another way. It was only one percent larger than the food price increase of the year. Historically, as more food variety and more convenience foods have become available, shoppers have increased amount of money spent at a faster pace than price increases have required.

Last year shoppers reacted to the dual threat of recession and inflation by trading down to lower priced items in some areas while trading up in others. Fresh fruit and vegetable purchases continued upward to replace some of the canned foods that would have cost less.

There was also an increase in use of low calorie specialty items and frozen gourmet dinners while lower cost frozen entrees were bought less frequently. Efforts to economize included increased buying of generic label foods and baking ingredients. Two recession-proof items of the past, beer and soft drinks, succumbed to last year's economy efforts with the smallest gains of many years.

The conflicting concerns of 1982 shoppers were reflected in the food industry. Food stores, in order to survive, continued to increase sales volume in three ways; making stores bigger, offering more non-foods, and increased merchandising efficiency -- including warehouse type merchandising.

As supermarkets have become bigger to survive, conflicting shopper demands have taken still another turn: increased buying from convenience and specialty stores. Food manufacturers reacted to last year's economy trend by introducing few new products while pushing old ones with economy or nutrition appeal.

In 1982, the average household spent $52.16 in grocery stores, an increase of $1.24 over 1981. Of the 1982 weekly purchases, $39.74 was spent for food and $12.42 for non-foods. The year's gain for food (2.2 percent) was smaller than that for non-foods (3.1 percent).

Of the $39.74 spent for food, $5.96 (15 percent) went for alcoholic beverages, candy, chewing gum, and coffee; $11.44 (29 percent) for fresh or processed meat, fresh fish, and fresh poultry;

$2.46 (6 percent) for frozen foods; $3.92 (10 percent) for dairy products, eggs, and margarine; $5.50 (14 percent) for fresh fruits and vegetables; $3.22 (8 percent) for baked goods; and the remaining $7.24 (18 percent) was divided among the dozens of food items that we chose from grocery store shelves in all sizes and shapes of cans, bottles, and packages.

Dollar volume leaders, as would be expected, were for the fresh meat, fish, and poultry food group with about one-fifth of total grocery store sales, followed by fresh produce with about one-tenth of total sales. Following downward from 7 to 4 percent of sales in this order were dairy case items, household supplies, baked goods, canned foods, alcoholic beverages, frozen foods, non-prescription health and beauty aids, and tobacco products.

Last year's ten top dollar gainers, listed in descending order, were white bread, prescriptions, cold cereal, frozen vegetables, cigarettes, toilet paper, natural cheese, packaged bacon, fresh fruit, and canned vegetables. Top dollar losers were solid pesticides, dried beans and peas, flash bulbs and cubes, sugar, peanut butter, iced tea mixes, canned grapefruit juice, flour, eggs, and canned meat.

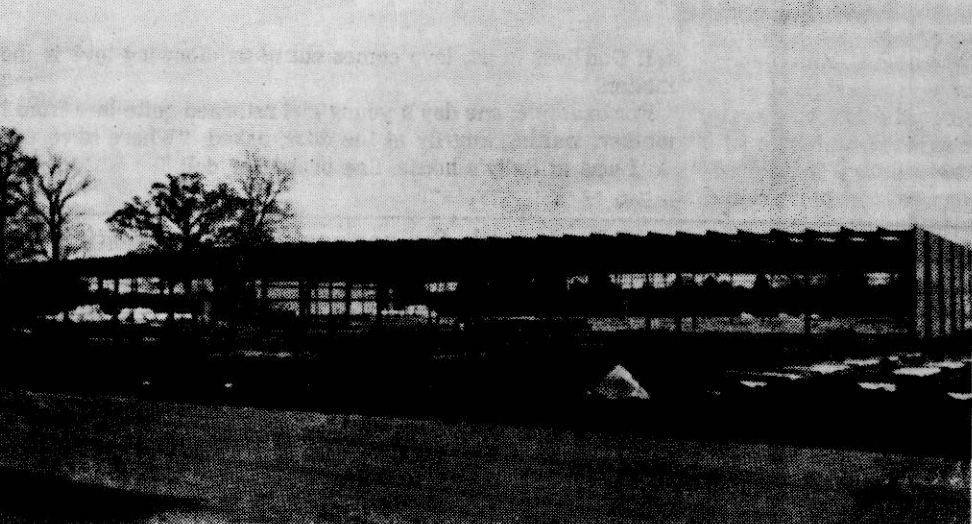

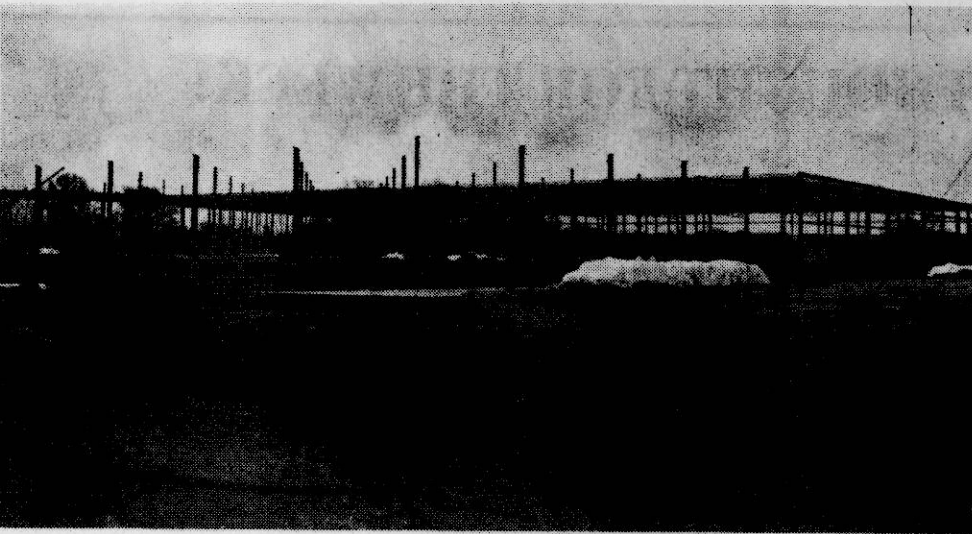

Sales gains or losses resulted from both volume purchased and prices paid. Dollar sales for cigarettes increased because of a series of price increases, despite a small decrease in tonnage and some switching to less expensive generic brands.

Dollars spent for peanut butter dropped because of price decreases accompanied by increased purchases. Money spent for eggs and sugar also decreased while purchases increased slightly. Canned meat, flashbulbs and cubes are examples of items that decreased both in price and volume purchased. Amounts of bacon and beer purchased decreased while dollar sales increased.

Recession and unemployment were not enough to stem the tide of eating out in 1982. Despite price increases of food away from home, more than one-half greater than those for foods at home, tonnage of food purchased away from home increased.

Easing of the economy and increase in this year's work force point toward more eating away from home. Aggressively merchandised delis and bakeries are examples of supermarket determination to provide fixings for eat-out-type meals at home. Salad bars and sit-down eating facilities are becoming standard departments in an increasing number of supermarkets.

Insurance Rates Higher

After DUI Conviction

Liability insurance rates currently being paid by automobile owners could increase as much as six times if the owner is convicted of a driving under the influence (DUI) charge.

Collision insurance rates could increase fourfold for a DUI conviction. These rate increases depend on whether the insurer continues to provide coverage at all to a client who is convicted of a DUI charge.

It was learned through a telephone survey of insurance companies, conducted by the Mississippi Highway Patrol, that liability costs may increase as much as 150 percent or, on the point system, by six points for a client convicted of DUI.

Collision rates increase by four points or 100 percent for those convicted of DUI.

Most insurance company spokesmen said it would be uncommon for their companies to sell insurance to anyone convicted of DUI, even a first time offender.

Not one company spokesman said his company would insure a known DUI offender unless it was through an assigned risk plan at substantially higher rates.

It's Time To Reserve

State Park Cabins

Reservations for vacation cabins at Mississippi state parks for 1984 will be accepted beginning Jan. 2, 1984 at 8:00 a.m. Reservations may be made by contacting the individual park office during regular business hours, 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

Cabin reservations are not required but are strongly recommended.

Aubrey Rozzell, Director Bureau of Recreation and Parks, said the following rules apply to cabin reservations:

1. One person may not make reservations for more than five cabins for one date, unless special approval is given by the district manager to accommodate family reunions, etc.

2. Reservations can be made for only one set of dates at a time.

3. First priority will be given to in-person requests, followed by telephone requests, and letters, postmarked after Jan. 1, 1984. Minimum stay for the heavy use season (May 1-Sept. 15) is three nights. There is a two night minimum during other times of the year. Maximum stay during the heavy use season is 14 days.

Baptist System Announces Tenth Hospital

Baptist Memorial Health Care System of Memphis received approval of the Mississippi Health Care Commission Dec. 15 to build a 100-bed hospital in DeSoto County, contingent on the resolution of a legal issue.

The commission earlier rejected a request of DeSoto General Hospital for a certificate of need to build a 120-bed for-profit hospital. That decision was sustained by a chancery court in Jackson, but hospital representatives indicated they planned to appeal to the Mississippi Supreme Court.

The Baptist proposal calls for the construction of a $12 million hospital near Interstate 55 and Goodman Road, just south of Memphis.

The proposal won endorsements from the DeSoto County Board of Supervisors, chamber of commerce and most of the aldermen in the county.

When constructed, the hospital would become the 10th in the 2,766-bed system owned by Southern Baptists in Arkansas, Mississippi and Tennessee.

Others are in Memphis, Covington, Ripley, Union City and Huntingdon, Tenn., Booneville, and Forrest City, Hardy, and Corning, Ark.

Marathon Running A Legitimate Sport

By SCOTT McKINNEY
Sports Writer

Most people in our area don't consider running in a marathon a type of sporting event. But the sport is starting to pick up interest among several Booneville citizens.

Marathons are infrequent and rare to our part of the country. And the time required to train for one can seem like an eternity. But you won't hear Dr. Cliff Cartwright or Ray Cozart complain.

These two men recently traveled to Huntsville, Ala., to compete in the Humana Rocket City Marathon. Neither placed in the race, but both did manage to finish -- a task most runners would be very proud of. Cozart finished the 26.2 miles in 3 hours and 52 minutes, while Cartwright managed a time of 4:31.

This was Cartwright's first marathon. But Cozart is an established runner.

Cartwright said he has been training for the event for about a year, which requires full time devotion. Training for Cartwright includes running six days a week for a total of forty miles. But he said he had to start on a slower pace.

"I started walking every day at first," Cartwright said. "Anyone just starting to run should be able to walk at least two miles every day without experiencing any fatigue."

A good pair of shoes and shorts are all one needs to get started. Everything else is optional, Cartwright said. He said the biggest factor in clothing is comfort and fit while the person is running.

Many people believe that running as a sport is only for the young. But, Cartwright insists age is not a factor. "If a person is over 35, the only thing they should do different from everyone else is to have a EKG test run before they start running," he said. "Anyone else should have no trouble in getting off to a good start."

Sense of satisfaction is the major reason most runners compete in marathons, according to Cartwright. "The feeling of knowing that you can finish and accomplish something gives you a big thrill," he said.

Like most people who start running, or any other type of exercising, Cartwright started running as a 'move for general fitness.'

Tupelo's Annual Gum Tree Run is Cartwright's next planned race. But he really doesn't know about any of the other races. The big races, such as the Boston Marathon are events in which the runner must qualify. But Cartwright seems optimistic about the Boston race.

Cartwright did direct one statement to the people in this area, and especially the people in is neighborhood "Thanks to all the people that haven't run over me yet," he said.

By SCOTT McKINNEY
Sports Writer

Old Father Time is about to leave us and make way for the upcoming New Year; but not without leaving us many memories of the past year -- especially in the world of sports.

The year 1983 has been one of the best ever for the sport's world. We have had good and bad news concerning sports in our county, our state, and our country. But sports fans everywhere will agree that 1983 has been a 'Banner' year for sports. Several area high school basketball teams started the year on the right foot by advancing into the state high school basketball tournament in Jackson.

Booneville's Devilettes made the trip in the girl's division as the only Prentiss County girls to advance that far. Thrasher's Rebels and Jumpertown's Cardinals represented Prentiss County in the boy's state tournament, also in Jackson.

Baldwyn's Lady Bearcats and Jumpertown's Cardinals also captured top honors in the 1983 Prentiss County Tournament to secure 'bragging rights' for the next year. And Wheeler's B-team took the championship trophy in the junior-varsity bracket.

Northeast Mississippi Junior College's Tigerette softball team started the Spring months on a good note as they captured the Region 7 Lady's Softball tournament.

Booneville High School's baseball team advanced into the district playoffs last Spring. It was their first appearance in post-season play in some time.

In other baseball and softball news of '83, People's Bank's little league team won the Summer league at the city park. The Rotary Club sponsored team won the tee-ball league.

The sport of football probably brought the biggest news in '83 as both good and bad news decorated the scene.

Baldwyn's Bearcats finished the season with a perfect 10-0 mark, and advanced into the state playoffs in high school football. Thrasher opened its first ever season with an impressive 3-8 mark under the guidance of Coach Willie Jackson.

Wayne Jones stepped in to take over Booneville's Blue Devils this past season. The young Devil team took its share of bumps and bruises in the past year.

Perhaps the biggest football news of the past year in this county came from Northeast, when long time Coach Bill Ward stepped down as head coach, and resumed full time duties as the Tiger's athletic director. Ward's assistant David Carnell took over the job at NEMJC.

Tragedy overtook the sportsworld on several occasions as sports fans lost some of their all-time greats. The death of former Alabama coach, Paul 'Bear' Bryant came as a shock to many sports fans who felt we had lost the greatest coach in football history.

And, recently, a plane crash took the lives of another area coach, Memphis State coach Rex Dockery, two of his assistants and an MSU player.

I could never list all the goals and accomplishments that Prentiss Countians achieved in 1983. But maybe these few highlights will rekindle your memories, and allow you to remember the past year with pride.

To all you sports fans, have a happy New Year!!!!

Prentiss County Tournament Gets Underway Next Week

By SCOTT McKINNEY
Sports Writer

The 21st annual Prentiss County Tournament will get underway next week as local high school basketball teams head into the second half of the season. And the action promises to be hot and heavy.

Sponsored by the Booneville Jaycees, the tournament will feature all the Prentiss County teams vying for the coveted title. Three of the teams in last year's tournament went on to represent Prentiss County in the state tournament in Jackson last spring. Jaycee representative Manfred Saylor feels that last year's tournament was one of the best ever, and this year's could be even better.

"The balance of all the teams in the county will make this year's tournament probably the best in some time," Saylor said. "I'm sure that several of these teams will advance to the state tournament later in the year."

Most of the teams are evenly matched this year, but in the boys' bracket, Wheeler is seeded as the team to beat, while Jumpertown is rated second. Baldwyn's Lady Bearcats are ranked as the top team in the girls' bracket. The New Site Lady Royals are rated second. Booneville's Devilettes come in at third after several early losses.

New Site and Wheeler will get things started at 5:00, Wednesday in B-team action. The action will continue until the finals on Saturday night.

Wheeler's B-team, Baldwyn's Lady Bearcats, and Jumpertown's Cardinals are the defending champions from last year's event.

Admission will be $1 and $2, according to Saylor.
